When You Buy At Chevington Woods
You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of. Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with having natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

Currently at Marty's La Mancha is the Bobby Breen Revue. To get straight to the point, Bobby Breen is still talented and entertaining, but the Revue leaves a lot to be desired.

The Revue consists of Breen, vocalist Erica Trevor, a Go-Go dancer and the Jerry Citron trio.

According to the advance publicity, Erica Trevor was a former Miss USA. When asked in what year, Erica said she was "never in any type of beauty contest. I don't know how that rumor got started," related Erica.

Erica Trevor is a typical night club vocalist. She really doesn't posses any style or show much feeling for a song. Erica lacks punch in the vocal department. She tosses out a song, but doesn't do anything with it. Yet, Erica is fairly entertaining due to the fact that she is a rather attractive female with a decent amount of showmanship.

Breen, on the other hand, is still an old pro. He has a nice voice and he knows what to do with the material he has to work with in the Revue. Breen's talent, experience and the way he takes command saves the Revue from total disaster.

The main reason why the show never gets off the ground is due to the material, or rather lack of material.

The Revue needs to be re-written. It lacks pace, interest and punch. Many of the songs Bobby does are not suited for him. Some routines must be dropped and new ones added.

For example, there is a gal in the act who is billed as a dancer. She is nothing but a go-go dancer. That is all she does. Columbus has 10 tons of go-go girls. One is not needed in a New York Revue. Besides, the Columbus girls are more talented and prettier.

Most of the show just lacks professionalism. It needs more talent, more rehearsal, better production with appropriate routines and material. As the Bobby Breen Revue stands, it drags so bad that Bobby has to fight hard to keep it from burying itself beneath the stage.

The Northland Anchor Inn Motel has one of the most unique lounges and dining rooms in the city. Located on Morse Road just off the North Freeway, the Anchor Inn has a beautiful nautical room called the Captain's Quarters. This room is on the second floor of the motel and offers a sedate, intimate setting as well as a beautiful view of its "port."

On the first floor, there is a very nice family type dining room specializing in medium price meals for the entire family. Known as the Anchor Inn Dining Room, every Monday and Wednesday night is family night, serving spaghetti and chicken dinners, respectively. You are invited to eat all you can for one low price on family nights.

But it's the Captain's Quarters that will please all of you mariners. Music is provided for your dining and dancing pleasure by the Continentals, with Ciro Bovenzi on organ and Johnny Lynn handling the drums and vocal chores. This is a pleasant duo to hear and you will read more about them in this column.

Other eye catching features are the Buccanneers. These are the waitresses in the Captain's Quarters. While they may be pirates, you will be pleased with their service.

You will also enjoy the food. Of course, their seafood is supreme. The 20 ounce lobster tail is out of this world.

Lunch at the Captain's Quarters is also a pleasant experience. Featuring a luncheon buffet, you can have a table with your name on it reserved every day. All you do is call one hour ahead to confirm your reservation. Those who take advantage of this service are referred to as Captains. Hence the name, Captain's Quarters.

If you are looking for something different, chart a course to the Captain's Quarters. Who knows, you may even be shanghaied by one of the Buccaneers.

A couple cf weeks ago, you read in this column that a certain well known motel chain was to buy one of the large motels on W. Broad Street. Now the full story can be told.

William Apple, president of Imperial House Motel, has announced the acquisition of the 250 room Nationwide Inn Motel on W. Broad Street. This will be the third Imperial House Motel in Columbus. The other two are the Imperial House-Arlington and the Imperial House-North. Imperial operates motels in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

To all of our many friends associated with the Imperial chain, we wish you success at the Nationwide Inn.

Tom And Glenn

Tom and Glenn, that well known act that has appeared Around Town so much, is now working at the Club Franklin in Portsmouth, O. They will open in a few weeks at the Olentangy Inn. Many people have been wanting to find out where this group is working. Now you know.

Remember, you may read the questions somewhere else, but you get the ANSWERS in The Spectator's Around Town Column . . . Be sure and visit the Ramblewood Restaurant and say hello to two sharp gals, Marty Mayewski in the lounge and Peggy Dembow, a first class waitress. These are two additions to Bob Curray's staff, an godd ones too.

Lovely Joni Jayne is the vocalist with Boots Carter, a great organist, now appearing at the El Diavolo Lounge. Joni is worth the trip and so is the owner, beautiful Jaci LaFon.

For a nice, quiet place with good food and music, visit Max's Steak House. Howard Parker is pleasing the patrons there with good piano stylings . . . Rusk and McGowan have been held over in the Knaves Cave. Don't miss this group, they are good in both the music and comedy departments.

There are many good movies Around Town this week. Attend one for an enjoyable evening . . . After the theater, visit Ann Ton's on N. High Street. This is a good place for an excellent dinner or a sip of your favorite beverage . . . Don't forget that fabulous Phyllis Dale at the Lincoln Lodge. If you havn't seen her, do it now. You only have two more weeks.

Cincinnati Mourns For Art Mehring

From his helicopter, Lt. Arthur H. Mehring guided Cincinnatians through rush-hour traffic. Now, he'll be guiding traffic far above the limits of a helicopter.

Lt. Mehring, one of the best known men in Cincinnati and Director of Safety Activities for AVOO Broadcasting Co., died Monday at 54. He was a police officer for 30 years and was AVCO's safety director for 10. During his career, he was honored seven times by the National Safety Council.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Ruth Lyons Christmas Fund.

Art is survived by his wife, Ann, a son, Arthur, and a daughter, Gretchen Ann.

'City Singers' Group Forms

"City Singers" is the name chosen by the newly formed choral group being organized by the North Branch YMCA.

This group hopes to draw singers from all over the county.

Anyone 16 years or over is welcome to attend the "City Singers'" meetings Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. at Woodward Park Junior High School, 5151 Karl Rd., Room 105.

The "City Singers" plan to sing a variety of popular and classical music.

Anyone interested in joining the group or obtaining more information should come to the school any Tuesday or phone the North Branch YMCA at 263-1853.

Reunion Set

Former residents of Noble County, their friends and families, are invited to the annual fall reunion and picnic to be held Sunday, Oct. 27, at Southview Park Shelter House.

A cafeteria style meal will be served at 1:30 p.m.

OR H-T'S 'CINDERELLA' GRIDDERS . . .

. . . 'MIDNIGHT' NEVER ARRIVED!

Hamilton Township's '68 grid Rangers will be remembered as the Cinderella eleven who raced the clock to midnight . . . and won. The final touches to a bid for the Metropolitan League title were added Friday with a 13-0 victory over unbeaten and state-ranked West Jefferson. Four of the authors of that happy ending are pictured above (from left) in head Ranger coach Bruce Burnham, fullback Gary Topping, linebacker Bill Estep and defensive coach Wes Mirick. Topping accounted for 175 of H-T's 248 total yards (scored one TD on 58-yd. run) while Estep picked off two key interceptions. (Story, more photos inside on Sports Page).

Sewer Rates Coming Down For Groveport Customers

Sewer rates aren't likely to "come tumbling down" in Groveport, but Mayor Roger Higgins brought word to council this week that cost studies to date indicate they will at least "slip."

Although the exact cut is yet to be granted by the county engineer, the report made by Burgess and Niples shows revenue generated by the current rates is approximately $10,000 more than is needed for operating expenses, bond retirement and a $6,000 annual reserve.

WITH 354 SEWER taps, Higgins is taking an educated gues that this can means a reduction of about $1 per month per customer.

At least, this will be a moral victory for the village which has fought for a cutback for local customers for several years.

The warning by finance chairman Frank Smith that the police fund is in dire need had a relatively happy ending.

SMITH WAS quite correct in his figures that unless a miracle happened, local policemen would go unpaid—and right at Christmas time.

However, solicitor Jim Thompson came up with the "minor miracle."

According to Thompson, the demurrer he filed in the village's long standing defense in the Baker case (a firm which officials claim overcharged the village for street work) was sustained.

WITH BAKER believed fresh out of legal recourse, most of the $2,000 held back in case Groveport was ordered to pay up was released to bail out the Police Fund.

Chief Al Whipple stated that the deficit arose from extraordinary expense on the old cruiser and extra salary expense stemming from illness of regular employes.

Other Police business includes renewal of the contract the village holds with the Madison Township Trustees, through which the village furnishes the entire township police protection.

THE CONTRACT duplicates that initiated last year in general, changed only to increase the cost to the trustees by $5,000 to a total of $35,000 and obligating the village to provide an additional radio operator.

Upon questioning by councilmen, Whipple conceded the village doesn't make any money on the contract, but pointed out that it allows 24-hour, seven-day a week protection in the community and the purchase of additional equipment. (For example, bids were awarded Ricart Ford for a new cruiser this month, and delivery is pending on a speed detection device.)

Further cooperation between the village and the township was evidenced by the ordinance passed to grant the trustees a 20-year contract to erect and maintain a metal barn on the Groveport water works site. The ordinance, as a protection to the trustees against actions of a future council, carries an option for a 20-year renewal.

ALTHOUGH THE title to the Fanny Leighner lease has been finalized, the third reading of the ordinance prohibiting head-in parking on the south side of Main Street between Crooked Alley and Wert Road was tabled.

This was done to postpone the new regulation from going into effect before the new municipal parking lot is ready for use — probably around Jan. 1.

A guest at council was Jay Montgomery who again sought information on financing street construction on the Tallman extension to make practical development of 12 lots.

THOMPSON STATED his preliminary check showed that bonding for such a small project was financially infeasible but promised further study.

Although not present, John Montgomery, father of Jay, was also a subject of council affairs Monday.

Letters of congratulations signed by council were prepared for the older Montgomery and Miss Pam Higgins.

MONTGOMERY, an all-American quarterback in the mid-thirties at Ohio University, has just been named to the Football Hall of Fame. Miss Higgins was lauded for winning the State Ladies Amateur Championship.

Considerable time and considerable heat was expended on the issue whether or not committee chairman should spend appropriated monies without the blessing of Smith as finance chairman.

One view is that no council member is less than responsible; the other is that Smith's "bird-dogging" is a welcome service which helps run a tighter ship.

THE DISCUSSION resulted in Thompson's being directed to dust off some legislation proposed about a year ago setting up a system of purchase orders.

Whether he will be able to come up with legislation pleasing everyone is problematical.

A particularly interesting report brought to council was that of Marshall McGuire who had attended Sunday's dedication of Eastland Vocational School.

GOV. JAMES Rhodes, according to McGuire, stated vocational education was of no value without a job waiting for the graduate.

He went on to assure his audience that the State was prepared to buckle down to the job of bringing in industry which would provide these jobs in the immediate vicinity.

Other business included Thompson's report that the village's case with Phillips Oil Co. may hinge upon who was responsible for traffic control during the resurfacing of Main Street; the word from McGuire that the park shelter house is almost complete with costs roughly $1,500 and a report by Clerk Opal Rohr of the Ohio Municipal League convention in Cleveland at which she recently represented council.

ACCORDING TO MRS. Rohr, complicated changes in village budgeting are in the books, Public Employe Retirement costs are on the way up and a demand for fulltime village officials is in the making.

Rodney Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Dall, 925 Premier Dr., received the first of the balloons which will be given to all small-fry pancake fans. His sister, Jeannie, is the Honored Queen of the Bethel 71.

Four School Districts Seek Financial Help

The boards of Madison, Hamilton and Canal Winchester School districts are asking voter approval of increased operating levies and Teays Valley is seeking a renewal of existing levies.

Citizens' Committees in these districts have spent a great deal of time and money in recent weeks in the attempt to bring the facts to the voters.

THEY UNIFORMLY have laid their cards on the table, recognizing the right of the voter to know what his action in the privacy of the voting booth will mean in services or lack of them.

Below, The Spectator has attempted to summarize this information.

In all four cases millage will be based upon approximately 45 per cent of the market value of real estate. For example, if one's home can be sold for $20,000, the owner will be taxed $9 for each mill approved.

Madison

MADISON Local School District is asking a 8.5 mill increase in operating levy.

The proposal is justified by the fact that school enrollment has doubled within the past five years, and that well-informed predictions indicate 500 additional students will show up every fall for the next few years.

And even a rising tax duplicate cannot meet the cost of educating these children in an inflationary period.

The crisis is further aggravated by the fact the reserve will be depleted this year.

CURRENTLY LOCAL real estate taxes foot only 29.39 per cent of the $456.31 it costs to educate each child with the state footing 54.01 per cent of the bill.

Madison now spends less per child than 12 of the other 16 districts within Franklin County.

It is recognized that failure of the Madison Levy will mean drastic curtailment of education as it is now accepted in the community.

Hamilton

PERHAPS NO district in the county suffers greater financial difficulties than Hamilton Local which is seeking 13 mills.

Its troubles stem from a tax rate of 17.5 mills which is the lowest in the county on a tax duplicate of only about $20,000,000 or $5,000 for each of the 4,000 pupils attending Hamilton Schools.

Heavily dependent upon the federal government through monies available to it because of the large number of dependents of Lockbourne Air Force Base it educates, the District was thrown into near-panic at the recent cutback in such funds.

WITH RESTORATION of these per-pupil appropriations more or less assured, the success of the 13-mill levy will mean the "quality education" can be continued. (The 13-mill request was made before the threat of loss of federal funds was known.)

Although the budget has been trimmed, the board and administration are confident that a sound education program can continue with the levy okayed.

Without it, they foresee the district running out of money before the end of the school year.

AS DEFICIT financing is prohibited by law, it is probable that failure of the levy will mean schools will be closed in April and May until June tax money is collected.

Canal Winchester

Canal Winchester's request for 6.6 mills is the first since 1963.

During this five-year period spending per pupil in the district which was formerly on a par with the state average has slipped to more than 12 per cent below that of other Ohio schools and Canal Winchester now ranks 14th in spending among the 17 Franklin County schools.

ALTHOUGH THE Board of Education maintains that it has been able, through careful management, to keep up standards, members realize the time has arrived when money is urgently needed.

With the current operating levy of 20.3 mills (lower than 15 of the other districts in the county) approximately $40,000 will have to be pared from projected spending next year.

The board states such a cut would deliver a "devasting blow" to the program.

ONE BRIGHT note exists for C-W voters that is lacking for those in other districts asking increased millage.

An adjustment on the bond retirement rate will result in only a 5-mill net increase in taxes if the levy passes.

Teays Valley

No new taxes are involved in the levy asked by the Teays Valley District.

INSTEAD, THE board is asking only for the renewal of a six-mill levy due to expire next year, another six-mill levy expiring in 1971 and four mills that would come up for renewal the following year, totaling 16 mills.

The board elected to seek this renewal for three reasons.

First, the action was taken to conform with a new state law that all renewal on additional levies be voted on a "continuing" basis rather than the traditional five-year periods.

SECONDLY election casts at a general election are only fractional of those at a special or off-year election. For example, such special elections have cost the District almost $2,000 while in 1964 Teays Valley's proportionate share was anly $256.

The third motive behind the request is that no new school levies are on the November ballot which might jeopardize the existing levies.

Currently the 16 mills up for renewal coupled with the inside levy of 3.7 mills (which is automatic and never voted upon) bring operating levies to 19.7. The bond retirement rate is now 4.3 but will drop to 3.5 mills.

AN OKAY on the operating levy will set the 1969 tax rate at 23.2 mills for all school purposes, .8 mills less than that established for 1968.

AN EDITORIAL

It's An Investment

Don't goof.

The patriots who wrote the United States Constitution did.

They laid down the ground rules for a working democracy, but failed to even mention education.

And in a nation where the power of government lies with the governed, that nation's very survival depends upon the education of the people.

With the Constitution ignoring this responsibility, education rested upon the shoulders of the community in Colonial days — and it still does.

Today, when an honest attempt is being made to provide each and every child with the skills that will best prepare him for a useful and satisfying life, the price tag on education is high.

Tuesday, taxpayers are going to be asked to go along with the bill.

Economically, many feel they cannot afford even a few more tax dollars.

The 1947 report of the President's Commission on Education is a philosophy that convincingly shows we cannot afford NOT to spend these dollars.

"Education is an investment, not a cost.

"It is an investment in free men.

"It is an investment in higher production, increased income and greater efficiency in agriculture, industry and government.

"It is an investment in a bulwark against garbled information, half-truths, and untruths; against ignorance and intolerance.

"It is an investment in human talent, better human relationships, democracy, and peace."

School operating levies have been placed on the ballot by four Southeast Districts — Madison, Hamilton, Canal Winchester and Teays Valley.

None of these school boards are seeking to "frost" the educational cake.

They are asking only for the funds demanded to give every student a fair shake.

Please don't goof.

A Shootin' Iron Is Called For

An opportunity for the Dead-Eye Dicks and Daisies of Central Ohio to bring home the bacon (and the turkey and the chicken) begins this weekend at the South Side Hoover Y-Park.

Under the chairmanship of Dave Wilson, the annual turkey shoot sponsored by the Right Angle Club of the South Side YMCA will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday and will be repeated again Sunday, Nov. 10.

SHOTGUNS will be used exclusively to compete in the 15-man firing lines for both "X" and pattern events.

An extra feature designed to make the shoots a "real family affair" involves lines for youngsters under the supervision of the Right Angle members.

Free coffee will be provided for the competitors and members of Y.I.C.A. will set up concession stands.

The Right Angle is an organization made up of businessmen dedicated to the support of the "Y" programs for South Sdie youth.

ALL AMMUNITION will be furnished by Right Angle, but contestants are asked to bring their own guns.

However, a limited number of guns will be available for use of those unable to furnish their own.

Grabiel Suit Proves Position Unchanged

Ernie Grabiel, Hamilton Township trustee, has produced rather concrete evidence that he is irrevocably against further annexation of Hamilton Township to the City of Columbus.

This evidence came to light last week when the law firm of Wonnell and Malone filed, in behalf of Grabiel, a suit in protest of the annexation of 49 acres (now in the township) to the city.

THE ACREAGE, known as the Fisher property, lies just north of Obetz Road between Lockbourne Road and Parsons Avenue (Grabiel lives on the south side of Obetz Road, across from the site in question.)

Judge Thomas Mitchell, assigned to Franklin County from Jackson County to help with the heavy local case load, granted a restraining order in the matter.

The order prohibits the annexation approved by County Commissioners last month from being presented to City Council for a vote until Grabiel's suit is heard.

According to Grabiel, law prohibits the hearing from being set for at least 20 days from his filing.

Grabiel, who is an attorney, stated that to the best of his knowledge this is the first time the constitutionality of Ohio annexation laws has been questioned.

LEGALLY speaking, he is particularly critical of the abolition of statute which formerly made it necessary to post a property eyed for annexation.

Although conceding that by present definition the Daily Reporter is a newspaper of "general circulation," he believes that publication in it of a notice of this kind does little to inform the lay public, as it is not exactly a "family newspaper."

Grabiel's interest in the case also comes from his belief that annexation of this type creates higher taxes for the remaining township residents, that subdividing of rural property often decreases property evaluation and that when annexed for school purposes is not automatic the local schools are stuck with the education of the dependents of non-residents.

WITH CHARLES C. Tansel, who acted as agent in the annexation petition, the vice-president of Virginia Homes which developed the adjacent Southern Pines, it is a logical conclusion the site is viewed for extension of the subdivision.

Grabiel stated this week that Tansel revealed at the commissioners' hearing that four homes an acre would probably be constructed.

OCT 1968

AN OPEN LETTER

Reno Robinett, Mayor Miller Urges Support Of Village Levy

Voters of Canal Winchester will be asked to approve a five year two mill operating levy Tuesday. The purpose of this levy is to meet current and anticipated expenses to assure the continued improvement in all departments of village government.

THE DECISION to place the issue on the ballot came after a thorough study of the rising costs in all areas of maintenance in the past five years.

Many phases of maintenance and programs of improvement cannot be met on the finances now available to the village.

The council members realize that a two mill levy will mean an increase of $2 per thousand of tax evaluation. For example, if a property is on the tax duplicate at $10,000, the two mill levy would increase real estate taxes $20 per year.

COUNCIL HAS also made a complete study of the progress in our village during the past 10 years. Briefly, council would like to review with the voters a few areas that have made great improvements. These areas are:

- Streets, alleys, highways.
- Curbs and gutters in the village.
- Collection of trash, leaves and street cleaning.
- Highways and vacant lots have been mowed and kept clean.
- The police department has been improved in the areas of equipment and personnel.
- The lighting system in the corporate limits has been greatly improved.
- The equipment for cleaning and maintaining passable streets has been modernized and properly housed.
- Properly trained personnel are kept busy the year around keeping our village in the best possible condition.

Several areas have been mentioned, however we must never lose sight of the volunteer firemen and emergency squadmen who give freely of their time and talent to provide that all-important service in time of emergency and fire.

CANAL WINCHESTER Volunteer Firemen are on record as one of the best trained and equipped in the State of Ohio.

The above items are listed to remind our citizens what YOU have done through YOUR Council to improve this fine village.

To maintain this village as you want it, vote "YES" on the Two-Mill Levy, Nov. 5.

IT'S YOUR DECISION, MR. AND MRS. CITIZEN!

K. L. (Mike) Miller,
Mayor
Reno E. Robinett,
Council President

AND IT'S STRICTLY FOR AMATEURS

If you are a man and have an average of over 180 or a woman with an average of over 160, the Head-Pin Tournament at Berwick Plaza Lanes, Berwick Shopping Center, during the next four weekends is off-limits to you. Designed by the Groveport-Madison Athletic Boosters Club which is sponsoring the tourney to provide competition for the average bowler, the tourney will also provide funds for the school's athletic department. According to Tom Chappell, tourney chairman, $260 in cash prizes will be earned and eight trophies for students awarded. An advance door-to-door ticket sale wil be held by junior and senior high school students Saturday and tickets will be sold at the door. Tournament hours are noon to 11 p.m. Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Pictured "warming up" is Jimmy Schaeffer with Bobby Davis awaiting his turn. In the back are, from left, Mark Raaft, Jim Schaeffer, publicity chairman, and Chappell.

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Ashville Taxpayer Continues To Debate Official Spending

Gentlemen:

Three weeks ago I wrote an article for The Spectator regarding the use of our tax dollars and the passage of the two-mill levy for the safety fund.

At the same time, an article appeared in The Spectator quoting our honorable mayor's contention that I had been misinformed concerning the amount of the levy we voted on.

SINCE THEN, one or two of our honorable councilmen have also come out in opposition to me.

Both council and the mayor have stated that I should have done a little more checking of the facts.

Now I want to set the record straight and call the attention of our honorable mayor and council to the resolution on said tax levy which ran five times in our local paper between May 23 and June 20.

AT THE TIME this resolution was running in the paper, our honorable mayor talked to the Community Club and stated the village was asking a two-mill levy for the Safety Fund.

He is now saying it was not a two-mill levy but only for 1.5 mills.

Now Mr. Mayor, if this is true, then I, along with a goodly number of our local citizens, can assume that the other facts and figures you gave in your talk are also incorrect.

WHILE WE are on the subject of taxes for the Safety Fund, what about income from our Safety Department?

- How much has been collected in fines since Jan. 1?
- How many cases have been brought into court and what disposition was made of said cases?
- WHERE DOES Marshal Clay spend his time? No one sees him patroling the streets.
- When the marshal has not been seen patroling the streets, how is it possible to burn some 75 gallons of gas in a 12-day period?
- What has the marshal done to deserve the raise that council meted out at its last meeting? ($215.80 or $4.15 a week).

I SUGGEST that council and the mayor take a long, hard look at the situation and, in place of passing out unnecessary pay raises, cut back and seeking ways to raise more money for this and cut back spending.

I might also suggest that councilmen circulate among the people of Ashville and get ideas from the people instead of going ahead with major plans and later advising taxpayers of what has been done and that they are going to be faced with additional taxes.

There will be more later,

Elmer Barr, Jr.

Obetz & Hamilton Township News

By RUTH BORDEN
491-8141

Members and friends of the Obetz Christian Church recently attended the monthly Family Night in the Parish House. This was held to honor organist Mrs. Clyde Freidlinghaus. Following a potluck supper Mrs. Freidlinghaus was presented with an arrangement of red roses in appreciation of her services. The rest of the evening was spent viewing slides of Calvin Borden's trip to Alaska last summer.

The youth and friends from the Obetz Christian Church joined District 9 last Saturday evening at Grove City, at a hay ride and wiener roast. Some 150 youth and leaders attended.

Rally Held

The 1968 Franklin County FHA Rally was held Oct. 22—7 to 9 p.m. at the Franklin Heights High School. Members from Canal Winchester, Groveport-Madison, Grove City, Dublin, Hamilton Township, Hilliard, Pleasant View, Brookpark, Reynoldsburg and Franklin Heights chapters attended.

The meeting was called to order by President Vicki Bacaw from Franklin Heights. All new members were presented with red roses.

The speaker of the evening was Cheryl Galloway from a local decorator's supply house. A skit was presented by members from Hamilton Township.

Refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Officers Listed

Other members holding county offices are: secretary, Linda Powell, Groveport; treasurer, Cindy Eddy, Grove City; degree chairman, Karen Robinson, Dublin; news reporter, Carla Hufford, Hilliard; historian, Sharon Detty, Canal Winchester; social leader, Judy Willet, Pleasant View and student, Cindy Eddy, Grove City.

Police Log 870 Calls

A two-month report submitted to Groveport Council and Madison Township Trustees this week shows 870 calls were received and cruiser mileage totaling 14,425 logged by the Groveport Police Department.

Reports taken included armed robbery, two; burglary, three; larceny, 31; manslaughter, one and miscellaneous 69 with no auto theft, forgery or sex crimes reported.

Sixty-seven of the adult arrests were made on traffic charges with criminal arrests in 14 cases. Juvenile arrests total nine, with three on traffic charges and six on criminal charges.

South High Speaks Out

ED. NOTE: Mrs. Mary Weld has written the following introduction to the essay, "Black Power As I See It," written by Tom Simmons, a senior in Mrs. Weld's honors English class at South High. Tom is the son of Mrs. Melvina Simmons, 533 Mithoff.

"If I 'read them right,' the black high school students still have hope for a peaceful solution to racial tensions. They are still open to the non-violent philosophy of Martin Luther King, Jr., (and it is a but) being members of a no-nonsense generation, they intend to effect results—even if, regretfully, King's memory must fade into a misty Camelot.

"Tom Simmons' paper is representative of these black students at the moment poised between idealism and realism.

"They are acquainted with the Presidential Civil Disorder Report and they expect, consequently, help from White Power."

BLACK POWER AS I SEE IT

The words "Black Power" were first heard at a Negro rally protesting the arrest of six Negro youths for refusing to leave a white restaurant because the owner said they don't serve "niggers."

At the rally held near the "Jim Crow" restaurant, young Negroes gathered, singing such songs as "We Shall Overcome" and "The Rough Road to Freedom." The rally continued past midnight into the next day's early hours, with Mississippi cops standing by, watching.

The rally reached its peak when one voice amidst the shout of slogans called out, "We want black power!" The crowd echoed the chant. The Black Power Movement in white America was born.

SOME PEOPLE, even myself, thought it was the black way of taking over the government, thereby changing white America into black America by ways of force. Now this is what I would like to clear up about Black Power.

FOR GENERATIONS that is exactly what being "black" has meant to the black man. He has stood on the sidelines in America, as if he did not exist — in short, "absent" when the rolls of opportunity were called out.

He has been the absence of light on a surface. For 300 years he has been absent from the American scene, only looked upon as a lazy darky, eating greasy chicken and singing and dancing in the backyard of his shack.

He has not been enjoying the great American freedoms of the Bill of Rights or the Constitution. The only rights he ever had are those of being black and being satisfied with the condition.

NOW LET'S LOOK at the word "power." Power is the ability to act, to move by force. The black man has had no power; he has not had the ability to act.

By ability I mean the education, the money, and the "head start."

The headstart is being looked upon as a man, not as the black man. This is the headstart he needs. With this he can get the education, he can get the money; and then, he has the ability to act — he has the power.

IN SHORT, the definition of Black Power is simply this: the black man's ability to act!

"But act how?" you whites ask. "Will you act violently or will you be non-violent?"

Look at the violent way.

FOR THE PAST few years we have had here in the United States racially troubled summers. "Long hot summers," they have been called.

Why?

Well, for the Negro the hardest seasons for him are winter and summer. Winter, because his ghetto house keeps him and his family cold and the rats supplied with his child's flesh. Summer, because he's hot at night (as well as the day), and somehow disease spreads in the summer, especially if the Negro lives in Harlem, or Chicago, or Detroit, or Baltimore or Washington, D. C.

SO FROM ONE winter to the next hot summer, the Negro is frustrated. During the summer he throws up his hands, saying, "to hell with this." And he lets the words of the black militants sway him to the violent ways of getting his freedom.

The 13 colonies did the same when the British pressed them too far. Thowing precious tea into Boston Harbor was not exactly the mark of gentility. And shoving a home-made weapon into the hands of a 10-year-old son to point at the Red Coat was not a father's peace-loving gesture!

NOW, IN 1968, the white Americans ask: "What do you get from it? Does it help you? Does it help America?"

The blacks reply, "Why can't we be equal to you?"

You turn up your noses, tuck your tails and scurry away, or you act bewildered, as if you don't know what's happening.

SEEING THIS, we riot, we burn, and we shoot the "man."

We think you don't care, so why should we?

We have nothing to lose because we haven't gained anything in 300 years. It's not that we blacks want to destroy America or our homes, but it's that you white people in pretended innocence have provoked us to move violently!

THIS, WHITE MAN, is Black Power in the violent way.

But hold on a minute, "whitey," don't run and get the National Guard to hold the "crazy" black man from burning your country or homes.

There is a better way, a way that both black and white can enjoy — the non-violent way.

THIS IS THE best way to save our races and our America. This is the only way that the American and the Afro-American can look at each other and be proud of a name.

The way, however, depends not only on the white Americans but on the Afro-Americans — my people, my race— to come together and be called Americans.

We have to be bound together so tightly that no racial tensions can split our country; we have to be bound together so that when one race has problems, they will get together and solve them.

IN COOPERATION we can save our country from civil strife.

But someone must take the first step and in my opinion, it must be White Americans. After all, you've been free for 300 years, not us!

You take the first step: then, we'll take ours, using Black Power the non-violent way. The definition of non-violent Black Power is simply this: the black man's ability to act peacefully.

EXACTLY 100 years ago in October our great Frederick Douglass wrote to Harriet Tubman, "The midnight sky and the silent stars have been your witnesses of your devotion to freedom and of your heroism."

A beautiful tribute to be sure.

But today, my black brothers cry out to live and make decisions in the broad light of day — an enlightened day — not only with singing stars for consolation, but with needs fulfilled and normal expectations realized.

THE MISSION of Black Power and the best mission of America are identical: to develop manhood, to teach the idea of manly independence and self-respect. It is to be a dispenser of knowledge, a radiation of light.

Humphrey For President

The Spectator Newspapers strongly urge the election of Hubert H. Humphrey as President and Edmund Muskie as Vice President.

There is more at stake in this election than just the two highest offices in the land. This is an election that offers the voters three choices — social and economic progress as one choice, standstillism as another and bigotry and hatred as the third.

Humphrey and Muskie stand for progress, particularly in the all-important areas of social legislation and economic aid to the deprived of our nation. Hubert Humphrey has been a leader in these areas for more than 20 years.

Richard Nixon stands for four years of nothing. His tenure in the Eisenhower Administration proved him to be a man with no particular distinction or flair for any phase of national government. He was part of an eight-year period of "benevolent apathy" and his defeat in 1960 proved what the nation thought of him. There is no "new Nixon." It is the same Nixon in a slightly more attractive garb. His running mate, Gov. Spiro Agnew, has proved himself intemperate and incapable of the job.

George Wallace presents a mortal danger to the United States. His generalities and easy solutions to problems are a fraud. He failed to run the state of Alabama well and he would fail miserably in any attempt to run the nation. His running-mate, Gen. Curtis LeMay, is a brilliant military tactician with absolutely no sense of human values and no experience whatsoever in the complicated and delicate affairs of state.

There is no question that Humphrey's position in an unpopular administration is his biggest drawback.

But Hubert Humphrey is, in fact, his own man, a capable leader and a faithful servant to the cause of human dignity and the survival of our troubled nation. And his running mate has become the brightest new political star on the horizon — a man of great wisdom, warm humor and the ability to win people to his point of view.

These are, indeed, difficult times.

Only the election of Hubert Humphrey and Edmund Muskie can assure that the ship of state will continue to sail forward.

'Yes' For Children

The Spectator Newspapers strongly urge the adoption of the 1.5-mill renewal of the county Child Welfare tax levy.

The Child Welfare Board serves more than 3,500 children a month — children of broken homes and the victims of domestic difficulties.

Without these funds, Franklin Village could not operate and these innocent children would be without public services to care for them.

Child Welfare is a necessity—not a luxury. Passage of the 1.5-mill renewal should be overwhelming.

On the other hand; The Spectator urges the defeat of the so-called Alum Crest Hospital levy. The county commissioners have attempted to pull a political flimflam game by not truly earmarking the funds for Alum Crest.

The .3-mill levy renewal for metropolitan parks should be approved.

Judicial Races

Never have the voters paid more attention to judicial races than in this election year.

With "law and order" a pervading campaign theme, the men who preside over our courtrooms are being carefully examined by the voters.

There are three State Supreme Court judgeships up for election. In the race for Chief Justice, The Spectator Newspapers strongly urge the election of Judge John C. Duffy. Judge Duffy has served on the Court of Appeals with an enviable record and is widely respected among his fellow attorneys. He would be a great asset to the court.

John Matthias is unopposed for his seat. In the other race, The Spectator endorses Merrill D. Brothers, who has served well in various public offices.

The Spectator also strongly urges the re-election of "the other Duffey," John J. Duffey, to the Court of Appeals. Here, too, is an exceptional judge, well-versed in the law and a pacesetter in appellate decisions. For the second contested seat, we endorse Robert E. Holmes, long-time member of the Ohio House.

Four incumbents are up for re-election to the Common Pleas bench. We urge the re-election of two of these — George B. Marshall and Robert E. Leach. We urge the election of Josiah H. Blackmore, a rising star in legal circles over appointee Archer Reilly and of Ted Boehm, another first-time candidate, over incumbent Charles R. Petree, the only judge who failed to get the 80 percent approval required for Bar Association endorsement.

For the two new seats on the court, The Spectator endorses Municipal Judge Tom Moody, an outstanding jurist, and Alba Whiteside, chief counsel to City Attorney John Young.

For the newly-created seat on the Domestic Relations bench, we urge the election of Richard McCracken. As a referee, McCracken has learned the operations of the court and is well-qualified to serve on the bench.

12th District: 'No'

The Spectator Newspapers regretfully urge that voters in the 12th Congressional District cast their vote for neither of the candidates on the Nov. 5th ballot.

These newspapers have never before advised voters to literally stay out of a race. We do not enjoy this stance.

But neither can we bring ourselves to recommend either of the candidates. It is our contention that the voters of the 12th have been cheated again. They have no choice.

Incumbent Republican Rep. Sam Devine goes about his business honestly and forthrightly but he simply does not represent the changing interests of the 12th District. His views certainly do not represent those of the Democrats. He does not represent the Negro or the white poor. He is the representative of business and other special interest groups and not the people.

His challenger, Herbert J. Pfeifer, is, frankly, far too inexperienced to be making a challenge for such an important post. Pfeifer has been intemperate and, while he seems sincere enough, he does not give us any evidence of having a grasp of the complex issues facing Congress. In addition, The Spectator deplore his tactics of trying to win both the black vote in the inner city and the backlash vote clinging to George Wallace.

The voters of the 12th District would be wise to sit this one out and work to bring about changes that will prevent this deplorable situation from ever arising again.

County Offices

In presenting its endorsements for county offices, The Spectator again urges voters to elect Harold Cooper and Michael Dorrian as county commissioners. This is far and away the most important local race on the ticket and a chance for the voters to help get the county moving.

A second change would aid the operations of Franklin County. The Spectator urges the election of George A. Van Heyde as County Prosecutor. We feel incumbent C. Howard Johnson has done nothing to promote the establishment of justice and a modern legal system and should be replaced.

In the race for county treasurer, Philip H. Goldslager is seeking to retain the seat he now holds by appointment. He served many years under Newton Thatcher and deserves election to the post. His opponent, Ralston Westlake, served four undistinguished years as Columbus mayor and was soundly defeated in 1963.

Cletus McPherson, chief assistant to County Engineer Guy Elbin, is seeking the retiring Elbin's seat. He should be elected over Don Craven, a bright young engineer who should gain more experience in county government before seeking the office.

In the other county races, The Spectator endorses incumbent James A. Schaefer for recorder, Joseph M. Clifford for Clerk of Courts, Robert A. Evans for coroner and Stacy R. Hall for sheriff.

'No' On State Issues

The Spectator urges defeat of State Issues One and Two on Tuesday's ballot.

Issue One is another Gov. Rhodes bond proposal designed to plunge the state even deeper into bonded debt. It promises something for everyone in an attempt to get votes but in reality it just makes the state's financial future 20 years from now more bleak.

Issue Two, the Homestead Exemption Amendment, would be all right if not for a major loophole. Designed to provide tax exemptions for persons over 65 who own their own home, it left a loophole that would allow the legislature to turn that into an exemption for all homeowners, and that would be financial disaster for the state.

Both issues should be defeated.

Phoney Figures

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor And Publisher

REIDER

There ought to be some kind of law against political polls and television ratings.

As this is written, the Harris poll shows Nixon leading Humphrey by five points. The Gallup spread is 13. Obviously somebody is wrong.

The most glaring poll error occurred in the Roosevelt landslide of 1936 when the Literary Digest had Alf Landon winning by a handsome margin. The Digest went out of business shortly after that fiasco.

Most Ohio papers in that year were just as bad. Day after day the headlines were filled with Landon, Landon, Landon. Scarcely was there a mention of Roosevelt until, of course, after the votes were counted. Then, and only then, did the press concede that FDR was to stay in the White House for four more years.

No Ohio papers folded, as we recall.

Nor have they learned a lesson from that experience. In the ensuing years they have gone blindly on, crying the party line, running unscientific — if not actually fake — polls purportedly showing their candidate way out front.

Presumably this has a psychological effect, particularly on the undecided voter who normally wants to be with a winner.

Back in 1948, the Kiplinger Letter in its pre-election edition blandly predicted it would be "Dewey In A Walk." The Chicago Tribune's early edition on election night proclaimed "Dewey Wins." Dauntless Harry Truman left them red-faced.

Now 20 years later the metropolitan press is still playing games with the polls and readers. One of the Columbus dailies has been running its highly unscientific poll on this election for weeks. What purpose is served other than to salve the ego of a handful of local kingmakers will remain a perpetual mystery.

The American public is in an ugly mood. One of these years they'll tell the pollsters in no uncertain terms to take their phony figures and jump in the Scioto. That year could well be 1968.

No One Has Merits

By JOHN MORGAN

Some of the more liberal press have endorsed a candidate known as No One for president of these United States.

Quite honestly, I have my doubts. Where does No One really stand on law and order, domestic issues and Vietnam? No One surely must rank below even Spiro Agnew for political anonymity.

How could an effective public relations campaign be run for such a candidate? Can you imagine a spot announcement on television — "At a time like this it should be No One." Maybe "No One is the one" could be used.

Mr. No One might have some voter appeal, however. He might even get Sen. Eugene McCarthy's vote of confidence. But is No One really any better than someone?

I have never seen the candidate really, but then I never had seen Spiro Agnew until he stood beside Richard Nixon at the GOP Convention.

I UNDERSTAND, however, that Hubert Humphrey debated No One on a recent television program. Pointing to two empty speaker platforms, Mr. Humphrey pointed that No One was willing to come before the American people.

I've got to admire No One for that. At least he had guts.

I question whether anyone—least of all No One — can do nothing for nobody. no time and still be someone.

Our political system would collapse. Can you imagine a hotline from Moscow to No One in particular? And think what a delight it would be at a press conference where New York Times correspondents questioned No One?

Those who support No One point out that he has a great deal of experience. I mean, after all, has anyone ever been in the White House except No One? Advocates of No One also point out that a vote for No One is a protest. Perhaps what they need is a vice presidential candidate called Some One to make it a positive protest.

Maybe I am being too harsh on No One.

After all, No One has already done something about our racial crisis. Like Mayor John Lindsay of New York, No One could walk the streets of the ghetto without fear. No One has rushed to the aid of our poverty-stricken. No One has listened to the astute political scientists and prophets in America.

NO ONE HAS been quite active.

Perhaps he is not a bad guy, after all.

I can hear the campaign literature now.

"Who has tackled our slum problems head-on . . .? No One."

"Who has called for implementation of the Federal Riot Commission Report with vigor . . .? No One."

"Who has been willing to admit the monumental problems facing America in this century . . . .? No One."

I just might vote for him.

No One knows the troubles I've seen.

A Different Commerical

By TED BEARDSHEAR

It's a cigarette commercial and the jingle says, "You've come a long way, baby, to get where you got today. You've got your own cigarette now, baby . . ." etc.

I think it's clever. It starts out usually with a woman dressed in a 1915 costume and has her take scissors and cut the skirt to a mini and rip off a few things, shake down her hair and tromp off into the background looking modern and sexy.

Or, another version is a woman getting caught by her husband in the gazebo with a cigarette and being chased into the house. Or still again, a woman smoking furtively in the attic.

Another version is a homecoming of a mustachioed man and the dutiful 1915 wife taking his coat and getting a patronizing kiss on the forehead.

Then, suddenly, you see a miniature suffragette parade led off with a woman with cymbals demonstrating to "get their rights."

It ends with a real, real sexy blonde taking a drag off the new fag, insolently and pertly glancing at the camera and moving voluptuously off to infinity.

Somehow, the whole bit, each and every version, entertains me immensely. I like to see the 1915 costumes transformed into an "A line" special.

But, even in enjoyment, the philosophical import is clear.

The modern woman is certainly not the passive girl of yesteryear.

She votes; she works; she owns most of the nation's capital; she's the mistress of her home and, without losing that "mystique," she has somehow attained equality with men.

Sort of cheering, when you think of it.

A man is easy to figure. You can talk and observe him and usually figure out what makes him tick.

But a woman?

The beginning of wisdom about what makes a woman tick is the sincere admission that no man can possibly figure that out.

"You've come a long way, baby, to get where you've got to today."

Bless their souls. They made it without surrendering that mysterious "something" that makes the difference.

Happy smoking, girls.

Predictions

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

I think I'll leave the predicting to Harris and Gallup this year.

Most of the amateur political "experts" are doing the same — hiding under the table.

There are too many imponderables, too many question marks. I'll admit it — I'm chicken.

Three weeks ago I wouldn't have given you a plugged nickel for Hubert Humphrey's chances to be elected President. Now I don't know.

Three weeks ago I would have bet you the family bankroll (such as it is) that Richard Nixon would take the oath of office Jan. 20. Now I don't know.

But I'll stick with one prediction I've been making all along. George Wallace will carry no more than a handful of states in his abortive drive for the nation's high office.

There is a solid political fact of life backing up prediction.

Despite all the ballyhoo, the bumper stickers and the shouting, when a voter gets behind that curtain he is alone with himself. He has no cheering crowd to bolster his conviction. He must live with his decision alone.

And that will keep millions of people from voting for George Wallace.

Because they know in their hearts that the nation cannot function with George Wallace as its President.

They know that Wallace offers platitudes, not practical answers.

They know that he peddles hate and fear, not solutions.

They know in their hearts that the answer to dissent is not to run over the dissenters.

That the answer to too much bureaucracy is not to throw the bureaucrats into the Potomac.

And they know the answer to the Vietnam War is not to plunge us into World War III.

They'll remember all of it when that curtain closes behind them.

Then, they will think for themselves.

Say It Isn't So Mrs. Kennedy

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

All that had long been cherished in the heritage of Western Civilization crumbled the day Jacqueline Kennedy announced her engagement to 62-year-old Greek shipping magnate, Aristotle Onassis.

The immediate reaction in the United States was one of outrage and betrayal: "He's too old!" "He's too rich!" "He's too Greek!"

The impact on the economy was disastrous. Hardest hit was the book publishing industry, which had subsisted for years on Kennedy works. Twelve movie magazines promptly suspended publication. A road show tour of Camelot was cancelled. And Washington souvenir salesmen joined the growing bread lines.

In politics, Spiro T. Agnew withdrew from the race as Congressmen of both parties demanded sanctions against the Greek Government to force restoration of "this National art treasure."

The Democrats suffered a more serious blow with the retirement of Senator Teddy Kennedy to a monastery. The party's large Kennedy faction, which had been building for 1972, abandoned not only politics, but water skiing, touch football and The Frug.

Abroad, the reverberations were catastrophic. Mrs. Kennedy's rejection of Lord Harlech was the final insult to the once proud British Empire. Parliament dissolved and England was sold to Walt Disney Enterprises for 22 million pounds.

Greek democrats gave up their struggle against the military junta, which had Onassis' support. Peron returned in triumph to Argentina and throughout the free world the forces of progress threw in the towel.

The final straw was the schism in the Roman Catholic Church over Mrs. Kennedy's right to marry a divorced man.

The Church, which had served as the bedrock of Western Civilization for two thousand years, split irrevocably — with an anti-Jackie Pope issuing encyclicals to what remained of the faithful from the French Riviera, just south of Avignon.

The West, which had survived countless such crises over the centuries might have survived even this had it not been for the reaction of the young and istic.

The resignation of 7368 Peace Corps volunteers in the first week was typical as youth abandoned its age-old struggle to reform the world and settle into a morass of boredom, Canasta and apathy.

"If you can't believe in Jackie Kennedy," said one tearful young girl, summing up the mood of disillusionment, "what can you believe in?"

So the communists swept over the West with little opposition and installed their grim, gray regime on a once proud and dazzling world. "I attribute our success," said the cunning Commissar of America in his moment of triumph, "to the rejection of Personality Cults."

But the epitaph of the Western World was perhaps best sounded by a grizzled news editor on receiving the first bulletin announcing Mrs. Kennedy's decision.

"Oh, why couldn't she have married a good American," he said sadly, "like George Jessel?"

Boris Margo's Art Reflecting Serenity

Boris Margo, 66, Russian emigre, now an American citizen, educator and artist in several media, is a guest at Ohio State University during the autumn quarter.

[illegible] serving as lecturer in [illegible], principally printmaking. He is also a sculptor.

The role of unity in the quest for world peace has dominated much of Margo's thinking and work during the past several years.

Some of his work is now on exhibit through tomorrow in the Fine Arts Building on the Ohio State campus.

Margo believes that if men would look for the common factors that exist in their diverse aspirations and backgrounds they would learn to live a little more peaceably on this planet.

But Margo isn't an ivory-tower idealist. He realizes that there are certain areas in which no man will compromise.

"I won't compromise in my art," he says.

Still, he thinks peace would be a step nearer if men would see that their essential unity makes it seem silly for them to bicker over minor issues. This would at least keep small matters from mushrooming.

Margo doesn't believe men are moving closer to his ideal. In fact, he sees them moving farther away from it. But he thinks there is hope and he sees a role for the artist in bringing about his idea:

"I believe that the artist must learn from the mysteries and lessons of Yesterday, combine these with the knowledge of Today and point the way toward a Tomorrow of peace and human dignity."

Margo's art hasn't always been full of hope. Critics said his work immediately following his arrival in America in 1930 reflected the gloom and soul-sickness of the Depression era.

His art, however, has been ever-changing. Now critics say he reflects serenity. Change is just fine with Margo, because, he says, an artist dies if he doesn't grow and change.

Around Town

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

You still have three days to catch one of the best acts to play in town this year. The act: Frankie Randall. The place: the La Mancha.

Without a doubt, Frankie Randall is one of the top male vocalists in the business today. He has a good, clear voice with style, a nice sound, and best of all, a great technique.

Frankie, with lots of drive, goes after a tune and certainly captures its message. From the standpoint of tone quality, phrasing and basic attack on many numbers, Randall not only sounds like, but sings like, Frank Sinatra. So right here and now, it's safe to say if you enjoy Sinatra, you'll flip over this boy.

Most times it's bad for a singer to imitate a well known vocalist. But in this case, Frankie Randall is just natural. He is not imitating anyone, even the great one.

The RCA record star and TV personality was discovered by Sinatra while working in a lounge in New York. Frank liked what he heard and saw and pushed Randall up that well known ladder of success. A graduate of Fairleigh Dickinson University, with a major in psychology and a minor in philosophy. Randall has worked with Daen Martin, Rowan and Martin and Joey Bishop.

Many writers have said that Sinatra's interest in this fellow is that he has found someone to carry on the Sinatra vocal ability. Maybe so. Besides owning a great voice, Randall is a fine showman and a true artist under the lights. He's loaded with talent. While performing, you'll notice many similarities between Frank Sinatra and Frankie Randall.

Trio Held Over

Held over for another week at the Sands is the great Sam Blackshaw Trio. Last week we told you about the three musicians in the group. There is actually a fourth member, a vocalist by the name of Bob Taylor, who is so good he deserves a separate review.

Bob Taylor sings like Bob Taylor. Yet he has qualities of Joe Williams and the late Nat King Cole. His intonations and attack of a song are above the usual approach, His sound is strictly a Taylor sound.

The material in his show is a good blend of the commercial, jazz and some soul music. However, he is not a far out singer, Taylor for the most part sticks to the melody line.

He and the Sam Blackshaw Trio have been held over at the Sands. Their music cannot be found in every club in town. This is a rare opportunity to hear some good jazz. Don't miss the chance.

Cowall Books A 'Galaxy'

Ben Cowall, one of the top theatrical promoters in the country and a man that all of Columbus should be very thankful for having in our town, has booked a galaxy of great artists and shows for this fall season. All of the shows will be held at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium and include a variety of presentations that will satisfy all ages.

Just to give you an idea of what's coming, on Nov. 1, "Steppenwolf" and Nov. 2, "The Doors." Both of these groups are for the young crowd. They are well known in their field. The next evening, Ben has Peter, Paul and Mary scheduled.

Fred Waring will appear Nov. 11 and the fabulous Liberace will perform Nov. 15. Then a week later, on Nov. 23, a fantastic group, The Beach Boys are going to perform. For you who like country and western music, Country Joe and The Fish will be on stage.

By the way, Ben Cowall is considered the king of country and western music in Columbus. For some time, Ben has brought into town the top artists in this field.

The final presentation booked is the popular Broadway show, "Fiddler on the Roof," on Nov. 26 and 27. This is a great fall lineup. Most of these shows will be sellouts, Take my advise, make your reservations now.

Bryant At New Frontier

After 14 months of packing them in, Rusty Bryant is still going strong at the New Frontier Lounge. What can you say about Rusty that hasn't been said before? He is one of Columbus' most talented and well known musicians. Approximately 14 years ago Rusty recorded and made famous the song "Night Train," which was on the top of the charts.

Today he is still tops. In fact, Rusty is like a a good wine, the older he is the better he plays. For those of you who may be too young to remember, Rusty is a talented saxophonist. Playing with lots of imagination as well as an unbelievable amount of tenderness on the ballads, Rusty caresses each note. On the up tunes he is strong, with each phrase the Bryant sax is very definite. The tone is pure and uncluttered.

Of course, Rusty Bryant is backed by two fine musicians, organist Jimmy Carter and Bill Brown on drums. These two give great support.

While the railroad business is on a general decline, The Rusty Bryant Trio and their "Night Train" is still roaring down the tracks at the New Frontier. Take my advice and hop aboard.

Nice And Cozy

Looking for a nice, cozy spot with plenty of friendly atmosphere? Look no further, just head down South High Street to the Village Lounge, located on the lower level of the Village Inn Motel.

With a low key modernist decor, The Village Lounge is just a nice place to sit and relax. There are three other reasons why this is an enjoyable spot, the host and his two lovely mixologists.

Art Thomas has to be the friendliest, singingest host Around Town. Nancy Egland and Marion Cable should be candidates for Miss America. Besides their beauty and personality, they are both efficient in their work.

You may sip your favorite beverage or indulge in the speciality of the house, their super sandwiches. My favorite is their sub sandwich. There is nothing like it anywhere.

Ohio's Grape

One of the first German farmers in the state to cultivate the grape was Michael A. Reinhard, whose birthplace was Niedernberg, near Aschaffenburg, in Bavaria, Germany, March 8, 1789. He married Barbara Geis there in 1814, and had four boys and four girls. In 1832, he brought his family to Ohio, settled in Prairie Township where he remained the rest of his life. His wife died two years after arrival, but he never remarried. He reared the five remaining children alone, working with plants, particularly the grapevine, as a leavening [illegible]

He produced Ohio wine, so near in taste to the cheap wines of Germany, said to be so healthy and pleasant that it banished much of the stronger liquors from the households. Judge John McLean, of the United States Supreme Court, said that Michael Reinhard was the best "auxiliary of temperance yet produced" to that time.

Michael's oldest son was Jacob. He was 17 when he came to this country, and died June 12, 1879. When not in school, in his youth, he worked with his father on the farm. But at 21, he took contracts to furnish stone for macadamizing the National Road, east of Columbus. Upon completion, he was appointed assistant engineer and held that job until 1843. On rainy days and nights, he read law with Heman A. Moore until his death which took place shortly after representing Franklin District in Congress.

"Der Westbote"

Jacob left the state department to co-publish "Der Westbote," a weekly Democratic newspaper printed in German language, on East Friend St., where Isaac Eberly's residence was later built. The paper was successful, and soon became a political power in the state. Its circulation included every county where there was a German population. It moved to the Westbote Building on High Street, in the same building where Reinhard & Co. did an extensive banking business. Renovation with the moving added steam presses, and large assortment of type offering book and job printing.

As an editor, publisher and banker it was natural for Jacob to be elected to city council and hold that elective office for 20 years. He also held office to the State Democratic Executive Committee. He talked to fellow Democrats in German, debated in German on current issues with a Mr. Heyl. He traveled extensively to German colonies in Ohio.

The German Soldier

In his younger days, the only military companies in Columbus were German. Mr. Reinhard was elected and served as major.

Michael A. Reinhard wore bobbed hair and whiskers under his chin, extending to the ears. It left his face clean shaven. The hair was sheared below the ear lobes.

In the photo gallery of the 1850's taken by Elliott & Armstead, not one wore the same type of beard. The coroner, P. A. Egan, wore his similar to those worn by the Amish today, while his hair was clipped short but brushed forward and upward.

Ted Perrie, descendant of Jacob Reinhard today wears his mustache like that worn by Harry Cashatt, council clerk. He and his father, Author Perrie, are in the beauty shop business

THE GRAPE AS FOOD

Europeans utilized the Grape as a tonic, particularly its root. It was found helpful, as they concocted it, for the liver, kidney troubles, chronic skin diseases such as psoriasis, ecezema, and constipation. In this country general practitioners prescribed Grape Wine as a sedative following childbirth, to assist the body's chemist to adjust to the "new" metabolism produced by natural phenomena of "reproduction in like kind."

Michael A. Reinhard spent his entire life in Franklin County in Grape Culture, perfecting a wine or juice that would build health. Since his wife died two years after arrival here, and when the youngest child was under five, one wonders if his wife died during childbirth. He lived to be near the century mark. He helped to bring recognition to the grape as a Youth Restorer.

The grape is the best and most valuable cleanser of the system. It is high in potassium and iron content, necessary to purify and nourish the blood and break down unhealthy tissues in the system, in elimination of excessive uric acids as the result of tissue breakdown. Good health depends upon good blood. Iron is the best medicine for tired blood.

The Grape Made Biblical History

The word Grape is mentioned in Genesis in the 40th chapter. The drinking of wine by Noah is given us in Genesis 9:24. It must have played an important role for Good Health Programs throughout time. Moses Health System of 1180 B.C. included it in the Codes in Deuteronomy, Leviticusm, and Numbers.

Somehow it got misquoted when translated into English, for the "Shem" and "Japheth" of which Noah woke from means, one containing the "Rab" and develops it. It contained this transliteration in the original German translation from the Semitic Forms.

Genesis 40:10,11 depicts the 40-mile Walk back home, after the natural wanderlust of mating has been diminished and one again seeks something of value higher than mundane affairs. Genesis 40.10 explains the value of the three-day grape diet value. through the Hebrew Name make-up. Man reads of it today in the story of Joseph, a letter mix up of Japeth, Ephah, Josephus, all meaning the same thing In the Beginning of Time.

Joseph or the Ephah, incorporates the Triune God Law in the "triad branches" by which all countries meter time, chemistry and space in the Biblical sentence, "And to the vine WERE three branches."

Grape in Old High German was "krapfo," or a hook. In Persian it meant "crotchet, and Rembrandt "chrochets" this in his self portraits as does other great artists of the Dark Age period memorializing ancient metric weight and measure for "those who came after."

In Danish, it was "grappe" and "krappe" allied to Italian "Grappa." Translated, it meant from a single berry of the vine comes fruits. A grapevine means "cluster of strength."

Grapevines on through the languages brings "Vitis Viterfera" of Central Asia, and another called "Zante currants." Then there is the Isabella variety, which definitely is a product developed by pries for Queen Isabella during he leadership in conquest.

Wine in Old High Germa is "win," and "wien" in lo German. In Iceltic it is "Vi while in Slavic it is "wino "Win" in Old High German a cigarette commercial and the says, "You've come a long way, to get where you got today. You've our own cigarette now, baby . . ."

A Different Commerical

By TED BEARDSHEAR

ink it's clever. It starts out usual- h a woman dressed in a 1915 ne and has her take scissors and e skirt to a mini and rip off a few , shake down her hair and tromp to the background looking modern exy.

another version is a woman get- caught by her husband in the ga- with a cigarette and being chased the house. Or still again, a woman ing furtively in the attic.

other version is a homecoming of stachioed man and the dutiful 1915 taking his coat and getting a pa- zing kiss on the forehead.

ends with a real, real sexy blonde g a drag off the new fag, insolently and pertly glancing at the camera and moving voluptuously off to infinity.

Somehow, the whole bit, each and every version, entertains me immensely. I like to see the 1915 costumes transformed into an "A line" special.

But, even in enjoyment, the philosophical import is clear.

The modern woman is certainly not the passive girl of yesteryear.

She votes; she works; she owns most of the nation's capital; she's the mistress of her home and, without losing that "mystique," she has somehow attained equality with men.

Sort of cheering, when you think of it.

A man is easy to figure. You can talk and observe him and usually figure out what makes him tick.

But a woman?

The beginning of wisdom about what makes a woman tick is the sincere admission that no man can possibly figure that out.

"You've come a long way, baby, to get where you've got to today."

Bless their souls. They made it without surrendering that mysterious "something" that makes the difference.

Happy smoking, girls.

"to labor." One can interpret it to mean for man to obtain fruits from G-R-A-P-E Letter Forms, a labor that is hard and long.

We must remember, that the earliest language contained no excess letters or words. The English G contained the double pendulum swing of the Scales, either Gimmel or Gemul. Letter R was Resh, the spine encircling for meeting Alpha and Omega, depicted often by skeletons in Moundbuilders' story buried underground throughout the United States. Aleph is the hammer, the Mother yeast that expanded, under the law of multiplication, else it returns to dust or oblivion.

Letter P is Phe, the Mouth by which it obtains three types of food, be it animal, soils, or man. The Letter E of the Virgin story was changed to He. Without the V combination it is man that walks earth. With the combination of E and V or W, it is the Supreme Creator. Some one changed it to He and Vaw, and/or Waw. When this is translated it is Water, which in various formations make up man on earth.

The stories of the Old and the New Testaments were written 25 years apart. In the New Book, one finds Jesus as a winebibber. It is one winning people to the BOOK or Law. With every constructive thing created, there is always two destructive likenesses created; and/or the other way around. Wine as a drink accompanied with foods is excellent to alkalize the acids accumulated within the body. It is the excess that creates bedlam. German Village merchants carry many good wines that compliment foods.

Callander Cleaning has a cleaning technique for draperies that women welcome. It guarantees even hemlines and the same length as when new. It promises restoration of the decorator folds, thus it makes last year's draperies look like new. It's called Adjust-a-drape fold finishing. Try it, homemaker!

German Village Noodles are available in five convenient sizes in major market areas in Ohio. If you care to eat them ready-cooked, seasoned to perfection to bring out real egg-noodle taste, stop in at the Bavaria Haus or Planks Bier Garten.

Wallpapers are available in tough Vinyl at Vaughn's Paint and Wallpaper store. They carry many designs, patterns, prints and murals in stock for you to carry home the same day.

In earlier days, women used varied bleaching mixes like alum, black sulphur and honey that worked. Today, they leave the mixes to qualified beauticians like Christine's operators.

Emma and Paul Burkplle lead the Sing-A-Longs at Planks Bier Garten every Wednesday and Saturday nights. They also serve German Sausage, supplied by Tom Thurn, another Southsider family.

Der Village Markt carries one of the largest selections of fine wines bottled anywhere. They have selected Wines that are produced with the highest degree of quality, care and processing, not found in the average carry-out store. Choose from White, Red or Rose Wines or choose a German made brand.

Bavarian Motor Works comes with us this week promoting the BMW German-made car now in its 50th year. The factory is located in Munich, Dingolfing but also has six subsidiaries in West Germany.

Its Workshop for apprentices graduates about 100 young mechanics yearly. A great number of trainees attending the courses come from all parts of the world.

About 1000 salesmen take part in their commercial and technical education program every year. Thus owners of BMW are assured of BMW repair standards and service methods, when obtained at authorized dealers.

The new BMW's are moving almost as fast as they arrive. BMW also manufacture aircraft engines, and motorcycles.

New Party Candidate Sets Appeal To 'Moderate Left'

What happens to those disillusioned with the offerings of either major political party?

Sometimes they don't vote. Other times they vote for "the lesser of two evils."

Once in a while they even run for office.

Stafford, an Ohio delegate to a New Party convention and a volunteer worker during the Eugene McCarthy campaign, says he is running to provide new directions for the "moderate left."

"I want to show," he explained, "that there is a small, significant minority who are concerned; those dissatisfied with the two-party system don't have to turn to the right."

Stafford, an Ohio State Unininversity professor, claims that without reforms in the two major parties, new parties are going to spring up.

"I'll never be smug again about just voting," he adds, pointing out that many citizens feel they have contributed by pulling a lever in an election booth. "It's going to take time and money to make democracy work."

Stafford claims that neither of his opponents — Democrat Russell Volkema or incumbent Republican Chalmers Wylie—offer viable alternatives.

"When Mr. Wylie complained to me about third parties," Stafford recalled, "I reminded him that the party of which he is a member started as a third party."

Stafford believes there are many voters dissatisfied with present party setups. He claims the two-party system "has been forced on the people," pointing out that Southern Democrats often symbolize a third-party choice. "I think we are in for a period of multi-parties," he admits.

Stafford, who was in Chicago during the 1968 Democratic convention, explained how the New Party developed

"After the nomination of Humphrey," he recalled, "some of us decided to leave and we talked about the formation of a New Party.

"But a policeman wouldn't allow me to enter the Conrad Hilton in Chicago after Humphrey's nomination. I took off my McCarthy badge and finally walked in."

During the initial meeting of the group—which included such people as comedian and presidential nominee Dick Gregory and the head of the New Hampshire delegation—strategy plans were formulated.

"It was hard for many of us to go into the Democratic Party. We did not feel com-Party. We did not feel comfortable with such people as Mayor Richard Daley and Sen. James Eastland in the same party. I can't feel I'm a Democrat in the same sense they are."

Where does Stafford stand on issues?

VIETNAM: "We should get out as quickly as we can. There is little value in arguing how we got there. It is time for the South Vietnamese to take over. We need to fight Communism internally—getting rid of poverty and beginning land reforms. Until these are solved, Communism is always a threat."

Loan Hikes

Ohio's 350 insured savings and loan companies invested $1,444,000,000 in residential mortgage loans during the first nine months of this year, the executive vice president of the Ohio Savings and Loan League has announced.

Joseph E. Linville said the total is $100 million more than the same associations invested during the same period last year.

Child Welfare Head Asks Levy Approval

James Grant, director of the Child Welfare Board, told a press conference Friday that "Franklin County has one of the best children's service programs in Ohio." He stressed the fact that the proposed Child Welfare Board levy is a renewal of the 1963 1.5 mill levy and its passage would bring no new taxes to residents of Franklin County.

[illegible] major services of the Child Welfare Board are to make investigations concerning any child who may be in need of protection or care, to counsel with families to prevent difficulties or separation and to enter into agreements with parents in respect to custody of children.

The children's services also include supervision of foster homes, operation of Franklin Village, provision of adoption services, assistance to unmarried mothers and their children and investigations concerning the care of crippled children.

The governing board, consisting of five volunteer members appointed by the County Commissioners, includes Harold C. Martin, chairman; Judge John W. Hill, secretary, and Thomas W. Applegate, Mrs. John M. Caren, and Rev. Robert L. Lindamood.

The board is a policy making board.

A 15-member Citizens' Council on Child Welfare is appointed by the board to act in an advisory capacity.

Local Jaycee Wives Club Harvest Ball Tickets Ready

Tickets are now available for the second annual Harvest Ball, sponsored by the Columbus Jaycee Wives Club.

The formal dance to be held Nov. 16, at the Stoney Creek Country Club is a fund raising project for the Youth Community Camp located in Vinton County.

The camp serves over 2,000 normal and handicapped youngsters from Franklin County.

The camp is cooperatively sponsored by the Columbus Jaycee Youth Foundation, the Alfred L. Willson Charitable Foundation, United Appeals through the United Community Council and Columbus Civic Service Organizations.

The Jaycee Wives are currently raising funds to help repair the camp's lake for better swimming and to help improve a lodge for the handicapped.

This year's Ball committee is headed by Mrs. Steven Girard. She will be aided by Mrs. Jack Brooks, vice chairman and patron chairman; Mrs. James Bogen, decorations; Mrs. David Kreidler, programs; Mrs. Granger McKinney, publicity; Mrs. Tom Maish, tickets, and Mrs. Guy Salvato, treasure chest.

The ball begins with a free champagne cocktail hour at 7 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner. Guests will dance to the music of Al Waslon and his orchestra.

Entertainment will feature Bob Braun, of the 50-50 Club, and Nancy Dickson.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of Columbus Jaycee Wives or by calling Mrs. Tom Maish at 488-5752.

Give Light and the People Will Find Their Own Way

The County Commissioners— A Change Is Really Needed

Next month Franklin County voters will have an opportunity to do something about the incredibly inept performance of their County Commissioners.

The opportunity has been a long time coming and it shouldn't be missed.

Two of the three seats are up this year. Both are held by Republicans — Henry A. Koontz, who has been a Commissioner for nearly 16 years, and Jacob A. Shawan, who got his seat by appointment a few weeks back when Glenn L. Myers decided he had enough and turned in his suit. Robert Southwick, the third Commissioner, is not up for re-election this year.

Mr. Shawan has not been around long enough to contribute greatly to the Commissioners' sorry record. It can be assumed, though, that he and Mr. Southwick would continue the policies of the past in dealing with the county's problems.

ONE OF THESE IS public welfare and the mess the Commissioners have made of its administration. Just recently, after many months of confusion and bickering, they fired Thomas Brittenham, the Welfare Director they themselves had appointed from a civil service eligible list of three.

If Mr. Brittenham's appointment was a mistake, it was the Commissioners' mistake. Yet they made no genuine effort to work in harness with their own choice. Indeed, almost from the start they wished publicly that he would go away, a lamentable fact that didn't help a lamentable situation

Nor was the situation helped by the Commissioners' relationship with the County Welfare Advisory Board, the members of which the Commissioners also appointed. Repeatedly, the Commissioners took their actions without deigning to consult the Advisory Board. And if on occasion the Advisory Board, comprised of representative citizens of the community, did get its views on record, they generally went unheeded.

Some may dismiss all of this as harmless Courthouse squabbling. Far from it. As far back as last February the Advisory Board deplored "the constant destructive, negative debate carried on in public view, at the expense of the poor." And that is the important and tragic thing here. A program that by its very nature demands sensitive direction and supervision has been permitted to degenerate into a floundering, demoralized state that cries for intelligent planning and leadership.

THEN THERE IS the matter of the Franklin County Home and Alum Crest Hospital. The County Commissioners have directed its administration with characteristic elephantine grace. Not until the Citizen-Journal had made clear last winter that the patients at the home and hospital were getting a lousy deal did the Commissioners abandon their archaic "chicken every Wednesday" policy and take steps for emergency improvements.

Much more needs to be done at Alum Crest. This was as evident last winter as it is now. But the Commissioners bumbled through the year doing nothing. Then on Sept. 16, the last day it could be done, Mr. Koontz and Mr. Southwick voted to place a half-mill levy proposal on the November ballot for Alum Crest.

They offered no detailed improvement program to support their action. In fact, both shrugged off responsibility for it by saying they did not approve of higher taxes, leaving the rest of us to conclude that they do not intend to vote for the very tax levy they submitted.

It didn't take long to find out what was up — an attempt to fatten the county's general fund under the guise of helping the old folks at the home and hospital. Look at the record:

THIS YEAR EXPENDITURES at the home and hospital will total about $1,016,800. All comes from the general fund. The budget request for the home and hospital for next year totals $1,105,600, an increase of $88,800. An earmarked half-mill levy would produce about $1,216,000, more than enough to pay all contemplated expenditures. The net effect, therefore, would be to give Alum Crest an additional $88,800 while retaining in the general fund all of what now is released to Alum Crest — more than $1,000,000. No man knows how this would be spent.

Much as the Citizen-Journal believes that improvement is needed, and should be undertaken, at Alum Crest, it can not in good faith endorse a tax proposal so cynically placed before the public and wants no part of the film-flam game that apparently is being played at the expense of those at Alum Crest.

Democratic candidates for County Commissioner are Harold M. Cooper, the popular general manager of the Columbus Jets, and Michael J. Dorrian, until recently assistant safety director for the city of Columbus. Both give promise of correcting an intolerable situation and we heartily endorse their candidacies as a means of bringing about a change, the need for which has become imperative.

THE GADABOUT

By PRISCILLA LENOX 444-1051

"Kid" (?) brothers can come in handy once in a while and so today's first item was gleaned by "Dangerous Don LaRue," the iron-poor blood version of Dangerous Dan McGrew.

Don, in his capacity as personnel director for a local concern which has jobs going all over the country, is often able to contact former Columbusites who now live elsewhere.

Thus, South High grads of 1942 might be interested to learn that he chatted with Bob Von Gerichten, now a commander in the U. S. Navy.

Bob is in the research department of the Navy, as he has been for the past years. He is stationed in Washington D. C. His brother, Ted, is the Air Force, lives in New Jersey and will soon be retired. The men lived at 117 Deshler while Columbusites, and folks with long memories will recall the family business, of Von Gerichten Art Glass.

Bob and Don chuckled over the remembrance of Bob's car, a cast-off of the family business, which was painted red, white and blue, and which hauled members of the Acirema Club to and from South's activities. Bob sold it for $7 a few years ago and it still runs.

Birthdays

The eleventh month of the year, which most of us find gloomy, is a joyous time for these birthday kiddies . . . Kim Backus, Dwight Barnes, Terri Talbott, Randall Reynolds, Craig Wiley, Michael Sexton, Alesia Moore, Teresa James, Ted Post, Valerie Eisel, Judy Kruse, Kiane Dadum, Wolfgang Romaniuk, Jay Boso and Regina Raver.

Teenagers with birthdays are Judy Weilbacher, Elmer Hay, Bob Gaulke, Mike Matts, Barbara Skeen, Bob Yontz, Mike Wells, Vic Zwilling and Thomas Contosta.

Anniversaries

Anniversary celebrants are Mr. and Mrs. Lightle, Ann and William Klabik Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ikehorn.

The Hospital Committee of Women of the Moose, 36 W. Sycamore St., will hold a euchre party in the Club Room of the Lodge, Wednesday, Nov. 6, at 8:30 p.m. Donations will be used to finance the nursing training of Cynthia Board, a senior at Riverside Hospital, whom the Hospital Committee is assisting. Miss Jean W. Adams is chairman of the committee.

On Wednesday, Nov. 6, 5 to 7 p.m., the Civic Affairs Committee of the Moose Lodge will be in charge of the weekly Wednesday dinner. Reiss Thomas and Luella Reid, Co-chairmen, have chosen to serve baked steak, mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetable, dessert and coffee. Tickets are $1.30 for adults, 75 cents for children.

Weddings

Friday, Nov. 1, is an important date for Kathryn Heinlein, 1448 S. Third St., and Michael Badger, 168 Calahan Rd., as they will exchange wedding vows in Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Recently wedded are John and Sharon (Krebs) Wilson. So congratulations to them.

The Youth Fellowship of the Washington Ave. UMC is currently conducting a paper drive and would most certainly appreciate donations of newspapers. Mr. and Mrs. Owen Stotts are directors of the group.

"Thursday at the WYCA," Oct. 31, includes a showing of slides of European Gardens. At 10:30 a.m. a discussion of "How to Live With Medicare," at 11:45 a.m. a book review, at 1:45 p.m. by Mrs. John Dick Raut.

"Vietnamese History and Politics" will be discussed by Dr. Minear, Monday, Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m.

The Apron String Program, Wednesday, Nov. 6, 11:30 a.m. will be about "Music for Everyone." The Ted Heaton combo will provide music for the Wednesday Mid-Week Dance, Nov. 6, 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. Single admission $1.10.

Hodge-Podge

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . The Women's Guild of the St. Paul's UC of Christ will meet Wednesday, Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

The business meeting of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 5.

The annual Turkey Dinner of the Harmony Glee Club, 435 E. Kossuth, will be an event of Sunday, Nov. 3, 12 noon to 4 p.m. Ruth Morgan and Kay Kuepfer are co-chairmen. The public is invited. Tickets are $1.75 for adults, 75 cents for children. The Euchre party is Saturday, Nov. 2, at 8 p.m.

Rebecca Circle, Trinity Lutheran Church, will meet Tuesday, Nov. 5, at 7:45 p.m.

Pfeifer Says 12th District Not Represented By Devine

Congressional candidate Herbert Pfeifer charged this week that "if you make less than $15,000 per year, you have not had a voice in Washington for the past 1? years."

He said his opponent, Republican Rep. Samuel L. Devine, has not represented the people of the 12th District and cited Devine's voting record as proof.

He asked, "Has your man in Washington, Samuel Devine, been voting for or against you?"

Among bills Pfeifer said Devine had voted against that he would have supported were:

Amendments to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Pfeifer said he would have supported amendments "to provide for better educational facilities and materials and better teacher-pupil ratio."

HR 7984, which Pfeifer said "provided better housing for the elderly and the handicapped and those whose homes were destroyed by national disaster and includes help for veterans."

The Medicare Bill.

A bill to increase by 7 per cent benefits to the aged, the disabled and their survivors.

A bill to aid crippled and blind children.

A measure to allow Senior Citizens to earn an additional $300 a year over the present $1,200 tax-free earnings limitation.

The National School Lunch Act.

The Contract Work Hours Standard Act. It would have required all contractors working on federal contract to meet certain health and safety hazards for workers.

Pfeifer said Devine's vote against the Contract Work Hours Standard Act "has been a vital blow to all working people." He said disabling and fatal accidents are second highest in industries in the U. S. "and this leaves the taxpayers money paying both ways if an injury should occur."

Pfeifer charged that Devine "will in all probability deny these documented facts because he has the staff and money to confuse the issues." But he said voters could "check these facts by referring to his record in the 'Congressional Record'."

Students Want To Revamp Qualifications For President

Students of two social studies classes at Barrett Junior High School want to change the Constitution of the United States.

In a recent study of the coming election both classes independently reached the conclusion that citizenship, residency and 35 years of life are not adequate qualifications to run for the presidency of the United States.

STATING THAT the president is the "most important person in the United States" the students believe that a candidate should be between the ages of 35 and 65 and subject to a complete mental and physical check up.

They also contend the presidency should be filled only by a person with a college degree who is able to pass a test on current events to assure that he "knows what is going on in the world."

Furthermore, as commander-in-chief of the Armed Services, the president, according to the students, should have had active military service, enabling him to "know and understand the problems of the servicemen."

SIMILARLY, the consensus was that previous federal government experience (as opposed to local and/or state service) should be made mandatory and that a clean political and private record should be a pre-requisite to assure that the president would be "honest and trustworthy."

Redeemer UB Buys Obetz Road Acreage

The congregation of the Redeemer United Brethren Church has purchased a five acre site on Obetz Road between South High and Parsons Avenue from R. L. Kelley.

The Rev. William L. Snider, pastor, states that it is hoped that ground can be broken for a new church with a seating capacity of 500 and an educational unit this spring.

SERVICES ARE now held by the group, which lists 448 charter members, at Buckeye Junior High.

The new church was formed last June when many of the congregation of what was then the South High Evangelical United Brethren Church withdrew, in protest of the merger with the Methodist Church and the subsequent forming of the United Methodist Church.

ACCORDING TO Snider, the acreage purchased will allow the eventual construction of a Youth Center and a recreational area.

In reporting the progress made by the new congregation, Snider stated that a Brotherhood, Women's Mission Association, a Junior Church, a Youth Fellowship and three choirs are now established.

Sunday morning worship is held at 9:15 a.m. with Sunday School at 10:30 a.m. and evening worship at 7:30.

Teachers
Care About Tomorrow

Teachers care about today's children and their place in tomorrow's world. This is why we urge your support of the Columbus School Levy.

The Levy will make possible expanded college and career counseling, vocational and occupational training to prepare our children for tomorrow's college standards and challenging job demands.

The Levy will provide a City-wide Reading Clinic, expanded assistance in basic skills, specialists in art, music and physical education—all programs vital to the complete education of every child.

The Levy will mean more special assistance and special classes to brighten the outlook of youngsters with handicaps, emotional problems, or learning difficulties.

Last summer, 17,000 school children attended summer courses. When Levy funds provide tuition-free summer school throughout the City, we expect more than twice this number will take advantage of this added learning opportunity.

All of the proposed Levy funds are directed toward bringing today's schools up to tomorrow's standards. Because we care about tomorrow, we urge your support of the School Levy to help every child in every Columbus school.

'Cinderella' Rangers 'Zip' W-J, Beat Clock To Midnight

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Hamilton Township grid coach Bruce Burnham and his rollicking Rangers did little—very little—to endear themselves to the population of West Jefferson Friday evening with a Metro title-winning 13-0 victory over Gene Keel's state-ranked Rough Riders.

The win (H-T's sixth in eight outings this campaign) stuck pretty close to the script Burnham and his crew have been foisting on the opposition all season—a proud, aggressive defense and the workhorse rushing tactics of fullback Gary Topping.

"IT WAS especially sweet to beat them over there in their gravel pit," Burnham allowed—figuring his Rangers shut out as one of the rarities in W-J grid annuals.

But the "gravel" looked more like mud Friday—much to the liking of Burnham.

The field conditions helped suit Hamilton's grind-em-out attack and a weight advantage didn't hurt any on the slippery turf.

AGAIN IT was Topping who carried the load—rushing for 199 of H-T's 253 ground total in 24 carries and adding the "insurance" TD on a 58-yd. burst to pay dirt.

Topping's TD run resulted from the only addition to the Ranger play selection made by Burnham for West Jeff.

"We had added a fullback sweep series to our game a couple of weeks ago but had only used it a couple of times prior to Friday night," Bruce related.

"I GUESS we were able to slip it past Gene's scouts," the Hamilton mentor added.

Topping's yardage total vs. West Jeff, incidently, raised his seasonal total close to the 1200-yd. mark—easily outdistancing the total amount of yards the Ranger defense has allowed the opposition all fall (930 yds.).

Statistically, H-T amassed 265 yds. (all but 12 rushing) as compared to the Riders' net rushing total of 98 yds. (includes 32 yds. in losses).

"ANYTIME you hold one of Gene's teams to 130 yds. you've done something," Burnham beamed of his defensive unit.

The "big play" of the game in Bruce's estimation came shortly after W-J covered a Hamilton fumble on the Rider five in the waning seconds of first-half play.

"We backed them into a hole and four of our men got in to their punter as he kicked from his end zone," Burnham accounted.

LINEBACKER Larry Wiggins covered the ball in the W-J end zone for the only score the Rangers were destined to need.

Offensively, Burnham lauded the blocking efforts of guard Mike Malkowski, the 155-lb. junior who opened the holes for Toppings efforts.

The defensive heroes were many with linebackers Wiggins and Bill Estep and end Dick Coogan ("got to their passer three times") heading the list.

Jim Gorczyca, John Cunningham and Estep picked off the enemy aerials—the latter quelling the Riders' most serious scoring threat at Hamilton's 30.

Next on the horizon for Burnham's Rangers is rugged Miami Trace (5-3)—H-T's tomorrow evening hosts warming up last weekend with a 62-6 demolition job on Greenfield.

TRACE, WHO shows '68 victories over locals Pleasant View and Dublin, displays a potent "I" (with split end) attack and a gaming 5-4 defensive alignment.

M-T's one-two punch this season has been generated by sophomore quarterback Jeff Blake, a master of the pass-run option play, and high-scoring (15 TD's this season) halfback Ben Lee.

The latter, who Burnham tabs as "the fastest back our scouts have seen this season," likes power sweeps and trap thrusts — the format helping him to seven TDs Friday vs. Greenfield.

"I JUST hope we can get back in the right frame of mind after beating West Jefferson," Burnham worried. "We were sure flat after beating Franklin Heights—miserably flat."

H-T followed up its big victory over the Falcons with a 30-6 setback to Hartley the following weekend.

CANAL WINCHESTER

Indian grid master Mike Locke, none too ethralled by his eleven's narrow 12-6 "come-from-behind" victory over Teays Valley Friday, has been putting a little extra into preparations for invading Lancaster Fenwick tomorrow.

"I THINK they're really tough," Locke scouts of the Irish who show a rather deceptive 3-4-1 mark to date.

Fenwick's Mid-State accounting is 3-2-1—the two non-league setbacks coming to Newark Catholic and West Jefferson, a pair of elevens ranked among the state's "top ten" last week.

Possessors of a multiple offensive attack (T, I and power I) and an aggressive 4-4 defense, Lancaster is keyed by the passing combo of long-firing quarterback Tom Brown and big (6-4) end Don Eaton and speed-conscious sweeps by halfbacks Roger Frasure and Bob Chum.

EATON, who switches to a defensive tackle on defense, highlights the gambling Fenwick defense which shoots linebackers all night long—necessitating a constant adjustment of blocking tactics against a sometimes nine-man front.

"They really put on a big rush," Locke reports. "And their pursuit is excellent. They're with that ball right now."

A Friday victory naturally is paramount to any hopes of

COUNTY
Sports

a Winchester title share—should unbeaten Fairfield Union falter between now and Nov. 8.

Winchester totaled 280 offensive yds. (274 rushing) with Chuck Carpenter (159 yds.) and Gary Kem[illegible] (104 yds.) setting th[illegible].

Only bright spots [illegible]ke could see in the victory—besides his two running backs—were the performances of tackle-defensive end Don Richardson and fullback Stan Smith ("excellent blocking").

GROVEPORT

BOB STARR'S 2-6 Cruisers draw fast-coming Hilliard (3-4-1) tomorrow evening as Groveport wraps up its '68 campaign on the road.

And Starr sees the Wildcat as a club similar to London—the eleven which chopped down the Cruisers, 39-0, last weekend.

SLIPPERY PIGSKIN—Hamilton Township fullback Gary Topping (34) reaches in vain for an elusive football as it squirts free from his possession at West Jefferson six-yard line Friday. Rough Rider defender (at left) covered ball to quell Ranger drive in second period. H-T cashed in two other times, however, annexing Metropolitan League grid title with 13-0 victory over West Jeff. Live To Enjoy Life, Says Toyshop's Luci

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Television and the woman has taken different forms in programming. In two prior interviews, with Sally Flowers and Vivienne Della Chiesa it has been obvious that formats are closely associated to the personality involved with each hostess.

Lucille Gasaway has always been interested in the imaginative and creative world of puppetry. Upon moving to Columbus in 1956 she established a puppet committee for the Junior League.

At the same time her devotion to the puppet world took her to WBNS-TV where she was the puppet "Stanley Mouse" on TV Kindergarten with "Aunt Fran."

Coinciding with this, "Luci" started to make puppets and sell them. This business, Sheram Puppet Industries, started in her basement at home and is now housed in a factory on Columbus' South Side. The name Sheram is derived from her two daughters, Sherrie and Pam. Her son, Howard, is the youngest of her three children. He is almost 17.

So for more than 15 years, "Luci" has been an entertainer, businesswoman, wife and mother. What's she like? How has she managed? Let's take a look as she answers questions asked her this past Friday while traveling to and from the station, the factory, the shop to and finally to her favorite type of luncheon, Chinese food.

What does she think of hippies?

"I really don't think much about them. Maybe I block them out. It's the rebellion I don't understand, because I'm not rebellious myself. I really don't understand it. I'm out of it which is kind of too bad. It seems this is the younger generation.

"Life was always pretty much fun for me — full and exciting. So I really don't understand the other. I like imagination. I think when people are like this they are using imagination, for then they are not themselves. You know I never take much time to look at myself.

"If you are thinking of others I don't see how you can be down on society. Maybe discipline is the answer. I didn't know I was being disciplined, nor did I care. It was so much fun just being a part of the world. You don't worry so much with strict discipline. As a child it is either right or wrong."

Luci, now a widow, reflects on some of the experiences with her husband.

"When he was alive I spent a lot of time with him. He used to tell me about how to handle business matters. I learned by osmosis. He said that if anything happened to him, I could talk to the lawyers . . . that's the reason he let me start Sheram."

She almost lost her husband when they first dated because of her philosophy of life.

"We were horseback riding one day and I said to him that I felt that each person you meet is an experience. You give and you receive. He thought he was just another experience."

"Luci's Toyshop," seen weekdays at 9 a.m. is a storybook full of characters, all in puppet form. "Luci" is their confider, and leads the puppets into an imaginary life. "Of course, we use every day experiences, only we use imaginary characters, and I think that's why it's kind of fun to watch. They are real and yet there is no tragedy connected with it or the situations."

Many of the actors from Columbus Junior Theater of the Arts have appeared on her show. Asked how she feels about their participation, Luci replied, "I'm not giving them anything. They are giving to the show. It's a communicative thing."

After having asked her three times what she does to relax, the answer was of no surprise, having by this time traveled to the factory, the shop and the station.

"I like to read the current novels. I like to read Charles Dickens. I turn the television on to go to sleep. But, mostly my work is my relaxation." She usually arrives home around 7 p.m., prepares the script for the next day and goes over her work for the factory and the shop.

"Luci's Little Shop" is located in the Old World Bazaar and opened a little more than a year ago. Here, Mrs. Washburn, saleslady, and Mrs. John Haldi, manager, take care of the big and little people who come to see the puppets. "Mr. Tree" stands just inside the door. Color is abundant and so is the imaginative world of Luci Gasaway.

Luci works with Chuck White on the Toyshop program. He is the voice for many of the puppets. Chuck also sets up their public appearances, which are usually set up for weekends.

As Luci prepared to leave the station for the day, her director, Ron Prange handed her the outline for Monday's show.

Her life is full and exciting. She seems very pleased with life. This has come about through her own ability to work. She laughs a lot and has a twinkle about her which lights up anyone around her.

Her birthday is Sunday, Nov. 3 and we wish her many more . . . she has already lived 100 years . . . and is now working on the last 25. I asked her how she likes to travel. "Airplanes, but I have driven for 100 years."

Luci is happiest when working. I had the distinct impression she could hardly wait to get back to the factory and dig in. She has full knowledge of everything in her factory. She can run the stuffing machine . . . knows where and why all dyes are kept . . . knows her employes by first name . . . knows every thread of every stuffed animal, puppet, pillow, dress . . . her love of the imaginative world of puppets has become her life. What a gift to the children viewers . . . for that matter, her outlook on life is a gift to all.

Busy Whirl Doesn't Bother Jack Gilligan's Wife Katie

Katie Gilligan, wife of U.S. Senate Democratic candidate John Gilligan, is a woman with a great concern for the problems of our cities, and the problems facing our country.

One of her concerns is the teaching and caring for underprivileged children. Mrs. Gilligan has worked with a volunteer group in Cincinnati which enables volunteer teachers to give concentrated and individualized attention to such children.

She taught on the third grade level and emphasized that the most important part of such tutoring projects was that the child feels that someone really cares about his development.

Mrs. Gilligan feels that, "It takes no special training to be a tutor, but it does take a genuine interest in the child."

Mrs. Gilligan was a teacher before she quit to raise a family. When asked by The Spectator about the best ways to reach underprivileged children, she responded, "The best way to reach them is early. Programs like Head Start or tutoring on a one to one basis are helpful. Unless a child is reached early he goes on from grade to grade, often learning very little."

For the first time in her husband's political career, she is taking an active part in the campaign. The reasons for this, she says, are, "My children are older and this election is very important. I feel my husband will make a good Senator."

With obvious pride, Mrs. Gilligan feels that her husband "believes in things so deeply and he is willing to fight for what he believes. There is a sincerity that comes through. People can tell."

She echoes the feelings of many when she points out that the "American people suddenly are getting the feeling that nothing is for real. There is too much commercialism and advertising. About the war, people had the feeling that they were not being told the truth. I don't know why some people in office mistrust voters the way they do. I think the American people can hear it like it is."

Gilligan's campaign is attracting more and more young people. Mrs. Gilligan feels that one reason may be the concern about the war in Vietnam. She does think that people today, especially young people, are better informed about events in the United States and in other countries. She states, "They should take part in politics."

She sees their deep concern and wonders "if these young people will get discouraged and give up, like so many people have been known to do."

Katie Gilligan advocates greater efforts at education within political parties. She envisions discussion groups of women who are interested which would outline platforms and discuss the issues.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilligan have four children, all of whom have assumed some role in the campaign. Although she prefers the role of wife, mother and homemaker, she has kept herself informed on the important issues and problems facing our country.

She holds a B.A. and M.A. in English and a B.E. in Education. The Gilligans were married in June, 1945, shortly after he returned from overseas duty in World War II.

When not on the campaign trail, Mrs. Gilligan runs a large household single-handedly, cooks French dishes for her husband, gardens and plays an occasional game of tennis or golf with the children.

Lazarus Plans 'Festival Of Gifts'

The skills and talents of 17 craftsmen will be demonstrated at Lazarus Main Store and Annex during the store's "Festival of Gifts" slated for the two-week period Nov. 4 through 16.

Highlighting the first week's events (Nov. 4-9) will be appearances by James Henthorne, a master glassblower, who will demonstrate this intricate craft by making small glass figures, animals and blown items in the first floor Stationery Department.

From Gallup, New Mexico, Lawrence Saufkie, a full-blood Hopi Indian, will make sterling and turquoise jewelry. He will appear in traditional Indian dress in the store's Jewelry Department, first floor.

A pottery making demonstration will take place in Lazarus' fifth floor Art Gift Department where David Baird, artist-craftsman of Athens, O., will man a potters' wheel.

A rather unusual service will be offered in the Casual Living Shop in Lazarus Annex Dick McGowan genealogist, will be available to research family lineage, and, as a result, the family crest may be ordered directly from Dublin, Ireland.

The second week period of the "Festival of Gifts," Nov. 11-16, will feature a candle color-dipping demonstration, an organ concert, painting demonstration in oils, pastels and tissue collage, and James Bloomer, woodcarver, will be in the fifth floor Art Gift Department to carve wooden salad bowls.

Throughout the "Festival of Gifts," each department at Lazarus will feature those items which represent the new, the unusual and the unique.

Cancelled Debate Seen Weeks Ago

The cancellation of a Columbus Town Meeting with their opponents, by GOP County Commissioners Henry Koontz and Jacob Shawan was predicted by Democratic candidate Harold Cooper nearly two weeks ago in an interview with The Spectator.

During the interview, Cooper expressed doubts about the debate ever taking place. He intimated that after a Sept. 30 candidates' meeting sponsored by the League of Women Voters, his two GOP opponents were wary of debating publicly again.

Contacted Tuesday, Cooper again commented: "I knew this might happen some time ago. I wanted to appear to give voters a chance to see the candidates."

William Trayte, campaign manager for Koontz, stood by statements he made to the affect there was a misunderstanding between himself and two candidates concerning the meeting.

Trayte said he was shown a press release last Friday and was astounded to see it had Koonts and Shawan scheduled to be on television Sunday. He said he already had scheduled appearances for them over the weekend. He said he then confronted the two GOP candidates with the press release and demanded they cancel the television appearance.

GUY ELBIN, Chairman 555 Evening St.

Will 5th Try Be Harper's 'Charm'-Or-Does Jinx Hold?

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

A good "pitch man" would have little trouble making a case for Marion-Franklin's visit to South tomorrow evening.

Even if the game didn't have "City League title" stamped all over it and Bob Jackson's Bulldogs hadn't have lost their "spotless" loop standing (lost to Eastmoor, 28-6, Friday) the Southside "game of the year" obviously would contain ample marketing value.

AS USUAL, there'll be little love lost tomorrow when Jim Harper's 7-1 Red Devils (only loss was 21-18 count to Lancaster) invade Mahaffey Stadium for a rivalry renewal with the Bulldogs (4-4).

For Harper, tomorrow's cash will hopefully pan a finish to four seasons of frustration which have found Marion losing out on no worse than a title share with a single CL setback.

For Jackson, victory means a winning campaign and — if West can upset Linden — a share of the league championship for the first time since 1963.

ADD TO the former the fact that South was the most recent "culprit" (upset M-F, 18-6, in season finale last fall) in the Red Devil thwarted title bids — and you've got a pretty accommodating setting for tomorrow's battle.

"That loss (South's win over M-F in '67) made it a pretty long year for us," Harper details.

Jim sees an entirely different kind of Bulldog eleven with which to content this time around.

"FOR ONE thing their whole offense is different from last year's (South employs Indiana 'I' attack with some 'T' formation play)," scouts Harper.

"And, contrary to seasons past, they're number one a passing team," adds the M-F grid veteran — pointing to the fact that 10 of South's 18 TDs this fall have been credit to the aerial department.

The aerial bombardment has come from alternating quarterbacks Les Payne and Jerry Driggs — the former generally moving into a receiver slot when the latter takes over the Rebel controls.

"FIRST OF all, we'll have to defense Payne," warns Harper. "He's a real scrambler when he's playing quarterback and you have to respect his speed when he shows up as a flanker back or split end."

But Payne isn't the only defensive concern for the M-F skipper.

Another big consideration is tight end Stan Dixon — the biggest factor in South's aerial artistry this fall.

PRIOR TO Friday's clash with Eastmoor, Dixon showed 42 grabs for 553 yds. and six TDs — only Payne's eight six-pointers high in scoring potency.

"He'll hook, go down 'n out or cut across the middle," Harper reports of the glue-fingered Bulldog receiver.

"He doesn't seem to have any favorite pattern but just shows a great knack for getting loose out there somewhere.

"AND, UNLIKE some good receiving ends, he can hold onto the ball once he catches it," Jim concludes.

Major rushing concern will be Wilbur Prysock who — with Payne — engineers South's ground game off-tackle, in-the-middle and on the outside option when Payne decides to relent on ball totin' duties.

Defensively, Harper expects South's normal offset 6 alignment with two linebackers. "(Top linebacking defender Don) Caldwell gets to roam free," states the M-F coach, "and he smells the ball pretty well. He definitely must be blocked out if we're going anywhere."

THE RED Devils will be at full strength for South — with the exception of fullback-defensive halfback Marty Donley, listed "out-of-action" for the Bulldogs via a knee injury incurred during M-F's 33-8 win over Whetstone Friday.

The Devils totaled 363 yds. vs. the Braves (232 rushing) with Billy Harris (87 yds., 12 carries) and Lloyd Ball (69 yds., seven tries) carrying the offensive load.

Ball also clicked on 6-of-9 aerial attempts for an additional 131 yds.

DEFENSIVE "Devil of the Week" for Whetstone was Larry McDowell with Dan Wright and Norm Johnson also turning in superlative performances.

At South, head Bulldog boss Bob Jackson figures his visitors will be well versed in Reb qualities upon arrival tomorrow evening.

"I don't think there's any question that they've been working on us for several weeks," Bob allows.

JACKSON visualizes the '68 Devils as more versatile than the club his Bulldogs overturned last season.

"They're not so dependent on one or two backs like they were a year ago. Last season, they counted pretty heavily on (Willie) McClure and he got hurt and didn't play much against us.

"This season, they can be missing one or two of their backs and still not be hurting," the South mentor concludes.

JACKSON is also concerned about his opponent's "good-sized, veteran line" which "quite simply gets the job done."

Offensively, Bob rates the M-F attack as a form of a pro-type (split backs, split ends) with some "plain wing — right and left" throw in for good measure.

"They're also using some belly offense," Jackson scouts. "I'm not suggesting where they got it but it's the same thing we hurt them with last season."

MOST POTENT rushing plays have been quick pitches to either side and a trap off the quick pitch play.

"We won't be able to key on any one of their backs," Bob adds. "They've shown pretty good balance on who carries the football (fullback Donley, halfbacks Harris and Clarence Jeter)."

And Bob adds his Bulldog defenders can't ignore Marion's ability to gain yardage with the forward pass.

"BALL'S very accurate but with the way they've been able to move the ball on the ground, why throw?, Jackson queries.

Defensively, the South coach expects M-F's 6-2-3 lineup — a variation of Notre Dame's defense.

"I still can't explain that first quarter Friday," Jackson stated — looking back on the Eastmoor loss. "We just weren't there."

"WE GOT down there three times and couldn't score and by the time we finally settled down, we were three touchdowns behind."

Tackle Vince Hendrix is doubtful for M-F tomorrow but Jackson reported end Tom Werner (missing since the Portsmouth game) might be ready to go.

IN OTHER area grid outings tomorrow: Wehrle (3-4-1, a 50-8 winner over Reemelin Friday) visits West Jefferson (6-1-1) at 7:30 p.m. while Mohawk (2-6, an 8-6 loser to Central) journeys to Greenfield.

LARRY BENT-UP — Eastmoor back Larry Denton (24) is about to be swept off his feet by determined South tackler Charles Hughes Friday — but not before the Warrior runner had picked up first down to Bulldogs' 37 on drive for second TD in 28-6 CL victory.

GROVEPORT X-COUNTRY TEAM

their offense (slot I formation) around an outstanding rusher in (195-lb. tailback) Jim Adams," Starr accounts.

"HE'S A very hard runner and really comes at you on their power-type off-tackle and sweep plays," the Groveport grid mentor adds.

Hilliard warmed up for the Cruisers last weekend with an explosive 33-21 win over Bexley in the game which saw Norm McElheny's Wildcats pile up 454 rushing yds.—their most productive effort of the season.

Underlining Adams' contribution to the 'Cat attack was his 227 rushing yards in 32 carries—that total discounting an additional 60 yds. wiped out by penalty.

DEFENSIVELY, Starr expects to see Hilliard's 5-2-4 setup. "They've been using that type of defense against wide-open, spread-type teams like ours this fall," Bob reports.

A pass interception and lost fumble chilled two early Cruiser scoring drives Friday and errorless London took advantage.

The Raider defense limited Groveport to 59 rushing yds. and an additional 78 overhead (QB Mark Boyer hit on 7 of 17) for a 137 total.

STARR LAUDED the performances of guard Mike Morris and back Ron Green—replacements for Larry Stinson and Frank Balsimo (dropped from the squad for training violations).

Also high on the praise list were linebacker Jim Phillips (replaced injured regular Ted Chilcote) and ends Steve Jacklin (three catches for 41 yds.) and Dennis McKinster (four grabs totaling 37 yds.).

Only Cruiser questionable for tomorrow's game-ending visit to Hilliard is center Andy Lyles (fractured hand).

TEAYS VALLEY

DICK KIDWELL'S Vikings (1-6-1), fresh from a strong effort vs. Canal Winchester Friday, get their toughest defensive test of the season tomorrow evening with a season visit by "pour-it-on" Westfall (6-1-1).

The Mustangs, whose only blots have been a 12-12 tie with Unioto and a 38-16 setback to West Jefferson (led 10-0), picked up 118 yds. in first period), will bring a high-potency offensive attack which has better than tripled scoring on eight foes this fall (380-116).

Most dangerous in Westfall's long list of capable backs is 5-9, 170 lb. John Furness, a speedy, outside-conscious halfback who shows 10 TDs to his credit in the Mustangs last three outings.

WESTFALL, which operates from a box-type offensive formation, favors sweeps, options and pass plays off the sweep.

Mustang quarterback is Greg Bigam but everything seems to take a turn throwing the ball in the Westfall backfield.

Other backfield regulars include Furness' running mate at halfback—Gene Carfrey—and 235-lb. fullback Ron Parsons who favors off-tackle slants.

A 5-4 defense is keyed by a pair of 6-2, 240-lb. tackles which West Jefferson was forced to "double-team" all evening.

Against a common opponent—Logan Elm—T-V won, 12-6, while Westfall did likewise, 73-6.

Hawks Nip Browns, Rule Tri-County

The Summit Station Hawks nipped the Berwick Browns, 18-14, Sunday in the first Tri-County League title game at Watkins Memorial High School.

The Hawks held a 6-0 halftime lead on Brad Lindsey's 5-yd. TD run in the opening period and raised the margin to 12-0 in the third frame as Chip Fraley drove in off-tackle from the two.

BERWICK charged back early in the final period on Rob Hunter's 20-yard end sweep tally and ensuing conversion run which cut the Hawk margin to 12-8.

But the Hawks cancelled out the Brown tally as Lindsey scampered 80 yds. to paydirt on an end sweep.

With 25 seconds left to play Berwick added its final six-pointer on a 40-yd. pass play from Hunter to Craig Passen.

IN ANOTHER weekend contest, the Eastland Vikings downed the Leawood Raiders, 18-6, as Paul Spencer (two) and Tim Palmer scored touchdowns.

LEVIES ENDORSED

The Lions Club of Bexley has urged Bexley residents to vote for the Bexley School levies which will appear on the Nov. 5 ballot. Also included in a resolution passed by the Lions Board of Directors Oct. 21 was an appeal to residents to "exercise their privilege and obligation and cast their vote in the election."

STORYTELLER — An inspired Hamilton Township defense which limited potent West Jefferson to 130 total yards Friday is graphically detailed above as John Cunningham, Les Morris, Bill Estep and Larry Wiggins (hidden behind Cunningham) combine to hold Rider back to no gain.

Who Says Schiller Center Is Only For Youth?

Is your a figure a source of delight to you — or just another cross you (and your husband) have to bear? If you bulge where you should level off or sink where a curve would be more appropriate, the Slimnastics class held at 1 and 7 p.m. Tuesdays may be the answer to your prayers. Above are Mrs. James Trant, 214 E. Sycamore and Mrs. John Maumbusch, 442 E. Beck, "toning up." If interested, dash to the phone (you may need the exercise) and call Schiller to register.

Techniques of following a pattern are shown to Mrs. Patricia Davidson, 443 E. Deshler, (seated) by sewing instructor Carolyn Frye. The classes are held on Mondays at 7 p.m. and on Tuesday afternoons at 1. Everyone is welcome whether she can barely sew on a button or wants to learn tailoring.

Schiller's Golden Agers are noted for their gallivanting potlucks. Busy cooking up a storm for one of their parties are, from left, Mrs. Sally Hughes, 224 Reinhard; Mrs. Mary E. Defenbaugh, 343 Mithoff, and Mrs. E. E. Crabtree, 923 City Park. The gals, among the three of them, have racked up 231 years of living, and are individually 87, 79 and 65. Can you guess who is how old?

With an unerring scent for "where the action is" South Side tots and teenagers head in droves for the Schiller Recreation Center.

But, according to Miss Mary Gillen, director, too often parents — and grandparents—fear to follow where their little angels tread.

THE GOLDEN AGE Club, which meets at noon on the first and third Tuesdays of the month with membership limited to those at least 60 (or boasting a spouse of that maturity) is only one of the adult activities that keep the Center humming until 10 in the evenings.

Currently classes in slimnastics, sewing, ceramics, knitting, crocheting, painting, sketching and copper enameling are under way. And there are more programs in the fire — awaiting only sufficient interest from future students.

For example, adult piano lessons and square dancing may be arranged, and a woodshop posted "For Adults Only" can be opened from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

MISS GILLEN is particularly interested in getting a club started for women of that betwixt and between age —too old for teen groups and too young for Senior Citizen activities.

It can be set up either as a "fun club" or one of social service projects, depending only upon the inclinations of the members.

In inviting residents of the South Side to inject a new sparkle in their lives through Schiller, the director reminds everyone that everything at Schiller is free.

All the student is asked to bring is himself and a willingness to try something new.

Age 15;
reading skill,
sixth grade
level

Even with sixth grade books, reading is no fun for this boy—and it never will be without special help. Vote For the 8.2 mill Columbus School Levy and help provide more special teachers for reading and math.

Boys and girls without a good foundation in these basic skills can't prepare themselves for college or careers. And, they are deprived of the fun of reading for pleasure. We need the Levy to provide more special teachers, more libararies and a City-wide reading clinic.

VOTE FOR THE COLUMBUS SCHOOL LEVY. Help every child in every school 12 months of every year with more classes for disturbed, handicapped and slow learners, specialists in art, music and physical education, more summer courses—tuition free. Help provide libraries, counseling and guidance, testing and evaluation, occupational training—programs to meet tomorrow's standards. Care about tomorrow. Vote FOR the Columbus School Levy.

(Not paid for with school funds. Sponsored by Citizens for the School Levy, George A. Snodgrass, Chm., 4299 Colerain Ave., Columbus, O. 43214)

Furniture

Save $100.00 on our better living room or bedroom suites at Hazletts.

You can buy better quality furniture at the price you would usually pay for low grade. Save 30% to 40%. HOW? We have no fine expensive buildings, we are not on Main St., but we do have over 25,000 sq. ft. of floor space jammed with brand name furniture. WHERE? Drive 10 mi. out East Broad or 3 mi north of Etna on Rt. 40 to PATASKALA—come to George St. at south end of town (do not confuse us with the furniture store near RR tracks). Remember the name HAZLETTS. We are proud of our reputation for 1967 the past 8 years.

When You Buy At Chevington Woods You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with having natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Whatever on earth you're looking for — you'll find it at CHEVINGTON WOODS.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

Columbus Woman's Club Annual Benefit Thursday

The Columbus Woman's Club, now celebrating its 50th year, has announced its annual benefit Card Party Thursday, Oct. 31 at the Clintonville Woman's Club, 3951 N. High St.

Mrs. William Ashleman, chairman of the philanthropic dessert and card benefit, has announced that all proceeds will be donated to one of the club's major projects which includes a nursing scholarship to a worthy applicant in the area; in the Meals on Wheels program, and other welfare and cultural programs.

[illegible] Kenneth Jefferis of 1[illegible]rkleigh Rd., is president of the Columbus Club and Mrs. Richard Bonsecow is first vice president. Mrs. Ashleman is philanthropy chairman.

Mrs. Jefferis has announced that in celebration of the golden year of service to the community, the club will present an anniversary tea at the Clintonville Club with the honor guest, Mrs. Walter McGee, of Lakewood, O.

Mrs. McGee is currently serving as president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs whose headquarters is in Washington, D. C.

The club benefit party is open to the public and all interested parties are invited to attend.

Individual and table tickets are available and persons may contact Mrs. Ashleman at 451-8179. Prizes, favors and gifts will be presented.

Desserts will be featured in the form of favorite creations by members of the club. Members will also provide, upon request, recipes of their contributed items.

Nine month old Rolf Baird is tuning up the vocal chords with the help of singer John Davidson in preparation for making a tape to send to his daddy who is away in the service. The Red Cross "Voice From Home" project runs from Nov. 9-17. For more information, call the Red Cross at 253-7981.

Red Cross 'Voice From Home' Project Dated

Separation is a painful word for families at Christmas and yet hundreds of G.I.'s from Franklin County will not be home for the holidays.

Some will be a thousand war miles away, others just a few states. But for all servicemen who will be gone, the Franklin County Red Cross is urging friends and families to send a "Voice from Home."

Tape, recording time and a picture beside A Christmas Tree is being offered free at the Red Cross, 995 E. Broad St.

The program runs Nov. 9 through 17.

Call the Red Cross, 253-7981, for an appointment and wish a lonely G.I. "Merry Christmas.

Selling Mart Set Nov. 6-8

The Senior Citizens' Selling Mart, sponsored by the Columbus Recreation Department, will be held Nov. 6, 7 and 8 at the Second and Summit Street Senior Citizens' Recreation Center, 95 E. Second Ave.

Open to the public from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily, the Mart includes antiques and handmake items such as rugs, afgans, quilts, dolls, toy clothes and an array of Christmas decorations.

Free parking and food service are available at the Selling Mart.

Catholic Youth Sending Cookies To Servicemen

The Chi Rho Federation, an organization of Catholic young adults, is sponsoring the second annual "Bake In" through Nov. 9.

Last year, the group sent 25 boxes of cookies to Columbus area servicemen in Vietnam.

This year, the group hopes to expand their activities to include all area servicemen in a community wide effort.

Members of the Federation are willing to wrap, pack, and deliver all packages to the post office.

Donations and addresses may be sent to "Bake In," c/o Chi Rho Federation, 80 S. Sixth St., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

For transportation, pick up or further information, call the following numbers after 5 p.m.: 444-8084; 885-4045; 268-0455.

Kansas maintained its lofty perch as the number one team in the country by mowing down Iowa State last Saturday.

However, the hair might get just a bit shorter this week as 14th ranked Colorado tries for another upset. Our vote has to go to the Jayhawks as they take a big step toward the Big Eight championship, beating Colorado by 10 points.

SOUTHERN CAL, just by being idle last Saturday, moved into second place. The Trojans will trip the Ducks of Oregon by 20 points.

Ohio State lost its grip a little and dropped to third—and with Michigan State, number 17, on the menu this week, things might get just a little tense. The Buckeyes, looking at both Big Ten title and possible Rose Bowl trip, will pull it out by two points.

Facing "Murderers' Row" week after week, Illinois runs into fourth-ranked Purdue, and will take another one on the chin, this one by 29 points. Tennessee is fifth; they meet UCLA. The Bruins haven't run out of steam yet, but we'll go with Tennessee by 18 points.

AND HEADING for its show-down battle with Southern Cal next Saturday, the sixth-rated Bears of California had better keep all eyes on the Washington Huskies this week. They've been known to cause trouble. With eyes in the right direction, Cal should win by 21.

Here's another hair-raiser — seventh - ranked Houston barges into eighth - ranked Georgia. The Cougars bounced from 13th to seventh this week, and are going to have to prove they belong in a big hurry. Georgia will lose its first of the season . . . Houston by two points.

The powers of the Southwest Conference will probably confuse the championship picture even more this week as ninth-ranked Texas picks on 18th-ranked Southern Methodist. If the Longhorns win — and they're favored by seven — it will leave no undefeated team in conference play.

AND IN the East, east meets east as an Army team that is getting tougher and tougher clashes with tenth-ranked Penn State. The Nittany Lions should stay undefeated and win it by 11, but Army is full of surprises.

If Notre Dame . . . down in the 11th spot this week . . . can re-group, they should scuttle Navy by 28 points. And 12th-rated Missouri, still a mighty big wheel in that Big Eight title fight, will bump Oklahoma State by 13.

Alabama, number 13, is 26 points too strong for Mississippi State and 15th-ranked Arkansas will just whistle by Texas A and A by two points.

MAVERICK

By Richard L. Pongh

WITH MUDDY SHOES

Ever wonder what our planet will look like in 10 years, or 50 years or 100 years?

Maybe it's a good thing we can't look ahead. Maybe we would start worrying right now.

OF COURSE, that might do some good — if we worry about the right things. We are already worrying about over-population and have worried about "The Bomb" for 25 years.

In the past five years newer, more hideous dangers have appeared than the bomb or the population.

Stand at Broad and High tomorrow noon and look up. If you have a clear view of the sky, it will be a rare day indeed. If you are flying over Columbus and can see the city, you're once more experiencing a rare sight.

WHAT PITTSBURGH and Los Angeles used to have exclusively, we now have in spades. Our air is badly polluted.

All attempts at state and local levels to cope with air pollution have been crassly insignificant.

Even State Issue Number One you are being asked to vote on this election does not include a mention of air pollution. As a matter of fact, city, county and state buildings are our biggest polluters.

THERE IS an outfit in Ohio that has taken the initiative to clean up what we draw into our lungs. They are called just, plain "CLEAN AIR." Their address is Post Office Box 265, Berea, Ohio 44017.

They are initiating a petition and circulating it in 40 counties to place on the ballot a law allowing the establishment of multi-county districts (much like watershed districts) to study and control "sick" air.

If you are a registered voter, you can take immediate steps to get this law before the voters. Simply write to the above address and a petitions you may circ

GIVE YOUR voting address and you will receive petitions in the return mail. Then, simply pass among your friends (25 names to a petition) and have only the registered voters sign up.

"CLEAN AIR" needs 100,000 signatures right now in order to force this item onto the ballot next year.

It's a smelly shame we have raised the pay of the legislators twice in four years and still do not get vitally necessary laws passed that will save the entire planet from extinction.

UNTIL NOV. 5 every two years, we are offered all manner of salvation but by Nov. 6 (after the votes are counted) air and water pollution are never mentioned.

Here is your chance to involve yourself in legislation to get our state straightened out.

All it will cost you is a little postage, a little time and the cost of a notary public.

SURELY you can spare that much.

If you can't tear yourself away from that golf game long enough to see 25 people, send a check for ten or more dollars to "CLEAN AIR." They need funds to pay for this honest attempt.

It's a non-profit venture with a doctor and a minister backing the idea.

Drop them a line NOW.

'Fearless' Predictions

The "Fearless One" failed to "make hay" again last week, turning in a 16-6 account to raise his seasonal showing to 134-43.

The Spectator seer again sets out to secure the "impossible dream"—a perfect week—with these picks for week nine:

WHETSTONE AT BROOKHAVEN—A pair of City have-nots — still searching for the right combination—clash here. Flip of coin comes up . . . Whetstone.

DUBLIN AT WATKINS MEMORIAL — Irish hustle toward .500 plus campaign. Need win over tough hosts to do so. Dublin.

MARYSVILLE AT GRANDVIEW—Monarchs showed surprising punch vs. Grove City last weekend, could be ready for first victory. However . . . Grandview.

GROVE CITY AT MIFFLIN — Injury-hampered 'Hounds have looked none too impressive against Mid-8's second-division clubs. Need big effort here and "miracle" at Bexley for title share. G-C.

EAST AT EASTMOOR — Warriors can gain title share if West somehow spills Linden and South drops M-F. But Tigers never easy for Stuart's crew. E-M.

WALNUT RIDGE AT NORTHLAND—Up 'n down Scotties face title-spoiled Vikings who should be more than a little angry. Close but . . . Northland.

REYNOLDSBURG AT PLEASANT VIEW — Raiders "high" for Whitehall, figure to down a bit this week. Could be closer than expected for . . . Reynoldsburg.

WESTFALL AT TEAYS VALLEY—Vikings almost pulled upset last week but will have tougher time doing so vs. this corral of Mustangs. Westfall.

MARIETTA AT ARLINGTON — Second-straight state title is within reach if Bears can keep their eyes on the road. Arlington.

WEHRLE AT WEST JEFFERSON—Rebounding will be tough for Keel's crew against rugged Wolves. Slight edge to the Riders. W-J.

WEST AT LINDEN — Cowboys could make a lot of people happy with upset here and victory could brighten Koblentz's debut season. However . . . Linden.

GAHANNA AT WESTERVILLE — Knocking off the potential OCC champ would be soothing salve for Wildcats' disappointing campaign. Slightest of margins for . . . Gahanna.

MARION-FRANKLIN AT SOUTH—Will ill-fate continue to hound Jim Harper's Devils in quest of CL title? Bulldogs much better club than one which overturned M-F cart last season. This time . . . M-F.

NORTH AT CENTRAL — Pirates should have gained some confidence after that first victory last week but North obviously gained fine-looking new QB. By a nudge . . . North.

MOHAWK AT GREENFIELD — Indians — blanked in CL play — would like to fire ire at somebody and this looks like the spot. Mohawk.

HAMILTON TWP. AT MIAMI TRACE — Metro title already tucked away, Rangers need this one for banner season. Trace no slacker and "down" H-T could have long ride home. H-T.

GROVEPORT AT HILLIARD — Cruisers' passing vs. Wildcats' rushing. Since air lane is the more unpredictable route, we'll try . . . Hilliard.

WHITEHALL AT DELAWARE — All that remains for disappointed Rams is winning season. On paper, Delaware — but we like . . . Whitehall.

WORTHINGTON AT MT. VERNON—Smokey and his Cards are on the brink of an outstanding 8-1 campaign, no worse than title share. Better pull out all the stops here . . . Worthington.

LONDON AT BEXLEY — Lions could salvage losing campaign with knockout punch on Mid-Eight champ but that's asking an awful lot. London.

SATURDAY

WATTERSON AT HARTLEY — Hawks looking for revenge after "giveaway" setback last fall, Eagles pretty steamed about first CCL setback. Should be dandy with edge to . . . Watterson.

READY VS. DESALES (at Northland) — Stallions have to get "up" two weeks in a row as Knights will be going all-out for their first loop win. DeSales.

Chex Home Wednesday

Only home date on the Columbus Checkers schedule this week comes Wednesday when the local IHL entry hosts Toledo at 8 p.m.

Eagles Nab BanTam Title

The Linden Eagles broke away from a narrow halftime lead last weekend to down the Grove City Panthers, 39-6 and win the 1968 Ban-Tam League grid title.

The Eagles scored first on John Mixon's 30-yd. scamper but the Panthers charged back to knot the count on Gregg Niebert's plunge.

LAVAL Haynes' 50-yd. TD burst supplied a 13-6 Linden intermission lead.

A pair of two-TD post-halftime periods made the big difference, however, as Mike Goolsby raced 55 yds., Steve Johnson hit Stacy Brown on a 33-yd. TD pass and Jerry Chilsum hit Brown (25 yds.) and Mike Ingram (40 yds.) with scoring tosses.

In the prelim game, the Reynoldsburg Ponies socked the West Mound Rams, 33-6, with the winners' Mark Wade (23, 30 yd. runs) setting the scoring pace.

JIM ELGIN, Jack Stephenson and Steve Zorich also tallied for the Ponies while Fred Copley's 75-yarder accounted for the Ram points.

Don't forget the Scotch Doubles TV qualifiers at Rainbow. The Nov. 2 shifts are from noon to 6:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. to closing. Nov. 3 is noon to 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. to closing.

Miss Beverly Ortner, 30-year-old farm girl from Galva, Ia., owns three all-time records in the Woman's International Bowling Congress—the latest a whopping 818 on Oct. 10.

THAT WAS the first WIBC sanctioned three-game 800 series and was posted in South Sioux City, Nebr. Her games were 267-264-287 and were with an all-women's team in an otherwise all men's league (Classic).

In bettering the previous WIBC series record of 794—bowled last April by Mrs. Ruby Chong of Oakland, Calif.—Miss Ortner rolled 30 of a possible 36 strikes, scoring 11 in the first game, nine in the second and 10 in the third.

Chuck Pezzano says:

"NOW THAT the new season is upon us, just stop to think that if you can make one extra spare each night of bowling, it will mean an extra three to five points added on to your average at the end of the season.

"I've come to the conclusion that there is no such thing as playing it safe when you need a spare to win a game, or even a tournament.

"Some bowlers miss the headpin on purpose to leave what they consider an easy spare. There's no such thing as an easy spare.

"THE ONLY way to play safe when you need a spare is to get a strike. And any bowler who feels he's good enough to play it safe is more than good enough to shoot for a strike."

Wednesday Night To Be 'Ladies Nite' For Chex

All Checker hockey games on Wednesday evenings through Dec. 11 will be "Ladies Nights" with female fans admitted for half price on all reserved seats (not applicable to general admission seats).

"Ladies Night" games will be Nov. 6 (Toledo), Nov. 13 (Muskegon), Nov. 20 (Port Huron), Nov. 27 (Des Moines), Dec. 4 (Dayton) and Dec. 11 (Port Huron).

Cooper, Dorrian Gain Commissioner Seats; Devine, Wylie, Tracy Gain Re-Election

The biggest winners were Harold Cooper and Michael J. Dorrian.

The biggest loser was Mayor Sensenbrenner's proposed city income tax increase.

For the most part, it was a big year for incumbents, and a year of voter reluctance to approve big tax requests.

COOPER AND DORRIAN, the Democratic challengers, ousted incumbent Republican County Commissioners Jacob Shawan and Henry Koontz in a stunning upset. It means that in January, for the first time in recent memory, Democrats will control the Courthouse.

But the Democratic city administration will have to retrench hurriedly and make new plans in light of the somewhat unexpected defeat of the proposed income tax hike from 1 per cent to 1½ per cent. It got only 43.2 per cent of the vote, failing miserably.

Both of Franklin County's congressmen won re-election handily, maintaining GOP domination of the county delegation. In the 15th District, Rep. Chalmers Wylie defeated Russell Volkema by better than 2-1 and in the 12th District, Rep. Samuel Devine beat Herbert Pfeifer, also by slightly better than a 2-1 margin.

All of the incumbent state representatives won re-election and the Republicans won a seat in the only race in which there was no incumbent.

The legislative breakdown:

The races for county offices went pretty much as expected outside of the Cooper-Dorrian victory.

Democrats retaining office were Recorder James A. Schaefer over John Williams, and Treasurer Philip Goldslager over Ralston Westlake. Democrat Cletus McPherson defeated Don Craven to take over the seat held by his retiring boss, Guy Elbin.

Also retaining office were four Republicans: Clerk of Courts Joseph Clifford, Sheriff Stacy Hall, Coroner Robert Evans and Prosecuting Attorney C. Howard Johnson.

The judicial races included a major upset. Republican Dean Strausbaugh defeated incumbent Appeals Court Judge John J. Duffey, a widely respected jurist. Holmes beat Roland T. Gilbert for the other contested spot on the 10th District Appeals bench while Horace W. Troop was unopposed.

In the Common Pleas Court races, incumbent Republicans Charles R. Petree, Robert E. Leach, George Marshall, Archer E. Reilly were all elected. Petree defeated Ted Boehm, Reilly downed Josiah H. Blackmore, Marshall beat John J. Connors, Jr., and Leach was unopposed.

Municipal Judge Tom Moody moved up to the Common Pleas bench by defeating Democrat John Palcich and Alba L. Whiteside, chief assistant city attorney, defeated Democrat Joseph D. Bryan.

Franklin County voters gave Richard Nixon 148,884 votes to 101,112 for Hubert Humphrey and 37,470 for George Wallace. Nixon had 51.7 per cent of the county vote, Humphrey 35.1 per cent and Wallace only 13 per cent, far below his supporters' expectations.

County voters approved State Issue 1 but turned down State Issue 2.

THEY MAKE A CHARMING WHEEL

Enjoying the most successful season in several years, the Rangers are the pride and joy of the Hamilton Township cheerleaders — and vice versa. Clockwise from front center are Julie Davie, Debbie Criswell, Lynda Stephens, Brenda Keys, Mary Kay Milligan and Debbie Fisher. They took to the ground for the picture when their efforts to pose atop the goal posts to show the sky's the limit in their support of the Rangers proved somewhat of a failure. It seemed several of the squad were frightened half out of their jerkins without terra firma under their sneakers.

Ashville Officials Beckon Critics To Village Meetings

Note was taken of the letter of criticism of Ashville officials and their conduct of village business, written by Elmer Barr and published in last week's Spectator when Ashville council met this week.

Mayor Harold Hartley and council members feel that much of the criticism springs from misinformation, gained "twelfth hand."

THE SOLUTION suggested by local officials is that persons concerned with the government attend council meetings and get their questions answered directly and not in a street corner quarter.

"Barr and any other citizen is always welcome here. We regret that we have never had the opportunity to see Mr Barr in council chambers," Jim Hopper stated, voicing the consensus of the officials.

Rates for water taps, meter installation and other water services were tentatively established Monday with the first reading of the new water rate ordinance.

TAP CHARGES will be contingent upon the size of the lines and non-residents will pay a premium.

Rates for village customers were set as follows: three-quarter inch line, $75; one-inch, $125; ond and one-half inch, $175, and two inch $300 Township residents will be charged $93.75, $156.25, $218 75 and $370 for like taps

Larger taps will be billed at cost plus 10 per cent within Ashville and cost plus 25 per cent outside Ashville

METER INSTALLATION fees begin at $40.50 for a three-quarter inch line and a $1 turn-on or turn-off charge set with $3 established as the fee for a routine reestablishment of service after a cut-off for failure to pay one's bills.

Customers requesting a testing of the accuracy of their meters will get off scot-free if it proves the meter is actually off five per cent or more; otherwise, the test will cost $5.

The ordinance also officially adopted the rates initiated by the Water Board the first of the year. Quarterly minimums are (depending on line diameter) village — $6, $12, $21 and $39 and, out-of-village — $7.50, $15, $26.25 and $48.75.

ALL CUSTOMERS will be subject to a 10 per cent penalty on overdue bills.

The rates have been established as a preliminary step to the construction of additional facilities which will double the capacity of the present water plant. It is anticipated construction will begin after the first of the year.

No action will be taken on a possible reduction in sewer rates until a recommendation is received from Burgess and Niples, consulting engineers.

HOWEVER, COUNCIL members indicated they are hopeful the fees, based on water consumption, can be dropped from the current 50 per cent to 40 per cent.

Concern was expressed over the need for either an underpass or overpass at the railroad tracks to prevent fire equipment from delay in reaching fires on the west side of town.

Chief Don Thompson stated that it took the department seven minutes to arrive at a recent fire, and that the time (six minutes) lost was invaluable.

Basic Wire To Open Plant In January

Plant II of Basic Wire Products is anticipated to be ready for production by the first of the year.

According to Paul Arnold, vice president of the company which now operates only in the building formerly occupied by Ricart Ford on Rt. 33 in Canal Winchester, the foundations are already begun at the site north of Groveport Pike on Gender Road.

THE EIGHT ACRE plot earmarked for the 16,000 square foot industrial facility is part of the 42 acres purchased by Basic Wire (Lloyd Stebelton is president) for development as an Industrial Park.

According to Arnold, the park will be carefully planned with owners or leasors subject to building restrictions and no site made available to enterprises that are considered "bad neighbors."

Following this policy, 75-foot set backs are mandatory and utility poles are relegated to the edge of the railroad tracks.

A 1,200 FOOT thoroughfare which will eventually be expanded to 2,000 feet bisects the property and is named Walnut Street. The $50,000 improvement will be dedicated to the Village of Canal Winchester upon completion

More highly automated than Plant No. I, Plant II will employ from 30 to 50 persons, most of whom will be men. (The personnel of the present plant is about half men and half women).

The original plant will continue its present operation while the new productions lines will turn out baskets for automatic dish washers and shelving for refrigerators.

UNTIL MUNICIPAL utilities are available (water and sewer extensions are blue-planned) the Park will provide its own utilities with wells and a chlorinated treatment of sewage.

SE KO's School Levies

A switch in 51 votes (less than one and one-half percent of those cast) and the levy proposed in the Madison Local School District would have gone over the top.

The vote for the Canal Winchester levy was also [illegible]ly close. Fifty-one nays changed to yeas (or [illegible] percent of the total) would have spelled victory.

BUT VOTERS handed the proposed Hamilton Local levy a resounding slap as voters expressed themselves almost two to one in opposition to the issue with 1500 residents showing up to state their preferences

Unfortunately, at the polls a miss is as good as a mile and boards and administrators of all three schools were left with the problems involved in attempting to educate children with the wolf howling at the door.

Voters in only one Southeast district — Teays Valley —responded to the call for help issued by its board.

Teays Valley had lumped several levies together that expire during the next few years and asked for them to be renewed on a "continuing basis."

As no new taxes are involved, an affirmative vote was relatively painless (even a negative vote wouldn't have saved tax dollars as the levies haven't expired), a fact undoubtedly responsible for the ease with which the levy passed. (It received 60.26 percent of the vote.)

Volunteers Needed In Drive Here

An urgent call for volunteers has been issued by the Franklin County Muscular Dystrophy Association for its annual house-to-house march Sunday, Nov. 17.

The march is formed to seek funds to fight muscular dystrophy. Anyone wishing to volunteer may contact the association at 888-4843.

Last year more, than 8,000 marchers collected some $53,000 in the county. Funds are used for research, patient treatment and for maintaining a muscular dystrophy clinic at Ohio State University's Medical Center.

BUT BACK to the Teays Valley's more unfortunate neighboring districts.

The questions facing the boards this week hinge upon whether it is advisable to resubmit the issue to the public at a special election in December.

Supt. Phil Williams of Madison Local indicated that continuing growth of the district makes it almost mandatory for his board to take this action.

HE POINTED out that the narrowness of the margin of defeat hints that in December when so many state and county levies are not appearing on the ballot — to arouse a negative attitude to the voters — the opposition to the local issue may well abate.

In analyzing the levy's defeat, Williams also took heart in the fact that it was okayed in seven of the 13 precincts in the districts.

A final decision will not be made, of course, until the board meets Monday.

FROM THE initiation of the steps taken by the Hamilton Board to place a 13-mill levy on the November ballot, members had recognized that all might not be clear sailing.

Early this fall the board had publicly concurred with the idea of a special election in December if the levy went down this week.

However, Supt. John Savel conceded Tuesday night that the strength of the opposition evidenced to the levy could conceivably influence the board to take another look at the amount of the millage asked.

SOON AFTER the unofficial tally was complete, Richard Frye, president of the Hamilton Local Teachers Association, called the Spectator with announcement that the group would meet at 6:30 a.m. Friday.

He stated the purpose of the session is discussion of the role of the teachers regarding their concern for the future of the Hamilton District.

Frye also implied that rumors that a smaller levy might be submitted to the public next month were disturbing.

The membership of HLTA have gone on record that the full 13 mills are necessary to maintain a district dedicated to education and not just mass babysitting.

IT APPEARS from the call of this meeting at this particular time that the Association intends to make its recommendations to the board before the latter meets Monday.

Carl Miller, superintendent at Canal Winchester, predicted that the C-W Board of Education will be in no mood to "try it again" in December.

He also inferred that he himself would not recommend a levy that did not have the full support of the board. (Apparently at least one board member has publicly stated his reservations concerning the levy as it appeared on the ballot Tuesday.)

ACCORDING to Miller, the job ahead of the board and administration is not one of resubmission but of figuring out how to get along on their present income.

"Our goal will be to cut back with the least damage to the program," Miller stated, referring to the possibility of pressuring the public into accepting a levy by cutbacks where students and parents feel it deeply.

"Undoubtedly we'll end up with larger classes, and have to economize on new books and supplies," he explained, "but we're certainly not going to threaten to terminate our athletic and music programs." grams."

HE ADDED THAT if the vote had been closer, it might have been judged feasible to consider a special.

Municipal Levies Fail

In another heartbreaker for those who have worked toward a sewer collection system for Obetz, voters again defeated the bond issue which would have made a hook-up with Columbus possible.

Although the affirmative vote was 311 to 266 against, it would have taken a switch of four votes to earn the 55 percent necessary for passage.

In a second local issue, Canal Winchester's effort to pass a two-mill levy for street improvement failed with 463 of the 700 voters nixing it.

The sole new levy surviving the Southeast voter's inclination to say "no" to everything was the Hamilton Township Fire levy.

It passed 824 to 724.

Its support came largely from the Hamilton Meadows area with Obetz proper and Lockbourne both turning thumbs down.

THEY ARE CHARTER MEMBERS

Tom Kneeland has been named president of Eastland Vocational Center's first Student Council. Members are pictured from left: back row—Al Pruitt, Larry Wolfe, Joe Norris, Dan Willoughby, Nick Gussman, Pam Exline, Frank Segee, George Workman, Tom Schieppi and Tom Maxwell; middle row—Al Thompson, Karen Chapman, Bob Hollingshead, Patty Tucker, Rick Farlow, Debi Ross, Allen T. three applicants for the position of street maintenance man. The other two were Gale Sawyer and Joe Pence.

As the job is considered rather important with the applicant viewed as a potential backup man for Steve Cooke, a decision was postponed until all of council can vote. (Nolo Julick and Max Cormandy were absent this week).

Other business included an ordinance employing Clarence Conaway as park caretaker at a salary of $35 a month, effective Jan. 1, and a vote of thanks to Dick Cooke for acting as clerk during Mrs. Anne Leatherwood's absence.

(Mrs. Leatherwood has returned from Florida, but asked Cooke to continue her duties Monday night as she is still experiencing discomfort from a rear-end collision that occurred enroute to Ashville).

Management Purchases Ashville Food Market

The supermarket formerly known as the Ashville IGA Foodliner has changed its name —and its ownership.

John F. Little, manager, and Paul Hickman, assistant manager, have purchased the market from Paul Ware of Chicago and C. J. McDonald of Bellefontaine.

NOW KNOWN as the Ashville Cardinal Food Market, the supermarket is associated with Consolidated Food Stores which maintains home offices in Chicago and area offices on the west side of Columbus.

Little and Hickman have a total of 40 years experience in the grocery business, with the former employed by the late Clarence Cloud almost 25 years and Hickman joining Cloud in the early Fifties.

Since Little assumed management 10 years ago, extensive renovations have increased floor space by 50 per cent and the staff and volume of business have doubled. During this growth a reputation for quality has been built with one of the finest meat departments in Central Ohio and an unusually attractive produce department as well.

MR. AND MRS. Hickman have two children, Tim and Teresa, and are residents of 11800 Circleville Ave.

HOLIDAYS ARE COMING

Christmas gifts and holiday decorations galore will be offered at the Senior Citizens Selling Mart tomorrow and Friday at the Second and Summit Senior Citizens Recreation Center, 95 E. Second Ave. Modeling a festive hostess apron is Mrs. Elmer Kukman, 998 S. Wall St. She also made the Christmas stocking hung on high. Free parking and food service will be available at the Mart open to the public from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Madison Principals Won't Actively Strike

Recognizing that decisions are difficult during periods of stress, the principals of Madison Local School District have issued a position paper concerning their role in negotiations.

The paper was drawn now to avoid any possible emotional positions that might be taken during a time of collective negotiations or work stoppages.

Although a principal may be a member of or an officer of the Madison Local Teachers Association, it is stated that in time of conflict he shall remain at his post to fulfill his responsibility of carrying out the policies of the Board of Education.

The paper reads (in part) ". . . principals shall attempt to be a stabilizing influence and shall let it be known to all parties concerned that their primary responsibility is that of advancing the educational interests of the pupils.

"The principal serves as the first appeal in grievance procedures and has unique information to contribute during negotiations regarding the impact of agreements upon instruction, administration and management that is essential for reaching acceptable agreements in relation to the function of school as a social institution.

"Thus it is imperative that he can be consulted and involved in the discussion regarding agreements before they are adopted. He must implement negotiated agreements and put their provisions into effect regardless of his personal feelings."

THEIR WARES ARE READY

Christmas means halls decked with holly, "Angels bending near the earth" and old St. Nick. And it also means gift exchange, and gift exchange, and gift exchange. The Marion-Franklin Marching Band is ready to supply your holiday needs and will be traveling door-to-door with a 15-item gift kit to make home shopping a pleasure. Above are NaAnna Womack and Greg Burchett, clarinetist and trumpeter, who are working desperately to raise money for new uniforms. Mrs. James Mallow, 1697 Woodrow, who is chairman of the gift project, can be called at her home, 443-1468 by those with telephone orders.

Child Welfare, Schools Pass

By a razor edge majority vote both the County child welfare tax levy and the Columbus City school tax levy passed the difficult test of the voting public.

With only a 50.4 per cent majority vote, the child welfare levy passed by a vote of 118,765 to 116,670. The school district tax levy hit a 50.8 majority vote — 74,419 to 72,072.

The City income tax hike went down to defeat at the hands of voters by 82,665 to 63,015.

Also going down to defeat were the Alum Crest tax levy by a plurality of 17,262 and the Metropolitan park levy renewal by a vote of 121,353 to 108,303. A city proposal to regulate the price of natural gas passed by over 45,000 votes.

In the county, state issue number one — which authorizes the issuance of bonds for highways and other capital improvements — passed by over 30,000 votes. State issue two — to grant homestead exemptions for certain residents — was turned down by county voters with over 17,000 votes.

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

When we learned that the Livingston United Methodist Church was planning an observance of the 125th anniversary of the church, we delved into one of our Columbus history books to learn about the church's early days, as part of our South Side History series. The rest of this section is quoted from Lee's History.

"The First German Methodist Episcopal Church was organized by Rev. John Barth in 1843. Its trustees were Michael Decker, Daniel Weir, Valentine Emrich, Phillip Amos and Charles Wootring. For one year the society worshiped in an enginehouse on Mound Street near the courthouse. Then they bought a lot at the northwest corner of Third Street and Livingston Avenue for $450. Here they built a brick church which answered their purposes until 1871. In April of this year, they began a new church costing $16,000.

"It was finished in 1872 and dedicated Sept. 8 by Rev. Dr. Pershing, president of the Pittsburgh Female College, assisted by the Rev. William Nast, D.D., editor of the 'Apologete,' and the Rev. Dr. Lobenstein, of Berea College, Ohio.

"The church is 75 feet by 45 feet in dimensions. The building committee consisted of J. W. Lauterbach, Henry Schneider, C. Eilber, Charles Frank and John Peauerle.

"In Sept. 1866, the church bought ground for a parsonage at number 438 S. Third St., where they erected a fine brick residence at a cost of $5,000."

Pastors Listed

We "unquoted" for the list of pastors, as the years are not relevant, but here are the men who served from 1843 to 1892: John H. Barth, William McLain, William Hoffer, Peter Wilkins, L. Nippert, Mr. Gahn, Mr. Braumiller, Mr. Fry, Hugo Rehm, G. Nachtrieb, Paul Brodbeck, H. Vogel, H. Fuss, C. C. Helwig, C. Bozenhardt, Augustus Gerlach, John Schneider, John Egly, Jacob Rothweiler, John H. Horst, Mr. Treuschell.

The article concludes by stating "The German Methodists are a very earnest, reliable, sincere and generous class of Christians. Their founder in America is the venerable William Nast."

Ailing List

The ailing or convalescent list this week includes Lou Whitacre, Vic Zwilling, Tim Donovan, Conchietta Hayes, Louise Wassmuth, Theodore Zultz, Dorothy Donovan, Helen Arrick, Bettie Blakheimer, Gale Crombie, Janet Workmaster, Ronald Hull, Clara Kleinlein, William Banks, Mary Baas, Elizabeth Ebinger, Ross Hughes, Esther Paschal and Herbert Childs.

Birthdays

Though football games and autumn activities appeal to their older brothers and sisters, this younger section of the younger generation still finds traditional celebrations the best, after all . . . Teresa Leitwein, Mike Branson, Ronald Fout, John Hardin, Jeff Reynolds, Sherry Johnson, Ricky Hazelette, Randy Wilson, Sabrina Burgess, Lora Johnson, Zane Marshall, Shiela Dewey, Regina Honaker, Gary Halley, Juanita Tabor, Zane Fennell and Diane Wagner.

Teenagers to be remembered include Linda Bauchmayer, Catherine Thiel, Christine Thiel, Jackie Sharp and Sue Hall.

Anniversaries

Anniversary remembrances will occur this week for Carol and David Clark, Helen and Clem Fisher, Evelyn and Eugene Wiley. Our serviceman's birthday this week is that of Bob Rice, 175 E. Jenkins Ave.

Mrs. James Pallone

Corpus Christi Scene Of Roehrenbeck Wedding

Before an altar decorated with white chrysanthemums and English ivy, Miss Mary Tersa Roehrenbeck became the bride of Mr. James Joseph Pallone in Corpus Christi Church, Saturday, Oct. 26. The Rev. Fr. Albert Kessler officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Roehrenbeck, 1391 Champion Ave., the bride was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Pallone, 2172 Northwest Blvd.

Her gown was white silk organza with a scoop neckline and elbow length sleeves. Reembroidered Alencon lace accented the bodice, skirt and chapel sweep Watteau train.

Her bouffant veil of imported silk English illusion was worn in bubble fashion. She carried a crescent bouquet of Phaleanopsis orchids with feathered carnations and ivy.

Miss Beverly Neill was maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Miss Karen McFadden, Mrs. John Gutilla, Mrs. Thomas Parson and Miss Cristine Doersam, niece of the bride.

All were gowned alike in royal blue gowns of chiffon over taffeta with scoop necklines and long sleeves. They wore matching cascades of petite bows caught by bouffant illusion and carried crescent bouquets of lavendar and orchid mums and English ivy.

Best man was Mr. David Pallone, brother of the groom. Seating the guests were Mr. Thomas Roehrenbeck (brother of the bride), Mr. Donald R. Guyton, Mr. Albert Rossetti and Mr. Thomas Parson. A reception was held at St. James the Less Social Hall.

The bride is employed by Interstate Securities Company.

Mr. Pallone is owner and manager of the Cabaret Lounge. After a wedding trip to Florida they will reside at 941 Kramer Ave.

News Of Lockbourne

By MRS. BETTY McCUMBER — 491-3463

The Methodist WSCS will meet at the church Thursday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. The official board meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 7:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Paul (Lois) and son from Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bell (Joan) and Mr. and Mrs. John Tilley from Columbus spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Tilley.

Revival Planned

The Church of Christ in Christian Union is having a revival starting Nov. 11 thru 24 with the pastor, the Rev. Walter Taylor, bringing the message and the McNeal Family singing.

Hilda Lozier, Colleen Ward, Marilyn Hafey and Mary Purtee had supper at David's Buffet on Sunday evening in honor of Mary's birthday.

Mrs. Mary Smith and Kay and grandson, Robbie Kline, spent last weekend at Washingtonville visiting Elmer Smith and Mrs. Larry Yrear.

Youth Hold Service

The youth of the Lutheran Church put on a special service last Sunday using folk songs with Christian themes. The women of the church will have a thank offering and will provide the music for the morning service Nov. 17.

ADJ2 Benny J. Sawyer from Brunswick, Me., spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benny Sawyer.

Priorities Announced By Director

Highest priority has been given to establishing an economic base for the community to work from in the war on poverty in the county.

This was emphasized this week by Ernie Fields, the new director of the County Service Center in Urbancrest operated by the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization to serve those living outside the city.

"The poor people in Franklin County have never had either economic or political control of their own lives. And you can't have one without the other," he said.

"Another important project will be to develop indigenous leadership in the community," he continued. "Nobody can speak to the problems of communities as well as the people who live there everyday. The capability is there, but they have to see that they can have power when they are organized."

Fields came to Columbus last month after having been employed as a Neighborhood Center Coordinator for the Stark County Office of Economic Opportunity in Canton.

Catholic Women Hold Convention At Sheraton

Mrs. D. Bruce Bischoff, president of the council, chaired the convention themed "With Liberty and Justice For All."

South Side women involved included Mrs. Joseph Ardner, 2085 Fairwood Ave., coffee break chairman, and Mrs. Ray Seipel, 4660 Wingate, South Central Deanery president.

Winners Will Be Retarded Kids

A card party will be held for the benefit of Aid for Retarded Children of Franklin County at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Owens-Illinois Club House, 740 Jenkins Ave.

Sponsored by Are 12, any kind of cards will be played and prizes offered.

The donation is $1.

Teays Valley Awards Bid To Harden

The bid for a new drive training car from Harden Chevrolet in the amount of $2,760.22 was accepted when the Teays Valley Board of Education met recently.

Economy minded, the board did not accept the extras of radio, power brakes, power steering and clock.

In the meantime, the board is applying for a "loaner" from Harden with the stipulation that it be equipped with standard shift.

Although the motion was approved for purchase of a John Deere 1969 tractor, mower and blade from Brown Implement in Ashville for use at Walnut Elementary a motion made to make the expenditure for like equipment at the Ashville Elementary was defeated.

Because of Thanksgiving, the regular meeting of the board has been moved back to Monday, Nov. 18.

Rippey Gets His Third

The presentation was made during recent ceremonies at the Marine Corps Air Station, Iwakuni, Japan.

He received the award for wounds sustained during combat operations against the enemy in Vietnam.

He is currently serving with the Provost Marshal's Office at the air station.

Ashville—

three applicants for the position of street maintenance man. The other two were Gale Sawyer and Joe Pence.

As the job is considered rather important with the applicant viewed as a potential backup man for Steve Cooke, a decision was postponed until all of council can vote. (Nolo Julick and Max Cormandy were absent this week).

Other business included an ordinance employing Clarence Conaway as park caretaker at a salary of $35 a month, effective Jan. 1, and a vote of thanks to Dick Cooke for acting as clerk during Mrs. Anne Leatherwood's absence.

(Mrs. Leatherwood has returned from Florida, but asked Cooke to continue her duties Monday night as she is still experiencing discomfort from a rear-end collision that occurred enroute to Ashville).

Management Purchases Ashville Food Market

The supermarket formerly known as the Ashville IGA Foodliner has changed its name —and its ownership.

John F. Little, manager, and Paul Hickman, assistant manager, have purchased the market from Paul Ware of Chicago and C. J. McDonald of Bellefontaine.

NOW KNOWN as the Ashville Cardinal Food Market, the supermarket is associated with Consolidated Food Stores which maintains home offices in Chicago and area offices on the west side of Columbus.

Little and Hickman have a total of 40 years experience in the grocery business, with the former employed by the late Clarence Cloud almost 25 years and Hickman joining Cloud in the early Fifties.

Since Little assumed management 10 years ago, extensive renovations have increased floor space by 50 per cent and the staff and volume of business have doubled. During this growth a reputation for quality has been built with one of the finest meat departments in Central Ohio and an unusually attractive produce department as well.

MR. AND MRS. Hickman have two children, Tim and Teresa, and are residents of 11800 Circleville Ave.

The present staff includes John Grabill, Joe Kennedy and Bill and Paul Hickman, meat cutters; Clarence Little, produce; cashiers Mary Helen Miller, Sarah Sanders and Karen Thompson; Howard Hosler, schools and institutions; Jay Bastian and Keith Glasspoole, carry out, and Carl Bumgardner, Larry Adkins, Bob Boysel and Marion Leatherwood, stockers.

RICK'S BEEN STOCKING THE LARDER

On the firing line at the Turkey Shoot sponsored by the Right Angle Club of the South Side YMCA last Sunday was Rick Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harper, 4159 Rohr Rd., with Herman Kuehn of the men's club giving him a few tips. He really didn't need too many, as he brought home a couple of chickens and a pound of bacon to match the three hams he won at the Lockville Fishing Association shoot a week ago. The annual event at Hoover Y-Park on Rohr Road is a happy hunting ground for the Harpers. Last year, Rick's Dad "shot down" three turkeys in a single afternoon and this year sister, Tina, won a prize which included two chickens, a pound of bacon and a box of candy. The second and final session of the shoot is from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday with free coffee for all.

South High Speaks Out

theme prepared by Rebecca A. Fullen on the topic "Sub-Standard Housing" assigned in Mrs. Mary Weld's Senior Honors English Class. She entitled it "People's Homes Are Falling Down, My Fair Lady."

". . . or put your girl to sleep sometimes with rats, instead of nursery rhymes, with hunger, and your other children by her side . . . come and see how well despair is seasoned by the stifling air. See a ghetto in the good ole' sizzling summertime . . . And it might begin to teach you How to give a damn about your fellow man . . ."

These excerpts from a current song by Spanky and Our Gang entitled "Give A Damn" draw the listener's attention to the problem of substandard housing.

What is substandard housing?

The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) defines it as "dwelling units without adequate plumbing facilities, dilapidated and deteriorated."

THE COLUMBUS Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization (CMACAO) defines it more specifically in Executive Director Curtis Brooks' "Report to the Legislative Committee on Substandard Housing." Mr. Brooks used definitions that were given to him by some of the people living in substandard houses.

"An 80-year-old clapboard shack, complete with rats and roaches, usually located in the bottoms or across the tracks or in the American Addition."

"Winter nights so cold that mother turns on all the burners on the old kitchen stove and seven kids sleep in the kitchen because the rest of the house is freezing."

Residents complain mainly of rats, roaches, open fields, weeds and dangerous conditions of the structures themselves.

The Rev. Arthur Brazier, head of the Woodlawn Organization, an amalgam of civil rights interests, sees trouble in housing in that poor people are jammed into a small area. He claims the people "in these rotten slums" are being "bilked and milked."

Rent payments gobble up large chunks of the slum dwellers' precious welfare checks. In one case, a woman claims that 20 per cent of the family income must be forfeited in order to pay for the use of a dingy building that doesn't even provide ample sleeping quarters for the whole family.

A COLUMBUS man, living on the South Side, told a substandard housing study committee that he was paying $60 rent plus utilities, ($90 in the winter). The man, his wife, and their five children were existing on the $260 he received in welfare payments.

In some actual cases, families with $2,000 to $3,000 income per year are paying $100 or more per month for rat-infested ramshackle, two to four room units which the landlords neglect to repair.

Numerous community workers have proposed laws that would protect the victims of substandard housing against greedy landlords by either allowing the tenants to petition the court for a mandatory injunction requiring the owner to bring his property up to code standards, or allowing the tenants to make needed repairs and have the cost of those repairs deducted from the rent.

ALTHOUGH many groups have formed in efforts to combat substandard housing throughout the United States, a lack of willing workers still prevails, hindering the possibilities of improving living conditions in the slums and ghettos. John Gardner, of Urban Coalition, asks for people who are willing to take an honest look at their community and do something about its problems.

Are you the greedy landlord or an apathetic suburbian that will never be confronted with having to live in a slum?

Are you a concerned American, yet reluctant or frightened to become involved in a fellow American's life?

I challenge you to become involved; I ask you to investigate and learn about areas of substandard housing and the laws concerning code standards and evictions.

I beg you to care.

". . . and it might begin to reach you, Why we give a damn about our fellow man. And it might begin to teach you, How to give a damn about your fellow man . . ."

Christmas Seal Campaign Begins Today, Mailing Starts

Christmas Seal campaign begins today, Nov. 7.

It is sponsored by the Tuberculosis Society of Columbus and Franklin County.

Thousands of Christmas Seal letters are now going out from the Society to homes and offices in Columbus and Franklin County.

Christmas Seals have been a holiday-time tradition for 62 years. Since 1906, when the first Christmas Seal was pasted on the first holiday letter, these stamps have travelled all over the world on literally billions of packages and cards.

But what, exactly, do Christmas Seals do?

For one thing, they finance the TB Society X-ray program, where anyone in Franklin County 18 years or older can get a free chest X-ray. Last year, over 52,000 people got their free chest X-rays —and these X-rays not only disclosed tuberculosis, but also chest problems such as enlarged heart, emphysema, tumors and other lung troubles. All told, the X-rays found well over 1,000 people with chest disorders.

Christmas Seal contributions also pay for the free tuberculin skin testing program given at most schools in the County (over 300 schools last year). The TB Society administers these tests to children in grades one, seven and 11. The test helps protect the child and his family from the threat of tuberculosis.

Christmas Seal donations pay for the TB Society's informational program too. The Society will distribute information on tuberculosis, cigarette smoking, air pollution, emphysema and other related topics to anyone in Franklin County.

The information may be in the form of pamphlets, which range from Mr. TB Germ coloring books all the way to detailed medical journals for doctors. Or the information may come as a speaker on cigarette smoking, who is accompanied by a motor-powered mannequin named Nikki-Teen. Nikki can smoke up a cigarette in less than a minute, and her glass "lungs" show every bit of nicotine and tar she breathes in. Also available are wall-posters for schools and informational movies.

Christmas Seals finance medical research projects in the field of lung diseases. Currently, the TB Society is funding a project designed to discover whether the breathing disease emphysema can be accurately and quickly diagnosed by X-rays.

Christmas Seals pay for workshops to inform doctors, nurses, and other medical people about the latest developments in the treatment of chest diseases. Next month, the TB Society is backing a special workshop for nurses —the first of its kind sponsored by the Society in recent years.

Will Partridge, chairman of the Christmas Seal Campaign this year, encourages everyone to use Christmas Seals.

"When my letter comes to your mailbox, be sure to read it," he says.

"I can assure you that your contributions will be helping many people in many ways all through the year—and for years to come."

At The Recreation Centers

SCHILLER

Registration is still open for the Saturday morning dance program at Schiller Recreation Center. Girls eight and under attend 9:30 to 10:30 and those nine and over are in class from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. They are taught modern, character, and ballet under the leadership of Sandra Woods. There is no fee.

Boys and girls, 18 and under, may now register for basketball league play. The age is determined as of Sept. 1, 1968.

There are three age groups: juniors—12 and under; intermediate—13 to 15 and seniors—16 to 18. Girls should see Sharon Acomb and boys, Dick Grube.

Miss Mary Gillen has announced the costume winners of the Halloween Party as follows:

Teays Valley Awards Bid To Harden

The bid for a new drive training car from Harden Chevrolet in the amount of $2,760.22 was accepted when the Teays Valley Board of Education met recently.

Economy minded, the board did not accept the extras of radio, power brakes, power steering and clock.

In the meantime, the board is applying for a "loaner" from Harden with the stipulation that it be equipped with standard shift.

Although the motion was approved for purchase of a John Deere 1969 tractor, mower and blade from Brown Implement in Ashville for use at Walnut Elementary a motion made to make the expenditure for like equipment at the Ashville Elementary was defeated.

Because of Thanksgiving, the regular meeting of the board has been moved back to Monday, Nov. 18.

Rippey Gets His Third

L-Cpl. William C. Rippey, 20, son of Mrs. William C Smith of 2142 Haviland Dr., was awarded his third Purple Heart Medal.

The presentation was made during recent ceremonies at the Marine Corps Air Station, Iwakuni, Japan.

He received the award for wounds sustained during combat operations against the enemy in Vietnam.

VISIT THE OLD WORLD HERE IN COLUMBUS

THE GERMAN VILLAGE NEWS

GERMAN POTTERS

Pottery and Porcelain Marks too often carry indexes and guides inferring that England was the cradle. Some carried Lettering, others Heraldric Emblems. Father passed his secrets of clay and mortar down to son, a tradition of the Old World.

Researchers and genealogists know that many German Tradesmen came into the Ohio Valley from 1760's on. Wares of manufacturer or craftsman carry Marks. There are more than 5,000 marks indexed in reliable sources serving as a guideline.

Collector and antique dealers are the quickest to identify a piece of porcelain by its mark. Some marks look like letters or words. Often a mark may resemble a C or a crescent. Many are made to look like a circle, square, bird or animal shape.

In the patent office, all marks carry explanations and other pertinent data on the trademark. In one Trademark Source, all factory names are carried in Dutch as well as English.

Each century sees changes in the Dutch language, and occasionally sources carry both the old and new Dutch spelling. Modern sources begin with 1753. Ammon's original Book of Trades carries it in Code, so often requiring use of all ancient languages to interpret because of clay mixtures.

Ernst Blechschmidt, tradesman from Germany, came to Perry County upwards of 20 years ago. He free-lanced for a short while after the Crooksville China Co. closed its doors a few years ago. Suddenly, TV Stamps and later other Stamp programs began the 9c give-away program with a tank of gasoline. Ernst finds his creations are all used today, something beyond expectation when jiggermen producted his patterns. He is also proof that the Old World training gives impetus for man to change products to suit the time, thus always selling "his wares."

Mithoff's Antiques watch for Trademarks to verify family history of articles that some consider as "stuff" to get rid of when Mama "goes" on to "rest". It is a Trading House, a merchant of yesterday's work tools and decorative items.

Mohawk Grill's Bar Roof contains many antique items that resemble a Smokehouse of Meats, or a Tobacco drying Cabin of early German farmers of central and southern Ohio. A closer look shows he packed items from the pantry shelves, the tool house, and the cider mill for decor. One has to take Frunk Buzzart's word on vintage and patternmaker, since they hang close to the ceiling.

It's drapery cleaning time.
How can we guarantee to return your draperies the exact length they were? Simple. We measure them before cleaning. Then we place them in the patented Adjust-A-Drape machine, set the magic "fingers" for even hemlines and soft decorator folds, set the measuring guage to the exact length they were, close the doors, and apply steam. Sounds simple . . . actually it's an art.

NOVEMBER FESTIVITIES

For Children Of All Ages

In November, Americans promote American Education Week, Children's Book Week and Freedom of Religion Week. Everyone falls in one of these categories. Germans cognizant of their heritage should be most observant of these Special Weeks.

November 17-23 is National Children's Book Week.

Dr. Garry C. Myers, Honesdale, Pa., child psychologist, author, publisher, and columnist, has long rated high in better reading programs and closer mother-child relationship. Of German descent, he employes the old-time method of "earn your allowance" by labors around the house, yard or farm.

"Give me a child until he is seven years old, and I'll show you which way of life he will go." is a maxim of Dr. Myers. He was one of the first to write a column on child-rearing, and instigated many Child Study Groups throughout the nation under the auspices of Children's Activities, now a part of Highlights For Children published in Columbus.

Dr. Myers counseled mothers of mentally retarded and deformed children over 30 years ago, in the period when only the rich could afford other than General Practitioners. Oddly enough, statistics bore out the fact that a greater number appeared in homes with enough money to buy the best of food supplies. They were often the most pampered. Today, children of every income group are permitted to eat snacks that fill and slowly kill until supplements are necessary through deficiency illnesses which dull the mind.

Dr. Myers advocates children's reading habits begin while still in toddling stage. Pictures and spoken words at regular sessions cement parent-child relationship for those trying periods later on, sometimes popping up in the sixth and seventh grades. "Some one took time for me," is the feeling it instills as a future barometer in decision making, be it seven or 16, Dr. Myers taught.

"When a child earns his allowance" a toddler or teenager also learns spending values. He is a good citizen prospect in manhood, and a dependable worker. It encourages "extra" work as a ways and means to "earn" a new bike or a book, an animal or perhaps a new suit of clothes. Dr. Myers has done much to instill mother responsibility.

About Our Advertisers . . .

Schmidt's Sausage Haus carries home made meats that are "all meat!" It doesn't cook away, nor does it contain water for fill. It is tasty and is always fresh.

John Hancock suggests cleaning Formals, and the winterizing winter clothes now. Be ready for all holiday festivities, in advance. He picks them up, and delivers them when you say.

Der Village Markt Delicatessen carries eight kinds of prepared salads, some sweets and sours. Having a card party for the boys? Der Markt's carries all the cut meats that men enjoy with a keg of beer. The men will especially like to shop this meat counter because of its wide selection. One carries garlic. If the wife objects, remind her that the construction workers of the Pharoah ate plenty of garlic, radishes and seseame seed for strength.

Vaughn's Paint and Wallpaper Store carry Pre-Pasted wallpaper in stock. There's plenty of parking space. Stop by and browse around, for today's papering jobs, or tomorrow's hope jobs.

Studio Nyneteen is the place to call for Wedding pictures. It is their specialty, but they handle other requests.

Cat Week International is also celebrated this week. Buy a Gift for your pet at Weisheimer's Pet Supply. They have a wide variety of toys, harness, and food Cats thrive on.

Dor-A-Bel Gift Shop has plenty of Thanksgiving Cards, just the thing for the Special person. While there, look over their vast selection of sterling silver bracelet charms. They have a type for every occasion. They make nice boy to girl gifts. Folks wear them on their wrists now. Good-n'ess, only a few years ago, they were worn on the ankle.

Laff's Coffee Shop is the only place in the Village serving old German breakfasts, potatoes and steak or potatoes, eggs and sausage. It's a good way to start the day.

If you haven't been to Thurman Cafe lately, stop in. They have remodeled with Paneling, in an all-over job, and air conditioning. Women folks will take note of the special made Shell telephone booth just inside the door. It is eye-catching.

If you would like a copy of First Facts of World Order from Zero A. D. on, mail 25c to cover handling to German Village U.S.A., Spectator, 2465 W. Broad St., for your copy. It carries much on German history.

SUPPEN

(Recipes from German Village Society Cook Book)

Fleischlose Bohnensuppe

(MEATLESS BEAN SOUP)

1 lb. soup beans (soak overnight)
Cook with:
¼ C. chopped onions
¼ C. chopped celery
½ C. cubed potatoes
1 T. chopped leek
6 C. water

When cooked add 1 T. flour browned in 1 T. butter: cook 5 minutes longer.

Graupensuppe

(BARLEY SOUP)

For each quart of beef or chicken broth, seasoned with onion, add ¼ C. of barley (soaked 2 hours in water). Cook 1 hour or longer until barley is soft. Add 1 or 2 diced potatoes the last 15 minutes of cooking. One chopped tomato or carrot may be added for color.

'Try-Try-Again' Devils Succeed In City Title Derby

and
BOB WHITMAN

The bright, red balloons which the Marion - Franklin band released at halftime Friday evening at South knew where the 1968 City League title belonged as they headed 'up, up and away' in the direction of the Koebel Road school.

But Red Devil coach Jim Harper — who had been to the well on four previous occasions only to find it bone-dry — wasn't allowed that luxury of assurance so early Friday.

"I WAS scared to death," the watered-down Marion mentor allowed over the din of a victory-fired Devil locker room Friday evening.

In fact, Harper didn't peel off coat and shoes in preparation for his ride off the field Friday until the waning seconds of play in the Devils' hard-fought 18-12 conquest of Bob Jackson's upset-determined Bulldogs.

The "turning point" was delayed until M-F defenders slapped South QB Les Payne to the turf at the Devil 21—a bare four yards short of a first down on a fourth-n-nine situation late in the final period.

HARPER BLAMED the fact his Devil crew "was probably too keyed up" for "not one of our better games offensively."

"We might have made a mistake concentrating too much on (South end Stan) Dixon. He got hit on every play. We knew we had to stop their passing game," the coaching veteran added.

Except for two glaring errors on pass coverage (both of which, ironically, didn't cash in for the Bulldogs), Marion did just that — stop South's passing, limiting Reb aerial yardage to a bare 54 gained.

IN ALL, South totaled 170 as compared to M-F's 327 (203 rushing; 124 passing).

Quarterback Lloyd Ball, who overcame a scary ankle injury early in the game, clicked on 6-of-8 attempts for the passing yardage while Billy Harris (98 yds., 21 carries), Clarence Jeter (64 yds., 18 tries) and Rick Austin (79 yds., 11 attempts, including winning TD) pretty well evened up on rushing honors.

Harper lauded the efforts of "Devil of the Week" Roy Keyes, Norm Johnson, Larry McDowell and Steve Grabovich on defense.

THE MARION skipper repeated his early-season prediction that his Devils would become a tough ball club "if we cut down on our own mistakes.

"We kept getting better each week and the kids gained more and more confidence in themselves," genial Jim concluded.

The pre-season intangible was a basically untested Red Devil backfield which came into its own as the season progessed, according to Harper.

"IT WAS Billy Harris' first year out and we didn't know how he'd perform under the pressure of a City League schedule," Jim mentioned. "And Marty Donley had neven been proven."

Donley, incidentally, missed the final game due to injury and was presented the game ball.

Harper released some interesting seasonal statistics this week which showed the effectiveness of quarterback Lloyd Ball's passing arm and some fine rushing totals.

BALL HIT on 48 of 80 passes for 837 yds. and six TDs while top rusher Billy Harris rambled for 844 yds. in 143 tries (5.9 yds. per carry) and totaled 78 points.

Clarence Jeter was next in line with 466 yds. in 108 tries while Marty Donley finished second in the point derby with 52.

Pass reception totals were extremely well-balanced with end Mike Nicely setting the pace with 16 grabs for 254 yds.

CLOSE BEHIND were running mate Roy Enyart '(11 catches for 257 yds.) and Donley (12 receptions for 239 yds.).

At South, an understandably disappointed Bob Jackson decided: "I guess we'll have to be satisfied with last year's upset."

The only change Jackson admitted his Bulldogs made for the M-F tilt was a heavier leaning to their rushing attack.

"WE WERE disappointed with our passing game at Eastmoor two weeks ago and thought we'd try to run the ball a little more than usual against Marion - Franklin," Bob confessed.

"We thought we could lull their defensive halfbacks into thinking we were more of a running team than they'd figured and I think the deception worked to a certain extent.

"As I look back on it now, maybe we should have put the ball in the air more than we did. But then, they put such a tremendous rush on us, I doubt if we would have had time to throw much more than we did," the Rebel grid boss added.

"THERE'S NO doubt we were beaten by a fine team. They execute very well offensively and just pressure you to death on defense," Jackson concluded.

Jackson praised the efforts of defensive stalwart Don Caldwell, who showed his All-City qualifications with 22 stops, and back Wilbur Prysock who carried the brunt of the South offense.

South finished at 4-5 for the season.

WEHRLE

WEHRLE GRID boss Paul Nestor mentioned that nothing special was used in the 22-0 curtain-dropping win over rugged West Jefferson Friday evening, but the fact "that we were playing in our own size category had a lot to do with it."

"It was just one of those [illegible] of putting everything together at the right time," Nestor noted on what sailed the Wolves to a 4-4-1 record with the impressive win.

And the record Wehrle posted was something special as Nestor took over the grid job this September and inherited an 0-9 group which he turned into a pretty fair football fighting force.

"EVERYONE played good football Friday," Paul feels, "and it would be unfair to single out any one player. The defense especially was excellent."

The defenders—headed by bulky Dave Maurer, Adrian Skunza (who doubles as starting quarterback) and Kevin Reis—held a potent West Jefferson offense to 47 total yards.

CITY Sports

Offensively, Nestor did mention the blocking of fullback Tom Bates as one of the key factors along with the cool generalship of QB Skunza.

THE AREA'S only [illegible] grid eleven — Mohawk'[illegible]dians — closed on a winning note last weekend, beating Greenfield (38-30) for its third win in nine outings this season.

ISSUE SETTLED — A determined Marion-Franklin defender plummets South quarterback Les Payne to the turf Friday at Red Devil 24 — closing a nerve-racking evening for the M-F defense with the elusive, scrambling Reb runner. Marion ran out clock after Payne's effort to pick up first down on fourth-and-nine situation fell four yards short in closing minutes of play.

Little Buckeyes Close Unbeaten

The Little Buckeyes captured the first Boys All-American League grid title Saturday by downing the Devonshire Chargers, 58-0, in an Aid to Retarded Children's Benefit Bowl at Worthington High School.

The victory, the Little Bucks' 56th in a row, left Tom Krieger's unscored upon squad with a clean mark of 7-0 (8-0 overall) for the season.

Buckeye halfback (and BAAL's leading scorer) John Wirthman set the pace with four touchdown runs while QB Craig Woods and fullback Chip Jakeway added two tallies each.

QB Monty Hannah supplied the ninth Buckeye six-pointer —his and one of Woods' TDs coming on interception returns.

The Conservation Council of Ohio is a recently formed combine of the four leading sportsmen's groups in Ohio.

It includes representatives from the League of Ohio Sportsmen, Ike Waltons, Ohio Game Breeders Association and the Ohio Conservation Congress.

THE PURPOSE of the Conservation Council of Ohio is to jell conservation efforts and get them implemented in the Legislature.

Just last month, the CCO surveyed the State Senate and House candidates to find where they stood on major outdoor problems. Here are some of those questions and their answers:

On dove hunting, 42 percent were in favor, 28 percent opposed and 30 percent had no opinion. On further gun legislation, 25 percent in favor, 47 percent opposed and 28 percent had no opinion.

WHEN ASKED if they believed gun registration would reduce crime rates, they answered 17 percent yes, 67 percent no with 22 percent no opinion.

When asked if the State Highway Department should be made to detour scenic areas instead of ruining them, they answered 67 percent yes, 33 percent no.

When asked in farmlands if the soil bank should be opened to hunters, 31 percent yes, 32 percent no and 37 percent had no opinion. When asked if the Department of Natural Resources should continue to buy land wherever possible, they answered 72 percent yes, 7 percent no, 21 percent no opinion.

RECAPPING the rest, 53 percent believe hunting and fishing should be taught in public schools and only 26 percent believed a nonpartisan commission could better run the Natural Resources Department.

The most significant question of all, ("DO YOU BELIEVE PRESENT POLLUTION CONTROL LAWS ARE ADEQUATE?") brought only 4 percent affirmative with 78 percent negative and 18 percent no opinion.

Fifty-nine percent believe certain park areas should be opened for hunting in the winter. Seventy-eight percent want solid waste disposal included in air and water pollution laws.

LAST, BUT not least, 78 percent said they would like to see all types of surface mining under a reclaimation law.

Of course, the value of these answers is in doubt

THE WAITING GAME — Marion-Franklin end Mike Nicely (left) and approaching South defender Les Payne (16) begin a game of "stuttering steps" as the former sought advancement after spearing aerial from Devil quarterback Lloyd Ball on Marion's fourth-period drive for winning touchdown Friday.

THE CLINCHER — Marion-Franklin flanker back Rick Austin (43) finds the traffic heavy with South defenders but managed six-yard drive into end for final (and winning) Red Devil TD with 6:41 remaining in game Friday. M-F gained City League title share with thrill-packed 18-12 nod over South.

Around Town

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

The La Bota is a beautiful club that is loaded with personality because of its unusual motif. It is decorated in authentic Mexican atmosphere.

Appearing there nightly is a singer who is also loaded with personality, Carlton Dinnall. Carlton hails from Kingston, Jamaica. He arrived in the states four years ago, and came to Columbus just one month ago. Since his arrival, Carlton has been thrilling audiences with his unusual vocal abilities.

Being able to take a song and milk it for everything it's worth without using any theatrics is a Dinnall forte. Simply sitting on a stool and playing his guitar, Carlton sings. Sing he does. He has a delightful and intriguing voice. Having an amazing quality and range are just two of the qualities that makes this boy great.

Accompanying himself on a very classy guitar, Carlton Dinnall sings with a tremendous amount of feeling. This chap certainly has "soul" in his work.

Carlton receives absolute attention from his audience. This is highly unusual for a lounge act, where almost everyone engages in conversation. This command of attention is enhanced by his magnetic and sincere personality.

Of course his vocal stylings are a big asset. See Carlton Dinnall at the La Bota, and you'll agree that he is as refreshing as the proverbial morning in June.

Tommy Johnson

Tommy Johnson has to be one of the best organists working Around Town. You can see this fellow's musical magic nightly in the Vogue Lounge way up on N. High Street near Worthington.

Producing some of the most beautiful musical sounds you'll hear anywhere, Tommy plays a strong melody line and his shading and handling of a tune are superb. His organ stylings, which are rich and mellow, are also very simple and uncluttered. Tommy Johnson employs technique instead of volume. A technique results in pretty, pretty music.

Besides the organ, Tommy plays an exceptionally fine piano. Many entertainers attempt to play both at the same time. Most fall down on the job. Not this fellow. His keyboard artistry reflects the years Tommy has been performing. At age seven he was on the Horace Heidt Show and when he was nine, Tommy's talents were written up in "Life" magazine.

If you like music, Tommy Johnson is an absolute must. This columnist only wishes that he could go to the Vogue Lounge every night.

Ah, Prohibition

Ah, those beautiful prohibition days with flapper girls, the beer barons, mobsters and the speakeasies.

This nostalgia of an era when men worried most about where their next .45 slug was coming from is provided at Danny's Speakeasy.

The Speakeasy has been as dark as a gangland hideout in recent months because of a destructive fire. But, the word from owner Danny Mann is that the popular spot reopened yesterday. So we took our chance of being shot and went in to see what's going on.

Danny Mann, who does just about everything at his club except load the gats for the Speakeasy's mock shootouts, is sticking to the formula which produced hot business before the fire.

There are beautiful dancing flapper girls, the plugging of bootleggers, fake gun battles and staged raids along with five big big shows nightly, and all in a decor of the twenties.

The password is, "Danny sent me," and it's addressed to a doorman who doesn't hide the fact he's wearing a shoulder holster. Once you get past the gun-toting doorman, you're treated to bursts of music from the Danny Mann Trio, flapper girls and plenty of hoopla. Also, there are two dance floors, so there's plenty of room for dancing.

The beverages are served in coffee cups. The best part of all, there is never a cover or minimum.

As we said before, Danny does just about everything at the club, including singing, playing the drums, emceeing the shows as well as dusting off the poster picture of Al Capone which dominates the Speakeasy from an encircled wreath.

Jimmy Joseph Does It Again

Jimmy Joseph has done it again. The well known club owner and promoter will soon be opening another club in Columbus. It will be called the Grand Ole Opry Club and will feature the very top stars in the country and western field.

Located where the old Sands Supper Club used to be, Jimmy has already opened the cocktail lounge adjacent to the main room. Joseph has completely re-decorated both the lounge and main room. In the lounge, named Jimmy's, you find some of the sharpest dancers in town.

Down the street, at Jimmy's other club, The Sands, singer Bob Taylor is being held over. Right now, Taylor is working at the Sands in Columbus, but it will not be long before he's at the Sands in Vegas.

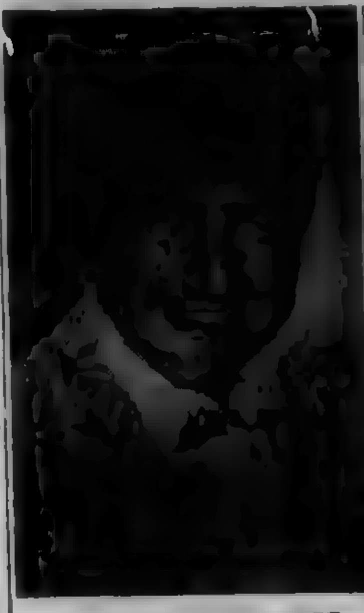
Columbus' Boardwalk

Everybody's heard of the boardwalk in Atlantic City. But, have you heard about the Boardwalk in Columbus? If not, take a ride on E. Main Street, near Whitehall, and you'll find the Boardwalk. This is a restaurant specializing in all types of hot dogs, along with various other sandwiches and food specialties.

For a coney island type of operation, the Boardwalk is richly decorated, with a mixture of the Gay 90's and New Orleans. There are three gazebos that add intimate atmosphere. A gazebo is a small ornamental shelter. It gives the impression of privacy while you sit and enjoy you sandwiches. Oh yes, the Boardwalk has a real boardwalk out front.

Skipping Around Town

Skipping Around Town . . . This is another week that is loaded with good entertainment . . . Charlie Pickens is still holding down the fort at the La Mancha. Hours are from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m. . . . "Cactus Flower" is still at the Hartman. You have three days left to enjoy this great show of David Merrick . . . Kathy is back in town, so is Don. The Kathy and Don Duo opened this week at the Lincoln Lodge. This is a good group, go see for yourself . . . "You're Pulling My Leg" is still packing them in at the Off Broadway Theater. If you like good satirical comedy, then this is for you. You Golden Agers don't forget that the next show at the Palace Theater is the well known "Carousel." It only costs 50 cents. This has to be the best entertainment buy in town . . . Dino Gounaris, your friendly host of the Imperial House-North, promises some big surprises for his place real soon . . . Doing great business is the reason "Barbarella" has been held over at the Northland and Eastland Cinemas.



NEXT WEEK

Appearing at the Vets next week is Liberace who is both a great pianist and showman. Also on the same bill will be the talented Gale Sherwood and violinist Florian Zabach.

IP's 'South Pacific' Gains 'New Respect'

I've been treking to Independent Players' club rooms for almost two years. The last visit was just four days before opening night at Veterans Memorial.

Sunday's preview resulted in a new respect and enthusiasm kindled by the directors, Lynn Morrow, Frank Cory and Brenda Fluor, for this community theater which produces musicals.

IP's last production, "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" was a bomb. As a result, the club has been teetering between survival and bills.

But thanks to some sage advice, wise decisions and sheer guts, Rodgers and Hammerstein's "South Pacific" will play a two night stand tomorrow night and Saturday.

The wisest decision was hiring Lynn Morrow as staging director. Anybody who has seen or heard of IP's distinctive vocal attributes backed by obnoxious non-acting and deplorable sets is in for a memorable surprise.

Directress Lynn Morrow has masterminded "South Pacific" into a brilliant showcase of detail, acting, pace and blocking which brings the issue to a head . . . with no qualms . . . a trip on your part to Vets at 8:30 p.m. will result in entertainment, respect and enthusiasm.

Even in the starkness of the club room, the two-fold story of love and personal prejudice capped with music was stirring. I caught myself in "Bali Ha'i and shed a few tears of happiness in the final scene.

Being a musical, the cast list goes on forever. Rather than mention individuals and painfully omit someone, it seems more reasonable to say each has developed a memorable character. All are shining examples of what can result from work, interpretation and direction.

Such songs as "A Cockeyed Optimist," "Some Enchanted Evening," "Happy Talk," "Younger Than Springtime," "Honey Bun," "Carefully Taught," "This Nearly Was Mine," "Bali Ha'i" and many others are professionally delivered by the cast, vocal and and dance chorus.

The sketches of the sets offered a peek at another Kirby Wyatt triumph.

There is nothing so entertaining as a musical, well done. Independent Players have accomplished this.

Tickets are available at Central Ticket Office.

Veteran's Day

A DAY OF---

PRIDE and HONOR

On this day, we pause in remembrance and gratitude, as we salute our veterans. Proudly we honor all who so valiantly served their country, in defense of freedom, and those who, with equal valor, serve today.

Not only on Veteran's Day, but every day, let us pledge to give purpose to their loyalty and sacrifce. Let us strive unceasingly to maintain the democratic principles they have so gloriously upheld.

THEY SACRIFICED!

LET US ALL GIVE THANKS

Good Acting, Story Line Featured In 'The Split'

Aside from the first 15 minutes of "The Split" now showing at the Beechwold, College Cinema, Esquire, Markham, State, National Auto, 17th Avenue, South Drive In, Eastside Auto and W. Fifth Auto theaters, the film offers excitement via a $500,000 heist of receipts taken in during a football game.

The stars are abundant, with such names as Jim B[illegible] Diahann Carroll, Julie Harris, Ernest Borgnine, Gene Hackman, Jack Klugman and Warren Oates, among the cast.

For all of "The Split's" merits, including excellent acting, directing and photography there are some scenes which deter from the total enjoyment.

These scenes acutely implied inter-racial passion, definitely categorizes this release as for mature audiences only. Unlike the theses of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" or "For The Love of Ivy" these scenes have been added to an entirely different story line for the box office take or as an inducement rather than for the beauty.

This film is based on a novel "The Seventh" by Richard Stark, which could have been re-written for the screen to permit more to enjoy the excitement of cops and robbers and robbers and cops.

The ending is one of the best endings I have seen for a long time. What really happened when the public address — or was it his conscience — blurted out "McClain" as he was about to board an airplane, leaving behind six dead human beings and one cop a bit richer?

WORSHIP IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHCICE

HIGH TIME

Ten minutes early! The service of worship begins at eleven, and the Anderson family has had time to saunter a little . . . gratefully aware of the glorious autumn morning and the serene beauty of their church building. Afterwards, like Christians the world over, they will go home refreshed and inspired by God's Word, ready to meet whatever the week may bring.

Turning from self-service to God's service is never easy, but it is immeasurably worthwhile. When our hearts are completely God-centered, all other concerns fall into their proper places . . . and our lives become richer and more significant than our minds can imagine.

"Everything else can wait . . . but your search for God cannot wait." There is still time. Come to church this Sunday and share in the bounty of His strengthening love. It is yours for the asking.

THIS IS WHERE 'HIGH SPIRITS' ENDED AND VANDALISM BEGAN

Rivalry between South High School and Marion-Franklin is as traditional as a pep rally before homecoming, but the vandalism at Marion-Franklin following its victory over South Friday smacked of more than healthy school spirit. At 2:30 a.m., a custodian heard a disturbance and called police. (A mysterious part of the whole affair is that the custodian had not been located by school administrators at press time). In the left hand picture, Russ Bryan of the Band Parents inspects the door through which a rock was thrown to obtain entry. In the center shots, Ryan picks up a piece of window framing torn from the building while Brenda White notes more paint. At the right, they inspect a small utility building which bore the brunt of the obscenities written. M-F principal Mike Lower estimates the glass replacement, necessary sandblasting for paint removal on walks and buildings, repainting of woodwork, and sundry labor will come to about $500. Both he and Harold Washburn, principal at South, whose students are suspect (although some suggestion is made that recent alumni may be involved rather than the students currently enrolled) are adamant they will resort to legal recourse if the guilty parties are found.

Time Running Out

Time is running out for the West High Band and more money is needed.

The drive to send West's Band and Weskets marching corps to the Rose Bowl was $20,000 short as the week began.

It would be a crime if the "Zippies" had to pass up this trip for lack of funds. For these kids exemplify the best in American youth.

There's a good opportunity coming up to aid the cause.

Next Tuesday night, a Rose Bowl benefit concert will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Coliseum. On tap is a show of outstanding bands plus special entertainment.

For a $10 contribution, you will get not only a ticket to the concert but a share of stock in the band, co-signed by Governor Rhodes and Mayor Sensenbrenner.

The West High Band deserves your support so that it can represent Columbus in the Tournament of Roses Parade on New Year's Day.

Post-Mortem

"A choice, not an echo."

These were familiar words during the 1964 presidential election year.

But they could well have applied to choices some area voters had to make this week.

And this was not due to a lack of qualified candidates, but to a degree of clutterness on the ballot. How can any voter really know everything about the host of candidates appearing on the ballot, from coroner to those seeking judicial office?

The ballot box and not the bullet is the trademark of democracy.

Thanks to such organizations as the League of Women Voters there was some attempt made to confront voters with viewpoints and issues.

But issues and political philosophies of candidates sometimes fell by the wayside in favor of personality cults.

Some solutions must be found before the next general election so that an informed electorate can make informed decisions.

These newspapers intend to explore this situation further in coming weeks.

Facilities Needed

"We cannot in good conscience wait any longer. Facilities to treat alcoholics better are badly needed in Columbus now."

It is in these terms that Dr. Ollie Goodloe, City Health Commissioner, cites the need for a specialized alcoholism treatment center.

For this reason, the Columbus Health Department had included in its capital improvements request $1,100,000 in 1969-70 for planning and construction of the center.

It is believed between 1,250 and 3,100 persons now are being handled in Columbus through the jail and arrest system—a means of handling chronic public intoxication which is being abandoned in many other cities.

We believe Dr. Goodloe's recommendation is a good one to meet a problem often shoved under the carpet.

The proposed facility would serve as a bridge between general hospital acute services and appropriate community resources for handling the chronic aspects.

Dr. Goodloe believes there are too many alcohol-related deaths and too many families suffering for lack of sufficient medical facilities.

We agree.

Tahiti Complex

By JOHN MORGAN

Now that elections are over, the signs no longer cluttering our beloved city and the ceaseless chatter of candidates eliminated from disrupting the glare of the "boob tube," I can rest more quietly.

Somehow I am continually catapulted into dizziness by the comings and goings of this modern age. Call it the Age of Anxiety or the Age of Electric Media, I don't care. All I know is that I'm confused by the whole thing.

Maybe I should have been born in prehistoric times. Like many of my generation I suffer from a "Tahiti complex." I yearn for the uncomplicated, bound-to-the soil life, free from the pressures of this age. And yet a toothache would be all it would take to change my mind. Anyone can stand anxiety; it takes a real man to stand a toothache.

SOMETIMES I THINK we lose perspective. Time becomes the present, a moment we live and die in, oblivious to the recorded history before us. We think too highly of ourselves.

Who ever ascribed to us this importance? Who told us the world falls or stands by our accomplishments?

Egypt flourished for 27 centuries. More than 10,000 years ago man began to settle in the valley of the Nile River. It was a great nation 900 years before Moses led the Israelites out of bondage.

American culture began in 1776. It is still an infant. And like a crying infant we sometimes are too prone to spank it, criticize it and proclaim it will never grow up.

It staggers the imagination.

So wrapped up in this age we forget our finitude. We place ourselves high on the pyramid of the universe, while in reality we are but a speck in the span of history.

But there is a comfort in this, too.

The world will continue until some stupid fool pushes the wrong button. What we do is important, but nothing we do is going to change the character of human life.

Human life will survive, a way of being totally unique in the universe.

We think of the Egyptian heritage simply in terms of the pyramids. But we sit on a four-legged chair, write with a pen on a piece of paper and have doctors—all legacies of a 3,000-year-old Egyptian culture.

This also gives me hope.

For what survives time is the truly personal, what is beyond all the clamor of our age.

When a grandfather takes out insurance for his new grandson, a mother patiently explains life to a young child or a father repeats the ancient admonitions to his son, I am convinced there is hope left.

Let us hope we are not remembered solely for our politics.

What transpires in our daily lives may be the backbone of history.

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG
Saunders, Stiver & Co.

An industry that has caught the investor's fancy this year and rightfully so is the mobile home industry. The common stocks of particular companies in this industry have doubled and tripled reaching heights of 25 and 30 times earnings. Some stocks have retreated from their high peaks of 1968 while others continue to new highs.

Why all the interest in mobile homes? In 1967, mobile homes accounted for 75 per cent of all housing under $12,500 or 25 per cent of all single family houses. Rising labor costs, among other factors, have pushed the price of conventional housing costs up. Skilled labor shortages and bad weather slowing down the work on conventional houses result in higher priced homes. Semi-skilled workers in a factory can assemble a mobile home in about 43 minutes. Wages are about 50 per cents of the cost of conventional housing while labor for mobile housing contributes only about 10 per cent to the cost.

Sales in the first five months of this year ran 37 per cent of last year's record 241,000 units produced and nearly tripled the 102,000 units produced in 1958. Industry expectations are for an excess of 400,000 units produced in 1970.

Young marrieds creating new family formations account for about 50 per cent of the industry's sales. With this in mind and with expectations of peace in Vietnam close, the future of mobile homes looks exceedingly bright. The sales and earnings of the mobile home industry will rise as the men come home and start buying homes.

Another factor increasing the demand for mobile homes is the availability of new, attractive, roomy trailer parks. Near Minneapolis is a 200 acre, 505 unit mobile home park. Included in the park will be a golf course, a community center, a day nursery, and dry cleaning and dairy store. 35 miles north west of Chicago, a mobile home park is being built that includes a 22-acre private lake.

While political pundits ponder Tuesday's election returns, civic leaders and boosters of the West High School Band quietly and determinedly pursue achievement of their goal to raise $40,000 to finance a Rose Bowl trip.

The fund drive, launched some weeks ago, recently has been eclipsed by political publicity as well as money-seeking efforts of such worthwhile projects as the United Appeal.

Both the election and the United Appeal campaign for 1968 are now history and attention once more can be focused on the drive to send these deserving young people to the colorful Pasadena pageant on New Year's Day.

In these troubled times, it is more important than ever that our young men and women receive the public recognition they have earned. The West High School band is one of the greatest. Their appearance at the Rose Bowl will focus national attention, not only on this outstanding musical group, but on the all-American city as well.

If Woody Hayes and his Ohio State gridders make the trip, too, why that will be just dandy. It would be frosting on the cake.

Meanwhile, let's make certain that West High is there. Dick Sensenbrenner, who is heading up the drive, reports that it has just about reached the half-way mark. So now it's full steam ahead.

This is a Greater Columbus effort. Let's all pitch in and do our part. Every contribution helps whether it's a dollar, ten dollars or a thousand dollars. Send yours today to ROSES, Box 2903, Columbus, Ohio 43204.

Legalized Killing

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Legalized barbarianism has lost another battle.

Now it's time for it to lose the war.

Ohio almost had its first execution in more than five years this Friday. Convicted killer Cleo Vernon Keaton was saved from the electric chair by a legal maneuver which permitted the warden to question his sanity and send Keaton to Lima State Hospital for observation.

There has been but one execution since Governor Rhodes took office. By executive action, Rhodes has virtually abolished capital punishment in this state—until he gets out of office.

The time has come — again — for the legislature to abolish it by law.

It is not a new fight. Former Governor Michael V. DiSalle spent much of his four years in office fighting for the abolition of capital punishment.

There is no excuse for legalized killing to continue. The warped mind of a killer doesn't consider it a deterrent. He kills because he must and the penalty makes no difference when he does it.

Ohio's legislature has consistently throttled attempts to outlaw the death penalty or even to let the people vote on it.

It is now time for the lawmakers to let the people speak.

When the legislature reconvenes in January, capital punishment abolition resolutions will be introduced.

This time, the legislators owe it to the people to allow the matter to come to a vote.

The people are ready to end legalized murder.

All they need is the chance.

Dining First Class

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Eating out three meals a day, one finds that one soon falls into a rut . . . the same old restaurants with the same old menus.

The other evening, for a change of pace, I thought I'd dine at a first class Columbus restaurant.

Hey, baby, the whole bag . . . clean folded napkins, clean pressed table cloth, shining silver set just so and glistening glasses.

Immediately, a woman filled the water glass.

Quick upon her heels came a waitress with a giant menu.

Before looking at WHAT, I scanned PRICE. (Real first classers do it the other way around.)

Perfect buy: lobster tails at $3.75. Hadn't had lobster tails in years. Was prepared to part with a whole fin, maybe even $5.50.

I ordered the lobster tails. The waitress solemnly wrote that down. Next I chose one of two given salads. She wrote that down too. Third I chose the type of potato. She wrote again. Next, I chose iced tea. Writes again. Finally, I chose a vegetable.

Haughtily, the waitress informed me she would bring out the vegetable selections and I could choose then.

Felt a little embarrassed there.

My water glass soon went dry. No one came to fill it. In fact, the entire staff seemed to have disappeared.

The beverage came. It was black coffee. I'd ordered iced tea. She had to take it back. Very surly.

Eventually, the lobster tails arrived. There were four small ones. At two bites apiece, I figured it cost about 45 cents a bite.

The vegetable arrived. The waitress chose not to remember my faux pas of ordering early and made me make the choice again. Very insolent.

The water glass was still empty.

Had cheesecake for dessert and asked for the check.

It came, as usual, face down.

Picking it up, I read the total. SEVEN DOLLARS AND SEVENTY-THREE CENTS!

Had only $6. Checkbook was in my room.

Lobster, I discovered, was priced at $5.50. It had been advertised at $3.75.

Not being a genuine first classer, I called the waitress back and quoted the menu price. (A haggler is, naturally, second class.)

She consulted the hostess. The hostess consulted the maitre d'. En masse, they approached and questioned me.

"Did you, sir," the maitre d' started obsequiously, "order from the right side of the menu or the left?"

"The left."

"Sorry, our mistake." Contempt of a proven second classer was inherent in the apology.

Paid and left without incident. Did NOT leave a tip. The water glass was STILL empty.

Forty-five minutes later, I ate a cheeseburger deluxe at a greasy spoon. It cost 35 cents, plus tax.

Dining first class apparently means going hungry.

Who the heck can live on eight bites of lobster tails?

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Poor Substitute

To the Editor:

As you can see from the letterhead, I have left Ohio. Since the State Administration, particularly Governor Rhodes, has broken ground on the Lucasville Prison, my comments at this time would serve no good purpose.

I would like to add, however, that unless a complete housecleaning of the correctional system is undertaken, there will be no hope for affective treatment.

Prison construction is a poor substitute for effective staff.

Backs Band

To The Editor:

I notice that the campaign for the West High Band trip to the Rose Bowl is way short of its goal.

I hope the people of the West Side and all of Columbus won't let these fine boys and girls down. They have worked very hard to earn this opportunity.

Let's all get together and back our great band and Weskets and send them to the Rose Bowl.

Scrape The Loser Off The Bumper

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

It being the morning after the election, a goodly crowd of new members was on hand for the traditional Morning-After meeting of that huge but little-known service organization — Loser's Anonymous.

Standing on the rostrum beneath the club's banner — "The People Have Spoken, the Bums—" was the organization's experienced director, Mr. Sisyphus.

Rapping his gavel to quiet the hubbub of groans and moans, Mr. Sisyphus cleared his throat and launched into his annual inspirational talk entitled, "The Evils of Politics."

"Good morning, fellow losers. Welcome to the club. You have all, I'm sure, waged vigorous, hard-hitting campaigns. And you all, of course, have lost. Remember, as you sit there with your heads in your hands, that we are here to help you.

"Yes, friends, with our help, with your own strength of character and with Divine Guidance, you will be able to" — here, Mr. Sisyphus paused for dramatic effect — "swear off politics forever!"

As usual at this point, there were cries of "Swear off!," "No more speeches!" and other expressions of horror.

"There is no alternative," Mr. Sisyphus said firmly. "Let us take a cold, hard look at the statistics: for every man who struggles through the primaries and the November elections to at last win political office there are, on a national average 12.3 losers. Think of it, 12.3 to 1! Does it make sense to buck odds like that? Year after year?

"True, there are a fortunate few who can take politics or leave them alone. But the first thing we must admit to ourselves is that we can't. For us, the only answer is total abstinence.

"Oh, it won't be easy. Temptation will beckon at every cocktail party when issues are raised. 'Well,' you'll think, 'a little social politicking won't hurt.' Don't yield! For the next thing you know you'll be making speeches from the floor at your local P.T.A. meeting. And the headiness of the applause!

"Carried away, you'll find yourself sneaking down to party headquarters to pore over old precinct lists. You'll be spending your nights with the boys in smoke-filled rooms. And you'll be grabbing the hands of total strangers on the streets.

"Then, inevitably, you'll succumb. Once again, you'll go off on a months-long campaign binge — forsaking your family, squandering your savings on bumper strips and whooping it up at rallies night after night. And once again, 12.3 to 1, you'll lose!"

Mr. Sisyphus paused to let this sink in. "Remember, friends," he said slowly, "politics is not a character weakness. It's a disease. You can be cured. When you feel that urge to shake a hand, to make a speech, call us — night or day.

"With total abstinence, you can be rehabilitated. You can be restored to your family and friends. Yes, fellow losers, by giving up politics you can once again become a useful member of society."

So eloquent was Mr. Sisyphus' traditional appeal that, as usual, every man in the crowd was convinced. As usual, each looked around at the others and said the same thing to himself.

"He's absolutely right," each said, "about these other guys."

Rangers, Indians Rush To Cap Top Grid Campaigns

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Hamilton Township grid skipper Bruce Burnham hopes that 'the worm has turned' and his 7-2 Rangers get the opportunity to pay back winless (0-9) Greenfield McClain "in spades" in H-T's '68 finale tomorrow evening.

"They've beat us up pretty badly physically the last two seasons," Burnham recalls of the Tigers of coach Paul Orr.

VISITING Greenfield included a 35-7 romp over the Rangers among their pluses en route to a fine 8-2 campaign in '67.

But a victory over the Tigers goes much further than soothing the scars of two previous defeats.

A win tomorrow would provide Hamilton with an 8-2 finish and its best grid account since the early sector of the present decade.

"THEY'VE HAD no trouble moving the ball," Burnham warns of Greenfield's full-house T attack which relies on the belly series.

The problem seems to be with the visitor's defensive unit (a pro 4-5 alignment) which has yielded the ungrand total of 331 points in nine outings.

"They were missing four starters two weeks ago but got them back last Friday," the Ranger skipper detailed of the difference between a 62-6 setback to Miami Trace (Oct. 25) and a closer 38-30 loss to City Leaguer Mohawk last weekend.

THAT EIGHT-POINT deficit, incidentally, was the closest Greenfield has come to victory this season — with the exception of a mid-season 26-22 miss vs. Hillsboro.

Tomorrow's foes have had a common opponent — Miami Trace — the Rangers winning their skirmish by a 19-0 count last weekend.

"I believe they'd rather stick with the kind of ground-control game Paul Orr-coached teams have favored in the past," Burnham scouts, "but since they've been behind so much this season they've had a good chance to work on their passing game."

BUSY IN that latter department this season has been Greenfield quarterback Ron Coleman, who's been most responsible for Tiger scoring.

The stingy Ranger defense will get its final opportunity to add to an already impressive list of shutout victims tomorrow evening vs. Greenfield.

SIX OF H-T's seven victories this season have shown nothing but a goose egg on the opposition side of the scoreboard (Franklin Hghts. scored six pts.).

Against Miami Trace Friday, the Rangers compiled a 326 (316 rushing) to 169 (146 rushing) total yardage advantage.

Wes Mirick's H-T defense put on the brakes after halftime—allowing only 35 rushing yards and two first downs. Trace never got inside the Hamilton 20.

OFFENSIVELY Gary Topping rushed for 167 yds. in 27 carries although halfback John Cunningham took 'yards-per-carry-average' honors with 98 in 13 tries for a 7.5 evening.

Burnham was quick to point out two completed Hamilton aerials Friday. "I think that's a season high for us," Bruce quipped of his ground-hugging offense.

The Ranger skipper praised the blocking of guard John Neidigh on offense, passing the back-pats to Lennie Morris, Cunninham and Jim Gorczyca (each had interception) on the defensive side.

FRIDAY'S totals raised the Hamilton seasonal rushing advantage on nine foes to 2590 (6.9 per carry) to 1119 (2.9 per carry) and increased a first-down edge to 153-96.

CANAL WINCHESTER

Eliminated mathematically from the '68 Mid-State title race after Friday's 12-6 setback to Lancaster Fenwick, Mike Locke's Indians now turn their attention to the composition of a 7-3 closing mark (would be best in nine seasons at C-W).

But the Indians' final foe should provide enough of a victory incentive in itself — being deposed loop champion Berne Union.

THE ROCKETS, in fact, were the opponent who prevented the Indians from reaching the seven-victory mark last fall — converting six Winchester fumbles into a 24-0 victory.

Offensively, C-W never got inside B-U's 18-yd. line.

Fate hasn't been as kind this season but the Rockets have retained two prime ingredients from that champion '67 ball club in quarterback David Deeds and halfback Ron Snouffer.

DEEDS probably hasn't been forgotten since he carved out 85 yds. worth of C-W real estate and picked up a pair of TDs in last fall's Berne Union triumph.

Between both of them, Deeds and Snouffer have pretty well accounted for the bulk of what offense the Rockets have been able to squeeze from their I attack this fall.

Prime rushing plays look like fullback veers, off-tackle bursts and quick pitches.

DEFENSIVELY, the Rockets show 5-4 and 5-4 gap-stack alignments.

Deeds, incidentally, is back in good health after missing some of Union's early season games with injury — reason enough to consider the Rockets a more dangerous foe than their losing '68 mark might indicate.

COUNTY
Sports

Hardest to swallow about Friday's one-TD setback to Lancaster Fenwick was the fact the Indians showed a decided offensive margin, 289 (175 rushing) to 189.

GROVEPORT

FOR A COACH whose eleven (finished 2-7) was thumped soundly (38-6) in its finale, Groveport's Bob Starr already shows an unusual impatience for the '69 campaign to roll around.

Starr, who'll find 13 starters returning when practice gets started next season, reports he was "encouraged" by his first Cruiser edition's progress this past season.

"I still feel we've got the second-best offensive team in the league," Bob claims. "Nobody, except London, is more potent with the football than we are."

But heading the returnees is junior quarterback Mark Boyer who finished Friday with a total offensive effort of 1446 yds. for the season (275 yds. in 96 carries, 91-

INDIAN COMPLETION — Canal Winchester halfback Gary Kemmerling (left) prepares to take in pass from quarterback Chris Hanners worth five yards near midfield Friday as Lancaster Fenwick defender moves in for tackle. Fenwick won, 12-6, to extinguish final C-W title hopes.

Time Running Out

Time is running out for the West High Band and more money is needed.

The drive to send West's Band and Weskets marching corps to the Rose Bowl was $20,000 short as the week began.

It would be a crime if the "Zippies" had to pass up this trip for lack of funds. For these kids exemplify the best in American youth.

There's a good opportunity coming up to aid the cause.

Next Tuesday night, a Rose Bowl benefit concert will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Coliseum. On tap is a show of outstanding bands plus special entertainment.

For a $10 contribution, you will get not only a ticket to the concert but a share of stock in the band, co-signed by Governor Rhodes and Mayor Sensenbrenner.

The West High Band deserves your support so that it can represent Columbus in the Tournament of Roses Parade on New Year's Day.

Post-Mortem

"A choice, not an echo."

But they could well have applied to choices some area voters had to make this week.

And this was not due to a lack of qualified candidates, but to a degree of clutterness on the ballot. How can any voter really know everything about the host of candidates appearing on the ballot, from coroner to those seeking judicial office?

The ballot box and not the bullet is the trademark of democracy.

Thanks to such organizations as the League of Women Voters there was some attempt made to confront voters with viewpoints and issues.

But issues and political philosophies of candidates sometimes fell by the wayside in favor of personality cults.

Some solutions must be found before the next general election so that an informed electorate can make informed decisions.

These newspapers intend to explore this situation further in coming weeks.

Facilities Needed

"We cannot in good conscience wait any longer. Facilities to treat alcoholics better are badly needed in Columbus now."

It is in these terms that Dr. Ollie Goodloe, City Health Commissioner, cites the need for a specialized alcoholism treatment center.

For this reason, the Columbus Health Department had included in its capital improvements request $1,100,000 in 1969-70 for planning and construction of the center.

It is believed between 1,250 and 3,100 persons now are being handled in Columbus through the jail and arrest system—a means of handling chronic public intoxication which is being abandoned in many other cities.

We believe Dr. Goodloe's recommendation is a good one to meet a problem often shoved under the carpet.

The proposed facility would serve as a bridge between general hospital acute services and appropriate community resources for handling the chronic aspects.

Dr. Goodloe believes there are too many alcohol-related deaths and too many families suffering for lack of sufficient medical facilities.

We agree.

Tahiti Complex

By JOHN MORGAN

Now that elections are over, the signs no longer cluttering our beloved city and the ceaseless chatter of candidates eliminated from disrupting the glare of the "boob tube," I can rest more quietly.

Somehow I am continually catapulted into dizziness by the comings and goings of this modern age. Call it the Age of Anxiety or the Age of Electric Media, I don't care. All I know is that I'm confused by the whole thing.

Maybe I should have been born in prehistoric times. Like many of my generation I suffer from a "Tahiti complex." I yearn for the uncomplicated, bound-to-the soil life, free from the pressures of this age. And yet a toothache would be all it would take to change my mind. Anyone can stand anxiety; it takes a real man to stand a toothache.

SOMETIMES I THINK we lose perspective. Time becomes the present, a moment we live and die in, oblivious to the recorded history before us. We think too highly of ourselves.

Who ever ascribed to us this importance? Who told us the world falls or stands by our accomplishments?

Egypt flourished for 27 centuries. More than 10,000 years ago man began to settle in the valley of the Nile River. It was a great nation 900 years before Moses led the Israelites out of bondage.

American culture began in 1776. It is still an infant. And like a crying infant we sometimes are too prone to spank it, criticize it and proclaim it will never grow up.

It staggers the imagination.

So wrapped up in this age we forget our finitude. We place ourselves high on the pyramid of the universe, while in reality we are but a speck in the span of history.

But there is a comfort in this, too.

The world will continue until some stupid fool pushes the wrong button. What we do is important, but nothing we do is going to change the character of human life.

Human life will survive, a way of being totally unique in the universe.

We think of the Egyptian heritage simply in terms of the pyramids. But we sit on a four-legged chair, write with a pen on a piece of paper and have doctors —all legacies of a 3,000-year-old Egyptian culture.

This also gives me hope.

For what survives time is the truly personal, what is beyond all the clamor of our age.

When a grandfather takes out insurance for his new grandson, a mother patiently explains life to a young child or a father repeats the ancient admonitions to his son, I am convinced there is hope left.

Let us hope we are not remembered solely for our politics.

What transpires in our daily lives may be the backbone of history.

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG
Saunders, Stiver & Co.
Investment Securities

An industry that has caught the investor's fancy this year and rightfully so is the mobile home industry. The common stocks of particular companies in this industry have doubled and tripled reaching heights of 25 and 30 times earnings. Some stocks have retreated from their high peaks of 1968 while others continue to new highs.

Why all the interest in mobile homes? In 1967, mobile homes accounted for 75 per cent of all housing under $12,500 or 25 per cent of all single family houses. Rising labor costs, among other factors, have pushed the price of conventional housing costs up. Skilled labor shortages and bad weather slowing down the work on conventional houses result in higher priced homes. Semi-skilled workers in a factory can assemble a mobile home in about 43 minutes. Wages are about 50 per cents of the cost of conventional housing while labor for mobile housing contributes only about 10 per cent to the cost.

Sales in the first five months of this year ran 37 per cent of last year's record 241,000 units produced and nearly tripled the 102,000 units produced in 1958. Industry expectations are for an excess of 400,000 units produced in 1970.

Young marrieds creating new family formations account for about 50 per cent of the industry's sales. With this in mind and with expectations of peace in Vietnam close, the future of mobile homes looks exceedingly bright. The sales and earnings of the mobile home industry will rise as the men come home and start buying homes.

Another factor increasing the demand for mobile homes is the availability of new, attractive, roomy trailer parks. Near Minneapolis is a 200 acre, 505 unit mobile home park. Included in the park will be a golf course, a community center, a day nursery, and dry cleaning and dairy store. 35 miles north west of Chicago, a mobile home park is being built that includes a 22-acre private lake.

Falcon 11 Cops Midwest Youth Football Laurels

The Westgate Falcons made their first try in the Midwest Youth Football League a championship one last weekend, running their '68 record to 9-1 with a 28-0 win over the Arlington Bearcats.

QB Chuck Walker piloted the Falcons to victory by completing 9-of-11 aerials for 186 yds. and three TDs (58 yds. to Christopher, 62 and 18 yds. to Fields).

SPIKE HANKS again paced the rushing attack with 114 yds. in 12 carries (including 62-yd. TD scamper) while Martin Fields picked off two passes from Walker for 80 yds.

The Westgate defense strung its ninth scoreless effort in a row, holding Arlington to 95 yds.

Don Roush and Fields were defensive standouts while Jeff Ferrelli intercepted a pass and Fields recovered a fumble to set up W-G's third touchdown.

AFTER THE victory, jubilant Falcon players tossed their coaches — head mentor Bob Whitaker and assistants Larry Hunter, Lloyd Matty and Bill Weeks — into the Westgate Park pond.

of-177 passes for 1171 yds., plus 34 pts.

"We're pleased he's coming back," Starr intoned with obvious understatement.

GROVEPORT'S primary weakness this fall — the defense—Starr hopes to bolster with graduates from a 5-3 reserve unit this season.

"They lost their first three and then won five-in-a-row," Bob details. "And, most important, they only allowed 12 points in those last five games. I hope to get some defensive help from them."

Another Cruiser deficit — size — might be forthcoming from Groveport's 5-3-1 frosh units this fall. "Our freshman team has more overall size than our varsity did this year," Bob beams.

"THAT FRESHMAN squad contained a half-dozen boys over 200 pounds — and they figure to grow a little bit yet."

Toughest to replace, however, will be end Jacklin (36 receptions for 589 yds., nine TDs this fall) although Starr hopes defensive back Mike Featherston might be the answer to his problem.

"He's a real good receiver," Starr says of Featherston, "and would have played some offense this year if Jacklin hadn't have been doing such a great job at end for us."

BOYER (16-of-34 passes for 203 yds.), Jacklin (seven catches for 122 yds.) and Dick Scott (43 rushing yds.) set the offensive pace Friday in the Hilliard loss.

"They only got 50 yards more total offense than us," Starr moaned of Friday's setback.

"But, when you allow an opponent 60 running plays, you don't win many ball games."

THE AREA'S only other grid team — Teays Valley — finished 1-7-1 Friday with a hard-fought 26-8 setback to strong Westfall, eleven.

when you stop to think that the candidates answered the way they thought they should. But by the time the leaf-pressers, industrialists and party chiefs wine and dine them at the Athletic Club, the results will help everyone but the outdoorsmen.

THERE IS a long-standing argument about the duties of a legislator. Is he to mirror the wants and needs of his electors, go by what is constitutionally proper or use his own knowledge?

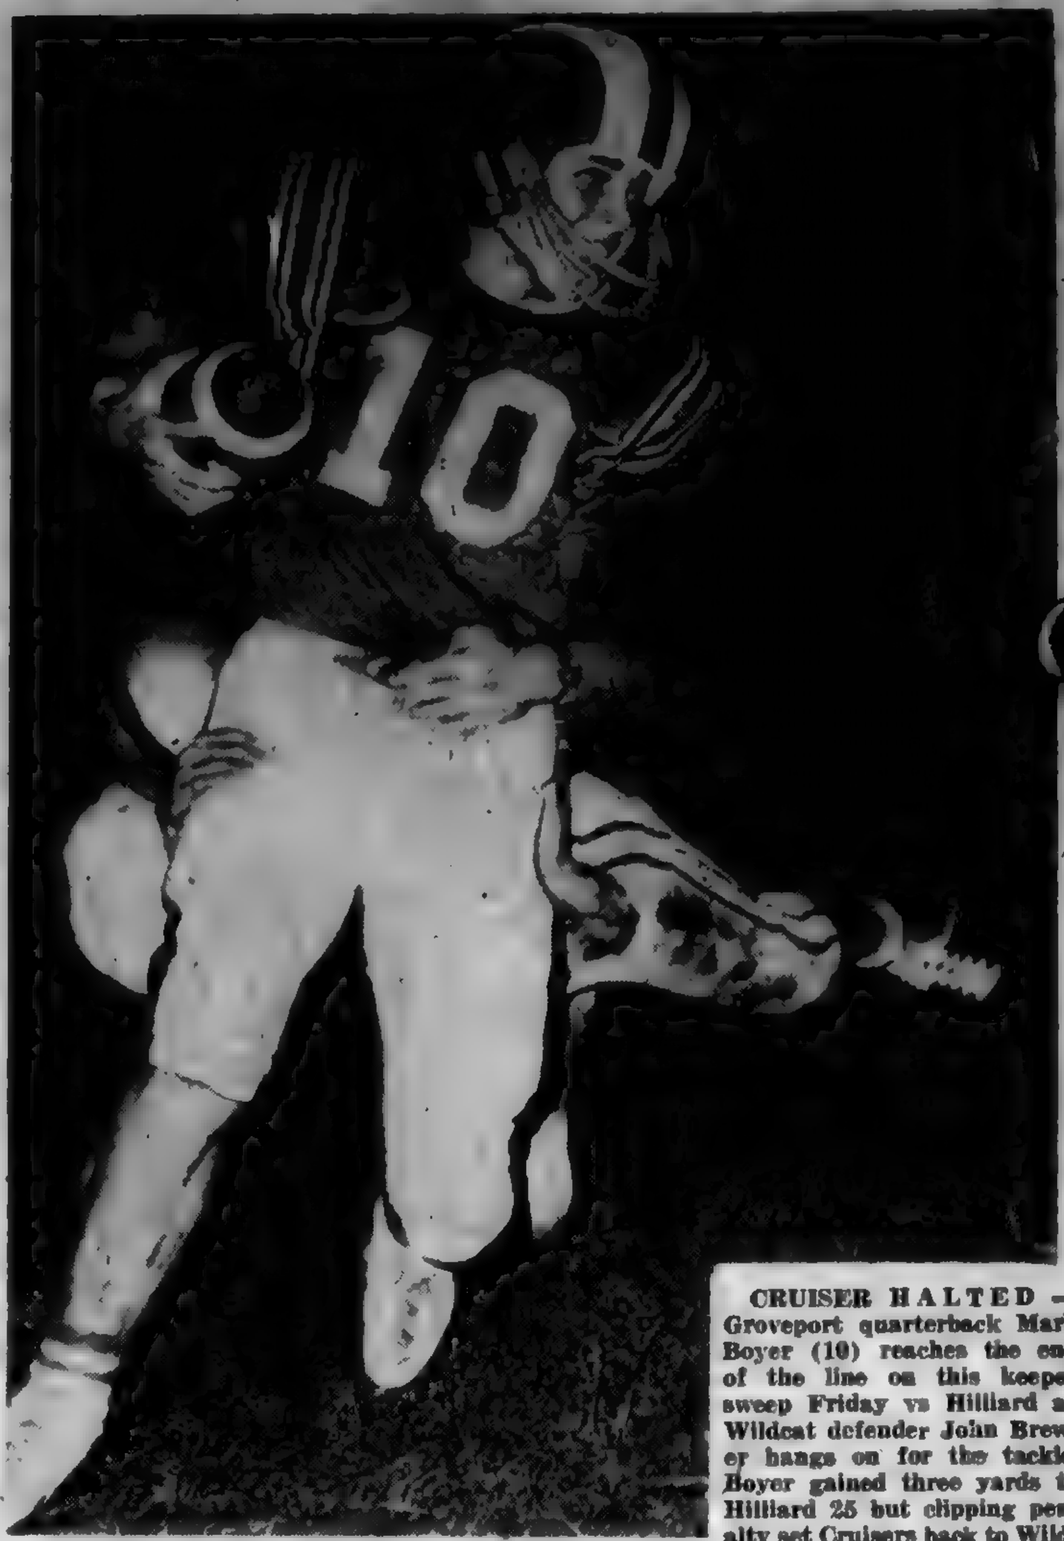
To find the needs of the voter majority, it requires some form of fair questioning system. This, I believe, is the proper way to make laws.

It's too much trouble so the vast majority of legislators depend on lobbyists and party bosses to point the way.

TOO MANY times this leads to improper or watered down laws that fail miserably.

This is what happened last spring when Rep. John McDonald tried to get definite time limits on pollution written into the law.

It was voted down badly and yet, this survey shows that 78 percent of the candidates feel the pollution laws are not strict enough.



CRUISER HALTED — Groveport quarterback Mark Boyer (10) reaches the end of the line on this keeper sweep Friday vs Hilliard as Wildcat defender John Brewer hangs on for the tackle. Boyer gained three yards to Hilliard 25 but clipping penalty set Cruisers back to Wildcat 41.

Groveport Coaches Battle 'Red Head' 5 On Nov. 14

The Groveport Cruisers Athletic Boosters will sponsor a cage meeting between the All-American Red Heads — undisputed world champion women's basketball team — and a team composed of members of the Groveport coaching staff Thursday, Nov. 14 (7 p.m.) at the high school gymnasium.

The Red Heads, who play by regulation basketball rules, showed a composite record of 153 wins, 59 losses in 1967 play — all against men's teams!

Making up the coaches' team will be such court stalwarts as Bob Starr, Jim Butz, Bob and Porter Miller, Bob Carter, Bob Blagg, George Thompson and player-coach Bill Schneider — Cruiser varsity basketball coach.

Richard A. Willison, Booster president, reports ticket prices will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

Heart Fund Pin Tourney To Open Sunday On TV

Kickoff for the 12th annual Heart Fund Bowling Tournament in Franklin County will be a televised bowlathon program Sunday (4-5 p.m.) on Channel 6.

Tournament bowling will start Monday at lanes throughout the country and continue through Sunday, Nov. 17.

BOWLING on-camera will be expert keglers from Central Ohio Heart Association's 47-county area, prominent local citizens, and one former open heart surgery patient—Melody Denney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Denney, 6034 Sedgwick Rd., Worthington.

As in former years, Columbus Savings and Loan Association will enrich the Heart Fund by contributing $1 for each pin downed by the experienced bowlers.

This year, the firm will contribute $5 for pins downed by the other guests, including Melody. In addition, every strike will double the contribution.

THE TOURNAMENT is of special interest to league bowlers since they participate by merely paying the entry fee of $1, and roll their league games as usual.

However, this year, throughout the week, non-league bowlers also can compete in "open bowling," by payment of the $1 entry fee.

Always a popular event, the tournament features two divisions for men and two for women based on league averages. Women's divisions are divided at the 150 average mark; men's at 170. Scores are determined on a pins over average basis.

FIRST AND second place winners in each division (at each house) will be eligible to compete in the grand roll-off Sunday, Dec. 15, at Northern Lights Lanes.

Top four grand roll-off winners will be awarded $100 and an engraved tray.

Of the $1 entry fee, 70 cents goes to the Heart Fund and 30 cents for cash prizes at the respective lanes.

LAST YEAR over 180 houses in the 47 county area participated in the tournament, netting $26,510 for the Heart Fund.

JIM MURRAY

Reluctant Farewell

MEXICO CITY — The party's over, the trumpets stilled.

MURRAY

Down underneath the stadium where once hundreds of typewriters clattered in unison and rushing newsmen pressed tons of urgent copy on overworked Telexes only a desultory janitor mops a floor and a few tired writers, sporting the international buttons they donned so gaily only a weeks ago, wearily check out mundane things like reservations home and taxicabs back to the hotel.

UPSTAIRS, the ghostly track stands silent.

The "shwk, shwk, shwk" of flying spikes is no longer heard.

Gone are the record breakers, a big part of their youth with them.

THEIR FOOTPRINTS will never loom larger on the Tartan track of time. Their marks will be as illusory as they.

The spears no longer hiss through the thin air, the grunts of the weightmen do not follow their wooden platters, or iron spheres in flight.

The splash of the pool, the crackle of a leather ball on the wooden floor, the swish of a basket, the wake of a canoe —a ripple on a canal, a mark on a floor, a flag floating in a puddle of chlorine are all that remain.

IT IS like a battlefield with plumes in the dust, the caissons and the chaos only an echo.

It will be remembered for a somber moment when the premier athletes of a great nation stood in silent scorn of their own flag song.

But it will be remembered also for a shattering of world and Olympic records that were thought only a few short decades ago to be as unbreakable as the atom.

"MEXICO '68" is just another archive today, as past as the pyramids.

It belonged on its final day to young girls on horseback and cavalrymen — the last of their breed — leaping stockades, booted and spurred and be-derbied.

It is a pretty sport as removed from our times as the horse itself.

A TANK race would suit the times more — or a missile race with dummy warheads.

Down in the city, the arm of Obregon rests in its grizzly splendor in the concrete monolith erected to this general, and it no longer draws tourists of strange tongues snapping endless photographs.

At the Zocalo, the politicians and the generals once more go back to their maps, their law, and the raw tempe[illegible] of their people.

THE REFORMA will be empty as the kangaroo track shoes, the flowing robes of Africa, the amarillo-colored Orientals.

The Olympic Games were not without their lighter moments.

As for instance when the gray journalists clustered around the shooting teams of the U.S. (prone and erect) and asked them earnestly if they didn't think guns should be outlawed.

"WHY," snapped one pistoleer, "don't you go ask the javelin team whether spears should be?"

Then, the bronze medalist Swedish shooter had his medal ripped off with the unusual but urgent reason that he was cockeyed drunk when he won it — an achievement which seemed to some of us to have rated a gold.

Shooters drink to steady their nerves, a practice which has the opposite effect on their watchers.

They give more sobriety [illegible] at these things than a New Year's Eve roadblock.

NEXT, THERE were pretty substantial rumors that wrestling matches were fixed, which should come as no great shock to Dick Lane or Bobo Brazil, but which suggests that, any year now, the contestants may start to appear in masks or blonde wigs or monocles.

So far as is kown, they didn't catch any of them bringing ketchup into the ring, or pretending to bite each other to build up their gate.

But it does indicate a further trend towards professionalism in the Games.

SO FAR AS is known, the other events were on the level. There wasn't much book-betting on the hammer throw, although there may have been a little action on the proposition the Harvard crew would need lifeboats.

The black athletes swept everything that could be done with feet. Even the jumping was won by a black horse. Presumably sober. Presumably not on butazoldin.

THE CLOSING ceremony was supposed to be like a show which is opened out of town and comes in with the second act pruned and theending changed and lines taken away from the supporting players.

Avery Brundage, who's always the life of the party, expressed the hope that the closing, pared down to a color bearer and six athletes per country, would not be "disorderly" like Tokyo.

It gives me great pleasure to report he did not get his wish. It was about as orderly as a prison break.

IT STARTED out as pompous as Aida, but the ending was pure Carmen Miranda and Cantinflas. The only one who wasn't dancing was Brundage.

One more Olympics in Mexico and even he would be clicking castenets and pounding his heels.

And now if you'll excuse me, I think I'll go dance on a hat.

Keglers' Korner

ORMA KIRKENDALL and [illegible]OVEPORT MADISON ATHLETIC BOOSTERS CLUB will sponsor a headpin tournament the first four weekends of November at Berwick Lanes on Saturdays between noon and 11 p.m. and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

Averages will be limited to 180 or less for men; 160 and under for women and students.

THERE IS $260 in cash prizes and eight trophies for students available.

Booster Club members will sell tickets or they may be purchased at the door.

Official kickoff for the 65th annual OHIO STATE BOWLING ASSOCIATION TOURNAMENT next March in Mansfield will be held Nov. 9 at Lakeview Recreation Center in Athens.

IT'S THE ninth Officers Jamboree to include a singles tournament, workshop and banquet.

The tournament at Mansfield's Park Lanes is scheduled to run from Mar. 1 through May 18.

ANSWERING a question:

The ARM SWING should be pendulum motion from the shoulder joint. The ball should be pushed straight forward with the first step.

The ball should start at the downward motion of the backswing and be just beyond the hips during the second step.

BY THE end of the third step, the ball should be at the peak of the backswing.

The ball starts its downswing and should reach the point of release as the foot finishes the slide.

After the release of the ball, the arm continues reaching upward and forward for the follow-thru, with the elbow now bending.

IF YOU fail to start the ball with the first step, your feet are then ahead of your arm swing at the foul line. You should start the movement of the ball with the feet.

If you twist your arm during the backswing the ball is behind the hips in the backswing, forcing the bowler to twist the arm on the downswing, hampering the chance of consistency. Concentrate on the arm moving straight back.

If your backswing is too high, the fourth step is completed before the release position is reached. Lower the backswing.

IF THERE is a pause during the backswing, the arm swing will be late at the foul line. Make one continuous movement with the arm.

If you are forcing your arm on the backswing, you may drop the ball. Let the ball come through naturally.

Chex Host Mohawks, Gems In IHL Play

The Columbus Checkers have two home dates this week — tomorrow (Friday) vs. the Dayton Gems and Wednesday vs. the Muskegon Mohawks, defending IHL champions.

'Highlights'

By HARMON

HIGHLIGHTS—by Harmon..

There's one on the West Coast, another in the Midwest, still another in the East, and two in the Southeast. We're speaking, naturally, of outstanding football games on this big November 9th weekend of college football.

One of the biggest spotlights will focus on the Trojan-Bear fracas in the Pacific Coast Conference . . . third-ranked Southern Cal and 12th-ranked California. The winner might just end up with all the rose-colored marbles.

AND IN spite of the national rankings, we're picking California to upset Southern Cal by three points. Oregon State will keep pace with whoever wins, beating UCLA by six points.

The thriller in the Midwest is the Big Eight Conference struggle between top-ranked Kansas and Oklahoma. Though the Sooners are unranked, they'll make the Jayhawks prove they belong at the top of the heap. Kansas will win by 11 points.

And that little muddle at the top of the Southeast Conference will clear a bit after a couple of games this Saturday. Second-ranked Tennessee meets 13th-ranked Auburn (they're both undefeated in the conference). Tenth-ranked Georgia plays Florida, and George has a spotless league record.

WHEN IT'S all over, Tennessee and Georgia, those two bunk-buddies who tied back on the opening day of the season, will be in the lead by themselves. The Volunteers will beat Auburn by eight, and the Bulldogs will whip Florida by 18.

Fourth-ranked Ohio State and 14th-ranked Michigan are heavy favorites to remain in command of the Big Ten Conference race. The Buckeyes are favored over Wisconsin by 30, and the Wolverines should rap Illinois by 23 points.

That big one in the East will be as important to two strong independents as any league race is to a conference team.

EIGHTH-RATED Penn State meets a Miami team that plays red hot and then ice cold. This week the Hurricanes are No. 15.

Penn State, playing as consistent football as Miami plays inconsistent, should win it by two points. But who knows . . . maybe it'll be Miami's red hot day!

In the Southwest, sixth-ranked Texas will beat Baylor by 29 points, and tenth-ranked Arkansas should get by Rice by 21.

ELSEWHERE, fifth-r[illegible] Purdue will gum up[illegible] Gophers of Minnesota by [illegible] seventh-ranked Missouri will top Iowa State by 21. . and Houston, No. nine, is favored over Memphis by five.

Touch Fooball Loop Playoffs Set Sunday

Conference playoffs in the Columbus Touch Football League will be staged Sunday at Southview Field with Scarlet leaders Fields Brothers (8-0) and Craig Realty (6-1-1) meeting at noon and Gray champs Remo's Inn (8-0) and North Heidelberg (7-1) battling at 1:45 p.m.

The two winners collide the following Sunday (Nov. 17) at noon in the CTFL championship game with the losers meeting in a 1:45 p.m. "Playoff Bowl."

TROPHIES and entry fee refunds toward next season's fee add incentive for the post-season play.

The league's third and most highly successful season came to a close Sunday with several tight games and a mild surprise.

Craig Realty's Eddie Parks broke up a scoreless duel with Harley-Davidson by rambling two yds. for the winning TD in a 6-0 victory. John Palmer, ex-Ohio Stater, was the defensive ace for H-D but again the offense stalled and sputtered to cost H-D heavily during the season.

REMO'S INN surged past Moores Painting, 22-14, as Tom Myers tossed three strikes to Doug Otte, Tony Pecko and Don Mollick to remain undefeated.

Moore's Ed Dorsey ran for six and connected to Wayne Miller to keep the Painters in contention until time expired.

The mild surprise of the day was recorded by upstart B&A Paints — losing on the final play of the game (16-8) to once-beaten North Heidelberg. B & A led (8-2, on Jerry Arnold's 11-yd. TD pass to Dan Hunter) until John Pond teamed with brother Tim for a 67 yarder for game-saving heroics.

CENTRAL OHIO Welding recorded its first win of the season as Don Pearsall returned a punt 51 yards to [illegible] Golf, 6-0, with three minutes remaining in the game.

Jacobs and Sons Movers racked winless Creative Printers, 22-14, with Woody King doing all the damage for the Movers by running for one score (44-yd. punt return) and passing for two more (to Jerry Turner and Mike Ross).

Creative's Bob Bates accounted for both the Printers' tallies by scrambling eight yards and tossing to Mike Seymour for six.

IN THE FINAL night game of the season, defending champion Fields Brothers was pressed to defeat Lockbourne's Skyhawks, 14-6. Lou Dudley ran 12 yards on an interception and Tom Pullove scampered six for Fields' other TD.

A Bill Melling-to-Don Beddies 20-yarder kept the Hawks in contention for three periods.

CTFL NOTES

Craig Realty's Gross division winner led the 1968 CTFL in scoring with a 25 pts. per game average.

DEFENDING champion Fields Brothers' tough defensive unit was spectacular with a three pt. per game yield.

Thus far, four new teams have been assured for 1969 with Simmons Bedding, Fortune Valora, Wyandotte East, and Berry's Sporting Goods entering play. Only team in the present 12-team circuit not returning is Jacobs & Son Movers.

Executive board chairman John H. Baker will assume the new title of legal advisor and treasurer for 1969.

THE LEAGUE would like to express gratitude to Lee Yassenoff and John C. Young, departing board officers for a job well done.

Balloting for the MVP, Lineman and Back of the Year awards is in progress and announcements will be made at halftime of the Craig-Fields game Sunday.

All trophies will be presented Nov. 17 at the end of the championship game. Elbert Dubenion and "Bo" Rein will be on hand for the ceremonies.

Boxing Coaches To Meet Tonight At Fairgrounds

Boxing Coaches in the Central Ohio Area are invited to attend a meeting tonight at 6:30 p.m. at the Little Theatre Building (located on the Ohio State Fairgrounds).

AAU rules, regulations, etc., governing AAU sanctioned bouts will be discussed and plans for the forthcoming boxing season will be outlined.

THE AMATEUR Boxing Season gets under way Saturday, Nov. 30, when the first in a series of Golden Gloves tune-up bouts will be held. All bouts will be sanctioned by the AAU.

The 1969 Columbus Golden Gloves Tournament will be held Feb. 7-8 and 21-22.

Youngsters interested in participating in the boxing program are urged to contact the following centers: Beatty, Thompson, Barack, Sunshine, Gahanna Boxing Club or Bill Cummings, Jr.

ALL BOUTS will be held at Cooper Area.

Berwick Tops Kitsmiller In CFFL Feature Tilt

Berwick Party House nipped previously-unbeaten Kitsmiller Motors, 27-20, Sunday in a likely preview of the Columbus Flag Football League's Divisional title game, scheduled for Nov. 17.

Berwick, paced by Clint Allen's 143 rushing yards and three TDs, broke away from a 14-14 deadlock through three periods to ring up an initial '68 setback for the Motormen.

JAKE SPAHR tallied the other Berwick six-pointer but an alert defense was the basic key to victory — picking off five of Ken Ramsey's 25 aerials to chill Kitsmiller drives.

Tom Yinger and Bob McGraw pilfered two Ramsey throws while Joe Dover picked off the fifth.

Ramsey was still splendid in defeat — rushing for 173 yards and scoring all the Kitsmiller points.

FRANKLIN Sports barely stayed in contention in the Western Division by surviving a 20-point final period to slip past Bon-Aire Lounge, 21-20. Franklin's defense picked off [illegible] on Bon-Aire aerials to spoil all scoring chances until the final period while QB Joe Biddle hit on five-of-six passes for 122 yds. (scored from 18, tossed for 17 to Mike Standish) to pace the winners' offense.

KURT POLLOCK scored all three Bon-Aire TDs. Franklin's winning margin actually came on a second-period safety when the Bon-Aire center snapped the ball out of the end zone on a punt attempt.

A 20-point final period broke up a fine defensive battle and provided Bell-Haven with a 36-13 verdict over winless Local 189.

The Plumbers trailed only 16-13 entering the final stanza but two long scoring drives, highlighted by Paul Sells' running (112 yds. for three TDs) put it out of reach.

BIG RED quarterback Gerry Martin hit on 9-of-14 aerials for 166 yds. —including a pair of TD pitches to Nick Cooper.

Local 189 QB Dick Reiner figured in both of the losers' scores — running 30 yards for one tally and passing 15 yds. to Paul Bronsted for the other.

'Fearless' Predictions

The "Fearless One" steers through the final weekend of grid forecasting, in hopes of beefing up his 154 right, 37 wrong account to date.

Last week's total: 20-4. Here's the outlook for week ten:

DUBLIN AT OLENTANGY — Victory here means a .500 plus campaign for Bob Farmer and his Irish. Dublin.

PLEASANT VIEW AT GROVE CITY — Panthers could soothe a winless campaign with upset over South-Western rivals but 'Hounds looking for "long time-no see" ten-game win skein, 8-1 season. G-C.

CIRCLEVILLE AT REYNOLDSBURG — Tigers were bitter pill for Raiders to swallow last year, might not have as many horses this time to spoil 8-2 Reynoldsburg campaign. Reynoldsburg.

ARLINGTON AT LANCASTER— Bears will be pulling out all the stops in quest of unprecedented second-straight Central Ohio grapes of state title honors. UA.

CANAL WINCHESTER AT BERNE UNION — Indians out of Mid-State running now but should have a score to settle with deposed champs. C-W.

GREENFIELD AT HAMILTON TWP. — Fine "Topping" for quite a Ranger season. Tigers no mincemeat for H-T defense but . . . H-T.

MIFFLIN AT HARTLEY — Doesn't look like much of a contest but then, it didn't last year either when 'Punchers were less-explosive. Try . . . Hartley.

DeSALES AT WILMINGTON — Stallions figure to be "down" after CCL victory celebration. But a six-game win string finale would add the "happy ending" tag. DeSales.

When You Buy At Chevington Woods You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of. Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Whatever on earth you're looking for — you'll find it at CHEVINGTON WOODS.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

OSU Participates In Review Of Layman Role In Schools

An Ohio State University dean is helping to coordinate a task force for a national urban coalition.

The task force on which Dean Luvern L. Cunningham of the College of Education is working is studying the new roles of laymen in local school affairs in 12 U.S. cities.

The purpose of the study is to find out what laymen do to influence operating decisions made by school authorities.

The reports will include recommendations on ways of increasing effective citizen participation in education affairs.

Field work on the studies is nearly finished and Cunningham expects to submit reports on each of the cities to the Urban Coalition in November. Assisting him is Raphael Nystrand, assistant professor in the Education School.

Other professors at OSU and the cities they are studying include. Dr. Arliss L. Roaden, associate dean, and Dr. James Andrews, assistant political science professor — Huntsville, Ala. and Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Virgil Blanke and Dr. Roy Larmee, professors of education — Detroit and Rochester, N.Y.

Also assisting in the study are OSU graduate students in the School of Education.

The task force focused particular attention on groups involving people not traditionally associated with local school decision-making powers. Inner-city parent groups formed to secure equal educational opportunities in ghetto schools are an example.

Postponements frequently create problems for ABC sanctioned leagues. Even after a league seemingly has the difficulties ironed out, a new pr[illegible] will arise.

[illegible]ccurs when a league ha[illegible] number of position nights and then adopts a rule which required all postponed matches to be made up before the position night is bowled.

LET'S SAY a league has a position night on an average of about every seven weeks throughout the schedule. It has a rule that postponed matches must be made up before position night.

This gives some teams more time to make-up than others. Two teams in one instance have several weeks to arrange and bowl the make up games while another match has a deadline of only one week.

Since it is often difficult to have a match made up in one week, the questions arises as to what the league will do if the match is not bowled.

THE ANSWER is to get rid of the rule. The postponed matches do not have to be made up before the position night.

If you have a match that has not been bowled and a position night rolls around, simply list the position standings of teams on a percentage basis.

This is arrived at by dividing the total number of games won (or points) by the total games (or points) for which the team has competed.

FOR EXAMPLE, if you have one match at issue, and the league is on the four point system (a point given for each game won plus a point for high total pins each match), it means the two total teams involved have bowled for four points less than the other teams in the league.

If the league has bowled seven weeks, each team would have competed for 28 points, except the two teams who have had a postponement.

These two teams would have competed for only 24 points, and you would divide the total points of these two teams by 24 whereas the other teams in the league would be dividing their total points won by 28.

THIS GIVES a league greater flexibility in handling postponements. While rules are important, you can go too far with restrictive rules that hamper efficient league operation.

Your board of directors needs leeway to exercise its authority and judgment and to handle situations according to circumstances.

Engineers To Hear Talk

The Central Ohio Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers will meet at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 14, at the Swiss Club.

Terrence J. Boyle, chief of the Alcoholism Program, Ohio Department of Health, will discuss "The Problem Drinker in Industry."

Players Schedule Kind Lady

West side based community theater group, Prairie Players, is currently in rehearsal for Hugh Walpole's "Kind Lady."

"Kind Lady" concerns a dignified and aristocratic lady surrounded by a family of clever crooks who try to convince all concerned that the kind lady is hopelessly insane.

Tickets are now on sale for the Nov. 22 and 23 production to be presented at the Norton Junior High School, 215 Norton Rd.

For tickets phone business manager, Judy Roberts, at 279-9869.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Heart Group Dates 2 Tours

Two major events are being announced for Saturday, Nov. 9, by the Central Ohio Heart Association.

The annual tour of research on Ohio State University campus will be held in the morning.

In the afternoon, the Association will hold open house for its members to see its new offices at 535 E. Broad St.

The research tour will begin with a session at 9:30 a.m. in the Dentistry Building. Speaker will be Dr. John S. Vasko, associate professor of surgery at Ohio State. His subject: "The Heart Transplant — What It Solves and What It Doesn't Solve."

In addition to Dr. Vasko, these physicians will assist with the visit to laboratories: Dr. Robert C. Little, Dr. Richard F. Leighton and Mr. Samuel A. Marable.

Invitations to the tour have been mailed to Association members throughout its 47-county area and the general public is welcome to attend.

Organizational News—

part of the meeting will be Mrs. Carl Berke, who will give the invocation, Mrs. Gene Jordon, leading the Pledge of Allegiance, Mrs. Bea Thurell as lexicologist, Mrs. Frank Shepherd and Mrs. Otto Bohlander as topicmistress and topic critic, respectively.

The general evaluator, Mary Jo Cusack, will be assisted by four critics: Mrs. Jane Chester, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. James Schmidt and Mrs. Ruth Dillon.

DAR

National security will be discussed at the National Defense Tea, a 1 p.m. meeting of the Ann Simpson Davis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Nov. 11 at the home of Amanda A. Thomas.

The speaker will be Mrs. Gordon W. Knight, her topic is "History, Strategy and Tactics of Communism."

DELTA THETA CHI

The regular business meeting of Ohio Alpha Chapter, Delta Theta Chi Sorority, will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA, 65 S. Fourth St.

Mrs. James Neace will present the program and will give a review of "Sutter's Gold" by Blaise Cendrars.

SISTERHOOD

On Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 12:30 p.m., there will be a Joint Sisterhood Tea, including all the sisterhoods of the Columbus area, at Temple Israel, 5419 E. Broad St.

NEW NEIGHBORS

The New Neighbors League Club of Columbus will meet for its monthly luncheon at the Jai Lai Tuesday, Nov. 12.

There will be an arts and crafts display under the direction of Mrs. Robert House during the social hour starting at 11 a.m. Luncheon will be served at noon.

Speaking this month on arts and crafts will be Mrs. David Nay.

Mrs. James Ward will be honored as "New Neighbor of the Month."

SECRETARIES

Columbus Chapter of The National Secretaries Association (International) will hold its 23rd annual Boss Night dinner Nov. 14 at the Christopher Inn. Social Hour will begin at 6:45 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Highlight of the evening will be the presentation of Boss-of-the Year. The recipient of this award is selected from letters submitted by secretaries and screened by the Boss-of-the-Year Committee.

Guest speaker will be Gene Michelon, director of Public Affairs and Education for Republic Steel Corporation, Cleveland.

Chet Long, radio and TV personality, will serve as master of ceremonies. Invocation and benediction will be given by Rev. Richard G. Cheney, director, Ohio United Methodist Council on Higher Education.

JUBILEE TOASTMISTRESS

Barbara Manson, Mrs. L. B. Tichnorand and Mrs. P. S. Devoe are the speakers for Jubilee's meeting Nov. 11. The scheduled time is 7:30 p.m. at Industrial Nucleonics.

A round table discussion will be held on "It's How You Wear It."

The Jubilee Toastmistress Club will be co-hostess with Scioto Club Dec. 7 at the Council 7 meeting.

The meeting place is at the Jai Lai Restaurant.

CROSS TOWN

There's a new Zayre Department Store coming to serve you folks in Northwest Columbus and Upper Arlington. It'll open this month in a new shopping plaza at Henderson and Reed Roads in Arlington, according to Zayre senior vice president Milton Levy. It's the third Zayre store in Columbus — the others are at West Broad and Old Village Road in Lincoln Village and on East Main in Whitehall.

• • •

A big welcome to our town to Leonard M. Rose, new vice president for research and engineering of North American Rockwell Corporation's Columbus Division. Mr. Rose comes here from a job as chief engineer at NAR's Los Angeles Division. His credentials are impressive — he's worked on the F-100A, F-100B, F-107A, X-15, F-108 and XB-70. His appointment was announced by division president Richard F. Walker.

Columbus attorney James R. Burchfield, chairman of the board of Sertoma International, is back from Valley Forge, Pa.'s Freedoms Foundation where he took part in a planning session for the "Clean Up America" program, aimed at cleaning up the nation "physically, morally and spiritually."

Calvin A. Smith is the new regional product manager for Keyes Fibre Company, headquartered in Columbus. They handle meat, produce and poultry pre-packaging material.

And a promotion at Evans and Schwartz, Inc., longtime Columbus shoe retailers. Charles F. Jones of Sabre Drive in Reynoldsburg has been promoted to merchandise manager. He'll also continue to serve as manager of Evans and Schwartz' Graceland store.

That's all for election week. See you next week, Cross Town.

Marilyn Long Joins Staff Builders Firm

Mrs. Marilyn Long, 941 S. Cassingham in Bexley, is a new addition to the staff of Staff Builders, a temporary personnel service at 50 W. Broad St.

Mrs. Long will assist owner Chad Countiss in providing local firms with competent temporary help.

Mrs. Long a psychology major at Western Reserve University while in college, says "'careful selection of the right girl for the right job saves the employer valuable time and makes the girl a more satisfied worker."

Marilyn is not new in the personnel field. She previously worked with a local full-time employment service. She's also an expert at finding jobs around the house for her two children.

She emphasized that "many housewives who were active before marriage now find it exciting to work on temporary assignments."

TO CONDUCT

George Hardesty will conduct the Ohio State University Symphony Orchestra in its annual autumn quarter concert at Mershon Auditorium at 8 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10. Admission is free and the public is invited.

UA Campaign Reaches 98 Per Cent Of Goal

United Appeal marked the scheduled end of the 1968 campaign Friday, Nov. 1, with $5,137,115 or 97.78 per cent of the campaign's goal.

A dinner was held Friday at the Sheraton-Columbus with J. William Henderson, Jr., general campaign chairman, announcing he was keeping the campaign open "until we get over the top."

Henderson called on all Franklin County residents who had not contributed to the drive to support the 69 agencies and send contributions to United Appeal, 137 E. State St., or call the UA office at 228-5696 to have contributions picked up.

William E. Knepper, UA president, praised Henderson's efforts and those of the 15,000 campaign volunteers, pointing out that the total amount of $5,137,115 was the largest amount of money ever raised in any federated campaign in this community.

Last year's drive raised $5,037,000.

Airports Are Topic

The possibility of locating regional airports in Ohio was discussed last week between state and federal officials and major airline representatives in Washington, D. C.

State Development Director F. P. Neuenschwander and aviation chief Norm Crabtree met at the request of Gov. James Rhodes with representatives of the Federal Aviation Administration, Civil Aeronautics Board and the Air Transport Association.

The meeting investigated possibilities of constructing regional airports to augment Ohio's county airport construction program.

The county airport program, launched in 1965 after voter approval of a capital improvements bond issue, has been responsible for the completion of lighted, hard-surfaced runways in 48 counties which previously had no airport or had inadequate facilities.

Sixteen more counties have airports now under construction as part of this program.

LEVY BACK ON BALLOT

C-W Board Ready To 'Talk Turkey'

Canal Winchester School Board burned the midnight oil two nights this week as the members juggled figures with Supt. Carl Miller.

But juggle as they did, they kept coming up with the same answer — they've got trouble.

UNLESS THEIR boss — the public — has a change of heart and divvies up, ends won't meet next year and the board can't support the children of the district in the manner they—and their parents and the State Department expect.

Monday night the board [illegible] the simple step — that [illegible]reeing to resubmit the [illegible]ill operating levy on Dec. 10 to the voters who killed it last week.

The math behind the action was simple.

ANTICIPATED income for 1969 is $503,000 (about 55 per cent from local taxes with the State Foundation the other principal source of funds) and the district will probably end up the current year with a balance around $10,000.

It required $538,000 to run the school during 1968.

If the board could operate next year at the same standard for the same price, it would come out in the red to the tune of $25,000.

Ho[illegible] it can't.

CO[illegible]TED by contract to salary increments of $200 to its certificated staff of 46, this obligation alone demands an additional $10,000 and other contractural commitments incumbers a total of $21,000 more than the last year's expenditures.

Thus the deficit is in the neighborhood of $45,000.

The proposed 6.6 levy on a $13,000,000 duplicate will produce $75,000 which is conceded as more than enough.

HOWEVER, THE Canal Winchester Board, as is traditional among boards, attempts to project its needs five years in advance, eliminating the necessity of coming back to the voters year after year with an outstretched palm. (The last increase in operating levy was voted on in 1963. The $10,000 surplus left after five years of operation indicates the accuracy of such projections).

Viewing the margin by which the levy failed Nov. 5, the board and administration face the very real possibility it can go down again.

The first answer to this prospect is to combat it with a campaign designed to bring home the facts to those in whose hands the fate of the levy lies — the people.

EVEN THE PERSONS in the audience Tuesday night who stated they are irrevocably opposed to additional real estate taxes admitted that they were not too well-infomed when it came time to vote in the general election.

As it is recognized that people stay away from school board meetings as if there were a quarantine on the door, the board knows it must take its message to the public.

This will be done with written material, public meetings and word-of-mouth, from street corners to private homes.

But what kept the board's pencils busy Tuesday night was the effort to decide how to keep th[illegible]oors open if the Dec. 10 [illegible] ditto the one received [illegible]week.

DETE[illegible]NED that coercion is not the answer and that the task ahead lies with in finding an escape route that will not entirely disrupt the program, the board refused to entertain any idea of curtailing busing.

Neither will members consider a cutback in staff that would result in classes so large (especially in the elementary grades), teachers would be forced to baby sit rather than instruct.

Led by Miller, the board went painstakingly through last year's budget on a whittling expedition.

ITEM BY item, suggestions were made for cuts.

For example last year, student field trips added $1,000 to ordinary transportation costs.

This type of educational activity can be curtailed complete.

FOLLOWING are a few of the specific areas studied and cutbacks that are being eyed. (The first figure represents the 1968 appropriation, the second the suggested 1969 appropriation and the third, the net savings.

- Substitute teachers: $3,000-$1,000-$2,000.
- Summer school: $2,300-0-$2,300.
- Office supplies: $900-$500-$400.
- Text books: $6,000-$500-$5,500.
- Library books: $3,500-$500-$3,000.
- Professional meetings: $700-0-$700.
- Janitorial supplies: $4,500-$2,000-$2,500.
- Physical education supplies: $800-$100-$700.
- Educational supplies: $3,200-$1,000-$2,200.
- Home economics equipment: $400-$300-$100.
- Insurance: $3,800-$2,700-$1,100.

These and a dozen or more other cuts still don't add up to the $45,000 so other areas are also up fo consideration.

FOR EXAMPLE elimination of art at all levels, music in the elementary grades and one of the four second grade sections can save about $6,800. (With teachers under contract, no staff reductions can cut costs until September, with the result that such cuts are calculated on a three months' basis or one third of salary).

Another possibility is curtailment of inter-school basketball and football with a savings of $1600 (one third of the fee the nine coaches are paid over and above their regular salary scale).

YET ANOTHER area is the data processing service Canal receives from the county for which it pays $1 per student.

Cutbacks reviewed involving the curriculum included eliminating vocational agriculture. Skipping a guidance counselor and non-replacement of a retiring janitor, with a new schedule involving sweeping rooms once every other day are also under discussion.

Among those present was Howard Gerber, who expressed the view that the board wouldn't be in such a fix if it had foregone the fencing he had unsuccessfully protested earlier.

HE AND apparently others misunderstood that capital improvements such as fencing are paid for with bond money and not operating levy.

Although not exactly a "convert" yet, Gerber indicated he was convinced of the need to the degree he might contribute to a fund to promote the levy, adding, "that's not saying I'll vote for it."

Mrs. Paul Ricart pointed out the need for voter education by recalling the history of getting a local okay for Eastland Vocational School.

"ONCE THE PUBLIC understood it wasn't a 'drop-out' school and really saw the need, they supported it," she said.

Board and audience alike recognized the fact that many C-W residents have been caught by inflation during retirement — and a retirement that is not a "Bexley-type" retirement spent clipping coupons.

One man present stated firmly, "As far as I'm concerned, nothing will go through till it is put on an income basis and not on what I own."

IN THE MEANTIME, the board has no alternative under existing law but to ask the property holder for help.

Democratic Club To Meet Tonight

The Southeast Women's Democratic Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Huntington National Bank Building, Canal Winchester.

Nominations for offices will be held and refreshments served.

IT'S A 13-MILL QUESTION

Can Bus Capitulation Win Hamilton Votes?

"You gave them what they wanted and they went home."

That was the post-midnight comment of John Boyle of the Hamilton Local School District faculty as he expressed the judgment that the school board, administrators and steering committee had gained no converts when they met Monday evening.

THE BOARD had capitulated to the howls of protest to the board's curtailment of busing as evidenced by the appearance of an angry crowd of about 900 when the board met in regular session.

The curtailment, effective Monday and involving busing only children in grades one through six living at least two miles from school, was adopted the day after election at which the Hamilton operating levy of 13 mills was beaten down two to one.

By 10:30 p.m., with taxpayers' tempers flaring, not only against school personnel but each other (one speaker screaming at another to "shut up") The Rev. Charles Titko of the steering committee asked the board that bus service be restored, effective in the morning (Tuesday).

WITH MRS. Frances Shipley making a motion to adopt Titko's recommendation, the bus service was voted back in by a board united on at least this issue.

However, a sister proposal of Titko's that the board seek 10.5 mills rather than 13 at the special election scheduled Dec. 10 (with another 2.5 for building repairs run as a separate issue) went over like a lead balloon with both the board and the taxpayers.

The board took the stand that nothing less than 13 mills would solve its problems, and the audience reaction was that 2.5 mills was only token relief.

THE MEETING was opened with a lengthy prayer by Titko—asking for peace in the community.

The mood of the audience was reflected immediately in the comment, "Well, that's one way to speak your piece without interruption."

Following the invocation (an innovation at Hamilton Board meetings) the Rev. John Sorenson, also of the steering committee, presented a relatively lucid study of costs in the district during the past three years and projected into 1969. The study indicated that cost increases have generally not been above figures predictable in an inflationary economy.

THE POSSIBLE exceptions were the salaries and related expenses (retirement and so forth) of both certificated and non-certificated personnel which range around 40 per cent, but also reflect more personnel to serve a growing school population.

Sorenson brought out that during the past two years a surplus of $237,000 has been depleted which represented a spending of 5.4 mills over actual income.

With the foundation of the board's position laid, President Bill Lares opened the meeting to the floor.

ALL DOUBT of the audience's antagonism toward the levy was removed with the applause which greeted the challenge of the board's presentation of the facts concerning federal monies made by Malcom Coogan.

Before the evening was over, an open attack had been made on many phases of school operation, the board and the teachers with resignations asked of all board members except Tim Gibbs and disciplinary action sought for officers of the Hamilton Local Teachers Association. (See related story on this page for details of HLTA action).

"GIVE US a new board and we'll give you your levy," cried one citizen.

The heart of the board's defenses (each spoke in answer) was that in the past people of the township have stayed away from board meetings in droves and that, although the board has attempted to do a good job, it might have been possible to do even better with the cooperation of the parents and taxpayers.

Through the welter of accusations and counter-accusations certain facts became relatively clear.

- •Teachers and bus drivers are under contract and it appears they must be paid whether or not school is in session or buses rolling.
- •Dependents of Lockbourne personnel generate more funds per child than those of local taxpayers.
- •The special election will cost about $1,200.
- •Teacher salaries, at $5,700 minimum for a person holding a bachelor's degree with no experience, are the highest in the county system, but are exceeded by Columbus, Upper Arlington and several other city districts.
- •A four per cent increase in salaries costing three mills is included in the 1969 budget based on a 13-mill increase.
- •Contingent upon full restoration of federal funds, schools could remain open through May with an additional $85,000.
- •Without additional levy, the new middle school cannot open in September.
- •The last audit covering the period Dec. 1, 1964 through Aug. 15, 1967 gave the district a clean bill of health.

IN THE WEE hours of the morning, with most of the audience gone—"Give it back to the Indians," one man muttered as he left; "to H— with it."—the board turned to its relatively light agenda.

Considerable time was spent determining whether the moratorium on building use after 5 p.m. except for contracted athletic events should be continued.

After wavering, which led one taxpayer to accuse the board of "wishy-washiness," it was decided the buildings shall be open only to those willing to reimburse the board for its full costs.

THE BOARD also voted to continue its new policy of non-payment for expendable supplies, with parents now shouldering the cost of workbooks.

In granting permission to several faculty members to attend professional meetings, it came to light that the reso

Public Hits HLTA Arm Bands; Board Nixes Professional Day

The wearing of black arm bands to school by members of the Hamilton Local Teachers' Association following defeat of the district's levy did not go over too well with parents who claimed it confused younger students.

According to the parents many children did not get the message (apparently that Education was dead in the township) but they were disturbed by the symbolism.

IN SPITE of the explanation by Richard Frye, HLTA president, that it was "just an idea, just a token gesture," the parents were highly vocal in protest of the action when they descended in an angry horde on the School Board Monday night.

"Political blackmail" was one accusation heard frequently and the other was that the board was allowing itself "to be run" by the teachers.

The board's sturdy denial that they are unduly responsive to demands of the teachers was strengthened at the end of the meeting.

ACTING UPON the recommendation of Supt. John Savel, members voted three to two against granting approval for a "professional study" day tentatively slated for today.

(With the last reporter leaving at 1:40 a.m., 20 minutes before the request was finally acted upon, Savel stated that he was instructed to withhold from the press the names of the dissenting voters).

At press time, it was not known whether HLTA had gone along with the board's objection to the tentative plans to take a day off to determine how the membership could best support the levy that will be submitted to the public Dec. 10.

SAVEL, in his recommendation to the board, stated he "professionally sympathized with the proposal."

However, he explained he could not support it because (1) it fell on a day scheduled for school attendance, (2) the board and administration had already suffered embarrassment through premature public announcement of the proposal, (3) with friction already on foot in the district, the action was ill-timed and (4) he believed the same avowed purposes could be pursued on a weekend.

(IN FAIRNESS to the HLTA membership, it should be noted that it was understood the professional day would be taken now instead of the one this spring already scheduled to allow the faculty to attend the annual meeting of the Franklin County Teachers Association.

Both the board and Savel expressed willingness to dismiss school two hours early to provide time for a professional study meeting.

Two Specials Eyed By Madison Board

Two—not one—special elections face voters of the Madison Local School District before the end of January.

Meeting Monday night, board members took the expected course of action and moved to resubmit the 8.5 operating levy (turned down at the election) at a special election Dec. 10.

HOWEVER, they took a second step most voters did not realize was just around the corner.

With formal notice received that the district is eligible for state assistance in a $3,899,986 building program, the board will meet in special session Monday, Nov. 25, to initiate the action that can make the district eligible for the grant.

This involves the district's bonding itself to capacity and further obligating itself to a one-half mill levy for 23 years, with the grant considered paid at the end of that period.

ALTHOUGH IT had earlier been anticipated the program would cost local voters only about one mill, a rising tax duplicate has increased the district's bonding capacity to the point that the total millage is estimated at 1.5 mills.

However, it is generally recognized that these dollars would be an unusually valid investment, with each local dollar generating three free ones from the state.

In the past, none of the handful of districts which have shown sufficient need to be offered such a handout have failed to raise the "matching funds."

THE BOARD has indicated that the few strings attached to the windfall are well-worth the prize.

The chief of the "strings" is the state's retaining the right to say how the money will be spent.

However, as its recommendations that the grant be utilized to convert the junior high to a senior high, to construct two new elementaries and to add kitchens and multi-purposes rooms to Madison, Dunloe and Asbury Elementaries dovetail with board thinking board reluctance to assume the role of a "boss" on the program has apparently melted away.

THE NOV. 25 meeting will be held in the Groveport-Madison cafeteria to accommodate those who may want more information on the proposed bonding—and on the 8.5 levy.

Although the issue failed a week ago by only one per cent of the 3,749 votes cast, and considerable hope is held for its passage in December, the board recognizes the possibility of another failure.

With this in mind, the two alternatives will be presented for study at the meeting a week from Monday.

ONE PATH that can be followed is drafting drastic cutbacks in the program; the other leads to continuing the present program until "the well runs dry."

It is generally understood that at least the district will not be haunted by the spectre of the double sessions endured three years ago.

Those sessions were necessitated by lack of classroom space—a problem Madison has licked for at least the coming year.

PHIL WILLIAMS, superintendent, explained why both the levy and the bond issue cannot be voted on together.

To obtain the operating levy which is critically needed during 1969, it must be voted upon in 1968.

Similarly, there is not time to follow the legal procedures to get the 1.5 bond issue on the ballot in the current year.

Fortunately, this issue is not so pressing, even though the state demands an answer in the next 90 days, the actual money won't be collected—if needed—until 1970.

Dr. Silberstein Named Heart Committee Head

Jack Silberstein, M.D., 350 E. Broad St., has been named chairman of the Professional Education Committee of the Ohio State Heart Association, according to committee appointments being announced by Sanford R. Courter, M.D., Cincinnati, president of the state organization.

CROSS TOWN

Elections are out of the way (whew!) and we're back to semi-normalcy.

There's a new Zayre Department Store coming to serve you folks in Northwest Columbus and Upper Arlington. It'll open this month in a new shopping plaza at Henderson and Reed Roads in Arlington, according to Zayre senior vice president Milton Levy. It's the third Zayre store in Columbus — the others are at West Broad and Old Village Road in Lincoln Village and on East Main in Whitehall.

* * *

A big welcome to our town to Leonard M. Rose, new vice president for research and engineering of North American Rockwell Corporation's Columbus Division. Mr. Rose comes here from a job as chief engineer at NAR's Los Angeles Division. His credentials are impressive — he's worked on the F-100A, F-100B, F-107A, X-15, F-108 and XB-70. His appointment was announced by division president Richard F. Walker.

Columbus attorney James R. Burchfield, chairman of the board of Sertoma International, is back from Valley Forge, Pa.'s Freedoms Foundation where he took part in a planning session for the "Clean Up America" program, aimed at cleaning up the nation "physically, morally and spiritually."

Calvin A. Smith is the new regional product manager for Keyes Fibre Company, headquartered in Columbus. They handle meat, produce and poultry pre-packaging material.

And a promotion at Evans and Schwartz, Inc., longtime Columbus shoe retailers. Charles F. Jones of Sabre Drive in Reynoldsburg has been promoted to merchandise manager. He'll also continue to serve as manager of Evans and Schwartz' Graceland store.

That's all for election week. See you next week, Cross Town.

Marilyn Long Joins Staff Builders Firm

Mrs. Marilyn Long, 941 S. Cassingham in Bexley, is a new addition to the staff of Staff Builders, a temporary personnel service at 50 W. Broad St.

Mrs. Long will assist owner Chad Countiss in providing local firms with competent temporary help.

Mrs. Long a psychology major at Western Reserve University while in college, says "'careful selection of the right girl for the right job saves the employer valuable time and makes the girl a more satisfied worker."

Marilyn is not new in the personnel field. She previously worked with a local full-time employment service. She's also an expert at finding jobs around the house for her two children.

She emphasized that "many housewives who were active before marriage now find it exciting to work on temporary assignments."

TO CONDUCT

George Hardesty will conduct the Ohio State University Symphony Orchestra in its annual autumn quarter concert at Mershon Auditorium at 8 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10. Admission is free and the public is invited.

UA Campaign Reaches 98 Per Cent Of Goal

United Appeal marked the scheduled end of the 1968 campaign Friday, Nov. 1, with $5,137,115 or 97.78 per cent of the campaign's goal.

A dinner was held Friday at the Sheraton-Columbus with J. William Henderson, Jr., general campaign chairman, announcing he was keeping the campaign open "until we get over the top."

Henderson called on all Franklin County residents who had not contributed to the drive to support the 69 agencies and send contributions to United Appeal, 137 E. State St., or call the UA office at 228-5696 to have contributions picked up.

William E. Knepper, UA president, praised Henderson's efforts and those of the 15,000 campaign volunteers, pointing out that the total amount of $5,137,115 was the largest amount of money ever raised in any federated campaign in this community.

Last year's drive raised $5,037,000.

Airports Are Topic

The possibility of locating regional airports in Ohio was discussed last week between state and federal officials and major airline representatives in Washington, D. C.

State Development Director F. P. Neuenschwander and aviation chief Norm Crabtree met at the request of Gov. James Rhodes with representatives of the Federal Aviation Administration, Civil Aeronautics Board and the Air Transport Association.

The meeting investigated possibilities of constructing regional airports to augment Ohio's county airport construction program.

The county airport program, launched in 1965 after voter approval of a capital improvements bond issue, has been responsible for the completion of lighted, hard-surfaced runways in 48 counties which previously had no airport or had inadequate facilities.

Sixteen more counties have airports now under construction as part of this program.

LEVY BACK ON BALLOT

C-W Board Ready To 'Talk Turkey'.

Canal Winchester School Board burned the midnight oil two nights this week as the members juggled figures with Supt. Carl Miller.

But juggle as they did, they kept coming up with the same answer — they've got trouble.

UNLESS THEIR boss — the public — has a change of heart and divvies up, ends won't meet next year and the board can't support the children of the district in the manner they—and their parents and the State Department expect.

Monday night the board [illegible] the simple step — that [illegible]reeing to resubmit the [illegible]ill operating levy on Dec. 10 to the voters who killed it last week.

The math behind the action was simple.

ANTICIPATED income for 1969 is $503,000 (about 55 per cent from local taxes with the State Foundation the other principal source of funds) and the district will probably end up the current year with a balance around $10,000.

It required $538,000 to run the school during 1968.

If the board could operate next year at the same standard for the same price, it would come out in the red to the tune of $25,000.

Ho[illegible] it can't.

CO[illegible]TED by contract to salary increments of $200 to its certificated staff of 46, this obligation alone demands an additional $10,000 and other contractural commitments incumbers a total of $21,000 more than the last year's expenditures.

Thus the deficit is in the neighborhood of $45,000.

The proposed 6.6 levy on a $13,000,000 duplicate will produce $75,000 which is conceded as more than enough.

HOWEVER, THE Canal Winchester Board, as is traditional among boards, attempts to project its needs five years in advance, eliminating the necessity of coming back to the voters year after year with an outstretched palm. (The last increase in operating levy was voted on in 1963. The $10,000 surplus left after five years of operation indicates the accuracy of such projections).

Viewing the margin by which the levy failed Nov. 5, the board and administration face the very real possibility it can go down again.

The first answer to this prospect is to combat it with a campaign designed to bring home the facts to those in whose hands the fate of the levy lies — the people.

EVEN THE PERSONS in the audience Tuesday night who stated they are irrevocably opposed to additional real estate taxes admitted that they were not too well-infomed when it came time to vote in the general election.

As it is recognized that people stay away from school board meetings as if there were a quarantine on the door, the board knows it must take its message to the public.

This will be done with written material, public meetings and word-of-mouth, from street corners to private homes.

But what kept the board's pencils busy Tuesday night was the effort to decide how to keep the doors open if the Dec. 10 answer dittos the one received last week.

DETERMINED that coercion is not the answer and that the task ahead lies within finding an escape route that will not entirely disrupt the program, the board refused to entertain any idea of curtailing busing.

Neither will members consider a cutback in staff that would result in classes so large (especially in the elementary grades), teachers would be forced to baby sit rather than instruct.

Led by Miller, the board went painstakingly through last year's budget on a whittling expedition.

ITEM BY item, suggestions were made for cuts.

For example last year, student field trips added $1,000 to ordinary transportation costs.

This type of educational activity can be curtailed complete.

FOLLOWING are a few of the specific areas studied and cutbacks that are being eyed. (The first figure represents the 1968 appropriation, the second the suggested 1969 appropriation and the third, the net savings.

- Substitute teachers: $3,000-$1,000-$2,000.
- Summer school: $2,300-0-$2,300.
- Office supplies: $900 - [illegible].
- Text books: $6,000-$500-$5,500.
- Library books: $3,500 - $500-$3,000.
- Professional meetings: $700-0-$700.
- Janitorial supplies: $4,500-$2,000-$2,500.
- Physical education supplies: $800-$100-$700.
- Educational supplies: $3,200-$1,000-$2,200.
- Home economics equipment: $400-$300-$100.
- Insurance: $3,800-$2,700-$1,100.

These and a dozen or more other cuts still don't add up to the $45,000 so other areas are also up fo consideration.

FOR EXAMPLE elimination of art at all levels, music in the elementary grades and one of the four second grade sections can save about $6,800. (With teachers under contract, no staff reductions can cut costs until September, with the result that such cuts are calculated on a three months' basis or one third of salary).

Another possibility is curtailment of inter-school basketball and football with a savings of $1600 (one third of the fee the nine coaches are paid over and above their regular salary scale).

YET ANOTHER area is the data processing service Canal receives from the county for which it pays $1 per student.

Cutbacks reviewed involving the curriculum included eliminating vocational agriculture. Skipping a guidance counselor and non-replacement of a retiring janitor, with a new schedule involving sweeping rooms once every other day are also under discussion.

Among those present was Howard Gerber, who expressed the view that the board wouldn't be in such a fix if it had foregone the fencing he had unsuccessfully protested earlier.

HE AND apparently others misunderstood that capital improvements such as fencing are paid for with bond money and not operating levy.

Although not exactly a "convert" yet, Gerber indicated he was convinced of the need to the degree he might contribute to a fund to promote the levy, adding, "that's not saying I'll vote for it."

Mrs. Paul Ricart pointed out the need for voter education by recalling the history of getting a local okay for Eastland Vocational School.

"ONCE THE PUBLIC understood it wasn't a 'drop-out' school and really saw the need, they supported it," she said.

Board and audience alike recognized the fact that many C-W residents have been caught by inflation during retirement — and a retirement that is not a "Bexley-type" retirement spent clipping coupons.

One man present stated firmly, "As far as I'm concerned, nothing will go through till it is put on an income basis and not on what I own."

IN THE MEANTIME, the board has no alternative under existing law but to ask the property holder for help.

Democratic Club To Meet Tonight

The Southeast Women's Democratic Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Huntington National Bank Building, Canal Winchester.

Nominations for offices will be held and refreshments served.

IT'S A 13-MILL QUESTION

Can Bus Capitulation Win Hamilton Votes?

"You gave them what they wanted and they went home."

That was the post-midnight comment of John Boyle of the Hamilton Local School District faculty as he expressed the judgment that the school board, administrators and steering committee had gained no converts when they met Monday evening.

THE BOARD had capitulated to the howls of protest to the board's curtailment of busing as evidenced by the appearance of an angry crowd of about 900 when the board met in regular session.

The curtailment, effective Monday and involving busing only children in grades one through six living at least two miles from school, was adopted the day after election at which the Hamilton operating levy of 13 mills was beaten down two to one.

By 10:30 p.m., with taxpayers' tempers flaring, not only against school personnel but each other (one speaker screaming at another to "shut up") The Rev. Charles Titko of the steering committee asked the board that bus service be restored, effective in the morning (Tuesday).

WITH MRS. Frances Shipley making a motion to adopt Titko's recommendation, the bus service was voted back in by a board united on at least this issue.

However, a sister proposal of Titko's that the board seek 10.5 mills rather than 13 at the special election scheduled Dec. 10 (with another 2.5 for building repairs run as a separate issue) went over like a lead balloon with both the board and the taxpayers.

The board took the stand that nothing less than 13 mills would solve its problems, and the audience reaction was that 2.5 mills was only token relief.

THE MEETING was opened with a lengthy prayer by Titko—asking for peace in the community.

The mood of the audience was reflected immediately in the comment, "Well, that's one way to speak your piece without interruption."

Following the invocation (an innovation at Hamilton Board meetings) the Rev. John Sorenson, also of the steering committee, presented a relatively lucid study of costs in the district during the past three years and projected into 1969. The study indicated that cost increases have generally not been above figures predictable in an inflationary economy.

THE POSSIBLE exceptions were the salaries and related expenses (retirement and so forth) of both certificated and non-certificated personnel which range around 40 per cent, but also reflect more personnel to serve a growing school population.

Sorenson brought out that during the past two years a surplus of $237,000 has been depleted which represented a spending of 5.4 mills over actual income.

With the foundation of the board's position laid, President Bill Lares opened the meeting to the floor.

ALL DOUBT of the audience's antagonism toward the levy was removed with the applause which greeted the challenge of the board's presentation of the facts concerning federal monies made by Malcom Coogan.

Before the evening was over, an open attack had been made on many phases of school operation, the board and the teachers with resignations asked of all board members except Tim Gibbs and disciplinary action sought for officers of the Hamilton Local Teachers Association. (See related story on this page for details of HLTA action).

"GIVE US a new board and we'll give you your levy," cried one citizen.

The heart of the board's defenses (each spoke in answer) was that in the past people of the township have stayed away from board meetings in droves and that, although the board has attempted to do a good job, it might have been possible to do even better with the cooperation of the parents and taxpayers.

Through the welter of accusations and counter-accusations certain facts became relatively clear.

- Teachers and bus drivers are under contract and it appears they must be paid whether or not school is in session or buses rolling.
- Dependents of Lockbourne personnel generate more funds per child than those of local taxpayers.
- The special election will cost about $1,200.
- Teacher salaries, at $5,700 minimum for a person holding a bachelor's degree with no experience, are the highest in the county system, but are exceeded by Columbus, Upper Arlington and several other city districts.
- A four per cent increase in salaries costing three mills is included in the 1969 budget based on a 13-mill increase.
- Contingent upon full restoration of federal funds, schools could remain open through May with an additional $85,000.
- Without additional levy, the new middle school cannot open in September.
- The last audit covering the period Dec. 1, 1964 through Aug. 15, 1967 gave the district a clean bill of health.

IN THE WEE hours of the morning, with most of the audience gone—"Give it back to the Indians," one man muttered as he left; "to H— with it."—the board turned to its relatively light agenda.

Considerable time was spent determining whether the moratorium on building use after 5 p.m. except for contracted athletic events should be continued.

After wavering, which led one taxpayer to accuse the board of "wishy-washiness," it was decided the buildings shall be open only to those willing to reimburse the board for its full costs.

THE BOARD also voted to continue its new policy of non-payment for expendable supplies, with parents now shouldering the cost of workbooks.

In granting permission to several faculty members to attend professional meetings, it came to light that the reso-

Public Hits HLTA Arm Bands; Board Nixes Professional Day

The wearing of black arm bands to school by members of the Hamilton Local Teachers' Association following defeat of the district's levy did not go over too well with parents who claimed it confused younger students.

According to the parents many children did not get the message (apparently that Education was dead in the township) but they were disturbed by the symbolism.

IN SPITE of the explanation by Richard Frye, HLTA president, that it was "just an idea, just a token gesture," the parents were highly vocal in protest of the action when they descended in an angry horde on the School Board Monday night.

"Political blackmail" was one accusation heard frequently and the other was that the board was allowing itself "to be run" by the teachers.

The board's sturdy denial that they are unduly responsive to demands of the teachers was strengthened at the end of the meeting.

ACTING UPON the recommendation of Supt. John Savel, members voted three to two against granting approval for a "professional study" day tentatively slated for today.

(With the last reporter leaving at 1:40 a.m., 20 minutes before the request was finally acted upon, Savel stated that he was instructed to withhold from the press the names of the dissenting voters).

At press time, it was not known whether HLTA had gone along with the board's objection to the tentative plans to take a day off to determine how the membership could best support the levy that will be submitted to the public Dec. 10.

SAVEL, in his recommendation to the board, stated he "professionally sympathized with the proposal."

However, he explained he could not support it because (1) it fell on a day scheduled for school attendance, (2) the board and administration had already suffered embarrassment through premature public announcement of the proposal, (3) with friction already on foot in the district, the action was ill-timed and (4) he believed the same avowed purposes could be pursued on a weekend.

(IN FAIRNESS to the HLTA membership, it should be noted that it was understood the professional day would be taken now instead of the one this spring already scheduled to allow the faculty to attend the annual meeting of the Franklin County Teachers Association.

Both the board and Savel expressed willingness to dismiss school two hours early to provide time for a professional study meeting.

Two Specials Eyed By Madison Board

Two—not one—special elections face voters of the Madison Local School District before the end of January.

Meeting Monday night, board members took the expected course of action and moved to resubmit the 8.5 operating levy (turned down at the election) at a special election Dec. 10.

HOWEVER, they took a second step most voters did not realize was just around the corner.

With formal notice received that the district is eligible for state assistance in a $3,899,986 building program, the board will meet in special session Monday, Nov. 25, to initiate the action that can make the district eligible for the grant.

This involves the district's bonding itself to capacity and further obligating itself to a one-half mill levy for 23 years, with the grant considered paid at the end of that period.

ALTHOUGH IT had earlier been anticipated the program would cost local voters only about one mill, a rising tax duplicate has increased the district's bonding capacity to the point that the total millage is estimated at 1.5 mills.

However, it is generally recognized that these dollars would be an unusually valid investment, with each local dollar generating three free ones from the state.

In the past, none of the handful of districts which have shown sufficient need to be offered such a handout have failed to raise the "matching funds."

THE BOARD has indicated that the few strings attached to the windfall are well-worth the prize.

The chief of the "strings" is the state's retaining the right to say how the money will be spent.

However, as its recommendations that the grant be utilized to convert the junior high to a senior high, to construct two new elementaries and to add kitchens and multi-purposes rooms to Madison, Dunloe and Asbury Elementaries dovetail with board thinking board reluctance to assume the role of a "boss" on the program has apparently melted away.

THE NOV. 25 meeting will be held in the Groveport-Madison cafeteria to accommodate those who may want more information on the proposed bonding—and on the 8.5 levy.

Although the issue failed a week ago by only one per cent of the 3,749 votes cast, and considerable hope is held for its passage in December, the board recognizes the possibility of another failure.

With this in mind, the two alternatives will be presented for study at the meeting a week from Monday.

ONE PATH that can be followed is drafting drastic cutbacks in the program; the other leads to continuing the present program until "the well runs dry."

It is generally understood that at least the district will not be haunted by the spectre of the double sessions endured three years ago.

Those sessions were necessitated by lack of classroom space—a problem Madison has licked for at least the coming year.

PHIL WILLIAMS, superintendent, explained why both the levy and the bond issue cannot be voted on together.

To obtain the operating levy which is critically needed during 1969, it must be voted upon in 1968.

Similarly, there is not time to follow the legal procedures to get the 1.5 bond issue on the ballot in the current year.

Fortunately, this issue is not so pressing, even though the state demands an answer in the next 90 days, the actual money won't be collected—or needed—until 1970.

Old Clickenger Strip Named Airport Of Month By Flyer

South Columbus Airport was recently named "Airport of the Month" by "The Flyer," a midwest publication aimed at the air-minded.

The extensive write - up which followed its official dedication last month indicated that a gem has developed at the city's back door with little fanfare.

ONCE KNOWN AS the old Clickenger Field, few realize the airport around which Lockbourne Industrial Park is sited has made the transition from a 2,400 foot strip to a 5,150 foot hard-surface runway complete with lights and the first bank of hangars , and capable of landing executive-type jets.

Describing the renovated airport as a "dream which is rapidly becoming a reality . . . the waking obsession of Owen H. Dickerson, Columbus shoe executive, 'The Flyer' points out that the airport is a result of Dickerson's own interest in business flying.

"If he yearned for an airstrip at the back door, why wouldn't many other industrialists?"

STATING South Columbus is unique in that it has been developed with private capital rather than governmental grants, the article states that Dickerson has traveled a long and rocky road in the development of Lockbourne Industrial Park.

Claiming that he has pinched pennies until "Abe's beard looks marcelled," the author explained the deal by which Dickerson made the fill resulting from grading available to outerbelt contractors for a necessary overpass.

The contractor, W. L. Johnson, got the 200,000 cubic yards of dirt, and Dickerson got his grading at bargain basement costs.

TO SAVE on blacktop which "The Flyer" compares to caviar in cost as well as in appearance — Dickerson utilized soil cement with sealer which is recognized as a better and cheaper answer than asphalt as a base to support wheel weight.

Predicting that with a going airport on his hands, Dickerson is ready to move ahead toward completion of the development of the Park (a half dozen firms are already established) in the deed restriction-controlled development, The Flyer writer cites its advantages.

Quotations from the Columbus Chamber of Commerce show it to be within 550 miles of two-thirds of the customers in the United States and within this distance of eight of the nation's 10 largest cities.

OFFERING 1,000 manufacturing establishments in the trading area, almost 2,000,000 consumers and a skilled and balanced labor pool, Dickerson believes he has something to sell — quality development sites with its own airstrip.

And it's for sure he has something to offer both the city of Columbus and Hamilton Township — a stronger tax base. Annexed to the city for school purposes, the 2,000 acre site still pays its school tax to the Hamilton Local District.

As "The Flyer" points out, persons might do well to take a closer look at what's going on in their own back yard.

Bus—

lution banning such attendance had been rescinded at the special meeting held last Wednesday.

The report was made by Supt. John Savel that Franklin County Rural Zoning Commission will hear the application for rezoning of 74.097 acres on Rathmell Road Nov. 21.

THIS IS THE portion of the Fishburn property upon which the board relinquished its option last spring and for which National Homes plans a residential subdivision.

In spite of Boyle's contention at the end of the meeting that he had not heard genuine concern expressed for education during the evening, the words of Dick Crawford might well serve as a guideline for the board as it attempts to gain support for the Dec. 10 levy.

Raising one of the saner voices during the meeting, he had implored, "My God, be reasonable and you'll get my vote."

PROMOTED

Glenn W. Rinehart, 5014 North Street, Ashville, has been promoted to assistant shift supervisor of the Picway Generating Station operated by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. Employed by the Columbus and Southern as an auxiliary tender in 1944, Rinehart has more recently served as control operator.

Dr. Essex Honored By OVA

Dr. Martin W. Essex, state superintendent of Public Instruction, was picked as Ohio's "Man of the Year" in Vocational Education at the annual Ohio Vocational Association State Convention in Columbus Friday and Saturday, Nov. 8-9.

The award is given to individuals who have made outstanding contributions to vocational and technical education in Ohio.

Essex was recognized for his active leadership and personal efforts in providing quality Vocational Education in Ohio and the nation.

In addition to expanding Vocational Education in the state's major cities, he has also served as chairman of the first Advisory Council appointed at a national level under provisions of the 1963 Vocational Education Act.

Commenting on the need for Vocational Education, Essex said, "For every good job, there should be a skilled Ohioers (chili at the high school), an to fill it. We must strengthen and build Vocational Education opportunities in Ohio to achieve this goal. Continued prosperity depends upon it."

Dentist's Chair Fit For A Dog At LAFB

Is Lockbourne's Dental Clinic really going to the dogs? Patients who had appointments there about 5 p.m. recently might have thought so when a sentry dog named Quinn made his visit for a root canal operation.

Quinn had cracked two of his front teeth when he lunged to bite someone through the wire fence that surrounds the kennel. He injured his dentures the same way last year, but only required a gold cap that time.

This time around, Quinn needed a four-hour operation performed by Dr. (Capt.) Berhle W. Hubbach. According to the dentist, the four-year-old German Shepherd will be leaving for Vietnam duty soon — though not as punishment for breaking his teeth.

St. Mary's Home and School Association will meet at 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 14.

Gates-Fourth Meets

The Mary/Martha Circle of Gates-Fourth UMC will meet at the Church, Thursday, Nov. 14, at 10:30 a.m. The general meeting of the WSCS will take place at 1 p.m., also on Nov. 14.

The Sew 'n' Sews of St. Paul's UC of C will meet from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 18 at the church.

On Thursday, Nov. 14, the Women of the Moose will be hostess to Donald W. Overby, of the State School for the Blind. Two students of the school will give Braille demonstrations.

The library committee, sponsor of the meeting, will present a purse to Mr. Overby, for the purpose of purchasing a Braille book for the school's library. Mrs. Floyd Bryant is chairman of the committee.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held in the Chapter Room of 36 W. Sycamore St., Wednesday, Nov. 20 from 5 to 7 p.m., the Mooses' publicity committee will be in charge of the dinner held at the lodge.

Chairman Corinne Embleton and her committee will serve chicken Javanese, tossed salad, asparagus, rainbow sherbet, cookies and coffee. Adult tickets are $1.30, 75 cents for children. At 8:30 p.m. the same night, a euchre party will be sponsored by the membership committee, chairman, Mary Leffler. The public is welcome to both the dinner and euchre party.

Mothers' Club

Mrs. Richard Donovan will present a program for members of the South Side YMCA Mothers' Club, Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 9:30 a.m. Theme for the day will be a display of methods of how to keep "Christ in Christmas."

Sixty guests attended the Silver Wedding anniversary celebration of Margie and Ray Speakmon, held Sunday, Nov. 3, at the celebrants' home, 820 S. Third St. Mrs. Sylvia Stiebritz, Margie's mother, was in charge of the surprise party and was assisted by Shirley Giuffre, a daughter.

A New Members Tea will be held at the Senior Citizens Center, Friday, Nov. 15, 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Ladies' Aid

The Suzanne Lorantfy Ladies' Aid Society of the Hungarian UC of C is sponsoring a Cabbage Roll Carry-Out order sale Saturday, Nov. 23, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the church, 365 E. Woodrow Ave. Advance orders may be placed with Elizabeth Dobos, 645 Sheldon Ave., 443-6465. It is suggested that customers bring their own containers for the carry-out service. The church will benefit from the profits.

A young friend will be embarking on "matrimonial seas," Saturday, Nov. 16, so best wishes for happiness are wished for her. Pam Wolford, 1601 Frebis Ave., and Thomas Foley, 1116 S. Ohio Ave., will exchange wedding vows in St. Leo's Church.

Christmas Fair

The annual Christmas Fair held by members of the Thurman Avenue UM Church will be Wednesday, Nov. 20 at the church, Thurman and Washington, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. The bazaar will feature candles, aprons, kitchen pantry, holiday trimmings, pillow cases, novelties, original hand-made item and white elephants.

The lunch, served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., consists of soup, sandwiches, homemade pie or cake, coffee or milk. The evening meal, served from 5 to 7:30 p.m., has a choice of two menus, scalloped chicken with noodles, or a baked ham dinner. Tickets are $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children.

'Gifts for Giving'

'Tis getting "that time of year again," and long-time readers will recognize the fact that "Gifts for Giving" is around the corner.

The project, conducted through this columnist, helps tubercular patients of Ben Franklin Hospital to have a merrier holiday season by enabling them to give little gifts to their loved ones.

And the most important role is played by the readers of this column, who provide these "little gifts."

Some folks give items; others send money to be used where most needed.

As with the gift list for everyone, it is necessary to have available items for men, women, boys and girls of all ages, so any and all donations of this sort are appreciated.

One stipulation, learned by experience, is that smaller gifts are easier to handle than their bulkier counterparts.

Mama Also Taught

…an parents were often arsh, cold and hard-driving. could possibly be one of the asic situations that brought nforcement of child labor ws. for German children orked hard for long hours in many, many cases. Yet the stern German mother did so out of love and compassion, knowing that the body must work off energy else it explodes into deviltry.

Germans had children for profit. They were the best hired hands, permitted community growth in care of larger herds of cattle, or poultry production, or vegetable market, which was turned into bigger farms and stock. Any earned money was given to mother to spend or save.

All Germans had a garden, whether they lived in a village or on a farm. It was they that trained fruit trees to grow outside the kitchen window and in the crevices of the brick wall because the plot of land was too small. Tomatoes were staked to grow straight upward for bearing, and so tripled growing space and ultimate production. Another German in the late 1800's grafted to stunt tree growth while producing heavy fruit production. Stark Bros. Nursery markets many of his cross grafts.

Germans of the Old School taught Thriftiness and Saving methods. One German mother of the early 1900's taught as much school as the teacher of her brood. A nightly review of the day's lessons was as much a part of the home life, as carrying in coal and wood, extra water buckets, and feeding the pets. The kitchen was the school room. Mothers could listen to two kids recite at once, and knew instantly when one was faking.

The yard stick was a pointer to turn back the page for another drill in arthimetic, reading, or spelling. If one dallied a bit, the yard stick was a good knuckle cracker. Fast learners didn't get to run and play, or read an unscheduled book. They helped the slow learners.

Fast learners became teachers early in life. Helping those less fortunate in brain, led to understanding in lack of brawn in later years.

It is said that many German wives worked too hard, particularly among the Plain Folks. At their side in the spring planting time were the small tots, too young for school. They "helped" mother to place a seed or seedling in a well dug hole "just right" that air and moisture might stimulate growth into a plant that produced three times normal output. Weeding time was an excellent schooling period to teach the young that good crops depended upon care, as careful as the right feeding and currying of the pony or horse.

The warm season in the village was a Walking Season, when mother and a couple of children, took off for the woods just outside town to gather greens. Dandelion greens made good blood, and restored "push."

The mother also taught the love of music, art and the theater. They had family classes in grooming young girls, like today's "Personality Schools."

Children walked alongside of mother to gather "sweet anise" in the woodlands, and many other natural herbs. German children were taught to live by and in nature. When they married, they were ready to take responsibility. They had been taught from the cradle that anything worth waiting for was something to work for and obtain. There was no credit system then.

German Parochial Schools

Any educator working German parochial schools well knows the closed door treatment to "new" methods in teaching grade schoolers. They were taught arithmetic that actually added up to answers that would hold up, whether it be dealing with nature, animal, plant or the cookie jar. One finds this type of metric measure in Old Germany, else they could not have turned out so many inventors.

German Parochial Schools in Wisconsin may have been the last to break barriers to newer teaching methods.

There are those who will point to the high illiteracy percentage there to establish a need to integrate at that time. It is true that 30 years ago, there were many young mothers and fathers that could not read, but they pushed for children's books that would "show" their children how to read by themselves. They instinctively knew that no one could "give" a child an education.

There were the Low Germans and the High Germans. They never mixed socially. One never found slum districts in these ethnic groups. Outside of the buildings, in town or country, were kept painted, yards well trimmed and neat. Loose boards were not ever encountered on a rental or owned property . . . 25 years ago in these groups.

Ohio German Parochial schools long ago disbanded for "free" schools that offered athletic prowess and participation on a wider level. School curriculum change over integrated minds while marriages completed this cycle growth. Ohio salesmen in education know the Pastor's strong arm control on reading materials, that might lead a fish-eating child away from the Sacraments, perhaps inter-marriage to a religious outsider. German Parochial schools were the hardest to crack a quarter of a century ago.

Another German Children's Book writer, Zane Grey, Muskingum County native, led the Children's Book parade for good reading matter for boys and girls throughout the world from 1915 to 1954. Today, a planned $600,000 museum will house his early work notes and research. He wrote for his children, published them that others might share these stories of living with and in nature. Zane Grey, like writers of the Bible, hid much arcana in Names. He was also a Quaker, decendant of a German group that came to America by way of England. He was also part Indian.

He scouted for history, facts of nature to teach boys and girls good citizenship habits. He also embedded in one of his books a story of the biggest robbery by political leaders of Ohio and the nation. He buried it in celestial statements that a little child would not understand.

He taught the law of nature, the return of that earned and spent, as the Old German parents taught. His memoralia might haunt some Central Ohioans now that his Notes have come home to Rest.

Both Zane Grey and Dr. Myers taught the law of nature and God in their works. "As one does to another does one receive." Somehow it gives hope to the poor, the sick and the weary . . . that tomorrow will be a better day, because one worked to earn it.

Thanksgiving Day is another Festival Day of Remembrance. In it, "God promises all things for the price of labor," wrote Leonardo de Vinci.

ABOUT OUR ADVERTISERS . . . .

R & R Bait Stores services all Coleman Products, and Rods and Reels. It might be a good idea to have them check your gear before packing it away, or ready it for the Florida sun. They also pack Live Bait for vacationers.

Jack Griggs of the Village Ecke carries a wide selection of Cold Cuts and Canned Goods. There is little waiting except during the Kiddies' Lunch Hour. There's no Parking problem.

If you feel like listening to a little German music while enjoying German Village made Augustiner Draft Beer, you will find it at Schmidt's Restaurant. Music is by the Reingold Trio, nightly.

Schmidt's held an old fashioned Hallowe'en Party for Guests and the Help on Halloween Eve. It was like a Singfest and "Meet Your Neighbor" type of party. Some folks still wore their big grins the next day, it was that successful.

Wines complement fowl because it acetates the alkalis of heavy eating pleasures. Remember to Shop the Carry Outs on this page nearest you for your Thanksgiving Wines.

George F. Brand of Best Cleaners offers Repair Service. George is usually there to greet you himself. Last year's Formal or Dress Suit might have a snap or button missing before the Cleaning Job. Take them early, to avoid the last minute rush.

Ralph Long, the Plumber, uses, the same patient outlook toward the growth of German Village Proper as he has always done in tracing a stopped up water line. He knows slow prodding and work will get things done. And that's the way it is with German Village Restoration Program. It's always a good job well done.

German Village Cookbooks make lovely gifts for the Bride or the young housewife. They contain inexpensive makings of Soups, Meats and Entrees made of a lot of Eggs, Milk, and Vegetables.

King's Sheet Metal repairs Old Roofs, cleans gutters and spouting.

I'll bet the menfolks of German Village long ago never waited until freezing time to repair the old roofs, clean the gutters and spouting. It might have been the day when Mama "saw" to things and prodded until they were done. Today, one can call King's for efficient service.

Want to send flowers to out of town clients, friends, or Remembrance? Call Sally's Flowers. They serve German Village, and excel in Petal Fresh Flower delivery. There was a time when a Rose a Day was nice Company while Away on business. One particular office receives a dozen every day.

Rusk Bros. are Specialists in replacing bent fenders and body shop work. They paint fenders to match your VW, saves over-all paint jobs. It's inexpensive and time-saving, when you shop Rusk Bros. for any used part or body work.

Tremont Cocktail Lounge is the community gathering place for many folks. Its friendly atmosphere brings them back, again and again. Stop in on your way home from work or later on in the evening.

To untangle car troubles, see Sinclair Station at Greenlawn and High. A thorough check-up in his station relieves the worry of no-start mornings. They fix it right.

Lindenhof features Sauerbraten made of selected cuts of Prime Beef and marinated with Red Wine, herbs and spices. It is served with potato dumplings and sweet and sour red cabbage. "Chef Max Baer uses wine rather than vinegar in cooking for Lindenhof diners," Lindenhof manager Kerr said.

Linden Haven is having Goodies coming in every day. They are ready early for the Christmas Shoppers that already have received Christmas Savings Checks.

Bavaria Haus' Lunch Menu carries Appetizers, Soups, Special Plates, and Sandwiches for every type eater. But the "Gold" or "out of this world" tastiness is found in the Haus Specialties like the "489"ER and the "Nibbling" Trays. Try them anytime between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Buick's Opel Kadetts, the Mini Brutes, gives you a choice between shift or automatic transmission. Find out how smooth an economy import can be, by driving one in a try-out. You can tell the Rallye Kadett by its stripes, but for the lowest priced GM car, it is any of the Mini-Brutes. See them at Len Immke's.

Der Village Markt now offers a Polynesian Parfait Salad in addition to eight other types of Home Style Salads.

Village Bait Store has announced they will remain open all winter, for the folks who like to fish on the river banks and through the ice. "Fish is at its best right now," Joe Donaldson said.

You might like to know that fish do not hibernate, and so require food all through the winter. "Hungry fish are easier to catch, and taste better," he concluded.

Plenty of bass, perch, and trout are being caught in the Scioto River.

Fish as well as all sea foods contain iodine, the mineral that feeds the thyroid gland, which in turn is the switch for the motor of the body.

Perch contain a large amount of Vitamin A that feeds the skin, prevents night blindness and aids in infection resistance.

Fish is a good source for Lysine and other Amino Acids, aids in preventing dental cavities. It also increases mental activity, in fields of money making.

You can purchase Frozen Fish at Der Village Markt.

Dor-O-Bel Carries Rings and Pins of the various Masonic Orders and other organizations. They make nice Christmas gifts.

The VW owner might like to know the Northland Sports Car Center is reliable in VW Service, doesn't add extra charges without checking.

Call him for an appointment, for he is that busy.

Owner Hans is nearly always on hand to make the estimate himself. You'll find him racing about to over-see and assist in repair and service. He learned the Trade in his native Germany.

Continental Sport Cars, Inc., dealer for the BMW German Import, is another Service Center to remember. His Service Manager, James L. Frevel, was located near Grant and Broad a couple of years ago. Knowing he carried on excellent VW Service there, one can expect the BEST in BMW Care.

Nationaline is the place to go for do-it yourself remodeling or replacement plans. They carry budget lavatories and those that go with your special designs.

The Gladden Mess

The Gladden Community House crisis smacks of a rerun of the mess at the Franklin County Welfare Department.

In a wider perspective, such situations are developing across this nation.

The issues involved in the "temporary closing" of Gladden are complex and clouded, but the way in which the board went about reorganizing the settlement house was at best unknowing and at worst stupid.

Some angry neighborhood residents charged "glue-sniffing, drinking and sex play" took place and nothing was done by staff members. Other residents wondered where they would go for help now that the settlement house had been closed.

The dismissed director of Gladden countered that it was understaffed and that workers couldn't be responsible for everything which transpired.

Few staff members denied that some irregular activties did take place. But they pointed out they were not dealing with "kids from nice suburban homes."

In any case, the workers pointed with pride to other accomplishments—neighborhood councils, a credit corporation, a newspaper, leadership training programs and other community services.

While one Columbus newspaper took credit for closing Gladden, it might well ask itself whether this is an accomplishment of which to be proud.

The "irregular activities," it is true, cannot be condoned. Neighborhood people have a responsibility to make their objections known.

But really, is the closing of this neighborhood house a rational way to solve problems? Does it make sense to fire a staff because there is no director? This is comparable to firing the entire welfare department when former director Tom Brittenham went.

Social workers sometimes only fire the fear of community organization, because they are so zealous for change.

But what about United Appeal? If, indeed, it had something to do with the firings as a result of workers' involvement in controversial issues, UA should look within its own organization and remember that some members have followed the development of the Welfare Rights Organization. Even more significantly, UA pledged $5,000 to the Poor People's March and then withdrew the request upon realizing the march was more controversial than first suspected.

Thus, we assume, it is legal to engage privately in controversial issues but not when such issues become a matter of public record.

We suggest two moves:

- Re-establish services provided by Gladden as soon as possible.
- Re-involve the United Community Council in decision-making immediately.

Little People

If one thing was certain during the national election it was this — the "little people" did not rally around the banner of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Both in Ohio and Franklin County the Wallace vote was less than 15 per cent. Only selected portions of the South listened to what Mr. Wallace thought was a new political movement in the country.

The pollsters—whom the former Alabama governor attacked — were extremely close in their estimation of his strength. And despite Mr. Wallace's clamoring about the "liberal press," the Third Party presidential nominee received equal space in most newspapers.

Until another election is held, Mr. Wallace will continue to remain a regional candidate. And while it was something of a minor victory for him to be on every state ballot, the "little people" have spoken loud and clear about what he stands for.

Many Americans are now breathing easier.

Smell Of Roses

It never hurts to belabor a good point.

The Spectator would like to make another pitch for the West High Band and Weskets in their drive to raise $43,000 to go to the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.

Mayor Sensenbrenner is helping by accepting $1 contributions at his office. All you have to do is send a $1 bill in an envelope marked "Band" and addressed to the Mayor's Office at City Hall.

And our hats go off to auto dealer George Byers, who has promised to match the first $500 the mayor receives.

Let's get the drive over the top and send these outstanding representatives of our community to the Rose Bowl.

Educated Man

By JOHN MORGAN

What is an educated man?

I doubt if even university officials really know.

Listen to this description of what a university is, which was given last week by Ohio State University President Novice G. Fawcett to a group of outstanding students from 38 high schools:

"MAN NOT ONLY excels in the number and complexity of dilemmas but, paradoxically, he has the greatest potential for reducing or eliminating such hazards . . .

"The concerted aim of higher education should be to strengthen the individual's resolve to do so, to offer him the tools necessary for the job, and to show him how to use them effectively."

Uneasiness about education is not a late development. Ever since Socrates, Western philosophers have debated the nature of education, gearing the learning process to either intellectual, moral or practical ends.

The blunt fact is that few educators can spell out what education really is, this in spite of the intricate setup of our academic system. It remains to be seen whether the splattering of courses which make up a "liberal education" is either liberal or educational.

NO DOUBT modern technology has had a great impact on education. Learning has become specialized. We train young people now not so much to be thinking individuals—as President Fawcett would have it—but to fit into some vocational pattern.

And by the shape of the world we are living in I can hardly agree with Dr. Fawcett that education influences young people "to use their intelligence in bringing wisdom to the affairs of humankind."

There are enough people dissatisfied with the way in which education is pursued (or not pursued) to warrant consideration.

Those who question the learning system are not merely the obvious dissenters who storm administration buildings, but many top educators.

Having been both a graduate student and a college instructor, I have some inside knowledge of how the system functions.

I HAVE FOUND more than one student's "love of learning" killed by some of the Mickey Mouse structures which burden the system, while the plodding student—driven by some vague notion of success — feeds off the competitive nature of the system.

Some of the best ones barely survive. And while they may be fortunate enough to find a concerned professor, their love of learning is not enhanced by petty examinations, ridiculous regulations and sometimes boring courses.

At Ohio State, for example, I have heard the same criticisms repeated far too often. Lack of dialogue, too many graduate students teaching classes, overbureaucratic structures, large classes and a screaming emphasis on getting the grade.

In his speech, Dr. Fawcett acknowledged "unflattering comments made about us." But he said there was no "necessary correlation between bignees and impersonality."

He added that many people find a special value in the big university not totally unlike the big city — a complex, bustling, demanding way of life.

But the vitality of a university—like that of a city — will depend on how deeply dialogue is pursued. Dialogue between faculty and administration, between faculty and students and between students and those who must form policy.

THE UNIVERSITY only holds the promise of changing society. It has just begun to tackle this task.

But until the fundamental question is solved — what should an educated man be about in the world? — all the curriculum in the world will not suffice.

The real tragedy takes place when miniature Plato's and Mark Twain's are transformed into corporation executives and football halfbacks.

Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, a noted psychologist and trustee of Ohio's Antioch College, perhaps best summarized the real anguish of sensitive collegians in these terms:

"Maybe these students are revolted by colleges and universities that seem so unconcerned about the vast numbers of their graduates who are morally illiterate and incapable of empathy."

The Wallace Defeat

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

The Wallace-for-president supporters are a strange breed. That is, many of them are.

If you weren't FOR George, the immediate assumption is that you HATE him.

Personally, I don't hate anybody. Especially not George Wallace. But I wasn't for him either.

Since the election, we're received a number of letters — the vindictive kind — taking us to task because we didn't support the Third Party candidate.

Most of these brave souls chose not to sign their names so their missives were consigned to the waste basket along with other junk mail.

But the tenor was rather consistent. Nearly all attacked us on the premise that we HATED Wallace, hence didn't support him.

We had good reason not to support George Wallace. His public record alone gave us sufficient grounds. Even though the world is rapidly getting smaller as the lines of communication continue to expand, it is still not small enough to permit all of us to become personally acquainted with the national candidates.

Hence, we do the next best thing. We judge a man by his public performance and his record of achievement. By no stretch of the imagination did this, in our opinion, qualify the former Governor of Alabama for the Presidency of the greatest nation on earth.

A strong feeling against the Johnson administration, the assassination of Senator Kennedy, the frustration of McCarthy supporters put voters in an ugly mood. Some of them found a release by choosing Wallace over Nixon and Humphrey.

An analysis of the voting indicates quite clearly that Republicans didn't win the election. Democrats lost it.

And many of that 12 per cent segment that chose the Third Party standard bearer will return to one or the other major party by time 1972 rolls around. And the Wallace movement will evaporate just as did Teddy's Bull Moose movement, the LaFollette party, Strom Thurmond's States Righters and other splinter groups.

Hate doesn't have anything to do with it. People, temporarily off base, start acting normally again.

Opti And Pess

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Heard a cute story in Columbus the other day which I'd like to pass along. It goes like this:

• • •

Once upon a time a couple gave birth to twin sons. Not wanting to give them conventional names, they decided to call one son Optimist and the other son Pessimist. For short, they called them Opti and Pess.

As the years went by, much to the couple's surprise, the two sons adopted the attitudes suggested by their names.

On the twins' sixth birthday, the father made a special selection of presents to give to his sons.

Pess got a ball bat, a bicycle and a ball. Opti got a box of horse manure.

After the children opened their presents, the father approached Pess who was sitting sullenly in the corner.

"Pess," he began, "why don't you play with your ball?"

"Don't wanna," answered Pess. "It might bounce high and hit me in the nose and I'd get a nose bleed."

"Well, then," went on the father, "why don't you swing your ball bat?"

"Don't wanna. Might swing too hard and break my wrist."

"Certainly you can ride your nice, new bicycle," the father suggested.

"Nope. Might fall off and break my leg."

The father shrugged. Pess was definitely a pessimist.

The father approached Opti. Opti was making mud pies out of the horse manure and humming happily.

"Hey, Opti, what are you doing?" the father asked.

"Playing," answered Opti.

"Playing in horse manure?" the father queried.

"Listen, dad," said Opti, "anything that smells like this . . . well, man, there's just gotta be a Shetland pony nearby somewhere."

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG
Saunders, Stiver & Co.

The cosmetic and toiletries industry has had an excellent record of growth and profitability for many years. This industry is characterized by the following: rapid growth, unusually low labor costs, and the ability to raise prices as costs go up. The cosmetic-soap industry is ranked third highest in terms of return on invested capital by Fortune Magazine's annual survey.

The average annual increase in demand for such products since 1960 has been 10 percent. Disposable personal income has grown from $83 billion in 1929 to $546 billion in 1967, an increase of 658 percent. Sales of cosmetics and toiletries in the same period has climbed from $.38 billion to $3.5 billion, an increase of 921 percent. Sales of this industry compared to disposable income has increased from 0.46 percent in 1929 to 0.64 percent last year.

Sales in this field has increased in all the four most recent recessionary periods. There has been only one decline (in 1947) in over 30 years. Consumers have come to consider cosmetic and toilet items as everyday necessities, resulting in increased demands in periods of good as well as bad business conditions.

There are several reasons for this industry's record of extremely good growth. A constant flow of new and improved products keep the consumer constantly spending. More and more women are working. A population shift from the rural to urban areas cause more women to be more aware of the "necessity" of these products. Men are becoming more and more "personal care" conscious. There are more women in the 15-29 age bracket now than ever before. Women in this bracket are the largest users of personal care products. Not only do teenagers use more cosmetics than their mothers and older sisters, but they tend to retain their early grooming habits in later years. Thus, a rising usage per capita seems certain to continue.

The average increase in sales of 11 leading companies in this industry has expanded at the annual rate of 12 percent. Earnings per share for the last five years have grown, on average, for these companies at the rate of 13 percent annually. Pretax margins have expanded, on average, from 15.8 percent in the period 1958-1961 to 17.8 in 1967.

From Wallace Fan

To The Editor:

I cancelled my subscription to The Spectator fo very good reason and since the girl I talked to on phone didn't even care enough to ask and since you partly responsible, I decided to clutter your fan letters from Humphrey lovers and tell you.

By now you probably suspect the horrible truth. I am a scatter-brained Wallace lover, and I have a suspicion that if you would have heard anything that he had to say and listened with an open mind and were not afraid to admit the truth, even you may have been influenced by what he had to say. He promised to clean up the government and the Supreme Court, and to give some respect back to the farmer. He also said how he was going to do this, which was a rare thing to hear. But you know, I should have known better than hold such high hopes for him. After all, only God would stand a chance against both the Republican and Democratic parties and every newspaper editor in the U.S. and He would probably lose.

So any way, back to the reason I cancelled my subscription. It started with that sweet little editorial by Arthur Hoppe, entitled "Dear Virginia." Then there were "Predictions" by Mr. Tenenbaum and "Humphrey for President" by who knows.

I hereby charge The Spectator with trying to influence the election, and, using the words of your respected Mr. Reider, take your phony newspaper and jump in the Scioto.

The Comeback Kid Comes Back For More

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Good morning, insomniacs. It's time for the Awful Late Show, featuring that awful old movie, "The Comeback Kid"—starring Dick as the middle-aged Kid, who hasn't won a fight in 18 years, and Pat as his loyal wife.

As we join them today, The Kid has climaxed his long struggle up the old comeback trail, surmounting defeats, adversity and Five O'Clock Shadow. At long last, he has won the title! By a split decision.

That's him, jubilant in victory—a Band-Aid on his jaw, one eye slightly swollen.

The Kid (happily): He never laid a glove on me. (solemnly) But I want to take this opportunity to say what a great and courageous opponent he was. One of the greatest. He never quit fighting. And I admire a fighter who never quits.

Pat: But you've been saying for months, dear, that he was nothing but/a no-good bum.

The Kid: That was before I licked him.

Pat: Well, dear, I'm awfully proud of you. And now that you've achieved your goal against overwhelming odds, will you keep that promise you made in 1962 and renounce the sordid fight game forever?

The Kid (aghast): What, quit now? I'm the Champ! Don't you realize what that means? Fame! Fortune! At last you can throw away that old cloth coat. We'll be living on easy street.

Pat (dubiously): You mean all our troubles are over?

The Kid (taking her in his arms): They wrote me off as a has-been. But I got off the floor and did the impossible. And now, baby, you and I are going to enjoy the sweet fruits of victory — the adulation of the crowds, the love of the country, the . . .

Pat (happily): And no more fights, Kid?

The Kid: Not for four years. It's going to be just you and . . . (The phone rings. Pat answers it.)

Pat: It's one of your handlers, Kid.

The Kid: Probably just wants to congratulate Hello? What do you mean the press is already specu ing who'll be my sparring mate in 1972? You can te them I'll be loyal to good old Spiro T. Whatshisname forever. Well, four years seems like forever. Yeah, I know only a minority of the fight fans are with me, but I'll win 'em over. I'll be a real crowd-pleaser, you'll see. A slugfest on Capitol Hill? Sure, I know our boys are outnumbered. But we'll give 'em a battle. Yeah, I know there's a war on. Just make it clear it isn't my war. We'll fix it somehow. Riots in the ghettoes? Pollution in the streams? What abbut the press? Are we getting a good press? Nasty cartoons already, eh? Spiteful columnists, huh? Okay, okay, I'll be right there.

Pat (as he hangs up): Where are you going, Kid? You promised you wouldn't fight for four years.

The Kid (bobbing and weaving as he goes out the door): I know, baby, but I got to keep in training. A right to the pulic sector, a left to the impacted areas, a jab to Brezhnev's brisket, a right cross to the new left . . .

Pat (disconsolately after he's gone): The only thing I don't understand is why he's so happy they have him to kick around again.

Fifty seniors from some 40 Ohio high schools participated in a testing and counseling program leading to accounting scholarships at Ohio State University.

The OSU program, aimed at encouraging Negroes to enter the accounting field, was the first of its kind and was endorsed by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Accounting professor Thomas J. Burns said that presently there are few blacks in the high-salary profession.

"Once we encourage a few Negroes to enter the profession, we believe it will encourage others of their race to enter."

Around Town

Conducted By

ROLAND SUNKER

One of the best musical comedy duos ever to play our town is currently performing in the Firewater Room of the Olentangy Inn. In case you are one of the few who have never seen or heard of this group, their name is Tom and Glenn. Besides working most of the major rooms in the country, these fellows have appeared several times previously at the well-known O.I.

Tom and Glenn have put together one of the most explosive acts this columnist has ever seen. Their routines are original and not a re-run of material you normally find with this type of act. The Tom and Glenn comedy is hilarious. Their music is good. Their vocals are a treat to hear.

Variety is the keystone to their act. Both of the boys sing, as well as play several instruments. Tom O'Keefe, an Ohioan, plays piano, guitar, sings and acts as straight man for his partner. Glenn Dunno, who hails from Columbus (North High), plays guitar, banjo and drums. Also, Glenn possesses a great voice that has a fine range, excellent tonal quality and control. Glenn can take any number from "Danny Boy" to "Up The Lazy River," including everything in between, and do justice to all of them. On top of all this, he is a true comedian in every sense of the word.

Needless to say, the act is well paced and really moves along. Their material, both comedy and musical, is geared for the older type of audience. They are not hipsters.

It all boils down to the fact that Tom and Glenn are two of the finest performers you'll ever see in Columbus. Their act is the best lounge act you'll watch. They are a couple of entertaining dynamos.

Da Vinci Lounge

Appearing nightly in the beautiful Da Vinci Lounge in the Sheraton Hotel is the duo of Sara Allen and John Weston. Sara, an attractive miss, plays piano and handles some of the vocal chores. Her piano stylings are simple and uncluttered. She sticks to the melody line and uses nice, easy chords. However, Sara lacks feeling and styling in her work. Her vocal energies are mostly in the capacity of doing duos with her partner.

Partner John Weston sings with a rich, full voice. He has good tonal quality and an enjoyable, pleasing style. The high point of their routine is when Sara and John blend their voices in presenting some very pretty music. This part you will like. Both members of this duo are former operatic students. I think you will recognize this when you hear them sing.

Their approach to music is sedate and classy. You'll be entertained when you listen to the music of Sara and John in the Da Vinci Lounge.

Everglades Not Sold

Contrary to what you may have read in another newspaper last week, the Everglades Restaurant has not been sold. According to owner Anthony Deleweese, "this place has not been sold. I am still the owner of the Everglades."

As published in one of the local dailies, the story said that Sun TV had purchased the entire Everglades property for the purpose of erecting a Sun TV and Appliance store. The story also said that the restaurant would be closed this spring.

Deleweese did say there have been negotiations going on for some time between himself and Sun TV. However, no agreement has been reached. As Deleweese said, "Nothing has been signed."

Ricardo's

One of the nicest, most beautiful restaurants Around Town is Ricardo's Restaurant. Located on Oakland Park, this well-known eating establishment has been in business since August, 1949. Since that time, it has undergone four expansions, with the last being completed in 1967.

There are two dining rooms, with a seating capacity of 275, and a cocktail lounge accommodating 75 patrons. The entire restaurant is decorated in an elegant provincial Italian atmosphere. One dining room, known as the Venetian Room, is done in blue and white. The other dining room is designed in red and gold. This is the Corsican Room and is certainly a regal place to dine.

Dining at Ricardo's Restaurant can only be described as a truly entertaining experience. Their food is great. Of course, since this is an Italian restaurant, you'll find all of your favorite Italian dishes expertly prepared in the Old World tradition. The finest steaks and prime rib of beef are also included on the menu. Best of all, the service is as superb as their food.

On weekends, the Don Bolen Trio performs for your listening pleasure in the cocktail lounge.

But you don't have to wait for the weekend to enjoy dining in Rome. Just get in your old four wheel gondola and head it toward that canal known as Oakland Park where you'll enjoy and evening of tasteful Italian culture and cuisine.

Skipping Around Town

Skipping Around Town . . . A new act in town this week that is sure to please you is Carol Whited and the Duncan Brothers at the Lincoln Lodge. It's a good trio that plays lots of great music. Carol sings and sounds like Brenda Lee . . . Today, the La Bota celebrates their first birthday. Gene Banister, your friendly host at the Mexican Club, is planning a large fun type birthday party, with hors d'oeuvres and birthday cake for everyone . . Don't forget, "Googan's Bluff," a movie packed with thrills, adventure and romance is now playing at the Northland and Eastland Cinemas . . . For a good lunch, dinner or your favorite beverage, stop in and say "hi" to the friendly gang at the Ramblewood . . . Remember, Ben Cowall has many great shows coming up at Vets. Don't miss them . . . Speaking of shows, next week, Danny Deeds has booked into the Hartman that very funny show, "This Was Burlesque."

OSU's 'Summertree' A Work Of Beauty

Once again, Ohio State University Theater has selected a play offered through the American Playwrights' Theater.

And once again, the work has proven to be a work of beauty.

Beauty can be illusive, in the eyes of the beholder, or it can become ominous, or it can become rapport.

All of these are in Ron Cowen's "Summertree," a young man's life ebbing into the darkness of death.

He is dying because of war. He shouldn't be. He has so much to live for: one more year of college: the dreams of young love: the gaining of his father's respect, and to be his mother's son.

In war, death is expected. War is waste. Life at least offers a past, present and future. Life is a continual conflict whether with oneself, the world, or a misunderstanding father.

With wisdom far beyond his 23 years, Ron Cowen has written of the questioning youth, the generation gap and duty to one's country.

Befittingly the play opened at Derby Hall at 8 p.m. as the curtain was coming down on another Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

Cowen, ending and starting the play with those few moments before death, has given no real ending, for there just isn't any. A soldier has one thing to give, his life, a young life filled with memories.

The audience is given no character names, for "Summertree" concerns all families with sons. The audience is given no set, except a tree near where a boy plays, a young man dreams and a soldier dies.

Director Roy Bowen has tenderly woven this young man's memories into a dramatic web through simplicity. He has artistically permitted the author's dialogue to be uppermost, thusly the beauty is rapport.

The program notes that Ron Cowen writes "All the little problems, the little crises, the little misunderstandings, day to day.

"How important they must seem on the day you know it is the last day you'll have them.

"Saying 'Summertree' over and over so fast that it starts sounding like the word cemetery, everything, though commonplace, must be remembered."

A powerful play with something for every adult and questioning youth — "Summertree" perceives.

The performers, John Rice, Scott Lowe, Dorothy Laming, Clay Lowe, Noreen Abookire and Sam Hoke, like the leaves on the "Summertree" are the skin of a leaf, connecting the veins . . . delicate, yet the strength of life.

Do go. Phone 293-2295 for tickets. "Summertree" runs Nov. 14-16 and 18-23.

Palace Show 'Entertaining'

"If He Hollers, Let Him Go," playing through Tuesday at the RKO Palace, is an entertaining film, for mature audiences only.

That is, you are going to see sex added for spice to a story concerning a Negro prisoner's escape to prove his innocence in a rape-murder of a white girl.

Word of mouth has kept this film running at the Palace. I prefer to think this is so because of the story which has merits, average acting and good suspenseful entertainment.

Time will erase the film from memory in about a week, but it does succeed in entertaining.

The escaped prisoner, Raymond St. Jacques, is offered $10,000 cash and an escape if he will kill a rich woman, Dana Wynter.

The offer is via her husband, Kevin McCarthy. A funny situation occurs as the husband ties himself up to await the sheriff's arrival when his wife recovers from death.

Anyway, the film is there and it is entetaining, but if you are planning a special occasion, one to be cherished and remembered for a long time, this isn't it.

Players Club Show Is Experimental Production

It isn't every day one writes about an original musical revue. Those attempting this form of theater take on a task far more susceptible to the pitfalls of theater than other areas of the art.

Last week two members of Players Club displayed their undertaking as an experimental production which immediately disqualifies the public as part of the audience.

This, then, should disqualify this review, but I cannot honestly ignore a Columbus first.

"Look For The Joke" is a Columbus first in that no community theater or participant has written and produced this part of theater . . . poking fun through sketches and blackouts with music, timing and pace prevalent at all times.

Jerry Loffman and Betty Dragonette have humorously satirized their surroundings with a display of ability rarely recognizable in this town.

With their professional qualities, Columbus and theater may succeed in the writing area far more quickly than others.

The show's cast is excellent and measures up to a polished and competent troupe. Mary Kostanden is definitely the front runner with Jerry Loffman, Al Motter, Sal Perez, Karen Dennis and Sandra Spence tied for second place.

What is wrong is to be expected, for the first time: too much overdoing of a good thing; cut some of the material in some skits and the laughter will be more.

For example, "Where To Dine."

Also interspersing of the blackouts, rather than grouping, would have aided in less time between skits and given a lighter touch.

The set was one that should be considered for a wider usage. Off Broadway Theater?

The show is a true example of theater — a feather in the cap of Players Club.

It's a shame the public could not see it. What a waste.

H-T Explodes 'Can't-Win-Big-One' Myth Via 8-2 Finish

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

For the first time in six years, a Hamilton Township football coach gazed back over his ten-week stand in the athletic spotlight with satisfaction this past week.

The reviewer was Ranger mentor Bruce Burnham and—for the first time since 1962 (H-T finished 8-1) — this critic was able to come up with some rave notices.

MOST PLEASING to the first-team Hamilton skipper was his '68 Rangers burial of the "can't-win-the-big-ones" tag.

"When I was at West Jefferson, that was this team's reputation. 'Just give them time,' they'd say, 'they'll beat themselves,'" Bruce recalls.

"But we won more than one big game this season. That old reputation is past history now," he concluded.

HAMILTON'S climb to the top this fall isn't really very surprising at all if you journey back to Burnham's pre-season goals.

Injury-prevention was the big 'if' last September and—with the exception of quarterback Bob Koontz (lost just prior to season opener)—all systems were "go" all season.

"Losing Koontz when we did caused a little apprehension," Bruce details. "We had been alternating him and Gerry Topping in our pre-season drills and his loss meant we'd have to move Jim Gorczyca into quarterback if anything happened to Gerry. Fortunately, nothing did. We needed Jim at that halfback spot."

THE INJURY-FREE campaign Burnham credits to pre-season conditioning. "These kids were willing to pay the price of getting into shape early. They were sold on the idea early and it paid off big as the season progressed."

Another Burnham pre-season goal was to "simply out-execute our opponents." That also had its impact on 10 foes.

"Our most basic play was the dive. There's nothing simplier in football." The "execution" angle is clearly evident in 2963 rushing yards (6.9 per carry) compiled during H-T's 10-game schedule.

THE MAJOR pre-season problem appeared to be a green defensive unit which found only two of 11 starters on opening night backed up with any real game experience.

"We knew the offense could score points for us but, before that opening game, the defense was pretty much a question mark," Bruce recalls.

But the question mark had been replaced by an exclamation point by the time the season concluded Friday.

"WES (MIRICK) just did a fantastic job," Burnham says of his defensive mastermind. "And we never lost a single member of the regular defensive unit until our final game," the H-T mentor added to underline the conditioning program.

ALSO ELUSIVE—Elusiveness on a football field must run in the Topping family as Hamilton Township quarterback Gerry Topping (15) shows above as he leaves Greenfield McClain tackler John Coosu (45) grasping thin air on this sweep effort Friday. Older brother Gary also proved to be tough to catch—recording five Ranger TDs in finale win.

Seven of ten aspirants for a dent in the Ranger goal line went home without success. One more managed one touchdown.

In all, Mirick's defenders allowed but 1124 total yards (rushing and passing) in 10 outings (112 per game)—allowing a 2.7 opposition rushing effort in 469 attempts.

H-T foes scored 58 points for less than a six-pt. average.

Meanwhile, Gary Topping (1380 yds. in 184 carries for 7.5 avg.), Jim Gorczyca (630 yds. in 86 tries) and John Cunningham (556 yds. in 86 attempts) chewed up opposition real estate at a more-than-healthy pace — helping the Rangers to 336 seasonal points.

H-T's opening loss to Fairfield Union (who, incidentally, went on to finish at 10-0) could have supplied some beneficial effects on the season, Bruce believes.

"WE HAD won all our pre-season scrimmages pretty handily and that opening loss went a long way in pointing out our mistakes," he explained.

"I could hear some of the cynics saying, 'Well, they've lost the first one. Here we go again,' Bruce recalls.

"But we won the next two by shutouts and the kids started to believe in themselves and came on much stronger. We worked awfully hard after that opening loss," the Hamilton skipper continued.

BURNHAM listed the Rangers' second outing (12-0 win over Grandview) as perhaps the "pivotal" game of the season.

"They (Grandview) hit us hard as any team we played this season. We didn't execute very well but still managed to win. It gave the team a big boost."

The H-T coach listed the 14-6 win over Franklin Heights as the Rangers best "all-around" '68 game.

THE MOST pleasant surprises the season produced, in Bruce's estimation, were junior alternating end Barry Fox ("he really came a long way") and "most improved" sophomore Ronnie Grim.

Most consistent members of Burnham's "110 Percent Club" all season were Gary Topping, Cunningham, Gorczyca, Russ Pinion, Bob Frohnauer and defensive end tandem Gene Grubb and Dick Coogan.

"They (Coogan and Grubb) were probably the key to our defensive success," Burnham related. "They really funneled these ball carriers back into our linebackers."

BURNHAM dismissed any early problems which appeared to be on the horizon after the departure of his predecessor Bill McPrenty last summer.

"Our only problem at first was one of numbers and that was because some of the boys didn't take our conditioning program seriously enough," Bruce detailed.

"After we trimmed those and the rest of the kids knew what we expected from them, there was never any problem."

ELEVEN seniors played their final game vs Greenfield Friday—all of them starters either on offense or defense this season.

Departing are: Bill Frohnauer, Bill Estep, Gary Topping, John Cunningham, John Savel, Carl Bennett, Bob Frohnauer, Steve Mathes, Gene Grubb, Russ Pinion and Dick Coogan.

The stingy H-T defense is least affected by the graduation losses with seven of 11 returning.

BURNHAM is also looking for some help forthcoming from a strong frosh squad which compiled a perfect 7-0 mark this fall—yielding but three TDs from scrimmage.

The icing on a season which showed the Metropolitan League title [illegible] came Friday with a 41-0 conquest of Greenfield McClain.

H-T totaled 398 yds. (375 rushing) as compared to the visitors' net of five rushing and 68 passing.

GARY TOPPING again set the pace with [illegible] yds. gained in 27 carries with Gorczyca and Cunningham chipping in with 35 more apiece.

Burnham also lauded the play of two-way tackle Larry Jones and quarterback Gerry Topping (35 yds., six tries) in the finale.

THE SPECTATOR SPORTS

WELL DONE, WES! — Hamilton Township coach Bruce Burnham (right) congratulates Ranger defensive mastermind Wes Mirick as the pair head for the locker room Friday after Rangers' eighth win in 10 '68 outings. H-T defenders made Greenfield seventh shutout foe of season in finale Friday.

A LITTLE TOUGHER — Hamilton Township fullback Gary Topping (center foreground) clutches tightly onto the football as he drives into the end zone from the three-yard line Friday to ring up one of five six-pointers he tallied in Rangers' closing 41-0 victory over Greenfield McClain. TD above was shortest of Topping's scores but [illegible] have been toughest try with Greenfield's Kellis Smith, James Bill Walls (83) and Ron Coleman (25) all tugging on H-T runner. Rangers Top Metropolitan All-Leaguers

Champion Hamilton Township picked up six of 22 berths to dominate the 1968 Metropolitan All-League football team announced Monday evening by loop coaches.

The All-League lineup was divided into offensive and defensive units — 11 gridders on each unit.

WEST JEFFERSON and Franklin Heights added five gridders each to the all-loop squad while Dublin and Teays Valley completed the lineup with three spots apiece.

A "surrey with fringe on top" took the bride and groom from the Corpus Christi Church to the St. John's Parish Hall for the reception following the ceremony uniting Miss Cheryl Anne Naegele and Mr. James Cooper.

Miss Cheryl Anne Naegele and James Cooper Wed

Wearing a traditional wedding gown of ivory peau de soi, Miss Cheryl Anne Naegele became the bride of Mr. James Joseph Cooper at a recent ceremony at the Corpus Christi Church with the Rev. Albert V. Kessler officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Naegele, 1277 Wilson Ave., and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson J. Cooper, Sr., 901 Studer.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Naegele carried a cascade of ivory bridal roses and her veil was held by a headpiece of lace and pearls.

Her maid of honor was Miss Kathrine Cooper, sister of the groom and her bridesmaids were the Misses Mariann Shinoskie, Mary Lou Alner and Donna May, with Miss Julianne Naegele acting as junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore American Beauty sheath gowns with matching short veils except the junior bridesmaid who wore an identical dress of pink.

Emerson J. Cooper, Jr., served as best man for his brother and Tom Naegele, Jerry Jenkins and Carl Matyac were ushers.

Following the reception at St. John's Parish Hall, the newly-weds left for their wedding trip at Burr Oak Lodge.

They are now at home in German Village.

'Weirdos' Not Students

If there is anything that lowers the newspaper image, it is one-sided reporting.

The vandals that painted Marion-Franklin after the game may be the same ones who painted up South before the game, DURING CLASSES. They were probably not connected with either school but just "weirdos" out getting their kicks.

DEFENSIVE DRIVING: PART 1

'Self Preservation' Avowed Goal Of Wary Women Who Want To Lengthen The Odds Behind The Wheel

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

(First In A Series)

"Self preservation."

That was the to-the-point answer given by Mrs. Marian Schnetzer, 3270 Polley Rd., when asked why she had enrolled at the Defensive Driving Course at the Hilltop YMCA.

The four two-hour sessions, formulated by the National Safety Council, were presented by the Safety Council of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

Although the course is mandatory for many governmental and industrial employes, Mrs. Schnetzer was a member of the first class in Franklin County with a "For Women Only" sign posted.

Few of us were "spring chickens" and most had learned to drive years ago before Drivers Education was routine in the high schools.

Our teachers had been fathers, brothers, husbands, friends or anyone else willing to risk life and limb, fortified only by a hunch and a prayer.

Two-thirds of us admitted to having been involved in preventable accidents, but we generally pointed the accusing finger at "the other guy."

By graduation day (we're all now card-carrying Defensive Drivers") our confidence in our past prowess was well undermined.

Oh, we were taught that every driver we meet can be safely assumed to be either blind and/or stupid, but more important we learned our own bad driving habits can aid and abet highway slaughter for which we are not legally responsible.

And as officer Don Gallagan, one of the four carefully trained instructors, pointed out, there is little satisfaction in being "legally dead."

With someone dying every 11 minutes in the United States from a traffic accident, getting behind the wheel is potential suicide — or homicide, with the odds even that you will be involved in a fatal or crippling accident during your lifetime.

The lessons given were designed to sugar up these odds, that we may stay alive in spite of the actions of others or adverse driving conditions.

The formula given was a simple one.

See the hazard; understand the defense, and act in time.

These defensive actions range from the simple one of discouraging "tailgating" to the crucial decisions of selecting an "escape route" when a head-on collision is otherwise inevitable.

After graduation, one woman who claims that she is "alive only by the grace of God" (after two bad skids) conceded both accidents would have been preventable if she had been better trained as a driver.

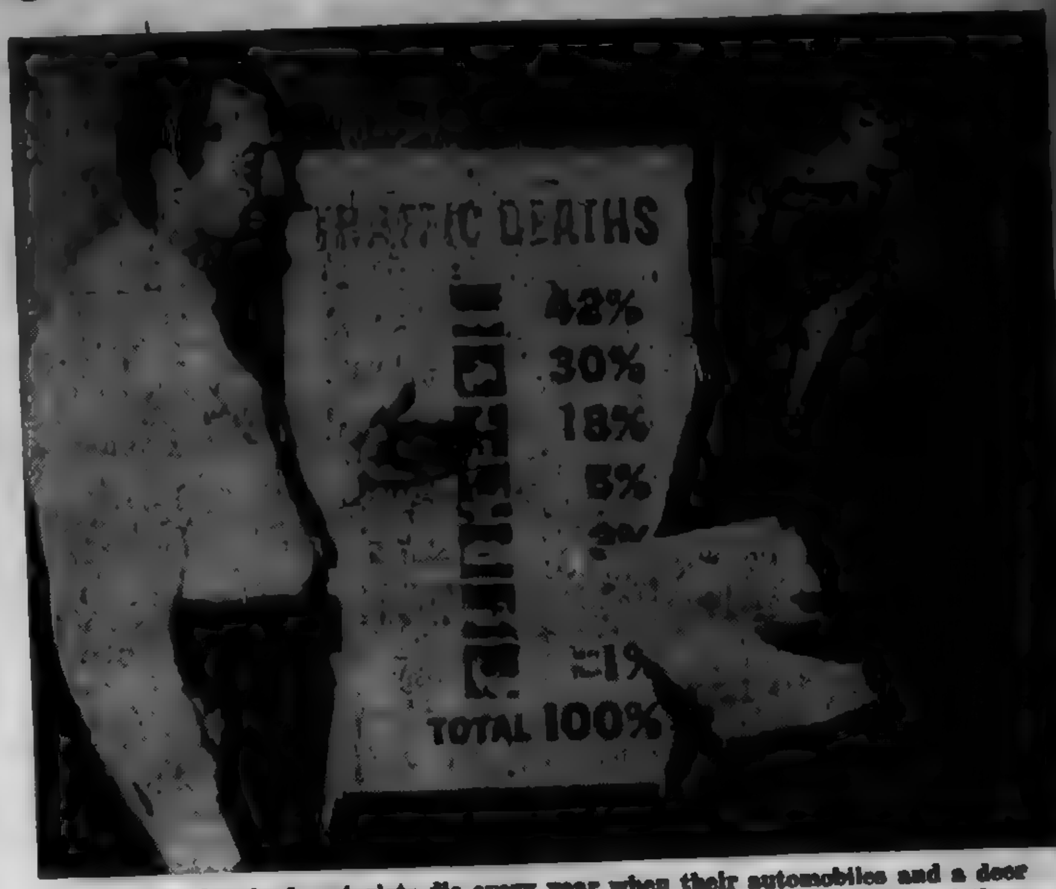
At a Jack Benny-ish age she had been taught by a kid brother.

During the next two weeks we will tell more about this course which is already responsible for saving thousands of lives.

The local Safety Council is ready and eager to repeat the sessions for any taught to drive by a kid brother.

Those interested in setting up such a class should contact Stanley Wolfe, as sistant manager of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce Safety Council, 224-9121.

A call might save your life.



One hundred motorists die every year when their automobiles and a deer collide, and the deer, like all pedestrians, fare even worse, with 120,000 of them coming out a poor second annually. But what is more important is that these accidents, like most of the 50,000 fatalities a year, are preventable. Pointing out some of the statistics during the Defensive Driving Course recently at the Hilltop YMCA are Officer Don Gallaghan of the Columbus Police Department, left, and Stanley Wolfe, assistant manager of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce Safety Council.

ORGANIZATIONAL NEWS

South Central Deanery Sets Conference Nov. 18

The South Central Deanery of the Columbus Diocesan Council of Catholic Women will present an open conference, "Grass Roots Ecumenism," Nov. 18, 7:30 p.m., at St. Philip the Apostle Church, 1573 Elaine Rd.

All women of the deanery are invited.

The program is designed to bring into focus the Decree from Vatican II. It will stress that ecumenism cannot be a fashionable trend, but of necessity must be an action for today's Christian woman.

The conference will open with registration in the church vestibule at 7:30, followed by a guitar Mass sung by the seminarians from the Josephinum Pontifical College.

The program in the school hall will include a choice of two filmstrips, "Foundation for Dialogue" or "The Ecumenical Bit."

An interfaith group will build "God's House Through Dialogue."

Guest speaker of the conference will be Rev. N. H. Vanderwerf from the Metropolitan Area Church Board.

Refreshments and a social hour will complete the conference.

Planning the event are Mrs. Richard F. Randall, deanery church communities commission chairman, Mrs. David Burns, co-chairman, and Mrs. Ray Seipel, president.

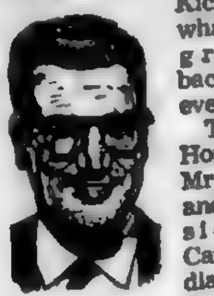
JIM MURRAY

The One Horseman

In all the annals of football, from "Boola, Boola!" to "We're No. 1!" — from Walter Camp to Pete Rozelle, from Alonzo Stagg to Vince Lombardi, Pudge Heffelfinger to Deacon Jones, Grant[illegible] Rice to "Countdown to Kickoff" — what was the greatest backfield you ever say?



MURRAY

The Four Horsemen? Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside? The Carlisle Indians? The Stanford Indians? Hornung? Taylor - Starr - and What's-His-Name?

Carideo - Brill - Schwartz-Savoldi? The Vow Boys? The Praying Colonels?

The Galloping Ghost and blocking Britton? Harmon and Evashevski?

THE BEST backfield I ever saw only weighs 202 pounds from end to end.

It has only one pair of pants.

It's the One Horseman. Mr. Inside, Outside, Onside, Offside, Nearside, Upside, Downside.

GALLOPING Ghost? No.

You can see it all right. It just doesn't do you much good. You can see a cyclone, too.

How is it on blocking? Well, to paraphrase Bob Zuppke, how was Caruso on humming?

IT'S A multiple offense backfield, my backfield is. It can run, pass.

But my backfield is not fancy. Just give it the ball. About 40 times a game.

It has outscored UCLA in the smog, Indiana in the Rose Bowl, Washington in the mud.

IT MAKES the Four Horsemen look as if they were pulling a plow.

It rolled up 1,415 yards last season exclusive of the Rose Bowl. It has totaled 1,047 yards so far this year.

It could score behind the Caltech line.

IT HAS been on the cover of every magazine except National Geographic. It's been on television more than that peacock.

The roll call is real short. One steak a night is enough for it.

It's the economy-sized backfield—a concentrate. It wears number 32.

LOOK UNDER the student body under "S's" and there it is. "Simpson, O. J., Class of '68" (in more ways than one).

What O. J. Simpson does is reduce the Jabberwockian world of football to its elementals.

It's like a Rocky Marciano fight. O. J. just keeps hitting the other fellow until he disappears.

AND, JUST like the Rock, you can block 38 of those punches. But it's the other two that count you out.

You don't have to know about a "Square-out" or a "Zig-in" or a "Post pattern" or a "Counterplay" to watch O. J. play football.

You don't have to know any more about football than President Taft did.

ALL YOU have to do is be able to count. The Flying Wedge is imaginative enough.

With O. J. Simpson in the lineup, Sammy Baugh would have gotten cobwebs. "Mr. Inside" and "Mr. Outside" would have had to learn to block to get a letter.

The USC Trojans have scored 19 touchdowns this year. Simpson has scored 15 of them. They scored 33 last year. O. J. was responsible for 14 of them.

IN THE years at Illinois (20 games), The Galloping Ghost, Red Grange, made 3,637 yards and 31 touchdowns.

In a year and a half at USC (16 games), O. J. has run up over 2,500 yards and 28 touchdowns (31, if you include three he passed for).

He has carried the ball 507 times in a year and a half. (Mike Garrett, another pretty good backfield, holds the school record with 612 carries in three years.)

YOU WOULD think O. J. Simpson would put in for overtime to management but O. J. is as unhappy without the ball as the coaches are to have him.

"You get hit harder as a decoy," he explains. "If I have the ball, I relax."

"Besides," he adds, "I like to meet people."

IMMEDIATELY, thereafter, of course, he says, "Excuse me but I've got to run."

It may be against the rules for O. J. to get the Heisman Trophy. It probably has to be awarded to an individual not a unit. Maybe they can give it to him in triplicate.

If they give it to anyone else, O. J. ought to go over and wash the dog in it. Because he's the best three players I ever saw in one backfield.

IF THEY changed the rules he could probably complete long passes to himself.

Then he'd not only be the best backfield, he'd be the best TEAM I ever saw.

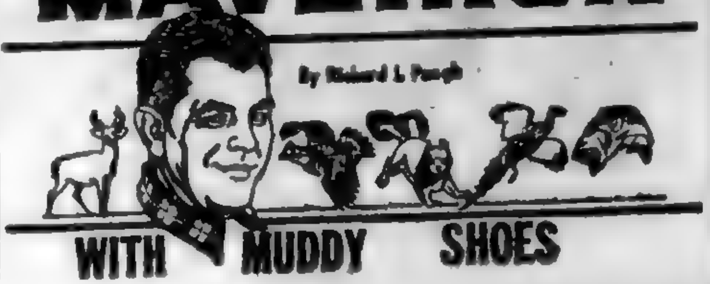
MAVERICK



By Richard L. Pough

WITH MUDDY SHOES

Twice this season complaints have been received at the Division of Wildlife offices pertaining to the closing of hunting lands to hold field trials for hunting dogs.

The first instance concerned the Kildeer Plains Public Hunting Area where there is a Canadian Goose Management Area and the second location was the Zaleski Forest around Lake Hope. The Lake Hope area has been set aside for the first ruffed grouse field trials ever to be held in Ohio.

THE SECOND instance interrupted the squirrel hunting habits of local hunters around Zaleski. Just as in most of our problems today, the basic trouble is a lack of or breakdown in communications.

Apparently, the hunters had no idea their favorite woodlot was going to be posted for part of the season. Either local papers had failed to carry the news or the Division of Wildlife had failed to release the news.

On the other hand, although Chapter 1533 of the Ohio Revised Code states (Section 1533.20) that the Division may hold public field trials on hunting lands, the public was not aware of this permissive code.

NO MATTER what the trouble, native-type hunters had absolutely no right to threaten to set fire to the woods if they couldn't hunt.

Gangland - type attitudes are out of place in the great outdoor. Jail is the only place for anyone so crass as to fire a woodland that took 100 years to grow.

The world has already had too much looting and burning.

THE SUBJECT of special interests having the use of the outdoors is a complex and sorely strained item.

Even though the fishermen are given first preference on Hoover Dam, there is still enough room for the beautiful sailing boats to move freely.

Both fisher and sailor must however, watch out for the other man. Certain days are set aside for races and regattas during which time the areas of water used are off limits to all other craft.

A FISHERMAN trolling and looking back instead of forward could run afoul of a sailboat that is unable to change tack at the last minute.

By the some measure, the pleasure boater and the water skier must keep each other in mind at all times. This did not happen at Griggs Dam last summer.

For just a minute, the skier was down and a boat crossed the tow line, dragging the boy into the whirling props. The boy died and the owner of the boat will live with his memories.

WHETHER YOU are hunting near a field trial area, sailing near a fisherman, boating near a skier or any of dozens of other cross-hatch outdoor endeavors, remember — the other guy not only has a right to pursue his sport but he also expects to live to a ripe old age.

E-M Banquet Nov. 21

Eastmoor High School will honor its 1968 football and cross country squads with a banquet Thursday, Nov. 21 (6:30 p.m.) at the Christ Methodist Church on Zettler Road. Reservations may be made by calling the school office.

Your $1 entry fee in the Heart Fund tourney (based on pins over average in your league) will make a strike against heart disease. Do it now!

Reserve entry time early for the 67th CMBA City Tournament on Feb. 14-Mar. 2 at Amos Lanes. It is expected that the closing date of Jan. 26 will see the largest event yet.

THROUGH the hard work of Peggy Green, Reynoldsburg's AJBC program has doubled in size over last year and proportionately may have one of the largest in Central Ohio. Having only 12 lanes, it has 408 sanctioned juniors.

A committee from the Columbus Bowling Association will go to the Chillicothe Veterans Hospital Dec. 14 to distribute Christmas gifts. Anyone wishing to contribute in some way should contact chairman George Kline (888-0642), the association office (263-3500) or a lane representative.

Another exercise to aid the average:

ARM - STRENGTHENER —Stand erect and hold arms straight out to the sides at shoulder level. Now rotate the arms in tight circles. The diameter of the circle made by your closed fists should be one foot.

As you rotate them, press your arms back as far as they will go. Keep your head up and back. Reverse the circles after 10 or 15 seconds. Begin with about 30 rotations, go to 50, then 80.

Madison, Wisc., will host its first ABC tournament in 1969. The 66th annual national championships will run from Feb. 22 through Apr. 29 at the Dane County Memorial Coliseum in Wisconsin's capital city.

AN IMPORTANT new ABC rule requires that any bowler with an average of 190 or less must submit himself for rerating, and be rerated, if his accumulated average in not less than 21 tournament games during the immediately preceeding 12 months exceeds his high league average by 10 or more pins.

He must do the same when he exceeds his high league average by 15 or more pins in each of five tournaments during the same time period, counting only his high series in each tournament.

We'll bet that this season:

TOO MANY bowlers will agree to serving as league officers because of the prestige and give no thought to the obligations.

Too many bowlers will show little regard for fellow bowlers by remaining at the foul line and making elaborate gestures after having delivered the ball.

And . . . most bowlers will continue to bowl because it is fun — not because they expect to get a big prize check.

WORSHIP IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Strategy

It's Tim's move, and he is taking a long time thinking it over. In chess, if you're a good player, you don't play quickly. If you do, your opponent may outwit you.

Military strategy, they say, is based on the rules of chess. So are many of the "higher games" in business and finance. Yet, when it comes to life itself, the rules of chess apply in only a limited way. In life, you can't be totally objective. You can't exist on logic alone.

The Church teaches that though we surely need logic in order to live successfully, we also need compassion, tolerance, love, understanding, and the strength that comes with faith.

Although life is not a game, we must have the help and strength of the Church to discover those rules that will determine our ultimate destiny.

New Party Convention Opens Here

The first convention of the newly-formed New Party of Ohio will be held in Columbus Nov. 16-17.

The New Party is comprised mainly of those dissatisfied with present policies of either the Republican or Democratic parties.

Issues which the New Party is concerned about are world peace, racism, poverty and the disenchantment of young people.

A spokesman for the political group said: "This will be an open convention, and all who are concerned with developing a new political approach toward the solution of these pressing problems are invited to attend."

Temporary chairman of the New Party is Dr. Richard E. Stafford, an OSU professor who ran for congressional office in the 15th District.

Construction Possible At State Hospital

Columbus State Hospital may be part of an "ongoing construction program" because Ohio voters approved State Issue One.

Director Martin Janis of the State Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction said possible projections at the hospital include a 100-bed juvenile psychiatric hospital and a geriatric research and care unit.

"But these are only part of the facilities we feel are needed," Janis intimated. "There are others."

Janis added that any figure related to possible construction would depend on the final plan presented.

While noting that State Issue One was for capital improvements, Janis intimated that this might also entail "better utilization of existing staff."

Asked about possible staff increases, Janis said: "Our problem has been relating modern treatment to outdated structures." He added that personnel practices were part of regular operational procedures.

While no construction schedules have yet been set, it is estimated between $120 million and $220 million could be made available for construction. The actual amount will depend upon legislative decisions.

State Hospital Superintendent Lowell O. Dillon submitted the plans of hospital objectives initially.

Meanwhile, teams of specialists from various fields wil' begin inspections of state facilities the first part of December. The completed institutional plans will be utilized as guidelines for improvements and expanded prog[illegible]

While not spelling out personnel needs at the state hospital, Janis Monday said his department his its own personnel problem. In the Mental Hygiene division there usually are 400 to 600 unfilled positions at all times.

Janis said he was uncertain how extensive capital improvements will be at the state hospital.

Columbus Careers Program On Tap

A progress report on plans for the third annual Columbus Careers Conference will be given Wednesday, Nov. 20, at a kickoff luncheon for companies and organizations that will take part in the 1968 conference.

Approximately 100 personnel representatives are expected at the noon luncheon at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel.

The Careers Conference—which provides college graduates with a showcase of job opportunities in Metropolitan Columbus—will be held at the Sheraton Dec. 26-28, when most college students will be home for the holidays.

All Franklin County area college students who will complete their college educations by Jan. 31, 1970, are eligible to apply for any number of job interviews at the conference. There is no fee or obligation of any kind for students.

John Scott of the Huntington National Bank, chairman of the Careers Conference, will preside at the Nov. 20 luncheon.

Jack Burnett of Lazarus and Ron Castell of the City National Bank will give brief talks at the luncheon. Both are members of the Careers Conference committee as are Ray Mason and Louis Fabro of Nationwide Mutual and John Palmquist of Western Electric.

Scott said this year's Careers Conference promises to be the largest to date as far as participating companies and organizations are concerned. He said over 50 will give job interviews at the conference.

The first conference in 1966 drew 37 participating employers.

The Careers Conference is sponsored by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce. The Eastern Kiwanis Club and the Delta Sigma Pi Commerce Fraternity of Ohio State University will help run this year's conference.

Here are 7 reasons why GAS heat is best.

(without even mentioning economy!)

- Cleanliness
- Fresh air circulating heat
- Dependability
- Convenience
- Even, whole-house heat
- Quick, precise heat
- Safety

So you can see why more than nine out of ten homes around here are heated with Gas. Not to mention all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

Welcome Legionnaires

Salute To The American Legion

50TH Anniversary

AMERICAN LEGION US

1919 — 1969

The American Legion is celebrating its 50th Anniversary—50 years of service not only to American veterans but also to the nation, to each of the 50 states and to the thousands of cities and towns where Legionnaires live and work.

The Legion is more than just the world's largest veterans group. Its 2.6 million members in 16,300 posts here and abroad are dedicated to community service at the local level. Each individual post works to improve the community in which it is located and the Legion as a whole works on the national level for what it considers valuable improvements in the law.

Most well-known are the Legion's contributions to veterans — particularly through the Legion-sponsored G. I. Bill of Rights and work in veterans hospitals. It works constantly to improve the lot of veterans who for reasons of age or illness are unable to support themselves and to help families left without husbands and fathers because of war. But the contributions go further than that, in areas such as child welfare, support of Boy Scout units, sponsorship of American Legion Baseball, the various Boys State and Boys Nation programs and the National High School Oratorical Contest.

Now, after 50 years of growth, the Legion takes time to look back and rededicate itself to service to its country.

Top-Ranked Bears Headed '68 FB Book

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Although Upper Arlington's second consecutive ranking as the number one high school grid team in the state gained the nod as the most significant "happening" during this late '68 football season, several other notable items came to the fore.

For instance, "rags-to-riches" success stories for Worthington and Hamilton Township — newly crowned champions of their respective leagues.

THE CENTRAL Catholic League found a new champion in DeSales — Watterson's Eagles deposed from the CCL title chambers for the first time in recent loop history.

But little could really overshadow the effort of Marv Moorehead's Golden Bears who piled up a gaudy 527 (52.5 per game) to 80 (8 per game) point advantage on 10 foes which represented the toughest schedule in UA history.

Total offense was a staggering 5052 (3522 rushing for 6.6 yds. per carry) with quarterback Ted McNulty accounting for a fantastic 2244 (passing and rushing) total himself.

NO OTHER area team managed to close without loss — although five squads (Eastmoor, Gahanna-Lincoln, Marion-Franklin, Worthington and Linden) came close with only a single setback.

"Comeback" effort of the season belonged to Worthington and new coach Bob "Smokey" Wion who reversed a 2-7-1 '67 finish with a glistening 8-1 account and an Ohio Capital Conference title share.

Arlington pushed its winning skein to 20 (has won 48 of last 49) while Eastmoor saw its string of 23 snapped by City co-champion Linden.

OTHER teams getting a head start on winning streaks of their own for next season included Grove City, Marion-Franklin and Linden (seven-in-a-row), DeSales (six straight) and Worthington and Eastmoor (five straight).

Longest losing strings belong to Pleasant View (0-11) and Brookhaven (0-10).

It was a bad year for defending champions with none able to repeat.

MARION-FRANKLIN ended a four-year "bridesmaid" role by sharing the City title with Linden (Eastmoor and Walnut Ridge were defending co-champs).

DeSales replaced Watterson at the top of the CCL while Hamilton Township (Metro), London (Mid-Eight), Arlington (Central Ohio) and Worthington and Gahanna (OCC) gained titles in leagues with new alignments.

Bruce Burnham's Hamilton Township Rangers, incidentally, compiled the most enviable defensive record—blanking seven-of-10 foes and allowing an eighth one TD.

IN MAIDEN varsity seasons, newcomers Wehrle (4-4-1) and Mohawk (3-6) found the competition tough—neither able to gain a league victory.

How did 10 new coaches fare in '68 debuts?

Not too well — 41-48-3 — with only Worthington's Wion and Hamilton's Burnham showing banner efforts.

AGAINST non-league teams, five area leagues showed the following W-L marks: Ohio Capital Conference — 10-4; Metropolitan League—17-10; Central Catholic—16-10-1; City League—12-22-1 and Mid-Eight League—3-10.

The CCL regained a slight nudge of superiority over City League members (7-6-1) after showing a 5-7 deficit in 1967.

That brings us down to "Fearless" — The Spectator's figity forecaster of high school games.

THE "FEARLESS One" cranked up a 162-37 finish (for an admirable .815 percentage) as compared to 162-52 account in 1967.

"Fearless" was not nearly so accurate in selecting league winners — tapping Eastmoor (finished second) in the City, Watterson (finished second) in the CCL, West Jefferson (finished second) in the Metro and Whitehall, Delaware and Reynoldsburg (latter was second) in the OCC.

The Spectator seer salvaged some little respect by correctly naming London in the Mid-Eight circuit.

'TROTTERS TO VISIT

Meadowlark Lemon will be just one of the Harlem Globetrotters to make a court appearance when the zany cagers visit the Fairgrounds Coliseum Saturday.

EASTLAND VIKING JUNIORS FINISH 6-0

The junior team of the 1968 Eastland Vikings recently completed their league season with an unblemished 6-0 mark. The Junior Vikings, coached by Don Herold, were paced offensively by 10-year-old quarterback Scott Arnett (completed 21-of-28 passes for 75 percent accuracy) and leading scorer Mike Herold (44 points) who alternated between halfback and end positions. The stingy Eastland defense (allowed less than six pts. per game) was led by Dan Floyd, Scott Crable, Scott Holderle, Sheldon Flemming, Bob Beck, Kevin Byrd, Brad Alexander, Jeff Rochey, Jerry Chambers, Herold and Arnett.

Checkers Play Toledo Friday On Home Ice

The Columbus Checkers will play three home games within the next eight-day period of their International Hockey League schedule.

The Chex host Toledo tomorrow, Port Huron Wednesday and Dayton a week from tomorrow. All games begin at 8 p.m. at the locals Fairground Coliseum rink.

'Highlights'

By HARMON

The new top-dog in the Harmon ratings . . . or, "Old Top-Dog Returned" . . . is Southern California.

Winning their most convincing game in four weeks, the Trojans (by walloping California) moved back into the Number One position.

SO . . . THE two remaining undefeated teams in Pacific Coast Conference play battle for what will probably mean title and bowl rights. Sixteenth-ranked Oregon State will be only a six-point underdog to Southern Cal.

And ninth-ranked Auburn, sitting by itself atop the Southeast Conference, gets anything but a breather after its big upset of Tennessee last week. The Tigers catch the Bulldogs of Georgia, ranked in the Number Seven spot.

Georgia will take over the league lead, beating Auburn by five points.

NO LONGER riding the crest after a real scorcher against Oklahoma, the Jayhawks of Kansas dropped to sixth in the rankings this week. With the Big Eight show-down coming up next week against Missouri, Kansas should breeze to a 25-point win over Kansas State Saturday.

Also looking ahead to a conference title match a week away with Michigan, second-ranked Ohio State runs into a much-improved Iowa Hawkeye team.

Two-legged Wolverines may be on Buckeye minds, but Iowa comes first. Ohio State will win by 10.

THE 12th-rated Wolverines may bury the Badgers of Wisconsin . . . the spread is 32 points.

Three of the four leaders in that jam-up at the top of the Southwest Conference will continue to lead . . one just has to lose. Third-ranked Texas will club Texas Christian by 17 points . . . unranked Texas Tech is favored over Baylor by 13 . . . and 20th-rated SMU is just a three-point underdog to 15th-ranked Arkansas.

Very rough tea-party in Big 8 — and it's being planned by the 14th ranked Oklahoma Sooners, upsetters of Kansas last week, in honor of fourth-ranked Missouri. The Mizzou Tigers are favored — but only by five points.

NOTRE DAME, still staying just outside the top ten (in 11th) will ramble fairly well against Georgia Tech, winning by 27 points. Penn State, moved to fifth, will finally get a slight breather . . . Maryland is a 26-point underdog to the Nittany Lions.

In the mis-match of the day, eighth-ranked Houston will probably destroy Idaho a bit . . . the difference is 40 point.

And 13-rated Purdue, bitten by Gophers last Saturday, should top Michigan State by six points. Tenth-ranked Tennessee will tip Ole' Miss by 11.

Kitsmiller Vs. Berwick For Flag Title Sunday

Kitsmiller Motors (9-1, Eastern Division champ) meets Berwick Party House (7-2-1, Western Division king) Sunday (1:30 p.m.) at Wolfe Park in the 1968 Columbus Flag Football League championship game.

Berwick (handed Kitsmiller its lone setback two weeks ago) and the Motormen warmed up for the title clash last weekend with finale victories — the Western leaders dropping winless Local 189 (32-12), the Eastern kings coming back to nip Franklin Sports (25-13).

IN THE other CTFL finale, Bell-Haven's Big Red crushed Bon-Aire Lounge, 39-14.

JOE BIDDLE'S short TD run and 19-yd. scoring pass to Bill Hummer kept Kitsmiller on the ropes with a 13-6 deficit through three periods Sunday before the Motormen solved Franklin's defense for 19 fourth-period points and victory.

Ken Ramsey and Larry Cornell teamed offensively to pace Kitsmiller's win — the former hitting on 15-of-26 aerials for 259 yds. and three TDs, the latter picking off six passes for 121 yds., two TDs and a league record of [illegible] receptions for the campaign.

Ramsey also rushed for 141 yds. (one TD) and hit Dean [illegible] with his other scoring strike.

KAYE THOMPSON, Gene Harper and Bill Ricker paced a determined Kitsmiller defense which limited Franklin to 147 yds. total offense.

Hummer (six catches worth 121 yds.) and Biddle (5-of-15 aerials for 142 yds.) paced the Franklin attack.

Berwick, despite the absence of regular quarterback Jake Spahr, had little trouble subduing Local 189 with Cliff Allen (134 yds. rushing) and Tom Yinger (94 yds. rushing) setting the offensive pace.

ALLEN SCORED twice (58, run and 24-yd. pass from Yinger) while Yinger (44, run), Bob Montenya (5, run) and John Magaw (16, pass from Miller) supplied other Berwick [illegible].

Jack Haut and Bob M[illegible] were defensive standouts for [illegible] while Ted Dicke, Dick Bal[illegible] [illegible] scored TD) and Tom M[illegible] (three receptions for 74 yds.) paced the losers.

QB Gerry Martin's aerial artistry (17-of-30 passes for 270 yds. and three TDs) paced the Big Red victory over Bon-Aire.

MARTIN HIT Paul Sells (17, 32 yds.) and Bruce Smith (42 yds.) for the six-pointers besides running for a fourth tally.

Nick Cooper (58-yd. pass interception return) and Paul Hufnagel chipped in with the other Bell-Haven scores.

Bob Geer (3, run) and Bill [illegible] (78, pass from Geer) took care of Bon-Aire scoring.

THE BIG RED defense (paced by Cooper, Hufnagel, Adams, Bill Jeffery and Gary Mattevi) limited the losers to 106 yds. total offense (only three rushing).

After Bell-Haven dropped its first three '68 games, the Big Red rallied for a 5-1-1 mark to complete the season.

'Berg To Battle Fields In CTFL Title Rematch

The Columbus Touch Football League's final Sunday of play will feature a replay of last year's championship finale with undefeated and defending champ Fields Brothers (9-0) battling once-beaten Heidelberg (8-1).

Game time (at Southview Field) will be 1:45 p.m.

THE RUNNER-UP Bowl (precedes the title game) will match Remo's Inn (8-1) and Craig Realty (6-2-1).

All award presentations will be made following the championship game with "Hopalong" Cassady, Vic Janowicz, Bill Willis, Elbert Dubenion, Mike Dorrian and the Lockbourne AFB Commander among those in attendance.

The CTFL All-Star game has been scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 24 (noon, at Southview) with Scarlet Conference mentors Ron Cornett (Harley-Davidson) and Larry Znamenacek (LAFB) opposing Gray Conference coaches Doug Otto (Remo's) and John Moore (Moore's Painting).

FIELDS CAME alive in the final quarter with two touchdowns and a superb defensive effort to foreclose on Craig Realty, Sunday, 24-8.

Ron Porter's eight-yard snatch from Tom Fulleve drew first blood and a Fulleve-to-Bill Johnson conversion made the count 8-0 with six minutes left in first period.

Craig's outstanding linebacker Herman Reeves put the Realtors in contention by racing 47 yards with an intercepted Fulleve pass for six. Eddie Parks' extra point pass to Alonza Godfrey tied the score at 8-8 just before the half.

AFTER A SCORELESS third quarter with bone-jarring defensive play in evidence, Fields started to move with Bill Johnson at the control. Mike Grady took a two-yard toss for six and a Johnson-to-Dick Evans conversion made the score 16-8 [illegible].

The "Brothers" came storming back after a punt exchange to put the game on ice with Bixie Byrd scoring on an 18-yard pass from Johnson.

North Heidelberg's John Pond found the range for three TD's in a see-saw 28-14 win over previously-unbeaten Remo's Inn.

POND TOSSED 73 yards to brother Tim for six and connected to Tom McGarity for 43 and Joe Hill for one yard TD's.

Heidelberg was down, 14-6, at the half but a big third quarter 14 pts. was the deciding factor.

Remo's had the ball on its own 31 as the game ended but in the second half was shut off completely by the 'Berg defense.

TONY PECKO scored both Remo's TD's on seven and 13-yd. tosses from Carl Cron but couldn't shake free during the final half.

Furniture

Save $100.00 on our better living room or bedroom suites at Hazletts.

You can buy better quality furniture at the price you would usually pay for low grade.

Save 30% to 40%. HOW? We have no fine expensive buildings, we are not on Main St., but we do have over 25,000 sq. ft. of floor space jammed with brand name furniture. WHERE? Drive 16 mi. out East Broad or 3 mi. north of Etna on Rt. 40 to PATASKALA—come to George St. at south end of town (do not confuse us with the furniture store near RR tracks). Remember the name HAZLETTS. We are proud of our reputation for 1967 the past 8 years.

When You Buy At Chevington Woods You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of. Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with having natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Whatever on earth you're looking for — you'll find it at CHEVINGTON WOODS.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

GOODWILL AUXILIARY

[illegible]ristmas Sparkle" in your holiday decorations will be the theme of the program by a home economist from the lighting department of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company at the Tuesday, Nov. 19, meeting of the Auxiliary to the Columbus Goodwill Industries.

The meeting will be preceded by the traditional turkey dinner with all the trimmings at 12:30 p.m., at the Goodwill Industries Building, 1331 Edgehill Rd.

'YW' WIVES

"A Woman for All Seasons" is the theme of the "Happening" at the YWCA, 65 S. Fourth St., Monday, Nov. 18, 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., sponsored by the YW Wives of the YWCA. Reservation deadline is Nov. 14. All women are invited.

The program features "A Time to Think, Talk and Ask Questions about 'Being a Female Being'" with Dr. Walter Kania, psychologist, Mansfield Campus, Ohio State University and Dr. William E. Schamaden, gynecologist, Mansfield.

"A Time To Be a 'Many Splendored Woman'" will be presented by Dr. Melvin Vulgamore, assistant professor of Religion, Ohio Wesleyan University.

Other program activities will be "A Time to Taste," "A Time to Touch," "A Time to Eat and Make a Friend," which includes a buffet luncheon and "four-way" conversations, and "A Time to Listen and Make Music." The day will close with "A Time to Depart."

The YW Wives are a group of young women who meet at the six YWCA Center for varied programs throughout the year. This program, sponsored by the groups, provides an opportunity to present an unusual day and to invite women of the community to share in the day.

The committee is comprised of Mrs. Herman Cooper, Mrs. Jack Edmonds, Mrs. Ray Cavendish, Mrs. Samuel Wendt, Ruth Shollenbarger, Mrs. Henry Jaggers, Mrs. Richard L. Mohr, Mrs. Robert Rinehart and Mrs. Ray Wagner.

Ad Clinic Set Nov. 22 At Neil House

"Which Way Advertising — Creative or Marketing?" is the question open for discussion at an advertising clinic being sponsored Friday, Nov. 22, by the Advertising Club of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

The day-long clinic, which opens with a 9 a.m. continental breakfast at the Neil House will feature national speakers from the advertising field.

Robert Sowers, vice president and management supervisor for Ogilvy and Mather, Inc., New York, will be the featured speaker at the luncheon.

Registrations for the entire clinic and reservations for the luncheon only are being handled by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

CROSS TOWN

Army Offering Delayed Entry Program Here

Sgt. Louis S. Bartlett, local Army recruiter, states that the Army is again offering young men the opportunity to enlist in the Army now but not leave for active duty until after the holidays.

Called the Delayed Entry Program, qualified young men may enlist in the Army Reserve in an inactive status for up to 120 days and remain at home for the holidays.

Sgt. Bartlett also stated that the "welcome mat" was out for prior servicemen who are qualified in any number of separate specialties.

For information about the Delayed Entry Program or re-enlistment, call Sgt. Bartlett at 469-5538.

More Patrol Duty Slated

A concern for the rising number of highway fatalities over weekend periods has prompted extra volunteer duty by members of the Ohio State Highway Patrol.

Patrol Superintendent Robert Chiaramonte pointed out that this effort is placing some 975 men on patrol on Ohio's rural highway system.

"While some people may be quick to criticize law enforcement officers," Chiaramonte said, "these same people are generally willing to recognize favorably any man or group that goes a little beyond the normal call of duty."

NEW APPROACH BEING DEVELOPED: PART I

'Soul-Searching' Needed On Open Housing

> "The Metro Fair Housing Center is the beginning of a new era of history in affording equal opportunity in housing for all citizens."
> (Colorado Gov. John Love)

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on open housing in the Columbus area. Residential patterns and statistics demonstrate that — whatever the reason — open housing is not yet a reality. This series will focus on one new alternative — a fair housing center — as a possible means to solving problems).

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Despite open housing efforts by legal; business and civil rights groups, there are still many advocates of "democracy in housing" who feel blacks are being denied the right to live where they want in the Columbus area.

Ask these advocates why—after federal legislation, the involvement of private enterprise and open housing policy pronouncements from realtor boards—and they usually will cite community apathy, the hostility of white minority groups, the inability of lower income blacks to afford integrated housing or fear of reprisals.

Mrs. Ralph Kehr, a member of the Columbus Civil Rights Council who has been actively supporting fair housing, explains why she feels progress has not come.

"IT IS STILL the system. Some people still capitalize on prejudice. People will pay taxes for the ghetto and inner city education. But open housing doesn't cost a thing."

Attempting to explain why she thinks open housing has not changed drastically in three years, Mrs. Kehr says, "it is easier to appeal to hate and fear than to justice." She wonders why groups who should be concerned about fair housing are not "backing up their beliefs with funds in Columbus."

For those who have been the targets of housing discrimination — whose attempts have met with delaying tactics and innuendoes — there is something offensive in statements declaring that the age of housing discrimination is over. They know it is not.

How would any man react if he were told he could vote or die in Vietnam — but not live next door? Or told he could pay property tax, but not live on the property he chooses.

REACTION TO open housing advocates sometimes borders on frustration. Some argue that a private citizen has the moral right to do with his property what he wants. And when someone begins talking about fair housing, they are apt to throw up their hands in disbelief. "Oh, no, not that again," is a common cry.

Many Americans appear emotionally tired, sick of urban problems. This attitude holds true in the ghetto as well as in the suburbs.

These feelings may point not only to an excess amount of talk about such problems, but also to the fact that solutions have not come.

A Case In Point

There has been little data available in this area on actual attitudes of more affluent homeowners regarding integration of their community.

A recent survey exploring attitudes of homeowners in Upper Arlington concerning open housing turned up a few surprises, the most interesting indicating that only a "substantial minority" oppose integration.

While approximately 68 per cent of Upper Arlington residents participating in the survey related they would treat a Negro just as anyone else moving next door, what these same residents thought their neighbors believed revealed a strange paradox.

Residents tended to believe the level of opposition in their neighborhood to integration was higher than the survey actually showed. Most thought 50 percent or more would be opposed.

THIS DISPARITY backs up some contentions of fair housing advocates, who say that communities in reality support open housing but are either unknowing or afraid of neighborhood reaction.

The survey, completed by OSU pollsters Prof. James F. Engel and Associate Prof. Roger D. Blackwell of the department of business organization, was written up in an October Bureau of Business Research Bulletin.

The statistical survey—compiled from 385 questionnaires received during a random selection—showed 11 percent opposing a Negro moving next door, 12 percent refusing to answer and 8.8 percent saying they would go out of their way to welcome a Negro in the community.

The article continued: "Intgration has been a subject of continuing hot debate, with publicly stated opinions polarizing at the positive or negative extremes. As of summer, 1968, integration had not yet occurred, although many in the community were actively seeking to bring this about."

Why was there opposition to integration?

"One of the most widely quoted reasons given by those opposing integration was that a majority of the residents would strongly object. This opinion has deterred community leaders from taking positive action to bring about integration. Realtors, in particular, are understandably reluctant to sell a house to a Negro if, indeed, most neighbors would react negatively."

Engel and Blackwell concluded that a majority of residents of this suburb would treat a Negro businessman or professional as they treat any neighbor, but a sizable minority oppose integration.

Finding New Solutions

Government involvement and laws are steps on the way to an integrated society. But they are not the final answer to providing free access to housing.

THOSE ENGAGED in open housing drives point out that closed housing operates on two levels — the institutional and the attitudinal. The institutional form of closed housing involves the whole system; it is the structures which block fair housing progress. Attitudinal levels develop from people's opinions, fear, ignorance and prejudice remain powerful tools in thwarting free access to home and apartments by minority groups.

On the institutional level, legal means to block discrimination appear the most effective. But thwarting discriminatory practices legally often involves time and money. And while a case is being studied and prepared, those who have been discriminated against are left out in the open.

A NEW APPROACH to open housing, however, is being attempted elsewhere.

Mrs. Kehr explains how the Columbus Civil Rights Council began to toy with this new approach, which has been utilized in other American cities.

"About two-and-a-half years ago we began to do some soul-searching on open housing. It occurred to us that open housing was not being touched by any agencies and we wondered why. We felt we should touch it."

At first, she explained, members decided to work in their own areas, from Bexley to Worthington.

In the course of their involvement, group members began to realize there was not a central office to take up open housing concerns and coordinate them. "All our frustrations reinforced the idea of such a center," she said. "We also wondered why the city of Columbus didn't take the leadership."

WHAT IS an open housing center and how does it operate?

Basically, as envisioned in other cities, the housing center provides tangible services to members of the community. It provides a positive way to implement fair housing laws throughout the metropolitan area.

The center provides information on housing to all concerned and assists families, regardless of race, who want to live in an integrated community.

On the institutional level, the center finds desirable homes or apartments suitable to an individual's income level and needs. On the attitudinal level, the center provides speakers, panels, pamphlets and other information on fair housing.

Madison Seeks Key To $340,000 Puzzle

The Madison Local School Board and administrators are hoping for a full house when they meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Junior High School.

The main topic on the agenda will be how the schools can be operated if the proposed 8.5 mill operating levy goes down again at the special election slated for Dec. 10.

ACCORDING to Phil Williams, superintendent, without the $340,000 anticipated income from the levy there must be some drastic cutbacks in the budget.

If these curtailments become necessary, the board wants to make them in the areas that will be least objectionable to the parents and least damaging to the program.

This week he is working overtime to come up with the dollar and cents savings that can be realized in a number of cuts so the public can evaluate the alternatives that exist.

HIS PRELIMINARY paper work reported at presstime has already convinced him that penny-ante action won't do the job.

For example, stopping noon kindergarten transportation after Jan. 1 would actually result in a net loss to the District of $855 through the sacrifice of State Foundation funds.

And even through an alarming move such as the reduction of teaching staff by 28 (the number for which the District is not reimbursed) next fall (contracts must be honored,) the board can save only about $56.000 or less than 17 per cent of the amount that will have to be trimmed if the levy fails.

C-W Views Levy Loss, Parking

In a brief session this week, Canal Winchester Council faced the fact that failure of the two-mill street levy at the November election necessitates cutbacks in the 1969 appropriations.

These economies will be necessary even if the levy should be successfully resubmitted at the May primaries as no tax money would be realized until 1970.

ALTHOUGH ERNIE Von Schriltz indicated the margin of defeat was small enough (about 150 votes) to lead to the hope the levy might gain approval in May, the matter was tabled for the present.

Another matter was temporarily shelved when the subject of enforcement of the two-hour downtown parking limit was sent to the safety committee for further study.

According to Police Chief Kenny Griffiths, 33 parking citations had been issued when Mayor Mike Miller presided at the most recent Mayor's Court.

CHARGES WERE dismissed for those who appeared and no contempt-of-court charges issued against those who did not appear. (He conceded such action would hardly be appropriate when a $2 fine is involved.)

Legislation enacted included renewal of a right-of-way contract with the South Central Power Co. for a 25-year period.

Community Worship Set

Community Thanksgiving service will be held at the Groveport Elementary Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26.

The Rev. John N. Bice of the Asubury Methodist Church will give the sermon for the ecumenical worship conducted by the Groveport Ministerial Association, with the other ministers of the Groveport area participating.

The Thanksgiving offering will be sent to the Church Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Mrs. Betty Klamfoth, clerk of Canal Winchester Schools, is shown as she posts possible reductions in 1969 appropriations that must be considered if the operating levy fails next month. Standing is Supt. Carl Miller and seated, Sheldon Burtner of the school board. It was recognized that some economies endanger the accredidation of the school. For example, the state requires a guidance counselor for each 400 junior and senior high students and the suggested library expenditure of $500 is about half that required to meet Ohio minimums for a school of Canal's size.

Anne Leatherwood To Resign As Clerk

Mrs. Anne Leatherwood advised Ashville Council Monday night of her intention to resign her position as village clerk-treasurer late in the spring.

Her decision was made because of Mrs. Leatherwood's summertime responsibilities at the swimming pool operated by herself and her husband during the summer months and their plans to spend much of the winter in the South.

MAYOR HAROLD Hartley and council members were appreciative of the clerk's advance notice of her plans which enables them to look for a replacement without undue haste.

A logical appointee to fulfill the unexpired term which runs through 1972 is Dick Cook, who formerly functioned with commendable efficiency in the post prior to his resignation several years ago.

However, although he has helped in emergencies since then (he pinch hit only last month while Mrs. Leatherwood was out of town), he has indicated he does not have the time the job requires.

THE POSITION pays $1,800 with the salary carried by both the General Fund and the Water Board.

Mrs. Leatherwood has expressed a willingness to break in her successor.

A change in heart of Roy Metler, veteran street employe, resulted in council's tabling plans to hire a new man, although several persons (including Fire Chief Don Thompson) have been interviewed recently.

METLER previously announced he would resign if he were expected to study and train to enable his utilization as a back-up man for Steve Cooke, water superintendent.

Metler apparently has lost his aversion to additional responsibilities and, at least for the present, the job is his.

With peace restored, Solicitor Dave Kraft will be instructed to draw up an ordinance to provide Metler with a 30 cent an hour raise.

OTHER BUSINESS included the final reading of the new ordinance governing water rates for both village and non-resident customers.

Mike Misko Commended By GEICO

Michael J. "Mike" Misko, 3645 Torwood Rd., was one of the five leading producers honored by officers and managers of the Government Employees Insurance Companies of Washington, D. C., at a sales seminar held recently in Biloxi, Miss.

Commended for total production marketing the full range of finance and insurance offered by GEICO, Misko was also lauded for his participation in Groveport area community activities, including active membership in the Groveport Businessmen's Association.

Misko manages the GEICO and Affiliates offices at 637 Main St., Groveport, and in Fairborn, near Dayton.

CANAL TAXPAYERS ASK:

WHAT MUST GO IF LEVY FAILS?

Canal Winchester School District taxpayers are apparently at last "shook up" by the gravity of the financial problems faced in the schools.

This was indicated when 75 persons showed up Monday night to review the situation with the board and administration.

Purpose of the meeting was two-fold, with the effort made to explain the predicament and to weigh budget cuts that will be mandatory if the 6.6 mill operating levy again fails at the Dec. 10 election.

BOARD PRESIDENT Robert High explained that the real problem is not a local one, but stems from the tremendous inequities resulting when the local tax base provides 56 per cent of school support.

Stating that to operate at the same level during 1969 as 1968 will require $560,000, he reiterated the fact made clear last week—that this expenditure is $46,000 in excess of anticipated income.

High also depicted the constant pattern of spiraling costs experienced during the last five years, attributable to inflation and the salary improvements demanded by Senate Bill 350 that went into effect last year.

COMPARATIVE costs listed are: 1965, $411,000; 1966, $445,000; 1967, $473,000; 1968, $538,000 and 1969 (estimated) $560,000.

Supt. Carl Miller then went over the budget, showing it is possible to trim the budget by $33,950 with cuts in supplies, maintenance, text and library books, substitute teacher salaries, field trips and replacemnet equipment.

HE NEXT suggested several other areas that offer a possible reduction in the outflow of funds.

THESE INCLUDED eliminating the salaries of three teachers, the guidance counselor, the coaching staff, advisors to plays, musicals, the year book and cheerleaders, one custodian and the cost of several other school services.

With these economies coupled with those first suggested representing cutbacks $5,000 in excess of what will be demanded if the levy fails, Miller indicated the board could pick and choose among them.

At this point, the questions and views of the audience were heard.

WINK BARNHART of Marcy asked for a breakdown in the $507,493.78 that is budgeted for salaries, learning that the schedule starting degreed teachers at $5,500 is below the county average.

Particularly interesting was the presentation by Robert Rager of the board of a paper suggesting cutbacks varying, in a number of instances, from those proposed by Miller.

Perhaps the one meriting the most serious consideration was one involving rerouting of the buses.

HE CONTENDS that money can be saved by starting all grades at the same time with students living on the perimeter of the district brought to school early to await the arrival of those picked up on second and shorter routes.

He also recommended use of students as substitute teachers and as elementary clerk, cutting the custodial staff from five to three with students employed as part-time janitors, and transfer of administrative offices back to the main building.

(This last suggestion had been introduced by Miller, but not enthusiastically with the net savings estimated at only $300 annually).

LEARNING THAT it is illegal to appropriate money from the athletic funds for coaching salaries, Rager conceded his proposal on that matter was a bad idea.

Although there appeared to be some resentment of Rager's stand as one indicating lack of board unity, Glenn Lackey defended his action as commendable.

Referring to the relatively large number of persons there, he stated, "at least he has gotten people interested."

LACKEY FURTHER stated that, as a farmer to whom success of the levy would mean a $350 increase in taxes, he has not determined yet whether he could afford the bill.

Dick Hummell was one of those speaking firmly in support of the levy, with the belief that education is "cheap at half the price."

He based his stand on the educational experiences of his children in another district where an austerity program was followed for five years.

A SECOND public meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Council Hits Out At SSS House

"We as members of the Council of South Side Organizations feel it is about time the program there (South Side Settlement) be changed to one of a more affirmatiive nature for the good of the students participating in their programs."

With these words, long-brewing differences between philosophies of the CSSO and the Settlement House came to light this week.

THEY WERE contained in a letter mailed Monday to Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie; Dr. Claude Garrison, district superintendent of the Methodist Church; Dr. Harold Eibling, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools; Walter Tarpley, UCC director; Robert C. Hicks, United Appeal director; Robert Lazarus, president of F. & R. Lazarus, and Trent Sickles, assistant to the Lazarus president.

Contending they "have plenty of ammunition and it is dry" the membership is supporting the position taken by its education committee that certain activities in the South End — and possibly other areas — are preventing teachers and students from achieving classrooms goals.

CONSIDERABLE weight is lent the position by the fact that serving on the committee chaired by Leo Gaffin are four area principals — Harold Washburn of South, Howard Nicklaus of Buckeye, Mike Lower of Marion-Franklin and Ken Olbert of Barrett.

ACTIVITIES disturbing to the CSSO include the busing of students from a school to another location for the "purpose of protesting" an attempted boycott of band and other school activities, a request for cheerleaders to refuse to cheer and alleged coaching of elementary children to question school policy and racial balance.

The CSSO concedes in the letter that a great social change is taking place, in which students are urged "to think, reason and rationalize" on existing situations.

Commending Columbus Public Schools as one of the better systems in the nation, the CSSO membership states as public-minded citizens they will work toward the school's efforts to initiate the services needed in a time of such social change.

HOWEVER THEY ask, if hard-earned tax dollars must be used to provide these services, why public organizations and VISTA workers supported by church, United Appeal and federal funds are allowed to participate in "agitation" within the schools.

The letter states that the confrontations cited can be documented upon request, and that "the South Side Settlement House is one such agency being questioned."

In summation, the executive committee declares itself ready and willing to discuss the subject with anyone interested in clearing up the situation.

The letter is written over the signature of Jim Hildenbrand, secretary.

WOHL DENIES CSSO CHARGES

Bernie Wohl categorically denies the specific allegations made in letters mailed this week to the civic leaders named in the above story.

He infers the activities described as disruptive to learning in the South Side schools are attributed to the South Side Settlement House, where he is director.

"EVERY ONE is untrue," he said. "In fact, we have been instrumental in preventing school boycotts."

Referring to the alleged coaching of elementary students to question school policy, Wohl denied such coaching has taken place.

He added, "We never encourage children to be nasty, fresh or disrespectful."

IN ANSWER to the charge that students have been bused (presumably to the SSS House) for the purpose of protesting, he answered, "That is an unmitigated lie." (He later indicated he was denying the purpose of the busing, not the act of busing in itself.)

He states the Settlement House and its staff completely concur with the CSSO contention this is a time of social change.

"We believe the institution should be an agent working toward effecting the attitudes that can bring about such change," he said.

WHEN WOHL spoke to the Spectator Tuesday afternoon he had not personally received a copy of the letter.

This he resented.

Wohl also maintains that Tuesday was the initial time he has heard these charges from a member of the Council.

"IF THESE charges were being examined, why didn't someone confer with me to further check their validity?" he asked.

Residents To Fight For Obetz School

Led by Mrs. Walter Coffenberry, residents of Obetz and Reese have scheduled a meeting at the Obetz Elementary School at 4 p.m. Saturday.

This is but one of the developments in the Hamilton Local School district since the stormy meetings last week [illegible] citizens turned out en[illegible] to voice their concern [illegible] the 13 mill operating [illegible] which will go its second round Dec. 10.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Coffenberry, the residents of these two villages are determined the Obetz Elementary shall be retained as such, and until assurance is given to this effect, the townspeople will not support the levy.

Although invitations to the "Steering Committee" purposely have not been issued, Supt. John Savel and members of the school board have been requested to attend.

"We want decent classrooms, decent bathrooms and a decent kitchen for our school," Mrs. Coffenberry stated, adding that verbal promises will not satisfy the Obetz-Reese group.

"THE ONLY WAY we can know true intentions is to have them written into the minutes when the board meets on the eve of election," she emphasized.

A second development includes the establishment of several pertinent facts obtained from the County Prosecutor's office and reported by Savel this week.

First of these is that the board is definitely committed to pay the salaries of all employes under contract, whether or not school is open.

SECONDLY, is has been verified that unless school is in session 180 days prior to the end of the school year June 30, State Foundations funds will be withheld. Furthermore, although it is not established that the State would do so, Savel states it has the legal right to demand refund of Foundation funds already received if the 180-day requirement is not met.

(Queried how the lost time could be made up between June 6 and June 30 if schools close from Jan. 1 until March when operating money is forthcoming, the superintendent said one answer would be cancellation of Christmas and spring vacations and holding of classes seven days a week).

The prosecutor also stated that a board has the authority to either borrow money or not to borrow money to keep the schools open at its discretion as well as the authority to close schools when it is deemed advisable.

REFERRING TO the resignation read by John Boyle at last Thursday's meeting, Savel stated he does not consider it valid as it did not go through channels and was not acted upon by the board.

Boyle, whose contract expires in June, stated this week that if the levy fails he is adamant in his position that he will leave the district.

Lamenting the "cold indifference" of many residents to education he stated "If this is all the peop[illegible]nk of their children, I a[illegible] going to be a part of it."

HE CONTINUED, "Why should I work here (where the public has evidenced little interest in education) when I can earn $11,000 rather than $8,000 teaching elsewhere?"

Stating that he has nothing but "contempt and scorn" for those who allow board action involving "personal vendetta" he stated that it is "beyond credulity" that any board member should describe a motion made as a "joke."

Boyle, who is regarded by many as one of the district's outstanding teachers indicated that if the public, through support of the levy, proves him wrong in his evaluation of their concern with education, he would like to stay with the system.

HE ALSO EXPLAINED his resignation from the Hamilton Local Teachers Association as one designed to allow him to speak more freely as an individual.

The Rev. Charles [illegible] who was dropped as chairman of the Steering Committee last Wednesday, expressed considerable confidence in the people of the community.

"I know these people want fine schools for our children," he said, "but I believe they also want [illegible] voice in determining the extent of their financial support of the schools."

TITKO ATTRIBUTED his "fall from grace" with the committee to his suggestion that, as a compromise, the proposed levy should be broken into one of 10.5 mills for operating expense and one of 2.5 mills for building rehabilitation.

He also accuses the committee of having lost sight of one of the two goals set when it was formed early in October.

"Apparently members now believe their only function is

NEW APPROACH BEING DEVELOPED: PART I

'Soul-Searching' Needed On Open Housing

> "The Metro Fair Housing Center is the beginning of a new era of history in affording equal opportunity in housing for all citizens."
> (Colorado Gov. John Love)

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on open housing in the Columbus area. Residential patterns and statistics demonstrate that — whatever the reason — open housing is not yet a reality. This series will focus on one new alternative — a fair housing center — as a possible means to solving problems).

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Despite open housing efforts by legal; business and civil rights groups, there are still many advocates of "democracy in housing" who feel blacks are being denied the right to live where they want in the Columbus area.

Ask these advocates why—after federal legislation, the involvement of private enterprise and open housing policy pronouncements from realtor boards—and they usually will cite community apathy, the hostility of white minority groups, the inability of lower income blacks to afford integrated housing or fear of reprisals.

Mrs. Ralph Kehr, a member of the Columbus Civil Rights Council who has been actively supporting fair housing, explains why she feels progress has not come.

"IT IS STILL the system. Some people still capitalize on prejudice. People will pay taxes for the ghetto and inner city education. But open housing doesn't cost a thing."

Attempting to explain why she thinks open housing has not changed drastically in three years, Mrs. Kehr says, "it is easier to appeal to hate and fear than to justice." She wonders why groups who should be concerned about fair housing are not "backing up their beliefs with funds in Columbus."

For those who have been the targets of housing discrimination — whose attempts have met with delaying tactics and innuendoes — there is something offensive in statements declaring that the age of housing discrimination is over. They know it is not.

How would any man react if he were told he could vote or die in Vietnam — but not live next door? Or told he could pay property tax, but not live on the property he chooses.

REACTION TO open housing advocates sometimes borders on frustration. Some argue that a private citizen has the moral right to do with his property what he wants. And when someone begins talking about fair housing, they are apt to throw up their hands in disbelief. "Oh, no, not that again," is a common cry.

Many Americans appear emotionally tired, sick of urban problems. This attitude holds true in the ghetto as well as in the suburbs.

These feelings may point not only to an excess amount of talk about such problems, but also to the fact that solutions have not come.

A Case In Point

There has been little data available in this area on actual attitudes of more affluent homeowners regarding integration of their community.

A recent survey exploring attitudes of homeowners in Upper Arlington concerning open housing turned up a few surprises, the most interesting indicating that only a "substantial minority" oppose integration.

While approximately 68 per cent of Upper Arlington residents participating in the survey related they would treat a Negro just as anyone else moving next door, what these same residents thought their neighbors believed revealed a strange paradox.

Residents tended to believe the level of opposition in their neighborhood to integration was higher than the survey actually showed. Most thought 50 percent or more would be opposed.

THIS DISPARITY backs up some contentions of fair housing advocates, who say that communities in reality support open housing but are either unknowing or afraid of neighborhood reaction.

The survey, completed by OSU pollsters Prof. James F. Engel and Associate Prof. Roger D. Blackwell of the department of business organization, was written up in an October Bureau of Business Research Bulletin.

The statistical survey—compiled from 385 questionnaires received during a random selection—showed 11 percent opposing a Negro moving next door, 12 percent refusing to answer and 8.8 percent saying they would go out of their way to welcome a Negro in the community.

The article continued: "Intgration has been a subject of continuing hot debate, with publicly stated opinions polarizing at the positive or negative extremes. As of summer, 1968, integration had not yet occurred, although many in the community were actively seeking to bring this about."

Why was there opposition to integration?

"One of the most widely quoted reasons given by those opposing integration was that a majority of the residents would strongly object. This opinion has deterred community leaders from taking positive action to bring about integration. Realtors, in particular, are understandably reluctant to sell a house to a Negro if, indeed, most neighbors would react negatively."

Engel and Blackwell concluded that a majority of residents of this suburb would treat a Negro businessman or professional as they treat any neighbor, but a sizeable minority oppose integration.

Finding New Solutions

Government involvement and laws are steps on the way to an integrated society. But they are not the final answer to providing free access to housing.

THOSE ENGAGED in open housing drives point out that closed housing operates on two levels — the institutional and the attitudinal. The institutional form of closed housing involves the whole system; it is the structures which block fair housing progress. Attitudinal levels develop from people's opinions, fear, ignorance and prejudice remain powerful tools in thwarting free access to home and apartments by minority groups.

On the institutional level, legal means to block discrimination appear the most effective. But thwarting discriminatory practices legally often involves time and money. And while a case is being studied and prepared, those who have been discriminated against are left out in the open.

A NEW APPROACH to open housing, however, is being attempted elsewhere.

Mrs. Kehr explains how the Columbus Civil Rights Council began to toy with this new approach, which has been utilized in other American cities.

"About two-and-a-half years ago we began to do some soul-searching on open housing. It occurred to us that open housing was not being touched by any agencies and we wondered why. We felt we should touch it."

At first, she explained, members decided to work in their own areas, from Bexley to Worthington.

In the course of their involvement, group members began to realize there was not a central office to take up open housing concerns and coordinate them. "All our frustrations reinforced the idea of such a center," she said. "We also wondered why the city of Columbus didn't take the leadership."

WHAT IS an open housing center and how does it operate?

Basically, as envisioned in other cities, the housing center provides tangible services to members of the community. It provides a positive way to implement fair housing laws throughout the metropolitan area.

The center provides information on housing to all concerned and assists families, regardless of race, who want to live in an integrated community.

On the institutional level, the center finds desirable homes or apartments suitable to an individual's income level and needs. On the attitudinal level, the center provides speakers, panels, pamphlets and other information on fair housing.

Madison Seeks Key To $340,000 Puzzle

The Madison Local School Board and administrators are hoping for a full house when they meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Junior High School.

The main topic on the agenda will be how the schools can be operated if the proposed 8.5 mill operating levy goes down again at the special election slated for Dec. 10.

ACCORDING to Phil Williams, superintendent, without the $340,000 anticipated income from the levy there must be some drastic cutbacks in the budget.

If these curtailments become necessary, the board wants to make them in the areas that will be least objectionable to the parents and least damaging to the program.

This week he is working overtime to come up with the dollar and cents savings that can be realized in a number of cuts so the public can evaluate the alternatives that exist.

HIS PRELIMINARY paper work reported at presstime has already convinced him that penny-ante action won't do the job.

For example, stopping noon kindergarten transportation after Jan. 1 would actually result in a net loss to the District of $855 through the sacrifice of State Foundation funds.

And even through an alarming move such as the reduction of teaching staff by 28 (the number for which the District is not reimbursed) next fall (contracts must be honored,) the board can save only about $56,000 or less than 17 per cent of the amount that will have to be trimmed if the levy fails.

C-W Views Levy Loss, Parking

In a brief session this week. Canal Winchester Council faced the fact that failure of the two-mill street levy at the November election necessitates cutbacks in the 1969 appropriations.

These economies will be necessary even if the levy should be successfully resubmitted at the May primaries as no tax money would be realized until 1970.

ALTHOUGH ERNIE Von Schriltz indicated the margin of defeat was small enough (about 150 votes) to lead to the hope the levy might gain approval in May, the matter was tabled for the present.

Another matter was temporarily shelved when the subject of enforcement of the two-hour downtown parking limit was sent to the safety committee for further study.

According to Police Chief Kenny Griffiths, 33 parking citations had been issued when Mayor Mike Miller presided at the most recent Mayor's Court.

CHARGES WERE dismissed for those who appeared and no contempt-of-court charges issued against those who did not appear. (He conceded such action would hardly be appropriate when a $2 fine is involved.)

Legislation enacted included renewal of a right-of-way contract with the South Central Power Co. for a 25-year period.

Community Worship Set

Community Thanksgiving service will be held at the Groveport Elementary Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26.

The Rev. John N. Bice of the Asbury Methodist Church will give the sermon for the ecumenical worship conducted by the Groveport Ministerial Association, with the other ministers of the Groveport area participating.

The Thanksgiving offering will be sent to the Church Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Mrs. Betty Kiamfoth, clerk of Canal Winchester Schools, is shown as she posts possible reductions in 1969 appropriations that must be considered if the operating levy fails next month. Standing is Supt. Carl Miller and seated, Sheldon Burtner of the school board. It was recognized that some economies endanger the accredidation of the school. For example, the state requires a guidance counselor for each 400 junior and senior high students and the suggested library expenditure of $500 is about half that required to meet Ohio minimums for a school of Canal's size.

Anne Leatherwood To Resign As Clerk

Mrs. Anne Leatherwood advised Ashville Council Monday night of her intention to resign her position as village clerk-treasurer late in the spring.

Her decision was made because of Mrs. Leatherwood's summertime responsibilities at the swimming pool operated by herself and her husband during the summer months and their plans to spend much of the winter in the South.

MAYOR HAROLD Hartley and council members were appreciative of the clerk's advance notice of her plans which enables them to look for a replacement without undue haste.

A logical appointee to fulfill the unexpired term which runs through 1972 is Dick Cook, who formerly functioned with commendable efficiency in the post prior to his resignation several years ago.

However, although he has helped in emergencies since then (he pinch hit only last month while Mrs. Leatherwood was out of town), he has indicated he does not have the time the job requires.

THE POSITION pays $1,800 with the salary carried by both the General Fund and the Water Board.

Mrs. Leatherwood has expressed a willingness to break in her successor.

A change in heart of Roy Metler, veteran street employe, resulted in council's tabling plans to hire a new man, although several persons (including Fire Chief Don Thompson) have been interviewed recently.

METLER previously announced he would resign if he were expected to study and train to enable his utilization as a back-up man for Steve Cooke, water superintendent.

Metler apparently has lost his aversion to additional responsibilities and, at least for the present, the job is his.

With peace restored, Solicitor Dave Kraft will be instructed to draw up an ordinance to provide Metler with a 30 cent an hour raise.

OTHER BUSINESS included the final reading of the new ordinance governing water rates for both village and non-resident customers.

Mike Misko Commended By GEICO

Michael J. "Mike" Misko, 3645 Torwood Rd., was one of the five leading producers honored by officers and managers of the Government Employees Insurance Companies of Washington, D. C., at a sales seminar held recently in Biloxi, Miss.

Commended for total production marketing the full range of finance and insurance offered by GEICO, Misko was also lauded for his participation in Groveport area community activities, including active membership in the Groveport Businessmen's Association.

Misko manages the GEICO and Affiliates offices at 637 Main St., Groveport, and in Fairborn, near Dayton.

CANAL TAXPAYERS ASK:

WHAT MUST GO IF LEVY FAILS?

Canal Winchester School District taxpayers are apparently at last "shook up" by the gravity of the financial problems faced in the schools.

This was indicated when 75 persons showed up Monday night to review the situation with the board and administration.

Purpose of the meeting was two-fold, with the effort made to explain the predicament and to weigh budget cuts that will be mandatory if the 6.6 mill operating levy again fails at the Dec. 10 election.

BOARD PRESIDENT Robert High explained that the real problem is not a local one, but stems from the tremendous inequities resulting when the local tax base provides 56 per cent of school support.

Stating that to operate at the same level during 1969 as 1968 will require $560,000, he reiterated the fact made clear last week—that this expenditure is $46,000 in excess of anticipated income.

High also depicted the constant pattern of spiraling costs experienced during the last five years, attributable to inflation and the salary improvements demanded by Senate Bill 350 that went into effect last year.

COMPARATIVE costs listed are: 1965, $411,000; 1966, $445,000; 1967, $473,000; 1968, $538,000 and 1969 (estimated) $560,000.

Supt. Carl Miller then went over the budget, showing it is possible to trim the budget by $33,950 with cuts in supplies, maintenance, text and library books, substitute teacher salaries, field trips and replacemnet equipment.

HE NEXT suggested several other areas that offer a possible reduction in the outflow of funds.

THESE INCLUDED eliminating the salaries of three teachers, the guidance counselor, the coaching staff, advisors to plays, musicals, the year book and cheerleaders, one custodian and the cost of several other school services.

With these economies coupled with those first suggested representing cutbacks $5,000 in excess of what will be demanded if the levy fails, Miller indicated the board could pick and choose among them.

At this point, the questions and views of the audience were heard.

WINK BARNHART of Marcy asked for a breakdown in the $507,493.78 that is budgeted for salaries, learning that the schedule starting degreed teachers at $5,500 is below the county average.

Particularly interesting was the presentation by Robert Rager of the board of a paper suggesting cutbacks varying, in a number of instances, from those proposed by Miller.

Perhaps the one meriting the most serious consideration was one involving rerouting of the buses.

HE CONTENDS that money can be saved by starting all grades at the same time with students living on the perimeter of the district brought to school early to await the arrival of those picked up on second and shorter routes.

He also recommended use of students as substitute teachers and as elementary clerk, cutting the custodial staff from five to three with students employed as part-time janitors, and transfer of administrative offices back to the main building.

(This last suggestion had been introduced by Miller, but not enthusiastically with the net savings estimated at only $300 annually).

LEARNING THAT it is illegal to appropriate money from the athletic funds for coaching salaries, Rager conceded his proposal on that matter was a bad idea.

Although there appeared to be some resentment of Rager's stand as one indicating lack of board unity, Glenn Lackey defended his action as commendable.

Referring to the relatively large number of persons there, he stated, "at least he has gotten people interested."

LACKEY FURTHER stated that, as a farmer to whom success of the levy would mean a $350 increase in taxes, he has not determined yet whether he could afford the bill.

Dick Hummell was one of those speaking firmly in support of the levy, with the belief that education is "cheap at half the price."

He based his stand on the educational experiences of his children in another district where an austerity program was followed for five years.

A SECOND public meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Council Hits Out At SSS House

"We as members of the Council of South Side Organizations feel it is about time the program there (South Side Settlement) be changed to one of a more affirmative nature for the good of the students participating in their programs."

With these words, long-brewing differences between philosophies of the CSSO and the Settlement House came to light this week.

THEY WERE contained in a letter mailed Monday to Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie; Dr. Claude Garrison, district superintendent of the Methodist Church; Dr. Harold Eibling, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools; Walter Tarpley, UCC director; Robert C. Hicks, United Appeal director; Robert Lazarus, president of F. & R. Lazarus, and Trent Sickles, assistant to the Lazarus president.

Contending they "have plenty of ammunition and it is dry" the membership is supporting the position taken by its education committee that certain activities in the South End — and possibly other areas — are preventing teachers and students from achieving classrooms goals.

CONSIDERABLE weight is lent the position by the fact that serving on the committee chaired by Leo Gaffin are four area principals — Harold Washburn of South, Howard Nicklaus of Buckeye, Mike Lower of Marion-Franklin and Ken Olbert of Barrett.

ACTIVITIES disturbing to the CSSO include the busing of students from a school to another location for the "purpose of protesting" an attempted boycott of band and other school activities, a request for cheerleaders to refuse to cheer and alleged coaching of elementary children to question school policy and racial balance.

The CSSO concedes in the letter that a great social change is taking place in which students are urged "to think, reason and rationalize" on existing situations.

Commending Columbus Public Schools as one of the better systems in the nation, the CSSO membership states as public-minded citizens they will work toward the school's efforts to initiate the services needed in a time of such social change.

HOWEVER THEY ask, if hard-earned tax dollars must be used to provide these services, why public organizations and VISTA workers supported by church, United Appeal and federal funds are allowed to participate in "agitation" within the schools.

The letter states that the confrontations cited can be documented upon request, and that "the South Side Settlement House is one such agency being questioned."

In summation, the executive committee declares itself ready and willing to discuss the subject with anyone interested in clearing up the situation.

The letter is written over the signature of Jim Hildenbrand, secretary.

WOHL DENIES CSSO CHARGES

Bernie Wohl categorically denies the specific allegations made in letters mailed this week to the civic leaders named in the above story.

He infers the activities described as disruptive to learning in the South Side schools are attributed to the South Side Settlement House, where he is director.

"EVERY ONE is untrue," he said. "In fact, we have been instrumental in preventing school boycotts."

Referring to the alleged coaching of elementary students to question school policy, Wohl denied such coaching has taken place.

He added, "We never encourage children to be nasty, fresh or disrespectful."

IN ANSWER to the charge that students have been bused (presumably to the SSS House) for the purpose of protesting, he answered, "That is an unmitigated lie." (He later indicated he was denying the purpose of the busing, not the act of busing in itself.)

He states the Settlement House and its staff completely concur with the CSSO contention this is a time of social change.

"We believe the institution should be an agent working toward effecting the attitudes that can bring about such change," he said.

WHEN WOHL spoke to the Spectator Tuesday afternoon he had not personally received a copy of the letter.

This he resented.

Wohl also maintains that Tuesday was the initial time he has heard these charges from a member of the Council.

"IF THESE charges were being examined, why didn't someone confer with me to further check their validity?" he asked.

Residents To Fight For Obetz School

Led by Mrs. Walter Coffenberry, residents of Obetz and Reese have scheduled a meeting at the Obetz Elementary School at 4 p.m. Saturday.

This is but one of the developments in the Hamilton Local School district since the stormy meetings last week w[illegible] citizens turned out en-[illegible] to voice their concern [illegible] the 13 mill operating [illegible] which will go its second round Dec. 10.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Coffenberry, the residents of these two villages are determined the Obetz Elementary shall be retained as such, and until assurance is given to this effect, the townspeople will not support the levy.

Although invitations to the "Steering Committee" purposely have not been issued, Supt. John Savel and members of the school board have been requested to attend.

"We want decent classrooms, decent bathrooms and a decent kitchen for our school," Mrs. Coffenberry stated, adding that verbal promises will not satisfy the Obetz-Reese group.

"THE ONLY WAY we [illegible] know true intentions is to have them written into the minutes when the board meets on the eve of election," she emphasized.

A second development includes the establishment of several pertinent facts obtained from the County Prosecutor's office and reported by Savel this week.

First of these is that the board is definitely committed to pay the salaries of all employes under contract, whether or not school is open.

SECONDLY, is has been verified that unless school is in session 180 days prior to the end of the school year June 30, State Foundations funds will be withheld. Furthermore, although it is not established that the State would do so, Savel states it has the legal right to demand refund of Foundation funds already received if the 180-day requirement is not met.

(Queried how the lost time could be made up between June 6 and June 30 if schools close from Jan. 1 until March when operating money is forthcoming, the superintendent said one answer would be cancellation of Christmas and spring vacations and holding of classes seven days a week).

The prosecutor also stated that a board has the authority to either borrow money or not to borrow money to keep the schools open at its discretion as well as the authority to close schools when it is deemed advisable.

REFERRING TO the resignation read by John Boyle at last Thursday's meeting, Savel stated he does not consider it valid as it did not go through channels and was not acted upon by the board.

Boyle, whose contract expires in June, stated this week that if the levy fails he is adamant in his position that he will leave the district.

Lamenting the "cold indifference" of many residents to education he stated "If this is all the people think of their children, I am not going to be a part of it."

HE CONTINUED, "Why should I work here (where the public has evidenced little interest in education) when I can earn $11,000 rather than $8,000 teaching elsewhere?"

Stating that he has nothing but "contempt and scorn" for those who allow board action involving "personal vendetta" he stated that it is "beyond credulity" that any board member should describe a motion made as a "joke."

Boyle, who is regarded by many as one of the district's outstanding teachers indicated that if the public, through support of the levy, proves him wrong in his evaluation of their concern with education, he would like to stay with the system.

HE ALSO EXPLAINED his resignation from the Hamilton Local Teachers Association as one designed to allow him to speak more freely as an individual.

The Rev. Charles Titko who was dropped as chairman of the Steering Committee last Wednesday, expressed considerable confidence in the people of the community.

"I know these people want fine schools for our children," he said, "but I believe they also want a voice in determining the extent of their financial support of the schools."

TITKO ATTRIBUTED his "fall from grace" with the committee to his suggestion that, as a compromise, the proposed levy should be broken into one of 10.5 mills for operating expense and one of 2.5 mills for building rehabilitation.

He also accuses the committee of having lost sight of one of the two goals set when it was formed early in October.

"Apparently members now believe their only function is

Astronaut Donn Eisele Parade Set For Tomorrow

Columbus' most traveled native son will return home tomorrow to a hero's welcome in the All-American City, and officials have urged the public to join in the welcome.

Air Force Lt. Col. Donn Eisele, a former resident of Columbus' Hilltop, and a graduate of West High School, traveled some four and a half million miles with his two fellow crewmen, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham, in the Apollo 7 spacecraft.

Eisele will begin his day tomorrow by speaking to the students at West High School at 9:30 a.m., after which he will be taken downtown for a ticker tape parade.

The parade, planned to leave Union Station on High Street at approximately noon, will move south to Broad Street. Ticker tape and confetti will be distributed to workers along the North High Street parade route.

At Broad Street, the parade, consisting only of Eisele, his family, the West High Band and the Air Force Honor Guard, will circle the State House block, coming to a halt on the State Street side of the State House.

Columbus Apollo astronaut Donn Eisele (left) beams his excitement shortly after having been selected by NASA as a member of the Apollo 7 space team. With Eisele are Capt. Walter Schirra (center) and Walter Cunningham.

A brief ceremony will take place there, during which proclamations from Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, Governor James A. Rhodes and other civic officials will be presented.

The highlight of the day will be the banquet at the Columbus Sheraton Hotel that evening, sponsored by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

Eisele, who was the craft's Lunar Module Pilot, was a key member of the crew that made the Apollo 7 mission a "complete success," according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The brown-haired, blue-eyed Eisele was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel by President Johnson immediately following completion of the flight and was awarded NASA's Exceptional Service Medal by the President in a ceremony at the LBJ Ranch.

The flight took place Oct. 11 through 22, lasting 260 hours, eight minutes and 45 seconds (about 10 days, 20 hours), according to NASA, and paved the way for future lunar flights.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Service Of Beloved Savant Recalled

Residents of German Village and the entire south and east area were saddened by the death of Dr. Edgar A. Kolb, formerly of 4405 Rosemary Parkway, 95, who expired at Lutheran Senior City Wednesday, Nov. 6, 1968.

He taught American History at old South High School on Deshler Avenue for 34 years, prior to which he was superintendent of the Hilliard schools for two years. He was a 1901 graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, a member of the National Honorary Phi Beta Kappa, a member of Goodale Lodge of Masons, a charter member of the Thurman Avenue Methodist Church, and a lay reader of the Methodist Church.

He was an ardent and fiercely loyal supporter of South High School and was the molder of moral and American character for five generations of our youth.

His keen and highly moral perception and principles, together with his gentle and pleasing, yet highly effective, manner of expounding the same, made him a standout and highly popular personality to his students as well as to all who came in contact with him.

The community has lost a Giant amongst Men, who "rode extremely tall in the [illegible]."

He left surviving him, one son Robert M., a teacher at Fallbrook, Calif., who came with his wife and four children for the funeral, held at Maple Grove Methodist Church, Henderson and High Streets, Nov. 11; daughter-in-law Janice Kolb; eight grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; and two sisters, Mrs. Laura Shank, Dayton, and Mrs. Erie McGonigle, Springfield.

The pallbearers were all members of the 1918 South High School graduating class, namely: Morris Skilken, Mitchell N. Nachman, Paul Isaly, James Shidecker, Bernard Meyers, Charles Beard, Roger Turner and Arthur Maushund (1917).

Applicants Sought For P.O. Jobs

Civil Service examinations are now open for Distribution Clerk and Letter Carrier with the Post Office at Groveport.

Although no vacancies exist at the moment, the postmaster is attempting to compile a list of eligible applicants from which positions can be filled as they open up.

Applicants must be at least 18 years old.

The basic rate of pay is $2.95 per hour for substitute position and $5,938 per year for regular positions.

Benefits include paid vacations, job security, low cost life and health insurance, sick leave with pay, on the job training, cash for suggestions, uniform allowance, liberal retirement and promotion opportunities.

Applications may be obtained at the local post office.

Harper Talks To Panthers At Banquet

Jim Harper, Marion-Franklin coach, spoke at the first annual football banquet held Saturday night in honor of the Alum Creek Panthers.

He told the 25 members of the squad that ended its first season with a respectable 3-4 record, the time has passed when brawn and muscle are enough to carry an athlete, and that good grades have become essential.

The Alum Creek Panthers, a member of the Mid-West Youth Football League, were coached by Charles Jackson, with William Howell acting as his chief assistant.

THE WALNUT Hill pastor also expressed confidence in the abilities of Nelson Warner who was named to replace him as chairman.

New Gunship Put On Duty At LAFB

A new gunship will soon be observed in Southeastern skies.

It is the AC-119K which will be used by the 4413th Combat crew commanded by Lt. Col. Ellwood E. Johnson at Lockbourne AFB.

Although it resembled the C-119 Packet and its sister gunship the AC-119G, the K model has several significant differences.

In addition to four mini-guns, the new model carries two 20-millimeter Vulcan cannons and two auxiliary jet engines.

The first class of trainees for the ship will arrive in December.

Party Tuesday

A luncheon and games party will be held in the St. Leo school hall at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26.

All proceeds from the event, sponsored by the St. Leo's Booster Club, will be used for the school's athletic program.

South High Speaks Out

(Ed. Note: Mrs. Mary Weld, South High honors English instructor, submitted the following paper discussing guidance in high school written by Patricia [illegible], vice president of the senior class. With an improved guidance program among the proposed benefits of the upcoming levy passed by an extremely narrow margin Nov. 5, Mrs. Weld states the following Patricia's viewpoint may help "persuade the unconvinced, and in the aftermath, generate more light than heat.")

New Frontier for the School System

"They cross a frontier . . .
They whose presence states a frontier is that undetermined place
One comes upon alone at night, in life and careers
Even if afraid."

Kay Boyle's words from "The New Emigration" might well apply to a high school senior who must face the world alone. ". . . even if afraid."

The fear Miss Boyle speaks of results from determination.

The fear of the high school senior results from insufficient guidance in our high schools.

WHERE SHALL I apply to college? This question now faces most college-bound high school seniors.

This fact in itself should not alarm anyone; however, coupled with the fact that many high school seniors who are not college-bound have not been able to answer their questions about the future either, it is alarming!

For some reason, our high school guidance system has failed to prepare its students for the future.

ONE MAJOR cause of the failure is a lack of sufficient time. Our counselors are so overloaded, they have time to see each student only once or twice in a school year.

This amount of time allows only one problem to be solved—the schedule. The first meeting clears up the question of sufficient credits. The second meeting gains approval for the next year's courses.

This allows no time to approach the frontiers the student faces. Beyond high school careers, no personal problems can be discussed. Investigating new areas of study is nearly impossible.

A GUIDANCE counselor has done his all if he has seen that his students are in classes where they may do well.

We need more guidance counselors. This solution to the problem can easily be determined, but cannot be easily achieved.

Counselors, like classroom teachers, are underpaid and overworked. After studying psychology, educational techniques, and various other specialties, the other fields open for those with such qualifications are more appealing.

WHAT, THEN, can be done?

Counseling as a profession, must be made more attractive! The job conditions can be improved. A great amount of the paper work involved could be handled by part-time secretarial workers. The hours wasted in looking up records and grades could be and should be spent in direct contact with the students.

Many of the students who have acquired motivation through home guidance see their counselor quite regularly. Yet, even these students lack a real sense of direction.

What causes this?

THE ENORMOUS social gap between counselor and student is the problem.

The intellectual, academically-oriented person with the perseverance to qualify as a counselor is so far removed from the average student that a wall of mistrust and misunderstanding has come between them.

I do not intend to imply that only average and below-average college students should be recruited to be guidance counselors. However, I do feel that working with all social and economic levels must be incorporated into the required training of a guidance counselor.

A STUDENT finds it difficult to accept counsel from one who does not know why he, the student, is afraid to face his frontier.

A summer spent working within a ghetto would offer tremendous insight for a guidance counselor. A person who has never seen a ghetto can blithely challenge a ghetto-dweller to discard his apathy. A person who has experienced the ghetto life, even as a visitor, knows.

Trust in a person who knows your frontier comes easily.

THE GUIDANCE program, as it now stands, is a good one.

But it is not good enough. It does not meet the needs of our public high schools. More students need more help and more time.

No child can guide himself through life with complete success. Yet, he must face life . . . "even if afraid."

A little help from a well-qualified person can go a long way—on any frontier.

Students Outnumbered

Two South Side junior highs are among the five Columbus schools boasting a PTA membership greater than the school's enrollment.

They are Roosevelt and Beery.

The other schools, according to Mrs. Mary Chalfant of the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc., boasting this unusual record are Colerain, Northridge and Maize Road elementaries.

A native of German Village, Thomas Clemens, has been assigned to Cocoa Beach, Fla. adjacent to Cape Kennedy since 1966. He is pictured with the largest roller bearing ever manufactured.

Former Southsider Backs Up Apollo 7 Team

Two Columbus women, Mrs. Marie J. Edwards, 371 Mohawk St., and Mrs. Dolores Crooks, 3270 E. Sixth Ave., were particularly delighted with the success of the Apollo 7 flight.

They knew their brother, Thomas Clemens, was closely associated with the project as a support engineer on the lunar module for Grumman Aircraft.

The St. Mary alumnus, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clemens, whose home was at 371 Mohawk, was recently honored for 25 years' service with Grumman and will be the guest of honor at a New York reception next month.

Clemens, 51, and his wife, Muriel, have five children. The eldest, Ken, is also an employe of Grumman.

Astronaut Donn Eisele Parade Set For Tomorro

Columbus' most traveled native son will return home tomorrow to a hero's welcome in the All-American City, and officials have urged the public to join in the welcome.

Air Force Lt. Col. Donn Eisele, a former resident of Columbus' Hilltop, and a graduate of West High School, traveled some four and a half million miles with his two fellow crewmen, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham, in the Apollo 7 spacecraft.

Eisele will begin his day tomorrow by speaking to the students at West High School at 9:30 a.m., after which he will be taken downtown for a ticker tape parade.

The parade, planned to leave Union Station on High Street at approximately noon, will move south to Broad Street. Ticker tape and confetti will be distributed to workers along the North High Street parade route.

At Broad Street, the parade, consisting only of Eisele, his family, the West High Band and the Air Force Honor Guard, will circle the State House block, coming to a halt on the State Street side of the State House.

A brief ceremony will take place there, during which proclamations from Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, Governor James A. Rhodes and other civic officials will be presented.

Columbus Apollo astronaut Donn Eisele (left) beams his excitement s ly after having been selected by NASA as a member of the Apollo 7 space
With Eisele are Capt. Walter Schirra (center) and Walter Cunningham.

The highlight of the day will be the banquet at the Columbus Sheraton Hotel that evening, sponsored by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

Eisele, who was the craft's Lunar Module Pilot, was a key member of the crew that made the Apollo 7 mission a "complete success," according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The brown-haired, blue-eyed Eisele was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel by President Johnson immediately following completion of the flight and was awarded NASA's Exceptional Service Medal by the President in a ceremony at the LBJ Ranch.

The flight took place Oct. 11 through 22, lasting 260 hours, eight minutes and 45 seconds (about 10 days, 20 hours), according to NASA, and paved the way for future lunar flights.

It Is Time To Swing Your Partner

"Come and Bring a Friend" is the theme of the square dance from 9 until midnight Saturday at the St. Leo School Hall.

Admission to the dance, sponsored by the St. Leo's Home and School Association is $2 a couple.

Further information is available by calling either Mr. or Mrs. Richard Merriman at 443-9200.

Pledge Party Set Sunday

"Campaign "68" is the theme of the rush season of Alpha Gamma, the Groveport Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority.

The season will end Sunday with "Inauguration", the pledge ceremony at the Huntington National Bank Social Room in Canal Winchester, followed by dinner at Shade's Restaurant.

Ohio State Team Special Guests At Saint John's

Members of the Ohio State basketball team will be special guests at the annual father-son banquet of the Saint John's Evangelical Protestant Church, 59 E. Mound St., tonight.

Following the dinner in the Fellowship Hall at 6:30 p.m., a movie of the 1968 Ohio State Basketball NCAA tournament will be shown.

Emmanuel Lutheran Plans Service

Worship services will be held at 8 and 9:30 a.m. Thanksgiving Day at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, 80 E. Markison Ave.

The sermon to be presented by Pastor Carlton J. Sutorius at both services is "Thank God for Golden Moments of Blessings."

The Rev. Sutorius has invited the community to attend to publicly offer thanks for "the abundant blessings showered upon us as individuals and as a nation."

Dance, Food Featured At 'Osena Zabava'

The Women's Club of St. John Chrysostom Byzantine Catholic Church is planning "Osena Zabava" (fall festivities) and a Polka Dance at the church hall, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Nov. 30, 5858 Cleveland Ave., north of Rt. 161.

Music will be a variety of polka, czardas and ballroom dances performed by the "Original New Sounds" of Cleveland.

Bring a gourmet appetite for Slavic and Ukrainian dishes of "Holupki" (cabbage rolls), Kolbasi, wieners and sauerkraut, and "Kolachie" (nut and poppyseed rolls).

The public is invited and tickets will be available at the door, $1.50 admission.

paign to pass the operating levy be regarded as firm promises.

Earlier Monday he stated that implementation reports are well under way and the first of the year art, physical education and music teachers will be placed in the elementary schools.

His statement that the present staff should have first consideration for these staff positions triggered a little exchange that indicated that all is not utter sweetness and light between the members of the Columbus Education Association and the board.

IN A DISCUSSION of how teachers should be made aware of new staff opportunities, present channels of communication were defended.

"Fringe benefits are one thing; telling us what to do is another," it was stated.

It was clarified when Mrs. Levenson pleaded that the classrooms should not be "robbed" to fill the new positions, that no classroom teacher will be reassigned unless a well-qualified replacement is available.

OTHER BUSINESS included the report that students will move into the new Wayne Elementary Dec. 2 and a traffic light will be in operation at Eureka and Mound by that time.

CELEBRATING 60 YEARS

On Nov. 11, 1908, St. Mary Church was the scene of the wedding of Arthur George Kropp and Miss Louise Beickelman. Sunday, the Harmony Club, 435 E. Kossuth St., will be the scene of an open house reception celebrating the couple's 60th wedding anniversary. Hosts at the reception will be their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kropp, 1736 Eddystone Ave., and their daughters, Mrs. Herbert Roehrenbeck, 1391 Champion Ave., and Mrs. Paul Wohrle, 1234 Linwood Ave., and their husbands. Mr. and Mrs. Kropp who have always lived in Columbus are now residents of 1222 Oakwood Ave. They have nine grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

THE GADABOUT

By PRISCILLA LENOX 444-1051

The Father-Son Banquet to be held at the St. John's United Church of Christ bids fair to being one of the best of its kind, to our limited knowledge, at least. Scheduled for the 6:15 p.m. affair, Thursday, Nov. 21, is a showing of the NCAA Tournament movie and the appearance of Steve Howell, Dave Sorenson, Denny Meaders and Jody Finney of the OSU basketball squad.

In addition, Jim La Crone, of WTVN, will serve as toastmaster.

Another fact gleaned from a church newsletter this week was learned by an announcement in the Thurman Avenue UMC paper . . . on Sunday, Nov. 24, the Junior Church will celebrate its annual "Christ's Birthday Party," when the children bring gifts suitable for small children in the Columbus State School.

Thanksgiving Service

The South Side Community Thanksgiving Service will be held at the Reeb Avenue Church of Christ in Christian Union, Monday, Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Roy Heimbach, host pastor, will be the speaker. The service is being sponsored by the South Side Ministerial Group. On Thursday, Nov. 28, a union service of all South Side churches will be held at Gates-Fourth UMC, at 10 a.m.

Able to enjoy the sweets of birthday goodies this week are these area youngsters . . . Shari Brisbane, David Wray, James Livingston, Ronald Salyer, Sheri Barnes, Steve Padilla, Cecil Lambert, Joseph Stinson, John Sturgell, Cathy Smyers, Ross Wells, Neil Bowers, Sharon Blair and Teresa Allmon.

Teeners with birthdays include Terry Duckworth, Bill Sanders, Janet Baum, Natalie Pfeifer and Sandy Ashburn.

More November birthdays have been observed by this list of adult natal day celebrants: Tom Ellis, Linda Claffey, Gordon Scholz, Jr., Sophia Reynolds, Dave Bartholomoew, Mary Windmiller, Paul Houston, Jackie Gleich, Fritz Wiechers, Grace Clark, Helen Kizer and Helen Graham.

Anniversaries

Anniversary greetings to Thelma and Joe Gleich, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McQuirt. Brides and grooms-to-be this week include Christina Hepner, 991 Bulen Ave., and James Voyles, Jr., Toledo, who will hear the marriage vows pronounced Saturday, Nov. 23. Both are graduates of Capital University, and teachers in the Columbus school system. Faith Lutheran Church will be the setting for the Nov. 23 wedding of Della Brown, 4022 Powell Ave., and Michael Tarleton, 4075 Beechbank Rd. William Lucas Jr., 1026 S. Champion Ave., will wed Barbara Beane, 569 Acton Rd., Wednesday, Nov. 27.

Hodge Podge

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . Dr. Robert Kaplan will be the guest speaker when Stockbridge PTA meets Thursday, Nov. 21, at 7:30 p.m. for a father-son meeting.

The Columbus Grandmothers' Club will hold its monthly social meeting Tuesday, Nov. 26, 12 noon, at Schiller Park.

The Central Ohio Home Plate Club will meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 25, at the Swiss Club, 1036 S. Front St.

A panel program has been planned for the Lincoln Park PTA program, Tuesday, Nov. 26, at 7:30 p.m. The panel members are Barbara Levinson, Maxine Smith, Vivian Russell, Jon Fenton and Mrs. John Grice.

The final "Football Dinner" to be held at the Harmony Glee Club this season will be Saturday, Nov. 23, from 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets are $1.25 for adults, 65 cents for children. Committee chairmen Millie Barclay and Annabelle Ruzcika have chosen to serve sauerkraut and pork. The club is located at 435 E. Kossuth St.

PEBS

PEBS, Chapter 2, will have a "double feature" meeting Tuesday, Nov. 26, as members will do a bit of bowling first, then meet for luncheon at Shade's Restaurant later.

Third grade pupils of Cedarwood Elementary School will present a Thanksgiving program for PTA members of the school, Tuesday, Nov. 26, at 7:30 p.m.

The Senior High CE of the Southwood Church of Christ will hold a skating party Thursday, Nov. 21. Officers of the younger CE groups were recently elected and are: Junior CE, Jeff Mills, president; Diane Kessler, vice president; Judy Sharp, secretary; Doug Colley, assistant secretary; Kevin Wolfe, treasurer, assisted by [illegible] Meadows.

The Junior High CE officers are Tim Hoyt, president; Raymond Duncan, vice president; Debbie Hopkins, Gloria Duncan, secretary and treasurer; Jackie Sharp, corresponding secretary.

Cabbage Roll Yen

If it's a yen for cabbage rolls you have, this is the week to satisfy it. The Suzanne Lorantfy Ladies Aid of the Hungarian UC of C, Woodrow and Washington Avenues, have planned a Carry-Out order sale, Saturday, Nov. 23, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Advance ordering may be done by calling Elizabeth Dobos, 645 Sheldon Ave., a

Children, grandchildren and friends presented Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Speakmon, 820 S. Third St., with the "surprise of their life" in the recent observation of the couple's silver anniversary.

Ray Speakmans' Handed 'Surprise Of Their Life'

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Speakmon celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary a couple days early with a family gift exchange and a pleasant evening spent dancing to the music of their son's band, "The Jack Speakmon Trio."

This was typical of the manner the Speakmons' have spent their anniversaries in recent years.

However, on the next afternoon, they returned from bowling tryouts to learn their family didn't think this was "quite enough" when it comes time to count up 25 years of marriage.

Mrs. Speakmon's mother, Mrs. Sylvia Stubretz, and five of the Speakmon's six children had arranged a surprise party that left the long time Southsiders speechless, according to the family.

The only child not present was L/Cpl. Ed Speakmon who is stationed in Georgia with the U.S. Marines.

Their four other sons, Gene, Jack and Allan of Columbus and Ray of Morgantown, W. Va., and their daughter, Mrs. Shirley Clay, were all on hand as well as grandchildren and a host of friends.

443-6465. Patrons will facilitate matters by bringing containers. The church will benefit from all profits.

Senior Citizen members will have an opportunity to learn more about "The Forgotten Americans" Friday, Nov. 22, 2:30 p.m., when Mrs. Rogers displays articles and shows slides of American Indians. The Thanksgiving Dance will be held Nov. 22, 7:15 to 9:15, with the Frankie Bush orchestra providing the music.

Cub Scouts

Cub Scouts of Thurman Avenue UMC Church are collecting newspapers and should any readers care to help this fund-raising project, call Don Van Langen at 443-1218, or drop them at his home, 717 Deshler Ave. The church's senior MYFers plan to see the Harlem Globe Trotters soon.

A "Poison Antidote Kit" is currently being sold by the Hi-Y groups in this area, so interested persons are urged to call the South-Side YMCA, 444-2151, for complete details. Mail orders may be sent to the "Y" at 190 Southwood Ave.

The Homemakers Class of the Washington Avenue UM Church will meet at 7 p.m., Friday, Nov. 22.

Ted Heaton's Combo will provide the music for the mid-week dance to be held at the YWCA, Wednesday, Nov. 27, 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. The dance will have a Thanksgiving theme. The making of Christmas will occupy the 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Homespun Hour, Thursday, Nov. 21, while R. K. Burnard will show Alaskan slides on the World Affairs Hour, 11:45 a.m to 12:45 p.m.

The Mothers' Club of the Southwood Church of Christ will meet Tuesday, Nov. 26, in the evening.

'Gifts for Giving'

Only three weeks remain until this columnist and her distribution crew make the rounds at Benjamin Franklin Hospital to deliver donated items so the patients may have "Gifts for Giving" at the holiday season.

Simply stated, warm-hearted readers of this column show compassion for the less fortunate by providing items for men, women, boys and and girls, which are not kept by the patients, but are used as remembrances for their loved ones.

Any illness is a drain on financial resources, and even with the miracle drugs that help arrest the tuberculosis "bug," the hospital stay still involves about six months.

When a father is the patient, the family income often depends upon welfare checks. When a mother is the patient, the children are often "farmed out" or it is necessary to hire a housekeeper, and both methods can be a severe strain on the worried father's pocketbook.

And, this is a big point to consider: tuberculosis may be a disease soon to be conquered, but those so afflicted are just as sick, and get just as depressed as were patients of by-gone years.

We'd welcome SO much a call from those interested in donating!

The number, as per usual, is 444-1051.

Please call!

THE GERMAN VILLAGE NEWS

MEMORY WELLS OF YESTERDAY

Freedom Of Religion Week

The 1800 Veterans Day coincides with Freedom of Religions Thanksgiving feastdays.

November 11th was Veterans Day for all, but in many different ways. Let us go back to Central Europe and the early centuries, particularly to Germany. Wars are natural methods to change a face, a race, and the heart pace.

Germany is the home of science, birthplace of internationally known eminent philosophers and poets. Germany is known as "Old Fatherland."

It is known as the cradle of most important inventions that gave new impulse to mankind. Able craftsmen united into powerful guilds. Masonry may have come from these, the masonry known today, because of antiquity masonic art works depicting Work through the Chairs. Yet oddly enough, the 23rd degree is given in another country, a country that made its changeover by and through German occupancy, in the Middle Ages.

Many merchants became famous for their wealth and so gained titles, because of their ability to further the Emperors through international loans. It is said they contributed freely to the German cities everywhere. There are recorded instances of merchants giving one quarter profits of all shipments to the Emperor and that without Tax, in order to operate as a merchant.

Berthold Schwarz invented gunpowder, revolutionizing warfare. Astronomers Kopernickils and Kepler established the fact that the Sun is a center around which the earth and planets revolve. Martin Luther is said to have initiated the Reformation that led three million into being killed, either by war, starvation or the pest. By the way, his birthday was Nov. 10, 1483.

The greatest number was Thuringia where 90% are said to have perished. One must not forget the Colony of Weimar wrote the Bible and perhaps this played a part in the wholesale extermination of these peoples.

The Palatinate population of 500,000 suffered a loss of 457,000. Geneological research of ancestors of the Palatinate gives some evidence these did not all die in the 30 Year War but migrated into the New World by way of England. In Bohemia, the population diminished from 3 million to 780,000. From this area came Rev. Post of Tuscarawas County fame.

This may account for the extreme secrecy of earliest German settlements and perhaps give answers to unmarked grave yards up to 1825.

At any rate, chronicles state one could wander for miles throughout some German states without seeing a living creature except wolves and ravens, at the war's end in 1648.

Then Louis XIV of France ordered a raid that finished that which survived ravages of the 30 Years War and devastated by fire.

These brought enforced changes in religion.

Palatines were compelled to change their faith several times from Catholic to Protestant then to Reformed, later on to Lutheran and finally back to Catholic again.

Then came Napoleon and his raiding parties. Madame Sarah Bernhardt, an English songstress who manipulated a Prussian title under the name of Bernhardt, brought Napoleon era furniture to Columbus. Somehow it became the property of the Pick Hotel and one of its smaller hotel units, the Chittendon.

The Chittendon Hotel lobby contains furniture of the Napoleon era, and is indicative of the ravages of war during the sale of Ohio land in Courts of Europe. These were brought to light last year by an antique dealer. One must know military history to be able to pinpoint any period article. In this group, one finds a chest said to be made by the Netherlands. Netherlands were Catholic, and reverenced icons. This particular chest carries Laurel Leaves, indicative of Divine Law story carved by Jewish carpenters, copy of which can be found in a Hebrew encyclopedia.

Time marches on. Science is still uppermost in the German States. Today, Germany's telephone system is one of the best. Her underground cities are large, prepared for nuclear war by man or nature.

Roses Go With German Village

Roses go with German Village Home-Making beautification program. Its fruit is good also.

Rose Hips are an unusual and potent source of vitamin C, which is free for the taking. Rose hips are the seed pods left after the rose petals have fallen, or when these seeds are at the peak of their maturity which usually occurs in October.

Rose Hips average 520 milligrams per 100 grams of about half a cup. The white roses hit the jackpot with from 3000 to 5000 mgs. per half cup. If they are gathered in November, about half of the potency is obtained as colder weather cuts it about 25 per cent.

Vitamin C is a health insurance policy against infections, allergies, soft gum tissues and easy bruising. Rose Hip elixir can be made by simmering chopped or mashed rose hips for 15 minutes, cool, and drink with a few drops of lemon juice.

Restored German Villa homes contain m[illegible] roses. But the older rose[illegible] ga[illegible] ner the stronger [illegible]cy f[illegible] the rose-hip jar in the herb apothecary.

DANKFEST

(Thanksgiving Day)

[illegible] can taste of the Nectar only as the taste organ has been developed. So it is with Thanksgiving.

Each of us carry a different concept, one that was inbred, and one that was trained at Mother's knee, and another developed by the cold, heartless battle of life itself. Stripped and being stripped is the Keynote of the crucifixion, given to us throughout Time, written in Stone, on Papyrus, and finally the "Boc" that became the "Written Word." The "Word" is God and God is the Power, increased according to the Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving is supposed to be a "Feast for the Gods" Day, for good crop harvests. It is also the basis of the Mustard Seed, an herb.

But Mustard does not grow abundantly in Germany. It is a product of Roumania, the Ukraine and Montana areas that lay practically upon the same longitudinal line.

The word, Thanksgiving, did not start in the German Empire but in the Old Anglo Saxon Law of "thanc." North High Germans made it "Danc" allying it with the Gothic word meaning "to remember," an expression of gratitude rather than the Law of "give out" so that you may receive in "abundance" or that which you gave, plus a sum extra.

This "thanc" Law is better explained in the Law of the Tree. The sap rises every spring, by taking power from chemicals of earth. It grows in stature and beauty, giving something to the atmosphere, an unseen chemical of oxygen and hydrogen mixture.

In the Fall, it gives "thanks" for its Breath of Life, by returning to soils and earth, that which it borrowed in the spring, plus a bit more through compost made from fallen leaves. It is a natural fertilizer, containing the right proportions of chemicals brewed by nature in her whirlwind stirring spoon and the boiling pot of the sun and moon turntables.

Shakespeare wrote, "I thank you for your honest care." Third Street's St. Mary's Catholic Church can be likened to the Law within Shakespeare's maxim. It is a peerage of family and community life. It teaches togetherness, and group activity, and respect for the higher self.

St. Mary's Church has long been the bulwark of German Village Area. Its Homecoming Day every August marks a New Beginning by way of Memory. Most German immigrants were Lutherans founded by Martin Luther.

Martin Luther, born November 10, 1483, conveniently chose the date which corresponds mathematically with the Cor Scorpii Constellation which embeds the story of the Woman's Seed and the Virgon's Son given in Matthew.

One of the stars is called Unuk in the Denderah Temple artifacts now housed in a Paris Museum. It is the story of the Hawk Chief in the religion of the early Indian and his worship of the great Manito Chief.

Father Farrell's Summa Theologae contains the same ancient story of Creation and its maintenance as does the essence of Martin Luther's teachings. One finds both of these imprints in the Books of Moses written in Weimar, Bavaria, Germany in the first printed Bible.

One finds it also depicted in the Agrippa drawings compiled long before Jesus walked the earth. A copy of that print is housed in the Adena Museum at Chillicothe, home of Thomas Worthington.

One finds that modern psychiatry contains teachings taken from all of these, and few books in the past century carry anything new from Luther's and Farrell's Writings which compile a long story of Thankfest else that which we have will return to dust, forcing a new beginning.

Moundbuilders depicted the True Story of Dankfest within the buried temples staggered according to longitudinal and latitudinal lines throughout the United States. It makes America one of the most strategic places in the World, for proof of her richness in religious knowledge is in museums in Paris, Edinburgh and Rome.

Christmas Fund Brings Cheer To Children

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Have you ever sat in a hospital waiting room, been a patient, visited a patient or paced the floor?

If so, then you are among the majority and can readily remember the barren halls, the unfamiliar faces, the lonely hours and the strange [illegible]

Hospitals are for healing and mending. But, for whatever reason you were there, that ominous and sterile atmosphere can never be totally blanked out of the mind.

Friends and relatives visit, flowers and cards arrive, books and magazines pile up and time slowly creeps by.

Hospitals are not home and health, nor are they supposed to be. For once a hospital has cured and mended, the patient is released to return home.

You are an adult, reading this article and thusly can understand and accept the above facts of life.

What about a child?

The little boy that jumped off the garage and broke his arm, the little girl that fell off a bike and broke her leg . . . maybe far worse. What are hospitals to them?

It doesn't take much thought to place yourself in their world, much less to understand their stay at a hospital.

Thirty years ago a female radio broadcaster visited a hospital and, being the woman she was, pleaded to her listeners to support a party for those children.

That was the beginning of an annual plea to you and me to help these little elfin-like strangers who are pint-sized patients in the sterile, unfamiliar world of a hospital.

There are now 97 hospitals in a three state area receiving funds so that every child becomes a recipient of kindness which evokes warmth and a smile.

During the 30 years, while hospitals were being added, Ruth Lyons became a television phenomenon, suffered personal strife, retired from television and has left behind her a legend, not only her successful career, but The Ruth Lyons Christmas Fund.

So the program's name, 50-50 Club seems even more than a title. Whatever she received from television was returned to the children . . . of then, now and tomorrow.

AVCO Broadcasting, home for the 50-50 Club and Bob Braun, host of the program, decided to continue the annual plea after Miss Lyons' retirement. That was quite an undertaking, since the inner strength of the founder wouldn't be there.

Many people have remembered these past several years, some old donors, others new donors, but all have one thing in common — "Christmas In Your Heart," one of Miss Lyons' own touches.

There is a tiny room in the basement of AVCO Broadcasting in Cincinnati reached by walking through a maze of passageways where mail bags, thousands of envelopes, cardboard boxes labeled for age groups, card tables, a phone and a portable TV literally fill the room.

Amidst all this sit two women, Marge Bennett and weatherman Frank Pierce's wife, Alice, opening, reading, sorting and counting notes, letters and money. As the volume increases, Celeste Schneider, Joanne Wentzel, Ellen Burr and Jean Cox come in to help.

All expenses, including salaries, acknowledgements, banking, etc., are paid for by AVCO Broadcasting so that the funds are never depleted for expenses, but remain just for the children.

In the meantime, upstairs in Bob Braun's suite of offices, Elsa Suel is still arranging donations from hundreds of businessmen so that drawings can be held to repay some of the donors with gifts, given away on the Thanksgiving Day Show and The Holiday Hello Show.

In an outer office, Barbara Elnen busily writes acknowledgements of donations made in the memory of someone. She is the coordinator of the Christmas Fund.

Bob and his cheery sidekick, Rosemary Kelly, plan trips to the hospitals and personal appearances. After the noon to 1:30 p.m. show, they travel to two hospitals a week.

They visit with those little patients, talk to administration officials, film the visits, then air them on the show, so you and I can remember to help. But, from having visited Doctors Hospital with them a few weeks ago, the films usually show the children that are on the mend.

Someday Rosemary should tell the story of her special reminder of the children. The story behind the Christmas pin she wears is enough reason for the fund.

The story doesn't end here. Every employe at AVCO becomes a part of the Christmas Fund. A Christmas tree is set up in the station's lobby and everyone puts a card on it with a donation. What a heavenly tree it must be.

The story goes on. The Fund furnishes babies, toddlers, adolescents and teenagers with a toy, a game, a puzzle, a stuffed animal, a trinket or maybe a puppet—something that takes the eyes and mind away from the ominous and sterile hospital.

Many television sets have been furnished . . . parties for special occasions . . . equipment purchased to aid the hospital staff to further the process of measuring heartbeats or breathing.

It goes on and on. From Ruth Lyons we have taken on a task that is one of a kind, which shall go on and on, as long as there are broken legs and broken arms and far more . . . and children and "Christmas In Your Heart."

For Bob Braun and Rosemary Kelly of AVCO Broadcasting, this is a typical scene — a visit to a hospitalized child as part of the activities of the annual Ruth Lyons' Christmas Fund.

TV Corner

CHANNEL 10: "Cheyenne Autumn," John Ford's action-packed epic about a band of Indians striving to return to the home territory from which they were uprooted, will be presented on tonight's "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" at 9.

"On The Waterfront" starring Marlon Brando, Eva Marie Saint, Lee J. Cobb and Rod Steiger will be shown at 11:30 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 23. This 1954 drama received seven Oscar awards.

"Francis Albert Sinatra Does His Thing" airs Monday, Nov. 25, at 9 p.m. over Channel 10. Tunes familiar to the ex-bobby soxers of the '40s, to the teeny-boppers of the '60s and to all Frank Sinatra fans in between will be included in the full-hour music special. Guests will be Diahann Carroll and The 5th Dimension.

CHANNEL 4: Vivienne Della Chiesa is broadcasting this week's shows from the Channel 4 studio.

"Merv Griffin's Sidewalks of New England," is an ABC Thanksgiving special to air Sunday, Nov. 24, at 8 p.m. Merv Griffin and his friends, Arthur Treacher, Aretha Franklin, Paul Revere and the Raiders, Jimmy Helms and members of the American Ballet Theater will sing and dance their way through historic and beautiful New England.

'First Edition' Returns To Home Base

In October, 1967, The First Edition made their club debut at Columbus' own Bistro. What happened that night and the ensuing nights was to send their career skyrocketing to the very top.

In these past 13 months, The First Edition has appeared on The Smothers Brothers Show, The Steve Allen Show, The Today Show, The Ed Sullivan Show, The Dick Cavett Show, he Steve Allen Show, The Red Skelton Show and the Joey Bishop Show.

Nightclub triumphs have included Leadbetter's in Los Angeles, Basin Street West in San Francisco, Soul City in Houston, The Chateau in Denver, Ruggles in St. Louis, Mister Kelly's in Chicago, The Bitter End in New York and the Unicorn in Boston.

Recordings have included such hits as "I Found A Reason," "Condition," "Only Me," "Charlie" and two albums entitled "The First Edition" and "The First Edition's 2nd."

It all started at The Bistro. The group is taking a vacation this week.

Their vacation will be a four night engagement at The Bistro. Showtimes are Thursday and Sunday, 9:30 and 11:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, 8:30, 10:30 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

Admission will be $2.50 per person. Admission will be limited to adults Friday and Saturday, only.

Battelle Concert Features Pianist

Prestige Concerts will present William Masselos, pianist, at the Battelle Auditorium Saturday, Nov. 23, at 8:30 p.m.

Although known for his performances of a classical repertoire, Masselos is also regarded as a champion of contemporary music. His program consists entirely of works by modern composers.

A limited number of tickets will be available at the door.

'Newcomers Guide' Readied

Plans for publishing the second edition of "The Newcomers Guide," a magazine containing information on the Columbus area aimed at newcomers to the city, have been announced by publisher Thomas G. O'Keefe and Associates, 88 E. Broad St.

The 1969 edition is expected off the press in December.

It will present 112 pages of basic information and maps on schools, churches, transportation, recreation, housing, industry, research and development, civic organizations, cultural activities and other data on Columbus and 27 cities and villages in the Greater Columbus area.

The guide will be sold on newsstands.

STORK VISITS

Larry Badders, the handsome and articulate announcer on the Nick Clooney Show seen weekdays at 10:30 p.m. over Channel 4, began a new career as a father at 6:57 p.m., Monday. Wife, Cheryl, presented him with a seven lb. 13 oz. boy, Jamison Edward.

'Coogan's Bluff' Pits West Against East

You've heard, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."

Well, Clint Eastwood may have heard it, but in his current role of an Arizona deputy sheriff, "Coogan," he pays no heed to this advice.

The film, "Coogan's Bluff," takes the Arizonian out of the country, puts him in New York City to extradite a dope swinging hippie and lets him prove you can't take the guts out of this cowboy.

Northland and Eastland Cinemas are sharing this fast action film packed with hippies, sex, poolroom characters and knock-down, drag-out fights.

Producer-director, Don Siegal, brings to the screen an action-packed vehicle that is sure to please adults for not only the story, but for the excellent usage of photography and bits of humor.

Clint Eastwood as ruff 'n tuff "Coogan," along with his superb acting, will appeal to the women. This appeal is put to use in the film, thus the film is for mature audiences only.

Eastwood's deliberate "cool" is the crux of his performance as well as contributing to the overall screenplay.

"Linny Raven," the criminal's hippie girlfriend, as portrayed by Tisha Sterling, is appearing in her first major role. She understands her role as a hippie with "a green worm" and a desire to see blood. She brings to the screen a fine performance.

Miss Sterling's facial features will remind you of Ann Southern. They should, for she is the daughter of Miss Southern and Robert Sterling.

"Sgt. McElroy" is portrayed by Lee J. Cobb. Next to "Coogan" he resembles a lamb.

West meets east in a clash jammed with scenes filmed at Fort Tryon Park, the Tavern-On-The-Green Restaurant in Central Park, the Heliport at the Pan-Am Building and The Cloisters.

Fine fare for those seeking action, thrills and a look at the world of dope and poolroom gangsters.

"Coogan's Bluff" will run through Dec. 17.

The story of Gertrude Lawrence opens Dec. 19 with Julie Andrews in "Star."

'A DELICATE BALANCE' STRUCK BY EISENSTEIN

'KIND LADY' SLATED

Prairie Players members now in rehearsal for "Kind Lady" to play this Friday and Saturday at the Norton Junior High School at 8:30 p.m. are Maurley Sutton, Dick Curtis and Elizabeth Noblitt.

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

For the fifth time, I, as a reviewer, have come upon an Edward Albee play. This fifth time has been a result of Gallery Players' superb interpretation of "A Delicate Balance."

Coming upon an Albee play is like coming face to face with the ugliness of life. This ugliness comes in the form of growing old, greed, money as a god, or hatred — just to name a few.

The beauty of an Albee play is not then in the theme but in the script, in the delivery and finally in the individual interpretation.

This individual interpretation of every man, viewing or participating, becomes a part of his or her life . . . to be considered, pondered and in some instances, probably solved. But that solving is only one person's answer.

How can a play be both ugly and beautiful?

How can a play be fulfilling, yet so confusing? How can a play be so clear in characters, yet so dark in overall story line?

These answers come through realizing Albee's plays prick at life. He prys into the depths we all hide.

"A Delicate Balance" dissects relationships that are taken for granted as everyday life. In the play, Albee uncovers a middle-age couple's love, their daughter's fourth trip home to end a fourth marriage, the wife's live-in sister and another couple's terror.

What Albee succeeds in accomplishing is unmasking the false delusions and illusions of life. To produce an Albee play is another unmasking.

This unmasking must be two-fold: a personal evaluation on the part of the cast and an evaluation through the director.

Yes, every play is, or should be, produced this way, but when considering Albee's meanings, it is easy to understand why an Albee play must be consuming in every question referred to earlier.

Director Harold Eisenstein has impeccably cast and developed the immensity of "A Delicate Balance." Eisenstein's genius in developing a cast goes unmarred. An honest and complete involvement with the characters and play has been made possible through Eisenstein's creativity and artistic perfection.

Eisenstein has amassed six talented performers, each distinctively performs and, of utmost importance to an Albee play, reacts flawlessly.

Lynn Roth as the wise, but drunken sister, reacts her way into becoming Columbus' leading lady. Graydon Goss and his stage wife, Lil Strouss, take and give electricity in artistic balance.

Carole Gregg, the homebound daughter, is precisely on the mark. She creates a momentum while on stage that definitely displays much self-discipline in describing an Albee character.

The friends, Dorothy Kehoe and Con Downey, for one reason or another, do create a feeling of terror. As intruders, they perform incisively.

Gallery Players' set is a masterpiece in tune with Albee. Costumes also reflect a delicate balance. Makeup needs improving and a lighter touch with the lines.

An absolute must this week is a trip to the Jewish Center.

"A Delicate Balance" plays through Saturday.

Fifty phone calls will be placed this Christmas season as WMNI Radio begins its seventh year of "Hi, Mom."

In conjunction with the local Communications Workers of America, these phone calls will be made to any overseas or U.S. base. Ten calls will be placed every Sunday, through Dec. 15.

If you have a son or daughter serving in the armed forces, write in 25 words or less why you want to talk to your son or daughter.

Entry deadline is Dec. 14. Mail entries to WMNI Radio, Southern Hotel, Columbus, O. All entries not chosen one week will be held over for the following week.

All letters become the property of the station.

Wesleyan Fare 'Right You Are..'

"Right You Are (If You Think You Are)" is now being presented by the Ohio Wesleyan University Theater, in the Quons-Hut Theater on campus at Delaware.

Tickets are available at the door. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m., with performances running tonight through Saturday evening.

Around Town

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

A bit of Americana and a touch of nostalgia is at the Hartman Theater this week. Ann Corio (to the "young" generation, she is to burlesque what Ethel Merman is to musical comedy) presents and stars in "This Was Burlesque" — best reviewed Monday night by a middle-aged customer smiling on his way out, saying, "ahh . . . memories, memories."

This is the goal of the revue, as Ann sees it, to recreate the early days of burlesque. The old fashioned burlesque with baggy pants comics, lots of laughter and sophisticated bits of "Look, Ma, I'm dancing," by a gum chewing chorus girl.

To some, burlesque may cause raised eyebrows. To others, it is the mother of many of the great comedians of our time, men like Milton Berle, Danny Thomas and Red Skelton.

I first saw the show in New York where it played on Broadway for several years and it was a riot then . . . and even more so now. There are many new comedy sketches in the show. But the greatest change in the revue is the addition of Jerry Lester, best known for his creation of the original "Broadway Open House" TV show on NBC. Jerry brings many years of capable experience to the show. This guy is talented. He alone is worth the price of a ticket.

"This Was Burlesque" is an array of girls, girls, girls, collected by Miss Corio to show what burlesque was like before the comics became too naughty and the girls stopped being "strippers" and became "exotics." The show is based on Ann Corio's recollections of the days when she was the top attraction throughout the country.

Top Bananas Claude Mathis, Dexter Maitland, Harry Ryan and the old pro, Harry Conley, throw out one-liners like rapid fire machine guns. Are they risque? Maybe, but not obscene or lewd. As Miss Corio puts it, "they leave the blue jokes to the class D comics in class D clubs."

The show is just plain, knee-slapping material that sets off a bomb of laughing gas. "This Was Burlesque" is authentic, right down to the candy pitchman who guarantees a prize in every box of 50 cent goodies.

Is there a story line? You bet there is. The show tells of the revolution of entertainment in America. If you're past 35, let the revue take you back to the good old days. If you're under 35 . . . well, see it anyway for a new experience you'll never forget.

Jimmy Joseph Comes Home

Jimmy Joseph is back home again. This past Monday night, he re-opened the old Sands at 3915 E. Main St. Now known as Ohio's Grand Ole Opry, the place got off to a swinging start with a packed house the entire evening. Many local club owners, musicians, and top stars from the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville were among the opening night crowd.

As the name implies, Ohio's Grand Ole Opry features the best in country and western entertainment. This week's show is headlined by Tommy Cash, brother of Johnny Cash, and includes an array of talent. Handling the m.c. chores is Hank Newman. Turning in starring performances this week are Pat Zill, well known in the country, Marty Martell, Johnny Lee and the Outcasts and the club's very own square dancers.

This Friday and Saturday, Hank Williams, Sr.'s original band, the Drifting Cowboys will appear. On Friday, an original oil portrait of Hank Williams, Sr., will be unveiled.

Ohio's Grand Ole Opry is a very plush club for this type of operation. Many of the Grand Ole Opry stars said it is the nicest, most beautiful country and western club in America. We think so too. Go see for yourself. This is just the first week for the club. Jimmy promises a continuation of top Nashville stars.

El Black Rose

For those of you who are true gourmets or just enjoy good food, the Imperial House-North's El Black Rose Restaurant is a must for a real dining adventure. This is especially true on Friday nights since your host, Dino Gounaris, has inaugurated the new Sea Food Fare menu. To begin with, the size of the menu itself will amaze you. It is 18 x 24 inches and is attached to a stand which a waitress places at the side of your table.

Sea Food Fare is appropriately named because the menu includes a whole list of delightful sea food specialties. Just to tease your appetite a little, here's a few items listed on the menu: fresh whole baked stuffed lobster, paper bag pompano, planked swordfish steak, stuffed flounder and many, many other tempting dishes.

After the waitress takes your order, you begin a two hour symphony of dining. Our "program" began with an appetizer of Oyster Rockefeller which was uniquely prepared. This was a great overture to an excellent meal. By the way, all dinners include a tempting relish tray. Next comes the El Black Rose special salad, prepared at your table. Take it from me, this was the most delicious salad this columnist has ever eaten. Now you are ready for the main course. My friend dined on the stuffed lobster, while I selected the swordfish.

The whole baked stuffed lobster is a gourmet's dream come true, and believe me, the sword fish was a great delicacy to the taste buds. Next, if you have room, comes dessert, which you select from many items on the dessert cart. For our beverage we chose Dino's original Coffee Diablo. This is also prepared at the table, and is a real treat.

To carry out the sea fare theme, all the waitresses, as well as the musicians, are dressed in sailor outfits. The girls wear traditional white middies and bell bottom trousers. By the way, our waitress, Irma Myers, was one of the most courteous, efficient girls who ever waited on me.

Dino Gounaris is the man responsible. While he's known as host of the El Black Rose Restaurant, he is an excellent executive chef. Dino has not only created this seafood menu, but he supervises every aspect in the preparation of the food. It would be wise for president-elect Nixon to hire Dino Gournaris as the executive chef of the White House.

Dr. Eibling Nominated

Dr. Harold H. Eibling, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools, has been nominated for the office of president-elect of the American Association of School Administrators.

Eibling is one of three nominees selected from the 17,000 member organization. The other candidates for the executive office are the superintendents of schools in Atlanta, Ga., and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Balloting for the one-year term beginning in March will take place next month.

Eibling is currently serving his second year as a member of the executive committee of AASA.

Panelists To Discuss Communism

Are The Goals of World Communism Changing?

This will be the topic question Sunday, Nov. 24, on Columbus Town Meeting from noon until 1 p.m. over WBNS-TV.

Earl Morris will moderate the live telecast which will be rebroadcast over WBNS Radio from 10 p.m. until 11 Sunday evening.

Speakers will be:

Dr. Joseph M. Bochenski, Switzerland, visiting professor, University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Michael W. Curran, associate director of the Center for Slavic and East European Studies, Ohio State University.

Dr. Loyal N. Gould, director, International Journalism program, Ohio State University.

Twigs To Hold Annual Bazaar

Neighborhood Twig members will participate in the 47th Annual Twig Bazaar Nov. 25 from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Lausche Building, Ohio State Fairgrounds.

Proceeds from the sale of homemade merhandise and ticket receipts will be donated to Children's Hospital for research and expenses of services.

Merchandise available includes antiques, decorations for the holidays, baked goods and condiments.

The Twigs of Children's Hospital began in 1916 with seven neighborhood units. There are now 130 active Twigs with more than 2,500 members.

A special service will be offered this year.

"Tote-Wagon" buses will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m between the Lausche Building and the intersection of Fourth and 17th Streets and Summit and 17th Streets.

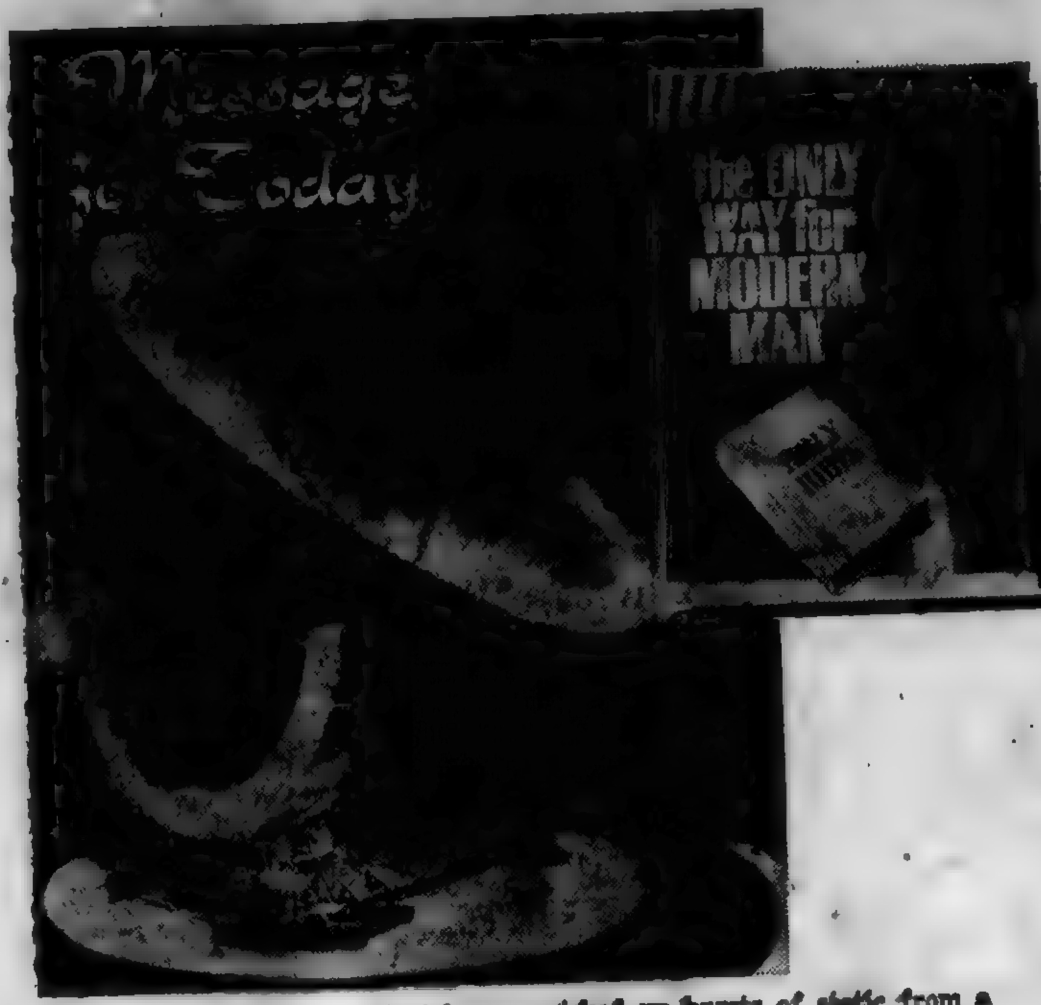
WORSHIP IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE



A giant radio telescope picked up bursts of static from a galaxy 2009 light years away. In them, scientists discovered these simple words:

"Earthmen, your planet is in danger. As your morals decay, your great cities slowly crumble. You will see wars and civil strife."

"But we offer you hope," the ancient message continued. "A new world. We can give you knowledge and bring you the peace for which you have searched so long . . ."

Science-fiction?

Not entirely.

There is a message that originated in a distant place over 2000 years ago. It describes the world as it is today, and it offers hope for the future.

The Bible, inspired by God, is a very real message, one that you can begin reading today. Then go to church on Sunday and meet the Author there.

Welfare Staff Worker Quits

Editor's note: Miss Nancy Litscher worked at the Franklin County Welfare Department since June, 1964. She received a BA in social work from Capital University and an MSW from Ohio State. She was instrumental to converting the intake procedures to emphasis on short-term service and meeting emergency needs of clients.

A resigning Franklin County Welfare Department offi[illegible]as charged that the de[illegible]ent is ignoring its re[illegible]bilities in rehabilitation and is "doing what is expedient without planning for the future."

Nancy Litscher, chief intake supervisor, told The Spectator in an exclusive interview her reasons for leaving the embattled department. She is the first staff member publicly to state reasons for resigning since the firing of welfare director Tom Brittenham.

"I am leaving because, as a part of the administration, I am responsible for interpretation of policies and making decisions. I no longer feel I can ethically do this when the agency seems to be moving in a direction I am opposed to," she said.

She indicated that important decisions are being made in the spirit of vindictiveness for personal ambitions rather than what is good for the agency.

She pointed to newspaper stories and community attitudes which imply the majority of welfare recipients are "chiselers" and the main job of the social worker is to "weed them out."

She referred to a recent public statement by Acting Welfare Director Michael Seidemann indicating that one of his first tasks would be to get the "chiselers" off welfare.

"This was a self-serving statement," she said. "We have never assisted people in being dishonest. To imply that we have been doing this is ridiculous. It would be unprofessional to condone 'chiselers' on the welfare roles."

Miss Litscher does not feel rehabilitation is impossible even within the clumsy framework of public welfare. But it becomes difficult.

"We have IBM equipment people can't operate or can't be programmed for our type of work. The worker often spends hours every month trying to find food for a family because the check was lost and can't be replaced for a week."

When asked what it was like to work for the Welfare Department, she said, "From the outside we are continually being questioned about the validity of what we are doing. From the inside, to feel professional satisfaction because of the rigid structure of the job, you have to work sometimes as many as 60 hours a week to get everything done."

While her criticisms, for the most part, apply to the public welfare system as a whole, she spoke to some of the specific problems created by the changeover in administration after Brittenham's firing.

- Credibility gap: "It is difficult to believe what we are told. We had a bomb scare on a Friday afternoon and staff was told the next day in a memo it was a fire drill. It was a matter of public record that it was a bomb scare. I feel this is unnecessary untruthfulness."
- Lack of reliable information: "When a crisis occurs to the staff, we are not given the facts. We are told everything is all right, to go on with our work and don't question any decisions or believe what we read in the newspapers. People who are responsible in their jobs suddenly read in the papers they are being irresponsible."
- Collection of funds: "Traditionally when people leave the agency, or a crisis occurs in a staff member's life, money has been collected in the agency. Now it can be done only on approval of the director. This was apparently the result of the fact that some staff members wanted to collect money to assist Mr. Brittenham with legal fees.

"This was discussed with the chief casework supervisors and we were told by the acting director that he understood some of the chiefs were looking for jobs and the sooner they left the better. He threatened disciplinary action or suspensions."

- Personnel changes: Miss Litscher feels the constant and often unexplained personnel changes within the department are bad for morale and affect the continuity necessary for an efficient opera-

Spectator's 1968-'69 Basketball Previews

(Ed. note—This is the first in a series of preview stories dealing with basketball prospects at area high schools for the upcoming '68-'69 cage season. This week's subjects: Marion - Franklin, South, Mohawk and Groveport).

BY BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

M-F

If the City League had a six-foot and under club, Marion-Franklin might well be a charter member—for the Red Devils of Tom Kahler have only four players barely over the limit.

In fact the "extreme lack of height and inexperience" are the major problems besides a rugged all-games schedule according to M-F's second-year cage boss.

BUT THE Devils are hoping that a uniform-hugging defense based on good speed and "built around Roy Keyes" will compensate for the lack of size.

"Keyes is by far our best defensive player, and we'll use his potential with a strong man-to-man defense we plan to have," Kahler notes.

The returning lettermen list of five is headed by Jim Elliott, a 14 point-per-game scorer last season who is back at 5-8 and a guard position.

TERRY BLACKBURN (8 points-per-game and 6-1), Dan Wright, a 6-1 forward, Bill Harris, a 5-8 guard and the wily 5-7 Keyes round out the veteran list.

Kahler also plans to make good use of Norm Johnson, a 5-11 transfer from Central, Ray Mills, a 6-0 junior, Lloyd Ball, a 5-9 junior, Ray Enyart, a 5-10 junior, Bill Nichols, a 6-1 junior, and Bob Abbott, a 6-2 junior.

Kahler doesn't look for this edition of M-F basketball to be a City contender as "every game will be tough for us due to the height problem."

BUT THE coach of the 10-9 Red Devils of last season figures City championship talk will come from East once again with competition coming from Mohawk, South, Eastmoor, West, Linden and Walnut Ridge.

SOUTH

Two veteran roundballers return to give third-season coach Dick Ricketts at least some starting ground.

Missing will be top point aces Mike Oden (17.1) and Howard Wilson (12.3), but lettermen Pat Beasley's 11.5 and Stan Dixon's 12.4 is nothing to shun when talking about possible Bulldog offense leaders.

"The major problems this year," according to Ricketts, "will be a lack of experience as only two of the boys had any real playing time last year."

"Beasley is a boy of all-League caliber," notes Dick. "He's played well for us."

IN THE RUGGED City League race, the South boss feels that it will again be East at top followed by "Linden, West, Eastmoor, and South."

"We'll make a good showing," he concluded.

MOHAWK

If Mohawk picks up where it left off last season, City League coaches better be prepared.

THE 12-3 first-time battling Indians of Dave Scheetz impressed plenty of people at the AA tournament with a game band of sophomores.

Now a year later, Dave feels only the lack of City League experience and pressure may harm his smooth operators. Newcomers in the past have been treated very unhospitably by other CL members.

But, at any rate, Mohawk should make itself known in the County's oldest league on the basis of good "team speed and six real fine shooters."

BACK ARE all six letter winners for Mohawk headed by Fred Saunders, a 21.2 averaging junior center and Bruce Nelson, a 14.2 points-per-game scorer who operates from the forward slot.

Saunders is 6-6 and Nelson is 6-3.

Al Harris, (8.7, forward), Keith Young, (9.4, guard-forward), Jim Stevens, (11.3, guard) and Lewis Hale ,12.8, guard) round out the letter winners list.

GEORGORY Bell, a 6-4 sophomore, could also lend some strength to the Indian cause.

Scheetz lists Saunders as an all-League candidate because of his shooting and rebounding contributions.

"We have an outside chance with fair height and good speed but the real race will shape up with East, Linden, West and Eastmoor," he appraises.

GROVEPORT

FIVE returning letter winners and a couple of junior guards could give Groveport a fighting chance this season after a lean 2-14 mark during the 1967-58 campaign.

At least that's the way Bill Schneider, the three-year Cruiser cage boss, feels about this season with Jim Stevenson (6-1, forward), Bob Ward (6-0, forward), Rick Scott (6-1, center), Barry Randolph (5-9, guard), and Mark Raynes (6-0, forward) as returning letter wearers on the court.

Dennis McKinster, Don Barrett (center) and Steve Williams are also being touted by Schneider.

"WE HAVE fair speed, good depth and fair experience," he said, "and we hope to have much better shooting this time around."

"The main problem we'll face is the lack of size," Bill notes.

As far as the Mid-Eight is concerned Bill sees a struggle between Grove City (defending champion) London and newcomer Grandview.

"LONDON has the best material in the league and its best player is Howard Porter," he scouts. "I feel that we have a good chance for a first division finish."

JIM MURRAY

The 'Deacon'–Twin Or Triplet?

The first thing to establish with David (Deacon) Jones, who eats quarterbacks for a living, is not that there is one but that there's only one.

Asked to describe him, an offensive tackle said: "Well, first of all, there's all those arms—at least six, I think."

MURRAY

Another said, "David puts his pants on one leg at a time same as the rest of us. Only trouble is, he's got three."

When someone asked what color his eyes were, the answer was "Red."

The answerer thought a minute, then added, "At least the three I saw were."

STILL another player came back to the locker after a four-nosebleed game and explained, "They double-teamed me. They put David Jones on me."

Quarterbacks he has scrambled are convinced there are at least two of him.

"He's twins," they explain. "You stop one and the other one comes out of the back of the uniform. He's like that vaudeville horse."

SINCE IT is well-established that David Jones comes in duplicate or triplicate, rival coaches have no qualms about assigning two and three men to block him.

Anyone who played him one-on-one would get investigated by the league president for consorting with gamblers.

Deacon Jones is, quite simply, 20 per cent of the Ram defenses. Just to equalize him requires 2.2 players.

THE RAMS score goals by setting goals.

The gaudiest goals posted in the locker room are for the defense.

With space set aside for games in which they achieve them, the goals include such things as "Not letting the enemy get outside its 15-yard-line."

Incredibly, this happened once this year.

The other things include

DEFENSIVE DRIVING: PART II

52,000 Lives Will End This Year On Nation's Highways; With New Skills—And The Grace Of God—You Can Escape

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

Every year in the United States, 52,000 persons are wiped out by traffic accidents.

The 20 women who recently completed a Defensive Driving course for the experienced driver at the Hilltop YMCA learned that it takes knowledge, alertness, foresight, judgment and skill to avoid becoming a statistic, regardless of what the other guy does.

And most — even those with thousands of accident-free miles behind them—learned they were not doing all that can be reasonably expected of them to prevent accidents.

For example, did you know.

- Unless you stay back one car length for every 10 miles of speed you are asking for a collision with the vehicle immediately in front of you?
- Wheels turned left in anticipation of a left hand turn is an invitation to be thrown into the path of oncoming traffic? with a bump from behind?
- A green light does not mean "go," but is only a signal to proceed if the path is clear?
- It is far better to risk a collision with an immovable object than with another moving vehicle where the force of impact is the total of your speed and its, rather than that of yours alone?
- A count of three before moving from a red light will avoid most of the emergencies that arise at an intersection?

An area in which the majority of the class admitted ignorance was that of the techniques necessary to combat the centrifugal forces to which a car is subjected on a curve.

Most expressed surprise that the slowdown should come before entering a curve and that once in the curve, mild acceleration is demanded to counteract the energy of motion that pulls the car to the left on a right hand curve and to the right on a left hand curve.

The old expression, "A woman convinced against her will is of the same opinion still" was well-illustrated by questionnaires filled out at the completion of the course.

Especially in freeway driving, experts have learned it is advisable to exceed the speed limit if necessary to match the speed of the flow of traffic.

Several persons commented this was news to them — and a procedure they would rather not try.

According to Edward Brandfass, assistant safety coordinator of Columbus, there are some persons who simply aren't geared psychologically or physically to expressway driving.

Those who aren't should follow other routes where driving is less demanding on the operator.

An interesting aspect of the particular problems of freeway travel came with the warning of officer Don Gallaghan to never enter a freeway without at least a half a tank of gas.

He cited the instance last year when a tank truck burned on the North Freeway, holding up traffic for two hours.

More than 200 motorists ran out of gas.

Night driving on the superhighways also leads to "overdriving" of one's headlights.

A person is driving blind with good lights that illuminate only 350 feet when a 70 mile speed requires 532 feet to stop.

Perfect drivers are non-existent.

But if during your next trip you get there on time without an accident, without breaking the law, without abusing yourself or your car and without being discourteous to others, you can say you had "a perfect trip."

And that's a step in the right direction.

Another would be to call Stanley Wolfe at the Columbus Chamber of Commerce safety council, 221-1321, and see about joining a Defensive Driving course.

Mrs. Norman Large, 23 Eldon, president of the Hilltop YMCA council, reconstructs an accident on the magnetic board as Mrs. Helen Price, "Y" secretary (also a student) and Edward Brandfass, assistant safety coordinator for Columbus, department of Industrial Relations, stand by. Both Mrs. Large and Mrs. Price report they find an "appreciative audience" as they bring back home the tips they have learned on how to stay alive.

Franklin County Home Economist Set Gathering

The annual Fall Dinner Meeting of the Franklin County Home Economics Association will be held Thursday, Nov. 21, at the Berwick Party House.

A program on advanced vocational training in the field of home economics will be presented by Mrs. Patsy Leidich, 900 Meeklynn Dr., Worthington, and Elaine Buerkel with the areas of child care, clothing and food service being discussed in detail.

The following chairmen of each of the groups represented in the Franklin County Home Economics Association will also participate on the program to share information of their members' activities with the group: Vivian Johnston, 1552 Waltham Rd., extension; Shirley Maxwell, 877 E. Dublin-Granville Rd., home economics in business; Mrs. Betty Cook, 3142 Edgefield Rd., higher education; Mrs. Harriett Lehman, 4250 Rowanne Rd., secondary education; Mrs. Janice Thorley, 368 Piedmont, home economists in homemaking; Mrs. Ruth Jones, Columbus Dietetic Association.

All Columbus area home economists are invited.

Dinner reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Jane Y. Smith, 4389 E. Broad St., Apartment E, Columbus, Ohio 43213.

DAUGHTERS OF 1812

WOMEN'S BOARD, HEART ASSOCIATION

The Women's Board of the Franklin County Heart Association will meet Nov. 21 at Grant Hospital at 7 p.m. for a tour of the hospital's new Coronary Care Unit.

Warren G. Harding II, M.D., Grant Hospital Administrator, will lead the tour.

Following the tour, a business meeting and social hour will be held at the new Heart Office, 535 E. Broad St.

WING 40 SALE

Wing 40 of Nightingale Cottage Wing Council will have a Christmas sale and tea 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23, at 4862 Calvin Dr., Columbus.

Betty, Beverly and Helen Enderle, along with Wanda Baumgartner, are in charge of the event.

Items for sale include Christmas wrapping paper, tags, ribbons and fruit cakes.

The public is invited.

Proceeds will go to Nightingale Cottage, a recuperative home for children.

WREATH BLESSING

For the 13th year, an interfaith committee has arranged a community Advent Wreath Blessing to be held at the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts Saturday, Nov. 23, from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Annually Church Women United and North and South Central Deaneries, Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, share the responsibility for arrangements for the observance.

This year, Mrs. Campbell Warren, St. Paul's AME Church, is serving as chairman.

The blessing of the Advent Wreath will be performed by the Rev. and Mrs. William Yeill and their two children.

A religious and folk-singing group from Bexley United Methodist Church will present a program.

A children's workshop will be directed by Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Kenneth Gruber, St. John's EP United Church of Christ.

Advent wreath supplies, Advent calendars and wall hangings, Advent cookie cutters, gift papers and UNICEF Christmas cards will be offered for sale.

At 3 p.m. refreshments will be served in the Sessions Room.

The Advent Wreath Blessing is a program to which the entire family is invited.

There is no charge and the public is welcome.

ALPHA CHAPTER

Monkey Business

This is the only way we know to respond to a recent Supreme Court decision which declared that state laws prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools are unconstitutional.

For the first time anywhere we are fortunate enough to have a statement from a monkey concerning this development.

It is reproduced below.

To the editor:

I was most upset by a recent Supreme Court decision which will allow human teachers to repeat the evolutionary lie in front of unsuspecting school children.

I, for one, object.

It is an unsubstantiated rumor. We are not your ancestors. I know anthropologists agree with this — man did not descend from a monkey. He really evolved from a jackass.

Some of my best friends are human, but that doesn't mean I'm related to them.

Do monkeys force other monkeys to live inthe ghetto of the jungle? Do monkeys drop bombs on other monkeys? How many times do monkeys kill, plunder or destroy other monkeys?

I've never met a monkey I didn't like, which is more than I can say for humans.

Personally, I feel that we have descended from human beings, and the whole controversy is monkey business.

I really like being a monkey and am somewhat sick of you trying to ape our ways.

A frustrated monkey from the zoo.

Short Memories

The move on the part of the Columbus Police Department to assign a patrolman as a community relations officer in the inner city has been desperately needed for a long time.

It did not take the Federal Riot Commission Report to show that far too often there has been a massive communication gap between policemen and some segments of the community.

For some members of this community a policeman is "the enemy," a fact backed up by the Kerner Report in other cities. And for policemen, the task of maintaining order is not an easy one.

The real tragedy of police-community relations is that not enough is being done.

Police Chief Robert H. Baus himself said if the City Income Tax had passed, the community relations officer program would not have been limited to only one area of the city.

The program could have been expanded to include all nine of the city's police precincts not just to avert disturbances, but (in Chief Baus' words) to gain the cooperation and support of the whole community.

Our memories are not so short.

In a March 7 editorial in this newspaper we cautioned Safety Director Fred Simon and Chief Baus not to go ahead with their plans to purchase 100 riot guns.

We urged them to abide by the Kerner Commission report which noted that policemen should not be converted into "combat troops equipped for urban warfare."

But with all the pious talk about law and order, who would listen to reason?

Now we again ask: If there was money for riot guns in March, without a city income tax, why is there not enough money now to hire more than one community relations officer?

Some public officials never learn.

The School Crisis

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

The desperate school situation in Hamilton Township is a classic example of what has happened to education in this state.

The Hamilton Local School District is torn apart. There is resentment against the teachers, against the administration, against Lockbourne Air Force Base, against practically everyone except the real culprit — the state of Ohio.

And the problem won't be resolved until the state accepts its responsibility in the field of public education and bails the school districts out of an intolerable situation.

In the past 10 years, the percentage of local school funds furnished by the state has declined alarmingly and steadily. Recent Ohio Education Association figures show that, on the average, the state's share is less than 50 per cent.

This leaves every school district in the state only one alternative — continued increases in property taxes.

It is this constant increasing of the property tax that has soured so many voters. They know they must support education — but every time they turn around they are being asked to take on a greater share of the burden.

What has resulted is a string of situations similar to that in Hamilton, or in Gahanna and Canal Winchester and Reynoldsburg and others, for that matter.

The voters have drawn the line and refused to hike their own property taxes. The school districts have been accused of all sorts of things for threatening to cut back on services.

But the fact remains they have no choice. Unless the state meets its responsibilities and begins to take on its share of the load, it will be a case of either higher property taxes or fewer school services. There is no in-between.

The General Assembly convenes again in six weeks. The responsibility is squarely on its shoulders.

Despite pressures from the Rhodes administration, the legislators must begin spending state money in this most vital of areas.

The responsibility is too great to be ignored this time.

The Smug Press?

By JOHN MORGAN

Self-criticism is not a trademark of the smug press.

While newspaper editors smack their grammatically perfect lips together when presented stories by eager reporters exposing shady dealings, they would not leap so high from city desks if the same journalistic methods were turned on them.

Soren Kierkegaard, a Danish thinker, once remarked that if he had a daughter who was seduced he would probably forgive her. But if he had a son who remained a reporter for more than a year he would give him up as lost.

THE PUBLIC—that anonymous blur courted by the press—is a great deal more intelligent than journalists suppose.

When a survey this year showed newspapers ranked on the bottom of a list of media which people consult for accurate information, something is being said about the printed media.

Is the printed word being pushed from the public pulpit? Journalists often argue that television cannot go into subjects in a comprehensive way, pointing out that it is impossible to present in-depth reports in 10-second slots.

It is easy to label anyone criticizing the news media as naive. What do they know about deadlines, PTA meetings, the flair of the right word or the ink from a page proof?

QUITE A BIT, I think, as do some of the topnotch journalists who hammer away at the smug press.

Newspapers simply are not doing what they ought to be doing—which is informing the people of history. And most damaging of all, what they are doing is, of all things, outdated.

The unexamined life is not worth living. Nor is it worth reading about.

Time passes and what is news one day is old hat the next.

If what endures in life is important, then newspapers rate a niche below comic books.

Many American cities are the victims of a one-press situation. This is not only stupid, but outmoded. Without competition how can various viewpoints be presented? This explains why the founding fathers were so careful to safeguard "freedom of the press."

* * *

It is not an easy job, this task of turning out the printed word. Those who criticize without ever having had to face a deadline or the angry blasts from an irate reader cannot possibly know what makes us tick.

Pride, for one thing. And perhaps a little egoism.

But newspaper work gets into the blood; like a lost lover, the art of writing never fades away.

THIS IS NO easy profession. With luck, you can expect a decent standard of living, long hours, little thanks, a stomach in constant turmoil and slight insanity each deadline day.

Those of us who love the profession have the responsibility to afflict the comfortable and comfort the afflicted, as one editor has said.

This is no easy task in the face of some journalism prostitutes, who reap their revenge on the unsuspecting and turn art into propaganda.

If newspapers survive this century intact, they will do so in spite of the cranks in our midst.

There are just barely enough compassionate, articulate journalists around to make me believe they will.

Inevitable Tax

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

One of the tragic blows of the recent elections was the rejection by Columbus voters of the one-half cent increase in the city's income tax.

Voters were in an ugly mood. A number of worthwhile measures were sacrificed and the income tax was among them. It got clobbered but good.

Dozens of theories could be explored to explain this undeserved treatment by the electorate but that wouldn't solve anything.

It would, however, be well to review the mistakes that were made to prevent repetitive action when the proposal is brought before the voters as it most surely must if Columbus is to continue its growth rate.

No one can deny the need for expanded services. No one can accuse the city administration of imprudent use of funds.

Columbus is destined for greatness. How soon it will be achieved rests entirely with the citizenry and its willingness to assume the responsibilities that are the price of progress.

Columbus' explosive rate of growth should not be retarded by a provincial attitude.

The income tax boost is as inevitable as night turning into day and thinking citizens will bring it about. The sooner the better.

Buses

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Not having a car, I rely for transportation on the buses of our All-American City.

Through the years, I have compiled a certain number of facts and a bit of trivia about how the City Transit Company operates.

First of all, in every part of the city are certain areas designated as "Bus Stops." Most of these curb sites are marked by little red signs; however, in the east part of town, the sites are marked by orangish-yellowish steel poles.

These identifying marks should be adequate enough to distinguish where the bus stops and where it does not.

This is, however, in practice, not true.

They only indicate ABOUT where the bus stops.

Every bus driver, it seems, has his own idea of where to stop his bus in the given confines of a curb site marked "Bus Stop."

If you stand at the first sign, the bus driver automatically stops 50 feet downstreet at the last sign.

If you stand near the last sign, the driver automatically stops in the middle.

If you stand between the signs, the bus driver either stops at the beginning or the end of the curb site.

In the rare case that you wait at the last sign and there is a pole there, you're in trouble.

If you stand downstreet from the pole, the driver stops upstreet. If you stand upstreet from the pole, the driver stops downstreet.

No matter where you are at a bus stop, the odds are that you will have to walk to get on.

As for schedules, they are available. However, it seems that every bus in Columbus runs on its own schedule. I've waited 15 minutes for a bus on a work-a-day morning only to find two in a row—one following right after the other — coming down the street.

Another difficulty with schedules is that they usually tell what times the buses are present at the beginnings and endings of the route. One is left to his own devices as to the timing of a particular bus at a particular stop ON that route.

Of one thing I am sure . . . there IS some sort of schedule. What else could explain the fact that every so often you get on a bus and the driver whizzes along at 13 miles an hour, hitting every red light and stopping at every stop whether there are passengers getting off or on or not.

Or the fact that sometimes the driver goes about 50 miles an hour and fails to stop for groups of people who are obviously waiting?

Only the fact of a schedule—unknown, personal and inscrutable — can explain these things.

Lastly these minor points: if you sit near the front, the odds are the driver will tell you to exit from the rear; if you sit in the rear, such announcement will not be made; if you sit on the left side of the bus, the driver will have a shade drawn behind him, leaving you only the view out the side window (prolonged sightings of passing stationary objects leave me bus sick); if you sit on the right, the driver will never have the shade down.

Fellow bus riders, the only philosophy one can take concerning buses is a version of Gumperson's Law:

"In any given situation in which there is either a favorable or non-favorable resolution, the non-favorable resolution will inevitably occur."

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG

The leisure hours Americans spend relaxing is constantly increasing. We are currently spending an estimated $150 billion annually in our attempts to creatively spend our excess income for our pursuits of relaxing pleasures. We spend the money to watch television and movies; to fish, golf, bowl and ski; to travel and eat out; to attend sporting events and racetracks. The increase in leisure time spending is because we have more money to spend and more time that must be occupied.

The average work week has been cut from 60 hours and six days a week at the turn of the century to 40 hours and a five day work week. More and more common are paid vacations extending from two to four weeks. It is anticipated that work weeks in the future will be even shorter than today's.

Our society is becoming more and more affluent, creating greater demands for leisure activities. A study compiled by Fortune Magazine shows 34 percent of American families had after-tax incomes of $10,000 or more last year.

The anticipated increase in spending in the leisure time companies does not guarantee investment profits. Some areas will grow faster than others. Some segments of the leisure field will grow by taking spendable dollars away from competing leisure fields. Competition within a specific segment of the leisure industry will see some companies prosper while others fail. Some companies are privately held and their shares are not available to the investors. Other companies may merge or consolidate, thus decreasing the companies available for investment. A careful study must be made before deciding on the specific issues to go into.

Public Service

To The Editor:

I want to express my appreciation for "The Spectator" in my hour of need.

Several weeks ago my sister (who now has her arm in a cast) placed her trash cans in our front driveway for collection. Our trash collector in Lincoln Village South refused to pick it up unless she would tote t[illegible] down to the curb. When I arrived home I picked [illegible] copy of the Spectator and immediately spotted an art[illegible] that stated trash would be picked up in Lincoln Village. Three hours later, at 7 p.m. that same night our trash was picked up with no "if's." This is truly a "service" to your readers.

One more commendation. The column "Around Town" by Roland Sunker is worth the price of The Spectator, in fact, the entire entertainment page gives the reader ideas for an evening out and what is and is not worth your time and money.

Hoo's Talking At Peace Talks?

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

It was the 43rd year of our lightning campaign to wipe the dread Viet-Narian guerrillas out of West Vhtnnng. After years of secret negotiations, the long-awaited Peace Talks at last got under way in Paris.

Present for the historic occasion were representatives of the four belligerents.

First to enter was the fiendish agent of the dread Viet-Narians, a gorgeous former beauty queen with a 46-inch bust named Miss How Bot Dat.

Close behind came the wily protege of the wily Communist premier of East Vhtnnng — the obsequious Dat Sma Bol.

Another door opened and in marched the courageous leader of the West Vhtnnng — the famous General Hoo Dat Don Dar. He was followed by the Loyal Royal Army Band playing the West Vhtnnngian National Anthem, "Foreign Aid Forever!"

And lastly came the U.S. Ambassador. He looked worried.

"Well, gentlemen," said the Ambassador nervously, "all mankind is praying that we shall put aside our differences and . . ."

"Just a minute!" interrupted General Hoo indignantly. "You clearly promised me the center chair on our side of the table. And not only is it not quite in the center, but it doesn't have arm rests. Furthermore, my name plate is too small and East Vhtnnng has one more water glass than I do."

"Well, I'm sure we . . ." began the Ambassador.

"Stop!" said wily Dat Sma Bot. "We wish the record to show that by 'we' you are referring to the U.S. Government and not including some puppet regime we do not recognize."

"It is our position," said the Ambasador, "that General Hoo is merely a member of the U.S. delegation. Of course," he added hastily, "under a private agreement between us, he happens to be the head of it."

"That's funny," said Miss How Bot Dat, "he doesn't look American to me."

"Even if I were speaking to you, which I'm not, I wouldn't recognize you," snapped General Hoo. "What have you done to your hair?"

"That's no way to talk to a lady," shouted Dat Sma Bol, "you Yankee imperialist."

"Who's a Yank?" cried General Hoo. "You jerk. And she's no lady. She's a figment of your political imagination. Henceforth, I'm not speaking to you [illegible]er."

"Please," said the U.S. Ambassador, wringin[illegible] hands. "You've got to talk to someone. As head o[illegible] delegation . . ."

"You're fired," said General Hoo. "They have three sharpened pencils each and you only got me two. From now on don't speak unless you're spoken to and I'm not speaking to you."

And so the first session ended three hours later with Miss How Bot Dat talking to Dat Sma Bol about crops, General Hoo talking to no one and the U.S. Ambassador talking to himself.

• • •

But, putting on a brave front, the Ambassador emerged to tell a waiting world that he saw hope. "With extreme patience and understanding," he said, "the U.S. is confident we will some day be able to negotiate a lasting truce."

"With whom?" inquired a puzzled reporter.

"No," said the Ambassador with a sigh. "With Hoo."

WITH MUDDY SHOES

Central Ohioans opened upland game season on Nov. 15 to run until Dec. 14 on pheasant and until Jan. 25 on rabbits.

It is too early to tell if the early predictions of a "just so-so" harvest is true.

THE FIRST part of our split duck season (Oct. 14-26) was fair-to-good along Lake Erie's marshes. The second segment (Nov. 18-30) is expected to be more to the liking of down-state hunters.

One really bright spot this year has been the early geese takes. The season for geese is from Oct. 14 through Dec. 14, then again Dec. 25 through Jan. 1.

Squirrel hunting on public and private lands was very fine this year and you may continue to hunt on public lands until Dec. 28.

PHEASANT hunting, I predict, will be good to the west of Columbus rather than to the south as it has been in recent years. Look to Madison, Champaign, Union and Wyandot Counties for your daily limit of two.

Here are two important "no-nos" you must remember:

All upland game hunting is halted while the gun-deer season is on and also, hunt quail on state-approved lands only.

STUDY YOUR hunting guide all the way if you wish to stay out of court. There are more game protectors out this year than in past seasons.

* * *

A total of 17 deer were taken in the new primitive weapons area set aside by the Division of Wildlife (the area lies in and around the Wold Creek Wildlife Area in Morgan County).

Of these 17 deer, only one was taken with a bow. The remaining were anchored with muzzle-loaded rifles.

FOURTEEN were taken on public hunting lands and only three on private lands. This would seem to put the shuck on all you hardy souls who feel you have to have your own private area to hunt.

In studying the results of the primitive hunt, we must pause and ask the well-worn question "why do we go?".

Do we only equate happiness with meat on the table or do we derive some pleasure out of the preparation, trip and ensuing involvement with nature?

IF YOU ARE a meat hunter, stay away from the primitive hunt. Out of 1247 hunters, only 17 got a deer. That is a ratio of one out of 73.

However — if you are like most of us — looking for a legitimate excuse to roam Ohio's beautiful autumn hills and challenge the wild, the rest of the hunters (1230) all received payment in full for their day's toil.

The already famous "OHIO CONSERVATION ACHIEVEMENT DAY BANQUET" tickets are selling ahead of schedule.

IF YOU want a real treat in meeting the nation's top outdoorsmen, call the League of Ohio Sportsmen office (291-4960) and let them know.

THE FIVE-HOUR event will be held Saturday, Dec. 14, at the Youth Center on the fairgrounds.

The local Junior Bowling Association has nearly completed all arrangements for its first tournament for the junior bowler.

The fifth annual Handicap City Singles Championship Tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at Capri Lanes.

IN PREVIOUS years the singles tournament was held the week following Christmas. It has been moved up to an earlier date because it was thought that many junior bowlers could not enter due to planned vacations during that period.

It is hoped that no junior bowler will be denied the opportunity to enter this event.

Trophies for the many winners will be awarded by the Greater Columbus Area Junior Bowling Association at their annual Junior Awards Banquet scheduled for next May 17 at the Youth Building, Ohio Exposition Center.

TROPHIES and expenses are paid for through contributions by adult bowlers during Junior Bowler Nickel Week.

Last year's champions: Bantam Girl — Teresa Thibodeaux (Amos Lanes), 417; Bantam Boy — Danny Stoyak (Fiesta Lanes), 404; Junior Girl — Sandy Wylandt (German Village), 601; Junior Boys (resulted in a tie for which duplicate trophies were awarded)—Jim Keim (Fiesta Lanes) and Steve Reshan (German Village), 611 each; Senior Girl — Joyce Hauciser (Graceland), 653.

Joyce seems to have the winning habit. She was on the state championship team in 1967 and has won other tournaments in the Columbus area.

Chuck Klie was the Senior Boy champion from Fiesta Lanes. His total was 688.

Most of these young people will return to defend their titles.

Assistance is always needed in producing a tournament of this magnitude. Any adult wishing to contribute a couple of hours of his or her time in the promotion of Junior Bowling need only to be at the lanes and make their presence known.

Monkey Business

This is the only way we know to respond to a recent Supreme Court decision which declared that state laws prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools are unconstitutional.

For the first time anywhere we are fortunate enough to have a statement from a monkey concerning this development.

It is reproduced below.

To the editor:

I was most upset by a recent Supreme Court decision which will allow human teachers to repeat the evolutionary lie in front of unsuspecting school children.

I, for one, object.

It is an unsubstantiated rumor. We are not your ancestors. I know anthropologists agree with this — man did not descend from a monkey. He really evolved from a jackass.

Some of my best friends are human, but that doesn't mean I'm related to them.

Do monkeys force other monkeys to live inthe ghetto of the jungle? Do monkeys drop bombs on other monkeys? How many times do monkeys kill, plunder or destroy other monkeys?

I've never met a monkey I didn't like, which is more than I can say for humans.

Personally, I feel that we have descended from human beings, and the whole controversy is monkey business.

I really like being a monkey and am somewhat sick of you trying to ape our ways.

A frustrated monkey from the zoo.

Short Memories

The move on the part of the Columbus Police Department to assign a patrolman as a community relations officer in the inner city has been desperately needed for a long time.

It did not take the Federal Riot Commission Report to show that far too often there has been a massive communication gap between policemen and some segments of the community.

For some members of this community a policeman is "the enemy," a fact backed up by the Kerner Report in other cities. And for policemen, the task of maintaining order is not an easy one.

The real tragedy of police-community relations is that not enough is being done.

Police Chief Robert H. Baus himself said if the City Income Tax had passed, the community relations officer program would not have been limited to only one area of the city.

The program could have been expanded to include all nine of the city's police precincts not just to avert disturbances, but (in Chief Baus' words) to gain the cooperation and support of the whole community.

Our memories are not so short.

In a March 7 editorial in this newspaper we cautioned Safety Director Fred Simon and Chief Baus not to go ahead with their plans to purchase 100 riot guns.

We urged them to abide by the Kerner Commission report which noted that policemen should not be converted into "combat troops equipped for urban warfare."

But with all the pious talk about law and order, who would listen to reason?

Now we again ask: If there was money for riot guns in March, without a city income tax, why is there not enough money now to hire more than one community relations officer?

Some public officials never learn.

The School Crisis

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

The desperate school situation in Hamilton Township is a classic example of what has happened to education in this state.

The Hamilton Local School District is torn apart. There is resentment against the teachers, against the administration, against Lockbourne Air Force Base, against practically everyone except the real culprit — the state of Ohio.

And the problem won't be resolved until the state accepts its responsibility in the field of public education and bails the school districts out of an intolerable situation.

In the past 10 years, the percentage of local school funds furnished by the state has declined alarmingly and steadily. Recent Ohio Education Association figures show that, on the average, the state's share is less than 50 per cent.

This leaves every school district in the state only one alternative — continued increases in property taxes.

It is this constant increasing of the property tax that has soured so many voters. They know they must support education — but every time they turn around they are being asked to take on a greater share of the burden.

What has resulted is a string of situations similar to that in Hamilton, or in Gahanna and Canal Winchester and Reynoldsburg and others, for that matter.

The voters have drawn the line and refused to hike their own property taxes. The school districts have been accused of all sorts of things for threatening to cut back on services.

But the fact remains they have no choice. Unless the state meets its responsibilities and begins to take on its share of the load, it will be a case of either higher property taxes or fewer school services. There is no in-between.

The General Assembly convenes again in six weeks. The responsibility is squarely on its shoulders.

Despite pressures from the Rhodes administration, the legislators must begin spending state money in this most vital of areas.

The responsibility is too great to be ignored this time.

The Smug Press?

By JOHN MORGAN

Self-criticism is not a trademark of the smug press.

While newspaper editors smack their grammatically perfect lips together when presented stories by eager reporters exposing shady dealings, they would not leap so high from city desks if the same journalistic methods were turned on them.

Soren Kierkegaard, a Danish thinker, once remarked that if he had a daughter who was seduced he would probably forgive her. But if he had a son who remained a reporter for more than a year he would give him up as lost.

THE PUBLIC—that anonymous blur courted by the press—is a great deal more intelligent than journalists suppose.

When a survey this year showed newspapers ranked on the bottom of a list of media which people consult for accurate information, something is being said about the printed media.

Is the printed word being pushed from the public pulpit? Journalists often argue that television cannot go into subjects in a comprehensive way, pointing out that it is impossible to present in-depth reports in 10-second slots.

It is easy to label anyone criticizing the news media as naive. What do they know about deadlines, PTA meetings, the flair of the right word or the ink from a page proof?

QUITE A BIT, I think, as do some of the topnotch journalists who hammer away at the smug press.

Newspapers simply are not doing what they ought to be doing—which is informing the people of history. And most damaging of all, what they are doing is, of all things, outdated.

The unexamined life is not worth living. Nor is it worth reading about.

Time passes and what is news one day is old hat the next.

If what endures in life is important, then newspapers rate a niche below comic books.

Many American cities are the victims of a one-press situation. This is not only stupid, but outmoded. Without competition how can various viewpoints be presented? This explains why the founding fathers were so careful to safeguard "freedom of the press."

* * *

It is not an easy job, this task of turning out the printed word. Those who criticize without ever having had to face a deadline or the angry blasts from an irate reader cannot possibly know what makes us tick.

Pride, for one thing. And perhaps a little egoism.

But newspaper work gets into the blood; like a lost lover, the art of writing never fades away.

THIS IS NO easy profession. With luck, you can expect a decent standard of living, long hours, little thanks, a stomach in constant turmoil and slight insanity each deadline day.

Those of us who love the profession have the responsibility to afflict the comfortable and comfort the afflicted, as one editor has said.

This is no easy task in the face of some journalism prostitutes, who reap their revenge on the unsuspecting and turn art into propaganda.

If newspapers survive this century intact, they will do so in spite of the cranks in our midst.

There are just barely enough compassionate, articulate journalists around to make me believe they will.

WRESTLING PREVIEWS

Groveport 'Strains' For Fifth Mat Title

(Eds. note—This is the first of two preview stories outlining wrestling prospects at area high schools. Part I features '68-'69 outlooks at Groveport, Marion-Franklin, South and Hamilton Township).

BY JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

GROVEPORT

During the past four years, Cruiser wrestlers have carried home—four titles from Mid-Eight mat meets—the latest a 77-75 squeaker over Westerville last winter.

But Bob Carter's grappling crew could face its most serious challenge to date this season with veteran-stacked squads returning at "newcomer" Bexley and Grandview besides another strong version checking in at Hilliard.

BRACING for an intended crack in the Cruisers' Mid-Eight wrestling dynasty is Carter's '68-'69 outfit—nearly veteran-bare with only two returning letter winners.

"We're gonna be green," Carter forecasts. "We've always had at least five returnees going into a season in the past. We're not out of it (title picture) but we're going to have to develop some experience between now and league meet. Even then, we'd have to be considered the 'dark horse.'"

Last year's Cruiser matmen turned in the school's first-ever undefeated dual campaign (7-0) and vaulted up to a ninth place finish at the District Meet.

BUT EIGHT '67-'68 regulars have graduated, including: Ron (133) and Don (138) Miller, Curt Baker, Dan Esswein, Tom Sparks, John Queen, Joe Conkel and Bill Marshall—the latter quintet collecting a composite 82-19 won-loss mark for Carter last winter.

Two seniors provide the veteran sprinkling this season—Larry Lang (120, 14-5, placed fourth at District Meet) and Mel Jackson (165, 12-8).

Carter lists the following candidates as "top prospects" to battle for the 11 starting nods: 103—Dick Franks, Dennis Sparks and Burf Roeger; 112—Zale Maxwell and Oshal Waugh; 120—Lang and Frank Riggsby; 127—Gary Lang and Russ Miller; 133—Robin Higgins, Mike Morris and Robin Worch; 138—Dave Maxwell, Jim Phillips and Dick Clark; 145—Rick Berie and Pat Curto; 154—Andy Lyles; 165-175—Jackson, Steve Skaggs, Gary Martin and Bill Davis; HWT.—Jim Feucht and Bill Bowman.

THE GROVEPORT coach sees DeSales, Franklin Heights and defending champion Upper Arlington as the top pre-season favorites for District honors this season.

MARION-FRANKLIN

Red Devil mentor Dick Mileff is hopeful that three returning vets and several graduates from Marion's recent City grid championship squad can lift M-F from a 2-4 dual mark and second-division City Meet finish of last year.

Heading the returnees is senior Rick Austin, a 165-pounder who advanced to the District Meet and closed with a fine 17-4 account last winter.

THE OTHER veterans are junior John Robinette at 103 and senior Bill Roberts, at 145.

That leaves a number of spots open but Mileff believes he's found the answer at all but two weight classes—127 and 138—those rated as "wide open" at present.

Top prospects for the remainder of the weight slots look like; 112—sophs Jim VanHoose and Chris DeBoard; 120—soph Dave Estes and senior Bob Edwards; 133—senior reserve squad graduate Jim Jayjohn; 145—senior Frank Lambeck (up from reserves) and soph Bob Hughes; 154—junior Billy Harris; 175—senior Steve Grabovich or soph Larry Jones (transfer from South); HWT.—seniors Dan Wright and Wendell Fellure and junior Larry McDowell.

MILEFF lists DeSales, Franklin Heights and Arlington as prime District contenders.

HAMILTON TWP.

ALTHOUGH six letter winners return for Wes Mirick's Ranger grapplers this season, rebuilding could be the word at Hamilton Township this winter with sophomores likely to play a major part in the mat program.

"About 80 per cent of our squad are sophomores," Wes details of his '68-'69 squad which will be shooting to equal or better last year's 6-4 dual mark.

Toughest to replace among the departed regulars will be Paul Yelle and Oscar Harris—steady performers at 175 and 145 respectively last season.

PACING THE sextet of returnees will likely be junior George Ginunas, a 127-lb. performer who advanced to District competition last winter.

Other letter winners include Jeff Fisher (senior at 133), John Savel (senior at 145), John Neidigh (junior at 154), Tom Knorr (junior at 112 and Greg Fleming (225-lb. junior at heavyweight).

But at that point, the picture gets a bit clouded for Mirick with untested performers likely to fill the remaining gaps.

TOP PROSPECTS to date look like: 103—sophs Larry Nakanishi and Dan Eubanks; 120—sophs Johnny Lawson and Ralph Smith; 165—juniors Jim Gorczyca and Gerry Topping and 175 — junior Herb Chapman.

Two more sophomores who could give the veterans a real test for starting nods are move-in Ray Brewer at 138 and 200-lb. heavyweight prospect Larry Wiggins.

Wiggins, a top performer on Hamilton's fine grid squad this past fall, is "an outstanding athlete who has all the potential of being a state champion in a couple of years," says Mirick.

THE RANGER mentor lists DeSales as likely pre-season District favorite with Franklin Heights, Arlington, Brookhaven and Worthington other top challengers.

SOUTH

IF NEW Bulldog mat skipper Gordon Brooks can find the solution for replacing a pair of departed City Meet champions, South's wrestling stock could continue its rise this winter.

The Reb grapplers scrambled to a fourth-place finish at last winter's City Meet but two City champions who helped largely to make the upper division ending possible—Dave Johnson (165, 16-3) and Ted Gust (175, 19-1)—are missing this season.

Brooks does have six returning vets—paced by senior co-captains Tony Britford (120) and John Vick (138).

OTHER LETTER winners back include Barry Jones (junior at 127) and three seniors—Ron Harris at 154, Herb Jones at 175 and Paul McCamey at 165.

Biggest problem spot looks like 112 where Brooks is still unsettled on a tentative starter.

103 looks good with three sophomores — Tom Savage, Wayne Byrd and Tom Woernep—battling for the nod.

AT 138, a pair of experienced but non-lettering wrestlers are available in Chuck Scott and Bod Reed while—at 145—Brooks is looking over senior prospects Chuck Reider and Glenn Darby.

Letterman Harris, who has shoulder problems at 154, could be spelled by either three-year competitor Jerry Driggs or fellow senior Tom Smathers.

Nick Fergusion will keep regular McCamey on his toes at 165.

THAT LEAVES heavyweight where Brook's biggest problem seems to center around "who". There's plenty of available prospects—Don Sherrod (233), Alan Bowers (190), Ron McAvoy (262), Fred Johnson (211), Tim Britford (216) and Rich Lewis (185), the latter the only prospect with any real experience.

Brooks envisions defending champ Brookhaven and runnerup Eastmoor as again the top choices for the pre-season City Meet nod.

(Next week: Wrestling outlooks for '68-'69 at Mohawk and Wehrle).

Boyer, Jacklin Join All-League Football Lineup

Junior quarterback Mark Boyer (5-11, 175) and senior end Steve Jacklin (5-11, 165)—Groveport's fine "throw-catch" grid combination this past season—were named to the 1968 All-Mid-Eight League football squad announced this week by loop coaches.

Five Cruiser gridders garnered honorable mention slots on the 24-man All-League team. They were: Don Stokes, Bub Franks, Dick Scott, Andy Lyles and Dennis McKinster.

'IN THIS CORNER . . .

. . . THE BROTHERS GREGORY'

Barack Recreation Center—one of five city centers to sponsor boxing programs—gets three chances to place a Gregory in the Golden Gloves championship picture this year in brothers (from left) Steve (flyweight), Charles (featherweight) and Terry (welterweight) Gregory. Golden Gloves tune-up bouts begin Saturday, Nov. 30 at the Fairgrounds.

only a small percentage of the bowlers who quit in their first year and a small percentage of the bowlers who quit because they show very little improvement, there wouldn't be enough bowling establishments to hold them all.

"Let's not knock the game by pointing out how easy it is. Let's tell the truth. It's a game like any other game. If you want to improve you must work at it.

"Look at the youngsters coming up. Look at the pros. Some of them roll more games in a week than [illegible] average bowler rolls in [illegible]

"ONCE past the basics, bowling is a game to frustrate the best. It's highly technical and scientific game and you never stop learning. It takes only minutes to bowl. It takes a lifetime to learn how to play.

"Few bowlers want to become pros. Every bowler wants to show some improvement. Bowling is a fun game.

"It can be much more fun if new bowlers know what it's all about right from the start. In this bowling has failed so far."

'Deacon'—

things such as "Not letting the enemy gain more than 26 yards on any one play;" "Not letting the enemy past midfield;" "Intercepting at least two passes a game."

Every game is a climb up the Matterhorn for the Ram defense.

THE RAMS have a defense manual that comes in more volumes than Churchill's Memoirs.

You have to be 240 pounds just to lift it. It has more plane geometry than Euclid.

A defensive lineman has more "keys" to learn than a night watchman.

THE CROWD thinks all you do with a defensive end is cut the tusks off it and teach it not to bite.

This annoys Deacon Jones.

People think what he does is about as athletic as pushing people off high cliffs.

"LISTEN," he hisses. "I am not an animal. I don't go around scaring women and children. They don't have to lock me up after a game.

"What I do is as athletic as rushing the net in tennis, stealing a base in baseball, faking a guy out of the pivot in basketball.

"Sometimes it's even like a poker game. I gamble a lot out there.

YOU HAVE to have STYLE out there or you get eaten alive. Look at me! I weigh 239 pounds now. I have weighed up to 270.

"But you have to be FAST when you're double and triple-teamed. You have to dance your man a little. It's not brute strength."

It's not Swan Lake either, but the mystique of Deacon Jones is he's probably the first lineman since Pudge Heffelfinger to make headlines, to get linemen out of the mini-type and into the big money of testimonials and recognition.

THE "Seven Blocks of Granite" achieved a measure of notoriety for Fordham in the days when they played so many scoreless ties and 2-0 games that they had to rummage through the book to find out how much a touchdown counted when somebody finally made one.

But individually they [illegible] as anonymous as heads[illegible]

Sam Huff achieved a [illegible] through for linebacke[illegible] it was not until an end zone crowd unfurled a "David Jones For Secretary of Defense" banner at a game last year that a tackler became a bona-fide drawing card in the league.

YOU MIGHT say the fame went to Deacon's head.

"Because that's where the tight ends began to clobber him till his ears rang.

Clubs began to appoint "policemen" whose sole job was to unfrock the Deacon.

"THAT'S ALL right with me," says Deacon. "That leaves us with seven men to cover three."

He still got to the quarterback 26 times last year and piled up 100 unassisted tackles.

He has what John Brodie calls "'deafening speed."

HE BATS down almost as many passes as a safetyman. He played one game this year with a bone sticking out of his thumb and Jack Pardee had to push it back into place.

Come to think of it, he does so many things it's surprising there's only the two of him.

'Highlights'

By HARMON

Oklahoma pulled it off . . . two upsets (?) in a row over the two teams it had to beat. And the 10th-ranked Sooners are now tied for the lead in the Big Eight Conference with two games left to play.

NEBRASKA is the opposition Saturday, and although the Cornhuskers have lost three games, it'll be no game for little old ladies in tennis shoes. Oklahoma should nose out Nebraska by 11 points, but "Ol' Man Upset" has a way of working in both directions!

In that show-down struggle in the Big 8 that was to have decided the championship (but is now a battle for survival), seventh-ranked Kansas will bounce back into the winner's circle with a two point win over 11th-ranked Missouri.

There may still be another weekend of college football after Saturday, but this is the final "big one" for the Big Ten. Second-ranked Ohio State meets 12th-ranked Michigan for the title and "the trip!"

THIS ONE should definitely be "off-limits" for everyone with weak hearts . . . the Buckeyes will nudge the Wolverines by just a point.

Top-ranked Southern Cal, having just about wrapped up the Pacific Coast championship and the host's spot in the Rose Bowl, will whip UCLA by 18 points. And fourth-ranked Penn State, with another breather this week, will pummel Pittsburgh's Panthers by 41.

Third-ranked Texas and 16th-ranked Arkansas appear to be headed for joint ownership of the Southwest Conference title, providing they win as expected.

THE LONGHORNS are favored over Texas A and M on Turkey Day by 16 points, and the Razorbacks should handle Texas Tech Saturday by nine points.

Another conference race that is going to finish in a down-to-the wire finale is the Ivy League where undefeated Yale meets undefeated Harvard.

The Eli's have the offense; the Crimson, the defense. In this second oldest of all traditional football games, Yale will win the Ivy Title by beating Harvard by seven points.

13TH-RANKED Purdue will win back the Old Oaken Bucket from Indiana, bumping the Hoosiers by 16 points. 17th-ranked Oregon State will slip the needle to Oregon by 14 points, and California, No. 14, will stifle Stanford by 10.

Finally, among the elite corps, sixth-ranked Tennessee will shackle Kentucky, winning by 23 points, and eighth-ranked Houston will be 35 points too strong for Tulsa.

Ramsey, Jay Hout Top CFFL Voting; All-Stars Vie Sunday

Kitsmiller Motors' Ken Ramsey and Berwick Party House's Jay Hout topped Columbus Flag Football League balloting as "most valuable player" and "outstanding lineman" respectively last week.

Ramsey, a quarterback for the Eastern Division champs, repeated in the "MVP" role, out-polling Randy Walker (Franklin Sports' halfback), Paul Hufnagel (Bell-Haven halfback) and Clint Allen (Berwick halfback).

HOUT, A defensive end, outdistanced Kitsmiller's Nick Joseph (linebacker), Bell-Haven's Nick Cooper (offensive end) and Berwick's Ron Dobbis (center) in the balloting.

The annual CFFL All-Star game has been set for Sunday (1:30 p.m.) at Wolfe Park.

East All-Stars include: Kitsmiller — Ramsey, Larry Gornall, Keith Ramsey, P. D. Shannon, John Dillard Nick Joseph, Gene Harper, Dave Rieker, Dean Eby, Kaye Thompson, Keith Frazier and Dick Angelou; Bell-Haven — Terry Robb, Paul Hufnagel, Dave Adams, Nick Cooper and Paul Sells; Bow- Aire— Bob Geer, John Gilmore and Kurt Pollock.

WEST ALL-STARS include: Berwick—Clint Allen, Dick Magaw, Bob Glanzman, Ron Dobbis, Jay Hout, Jack Hout, Bob Miller and Don Curtis; Franklin—Joe Biddle, Randy Walker, Mike Hummer, Tony Delewese, Tim Carty, Larry Gugliemi, Ray Stewart and Bob Napolitano; Local 189—Mel Counts, Carl Reiner, Bo Holmes and Ted Dicke.

Southern Trophy Co. will award the All-Star game "MVP" trophy after Sunday's game and the 16-member All-CFFL team will be chosen from the 40-man squad competing in Sunday's game.

The CFFL championship game was played last night (Wednesday) between Kitsmiller Motors and Berwick Party House. Deadline prevented any score or details of the game in this edition.

Checkers' Schedule

The resurging Columbus Checkers continue their Friday-Wednesday - Friday home format for the third straight week — hosting Dayton tomorrow, Des Moines Wednesday and Fort Wayne a week from tomorrow.

All three games will start at 8 p.m.

Fields Annexes CTFL Title; Jordan, Palmer, Pond Tapped

Undefeated Fields Brothers roared into the throne room of the Columbus Touch Football League for the third consecutive season Sunday at Southview with a resounding 36-6 decision over North Heidelberg in the '68 TCFL championship game.

The three-year reign of Fields and player-coach Al Jordan has now produced a 27-1 record in league competition.

JORDAN WAS also presented with the loop's '68 "most valuable player" award by former OSU grid great Vic Janowicz.

Fields led only 16-6 at halftime but exploded for 18 points in the third quarter behind the passing of quarterback Bill Johnson.

Johnson fired TD strikes to Elkie Byrd (41, 55 yds.) and Jordon (19 yds.) besides galloping 71 yds. with a pass interception to figure in all but one of the Fields tallies.

THE OTHER six-pointer came on a 12-yd. toss from Tom Fullove to Vernon Fields.

Heidelberg's only score came as John Ford threw seven yards to Mike McGarity early in the opening period.

Heidelberg's Tim Pond — although shut off, scoring-wise, by Fields' defense Sunday — received the "Back of the Year" award.

CRAIG REALTY, sparked by Eddie Parks' four TD aerials, took Runnerup Bowl honors via a 30-16 victory over Remo's Inn. Craig broke loose from an 8-8 intermission deadlock with 24 final-half points.

Herman Reeves, Lloyd Grinston, George Parks and Les Bridges were on the receiving end of Parks' scoring tosses.

Remo's injury-plagued offense could manage only a token attack after intermission with QB Tom Myers authoring both scores with flips to Don Mollick and Bob Kreig.

PANTHER CAGERS OPEN SEASON TOMORROW

Ohio Dominican College opens its third season of basketball competition tomorrow at Mansfield OSU with high hopes of improving last winter's 10-6 mark — thanks to improved height and increased depth. '68-'69 squad members include (front row, from left): John Collins, Denny Smith, Tom Fitzpatrick, John Favret, Dan Straub and Blair Steelman. Middle row: manager Henry Mitchell, Chuck Swartz, Roy Owens, Jim Underwood, John Bennett and manager Pat Coughlin. Back row: head coach Tom Scholl, Dick O'Brien, Al Falter, Bruce Mahan and trainer Bill Wood.

Better Height, Depth Buoy Ohio Dominican Cage Hopes

"We will have a winning season."

This flat prediction has been made by coach Tom Scholl of Ohio Dominican College as his basketball team prepares for its opener at Mansfield OSU tomorrow.

SCHOLL HAS reason for optimism because he has five returning lettermen and several solid freshmen prospects who will provide the depth missing in prior seasons.

This is Scholl's third season with the Panthers. In his first year the hoopsters turned in a 5-10 record. Last year they almost reversed the '65-'66 mark by finishing 10-6.

Tom Fitzpatrick (Worthington, 6-5 sr.) and John Favret (Worthington, 6-6 jr.), are returning veterans from last year's successful team.

FITZPATRICK was voted as the "most valuable player" by his teammates last year. Favret won honors as the top rebounder for the Panthers.

Three newcomers will provide the depth and height missing in the past two seasons. They are Jim Underwood, a 6-5 freshman from Washington, D. C., John Bennett, a 6-3 freshman from Bishop Ready and Blair Steelman, a 6-3 junior transfer student whose home is in Westerville.

Three experienced guards —Dan Straub, Dennis Smith and John Collins (all of Columbus) — provide strong outside shooting talent, dependable ball handling ability and defensive strength.

THE 21-GAME schedule includes Malone College (Canton), Marion College (Indianapolis), Thomas More College (Kentucky) and a Christmas Tournament at Flint, Mich. —hosted by Flint College.

Other area cagers figuring in Scholl's plans this season include: Bob Bennett (5-11, soph., Hartley), Ed Fausnaugh (6-1, frosh., Mifflin), Chuck Liddil (5-7, soph., St. Mary), Bruce Mahan (5-11, frosh., Mifflin), Roy Owens (6-0, frosh., Marion - Franklin), Lou Sartori (5-7, soph., DeSales), Chuck Swartz (5-7, frosh, Watterson) [illegible] Joe Szabo (5-11, jr., DeSales).

First home game is scheduled for Saturday when the Panthers host Miami University (Middletown Campus).

First Gloves' Tune-Up Set For Nov. 30

The first in a series of Golden Glove tune-up bouts begins Saturday, Nov. 30, (7:30 p.m.) at Cooper Arena with Windsor, Beatty, Thompson and Barack Recreation Center teams as well as Gahanna and Invitational Boxing Clubs participating.

Pee Wee boxers (six to 14 years old) preview the regular tune-ups at 7 p.m. with two one-minute rounds and no decisions.

When You Buy At Chevington Woods You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of. Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with having natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Whatever on earth you're looking for — you'll find it at CHEVINGTON WOODS.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

Lazarus Animated Window To Be Unveiled On Thanksgiving Day

One of the city's most eagerly awaited Christmas [illegible] will be unveiled Thursday, Nov. 28, (Thanksgiving Day) at 2 p.m.

On this day, Lazarus' Animated Window, at the corner of Town and High, will give residents of Central Ohio a glimpse of a magical make-believe world. A world where boy and girl rag dolls and stuffed calico animals present a carnival on the streets of Castle Town while Santa, dressed as a carnival master, laughs, bows and nods approval to his happy frisky doll, and animal friends.

Twenty-nine animations comprise Santa's Carnival. Among them are: Three dolls (standing on each other's shoulders to reach high enough) feed cotton candy to a long-necked giraffe, while another giraffe peeks out a window, shaking a package in his mouth to gain attention.

A doll sits on the ground to feed popcorn to a friendly lion. An elephant curls his trunk, as if eating food the doll is feeding him while another elephant is blowing through his trunk, so that a whirly-gig another doll is holding is spinning madly.

A rag doll plays peek-a-boo with a lion cub who wags his tail and two bears have rigged up a tin can-and-string telephone and are kibitzing across the street.

The doll costuming and animal skins are done in small scale calico prints, in hot tones of pink, orange, yellow and green. Detail is so complete that the seams and stitches appear to be the some as on stuffed toys.

Special lighting and music provide additional accent to the carnival atmosphere.

Everyone is invited to "Santa's Castle Town Carnival." Carnival hours are: 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily, Monday through Saturday; 2 to 9 p.m. on Sundays and holidays.

BUCKS ON TV

WOSU-TV (Channel 34) will carry Saturday's Ohio State-Michigan game live in color at 1:30 p.m. with Bill Speis handling play-by-play and Merv Duree handling color.

The two will also do a pre-game show at 1 p.m. and a post-game show immediately following the play-by-play. The entire game will then be re-run.

As an added feature, WOSU will televise filmed highlights of the 1958 Rose Bowl game, which was Ohio State's last appearance in the Jan. 1 classic. A Rose Bowl bid rides on the outcome of Saturday's battle.

Lost Chord Club Elects Officers

At a recent meeting of the Columbus Lost Chord Club, International Association of Laryngectomees, officers were elected for the '68-'69 term.

Serving on the new board are Ted Mathers, president; Lester Jones, vice-president; Howard McCarty, secretary; W. R. Wright, treasurer; Mrs. Robert M. Maher, publicity; Mrs. Paul Augenstein, auxiliary president, and Mrs. Ted Mathers, auxiliary secretary-treasurer.

Edward Aleo of the Speech and Hearing Department, Ohio State University, is the speech therapist.

Dr. Abramson To Be Honored

Rabbi Samuel W. Rubenstein, president of the Columbus Zionist District, ZOA, announced that David Zucker will serve as chairman of a testimonial dinner given in honor of Dr. Benjamin W. Abramson.

Dr. Abramson was elected for this honor as a result of his 50 years of service as a physician and Zionist in Columbus.

Dr. Abramson's Zionist activities reached a climax when he attended the World Zionist Congress in Jerusalem last June as an American delegate.

The testimonial dinner will be held at Temple Tifereth Israel on Sunday, Dec. 8, at 6:30 p.m.

Bill Swad Aids Drive For West High Band

Another area auto dealer has agreed to help the West High Band and Weskets represent Columbus' youth in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day.

Bill Swad told Columbus Mayor Sensenbrenner he would match up to $500 in contributions received by the mayor's office. Previously, auto dealer George Byers made the same offer.

To date, the drive is still $17,000 short of its goal.

Mayor Sensenbrenner has requested that contributions be sent to "Band," c/o Mayor's Office, City Hall, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Mark the envelopes "Bill Swad" so that they will be matched.

PART II: WHAT HAPPENS TO OPEN HOUSING ADVOCATES?

Some Evicted, Others Leave, A Few Fight Back

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

The Federal Riot Commission Report put a major share of the burden of integration on the shoulders of the white community.

But the lengthy report did not spell out what might happen to those who followed through on some of the commission findings.

WHAT HAPPENS to those in the white community who push for integrative housing where they live?

Here are three varied, probably typical, cases:

- Two apartment families who say they believe in open housing found their leases not being renewed. The management at their North Columbus apartment complex refused to comment on the situation.
- An apartment resident near Worthington discovered that his lease would not be renewed after a Negro couple visited his home. He left quietly, not making an attempt to file a complaint with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission.
- A Negro family successfully relocated to a suburban community home with help from white groups.

THESE THREE examples point to behind-the-scenes drama unfolding around the issue of renting or selling to black families in predominantly white areas.

These cases are not unusual.

At a huge apartment complex located beside Ohio 161 and Interstate 71, two families who were seeking to inform the management of their support for open housing were told their leases would not be renewed Dec. 14. One family, the Lewis Jacksons, found themselves with a three-day eviction notice. Jackson was the only one to make public statements on the situation.

Spokesmen for Miller Properties, Inc., who maintains the north complex and apartments in Lincoln Village on the far West Side of Columbus, remained silent about the present situation.

AN UNIDENTIFIED secretary in the real estate office told The Spectator "there is no one to talk to you" about the situation. Asked if anyone could comment for Miller Properties, she replied: "No, I'm afraid not."

Miller Properties, Inc., also is involved in findings of rental discrimination in Lincoln Village. The Ohio Civil Rights Commission ordered Miller Properties several months ago to make housing available to a Negro family.

The OCRC hearing examiner ruled evidence indicated the rental firm had violated the Ohio law by denying a Negro family housing. This case now is being appealed and is in the hands of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court.

Lewis Jackson, one of the residents asked to leave, said a group first formed there to discuss poverty and hunger. He said this group soon began to talk about open housing.

A CIRCULAR was compiled to be presented to the owners. It said: "We support an unqualified open occupancy policy, inviting people of all races to share in the facilities of the neighborhood."

Members of the open housing group then compiled what Jackson called a "stronger" circular. It consisted of a front page picture of a rat with this headline: "Would you want your daughter to marry a rat?"

Jackson said the management took offense at this action. A later meeting was held on the lawn.

He said three families then decided to contact Miller Properties "on a personal basis." Jackson explained they wanted to let them know "they could integrate without trouble."

Two members of the families involved said the management would not meet with them. But one of them who talked to the management on the telephone said they denied any discriminatory practices except on a credit basis.

JACKSON SAID he was involved in open housing simply "because I don't want my children to be racists."

Another resident, David Jones, put his concern this way: "I have lived in integrated housing before. We found it to be a good experience. It kind of grabs me the wrong way that people can't live where they want."

Jones also said his group had considered the possibility of asking the owners to provide a certain number of the units there for low-income families in cooperation with the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority. Another resident said he felt such a plan was feasible, since a new firm located near the apartment complex employs a number of minority group workers.

Jackson has retained a lawyer in the case and is meeting with community leaders.

MEANWHILE, the Columbus branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People through its housing committee Monday issued a strongly worded statement protesting the situation, calling it "clear-cut evidence of white racism."

An open housing advocate pointed to what he felt to be the major significance of this situation: "It's not just a Negro trying to get in. This time it's a white person trying to get integration."

• • •

At a meeting on "Affluent Suburbia and the Negro Neighbor" last week, sponsored by the Northwest Area Council for Human Relations, two other members of the Negro community revealed both their frustration and hope for the white community.

After encountering some early difficulty in securing a lot for a home, James Banner told how he moved into a Worthington area home in a "typically neighborly situation."

Banner confided, however, that no local lending institution was able to help him. "When they found out where the lot was, we couldn't have gotten a loan for a pup tent."

FINALLY AN out-of-town lending institution was found, the Banners moved in and the ice was broken. "It's been a learning experience on both sides," Banner explained. "We've moved in. Needless to say, the welcome wagon wasn't out."

Mrs. Jeanne Woodward, a Linworth housewife, related some of her experiences in locating a house in Upper Arlington or Dublin.

"The Negro is almost completely shut out in housing," she said, pointing out that it took her eight months to find a house, even though she had $5,000 in the bank. She declared that "Negroes still go to the areas of least resistance."

Mrs. Woodward said that just one sympathetic white person is "enough to aid the the cause of integration," relating how she finally went door-to-door in the area until one resident expressed sympathy with her plight.

WHILE REALTORS are often looked upon as the "enemy" by open housing advocates, there were three realtors present at the meeting who were behind open occupancy.

There was one Negro woman in the audience that night who brought along her four white neighbors. "I've just moved into an all-white neighborhood," she explained, "and to show what open housing is all about, with me tonight are four of my white neighbors."

Someone asked her how she moved into the neighborhood. She said two realtors helped her. Then she added, "but they were fired." Later it was disclosed that the two realtors had been rehired in the same area by another agency.

ANOTHER YOUNG realtor in the audience explained how at one apartment building near the university with which he was acquainted, open occupancy had been practiced with little problems.

But he spared few words in talking about the Columbus Board of Realtors. "A hard core at the board is just plain opposed to integration," he charged, "despite what you read in the papers."

Many white advocates of open housing, it appears, have a great deal to lose — not only in terms of what their neighbors may think. They can also lose their right to live where they desire.

And while they recognize that many of their white neighbors will do nothing to help them when the "chips are down," they say that what they are about is for the future of both black and white Americans.

If the burden of solving racial problems has also been shifted to the white community, there are a few white people who are laying their bodies on the line.

There probably will be more.

Workers—

tion. She sees no necessity to keep staff in an uncertain state about their jobs.

The recent massive efforts to update case records were hit as being unnecessary and were seen as token efforts to discredit the previous administration.

She said, "Our records have shown since the strike last year workers have continually updated their work and there was no need for the mass efforts. It was already being done in a planned way."

She admits that the previous administration had not solved all the problems. However, she questions the philosophy of the present administration, saying that the rule now is to "obey orders and don't ask questions."

Miss Litscher insists on the public's right to know.

"As a public agency we have a responsibility to the public to give them an accurate picture of what is being done with their tax dollar and this isn't being done. The public also has the right to expect the most competent people to be hired with their money."

Groveport Crosses Fingers On $750,000 Warehouse

Mayor Roger Higgins believes Groveport has it in the crate — a $750,000 warehouse distribution center on the north end of the village.

Working with the planning and zoning commission and local businessmen, Higgins is confident that final okay will be received this week on what promises to provide the first major improvement by industry to the local tax base in many years.

ALTHOUGH details cannot be released at this time, the proposed building, situated on three acres, will include 150,000 square feet of floor space and provide jobs for 55 people.

As part of the official effort to lure industry to Groveport, and to "sweeten up the pot," Council resolved to bear the cost of extending water lines 50 feet to service the hoped-for warehouse. (The plans include use of privately-owned sewage treatment beds until Groveport extends its collection system to hook up with Columbus).

The word from George Scott, chairman of the Development Committee, at this point is, "Keep your fingers crossed."

Groveport took another step toward providing the services that industry demands (and the village needs) when it approved the recommendation of the Board of Public Affairs that a $115,000 expansion of the water plant be undertaken.

A 200,000 gallon reservoir will be erected, two new wells dug with high horsepower pumps installed and well houses built, existing wells, pumps and houses rehabilitated and treatment facilities expanded.

The project amounts to completion of Phase III of the original water plant plans, plus the new tower.

Revenue bonds will be issued with their retirement anticipated over a 23-year period.

FUNDS WILL be provided for their retirement by an increase of 25 percent in water rates.

With the quarterly water minimum now $5.60, this will mean a hike of at least $1.40 in water bills.

However, according to Higgins, the "horse trading" about ready for finalization between him and the county engineers will result in a net drop on customers' combined water and sewer bill.

THE MAYOR explained the county has tentatively agreed to reduce Groveport sewer rates somewhere between 60 cents and $1 a month, which will more than balance the $1.40 quarterly hike in water rates.

It is also believed that the new improvement to the water plant will benefit area residents by establishing eligibility for lower insurance rates in Groveport.

Although Higgins suggested that it might be advisable to hold a public hearing before okaying the water plant expansion, it was the consensus of council that as elected officials it is their responsibility to take the steps believed essential for the welfare of the village.

OVER THE objections of William Hamler, council agreed to accept the recommendation of the planning and zoning commission that the village continue its support of the Regional Planning Commission.

Hamler based his opposition on the fact membership was boosted from 12 cents to 20 cents per capita this year.

"A sixty-six and two-thirds increase is ridiculous," he maintained.

SOLICITOR JIM Thompson reported his research shows that although streets right-of-ways beyond Tallman Street were dedicated in the fifties, it is not mandatory that the village actually construct the streets.

However, he stated that if such streets are built, they must conform to present engineering specifications.

The solicitors also reported that the case of Phillips Oil vs Groveport has been set for hearing at 9 a.m., Thursday, Dec. 26, but may be changed because of its proximity to Christmas and with interested parties possibly out of town.

ACCORDING TO Thompson, the case arising from the village's refusal to pay in full for resurfacing of Main Street hinges upon the question of why it was such an allegedly poor job and who is responsible.

Wayne Boyer and George Scott accepted the responsibility of converting the buildings now standing on the new municipal parking lot south of Main into cash.

Persons interested in either moving the houses or salvaging them are asked to contact either of the councilmen.

OTHER BUSINESS included authorization to replace the controls on the traffic light at Main and College that does not operate properly; Police Chief Al Whipple's re-

Purchase of the "Poison Antidote Kit" is a once-in-a-lifetime investment. Any contents that may be used will be immediately replaced upon presentation of the guarantee slip signed by a M.D. Among the salesmen now ringing doorbells are Vicki Hartman, left, and Sharon Lowry of the Groveport Tri-Hi-Y and John Robinette, also left, and Steve Douridas of the Marion-Franklin Hi-Y.

YMCA Has An Antidote For You

An unusual item is being sold by the high school clubs of the South Side YMCA — "A Poison Antidote Kit."

The kit, developed by one of the leading toxicologists in the nation, Dr. Eric Comstock of the Houston Institute of Clinical Toxicology, provides an immediate and effective answer to the thousands of accidental deaths resulting from poisoning.

ALTHOUGH ONLY the size of a first aid kit, the box contains an antidote for literally hundreds of poisons, especially household medicines and supplies that are too often too handy for children.

An easily read chart is included to make it possible to select the right antidote in a matter of seconds.

Although it is sold nationally at $4.95, the "Y," as a service agency, is able to offer the kit for $3.

Members of the South Hi-Y, the Groveport Hi-Y, the Groveport Tri-Hi-Y, and the Marion-Franklin Hi-Y have the responsibility of door-to-door sales and mail orders will be accepted at the "Y" office, 190 Southwood.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to provide equipment and other necessities for the South Side YMCA.

Reduction In Staff Madison's Main Out

Almost 100 residents of Madison Local School District turned out to this week's meeting of the Board of Education.

They learned the hard, cruel and incontrovertible facts of school financing.

WITH 84.98 percent of the budget allocated for salaries and retirement and other more or less fixed charges (utilities and insurance, etc.), leaving only 6.73 percent or $134,022.40 for more flexible expenditures, there is only one practical way to cut the budget materially.

That is through curtailment of staff — and even here the law of diminishing returns steps in.

Supt. Phil William explains that once the board cuts more than 28 teachers, the loss of State Foundation funds is far greater than the apparent savings.

AFTER STUDY of all possible areas where cuts may be made if the 8.5 mill operating levy fails again Dec. 10, the board adopted a fairly concise "poverty plan."

If, on Dec. 11, it is learned voters have refused to come to the rescue of the schools the board will turn to the staff to arrive at cuts that will prolong the number of days schoo can remain open, without the self-destructive move of lowering statndards to the degree that most state minimums are not met.

Realizing that it will be impossible to operate the schools the entire 1969 calendar year without the levy, the board intends to keep the doors open as long as possible.

WILLIAMS guestimates the closnig date as sometime next November.

Weighing savings against service, the board has thrown out the possibility of curtailing busing. This cost is largely paid by the state and the cutback would be only penny-wise, with students subjected to serious loss of service.

Areas that will be considered—if that Dec. 10 vote is negative — involve extra-curricular activities, purchases of all types, initiation of a per pupil charge for supplies, tutoring, use of substitute teachers, school health, cost of living adjustment, field trips and building, reimbursement of travel expense and curtailment of building maintenance and repair.

THE BOARD and administration fully realize that if the levy fails it will merely be a score of choices of the lesser of the evils that will be forced upon them.

Although audience reaction was apparently positive toward the levy, there was an undercurrent (common throughout America) that home owners believe they are picking up more than their share of the tab and are crying for state or federal relief.

ALTHOUGH WILLIAMS declares the present burden is unfair to those with only retirement income he tried to point out that the wage earner who owns property will be hit about the same — with or without shifting responsibility from real estate.

Especially heartening to those who are banking on passage of the levy were those who echoed the attitude voiced by Jerry Callihan, who has two children in Madison Elementary.

"I know we are in dire straits," he said, "but what is being done to promote it?" adding, "I've got a strong hand when it comes to knocking on doors."

Looking beyond the crisis that may loom after Dec. 10, the board took the necessary legal action to put a half mill, 22-year levy and a $405,000 bond issue up for vote Jan. 14.

PASSAGE OF these combined issues is necessary for the district to collect a $3,494,986 building grant now reserved for it by the state. (The law states the coveted grants shall be given only to districts willing to pay the half mill and bond itself within $5,000 of nine percent of the total tax duplicate.)

With the line in Ohio long and other districts eager to push Madison out of line, little opposition is expected.

According to Williams, its success will bring two new elementaries, additions of multi-purpose rooms and kitchens to the three schools in Blacklick Estates and conversion of the junior high to a senior high.

The local taxpayer will pay only 11 cents on the dollar.

THE BOARD also authorized a letter to be mailed to all district residents about Dec. 10 to further familiarize them with the critical choice awaiting them in the voting booth.

The expense of the mailing will be assumed by the Madison Local PTA-PTO council.

C-W Program Built On Unique Economy

As some residents protest the proposed 6.6 increase in school operating levy, the inference is made that Canal Winchester School Board spends money as if it were going out of style.

Actually, a look at school operating expenses should raise the question "How have they done so much on so little?"

THIRTEEN OF THE 17 school districts in Franklin County spend more per pupil than Canal Winchester.

Canal's $456.21 expenditure last year is almost $200 less than that of Bexley and Grandview and $75 below that of Columbus.

Yet the Canal Winchester program already includes much that Columbus promises to provide with the additional monies voted at the November polls.

SUPT. CARL Miller was asked by The Spectator this week to explain how the board has been able to provide music, art and physical education at an elementary level, speech and hearing therapy, an adequate guidance program and a full-time elementary library when Columbus couldn't while spending more than 15 per cent as much money for each child.

He cited economies ranging from the simple one of "turning off the lights" to major ones in the professional staff.

One example of the latter is that Miller not only has no assistant superintendent as has many school administrators, but acts as elementary principal. (Going price of such a principal is about $11,000).

FURTHERMORE, the clerk of the board doubles as Miller's secretary in contrast to the situation in similarly sized districts where the clerk will have an assistant of his or her own.

Other money-saving policies he mentioned include a small but efficient custodial and clerical staff and use of administrative offices costing about $300 annually to maintain at a time when other districts use facilities costing ten times that much.

He also brought attention to the attitude of the staff at C-W where teacher's aides are unheard of to do "just a little more than their share."

FOR EXAMPLE, in how many schools would the librarian contribute $400 to the purchase of carpeting for the elementary library and then personally vacuum the traffic areas four days a week?

In expressing the hope that taxpayers can see their way clear to supporting the 6.6 mill operating levy that will be resubmitted to them Dec. 10, Miller pointed out a fact that has been all but ignored.

With 1968 bond retirement and other factors entering into the picture, approval of the levy will not increase taxes by the millage as sought.

RATHER, TAXES will go up only five mills.

Miller admitted that even five mills is not painless, but feels it at least preferable to the 6.6 mills many believe will hit them.

Still Time To Register

It is not too late to register to vote on the school levies that have been placed on the Dec. 10 ballot by Canal Winchester, Hamilton and Madison boards of education.

The deadline at the Franklin County Board of Election, Court House Annex, Fulton at High, is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 29. The office will open at 8:30 a.m.

To register one must be at least 21 years old, a resident of Ohio for one year and a resident of the school district as of Oct. 29, 1968.

Juvenile Arrests Off In Groveport

Automobile accidents and juvenile offenses took a sharp dip during the past month in Groveport and Madison Township according to the police activity report for the period ending Nov. 24.

Chief Al Whipple reports only three juvenile arrests (one for traffic) and 12 accidents involving property damage and two personal injury cases during the period.

Adults did not fare so well with 15 criminal arrests and 36 traffic arrests made.

Reports taken included burglary, six; larceny, 14; auto theft, one; sex crimes, two; aggravated assault, two and miscellaneous, 27.

Total calls tallied 344 and the cruiser logged 5,595 miles although the speedometer was out of action for 10 days.

H-T Board Will Meet Monday

A special meeting of the Hamilton Local School Board has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2.

According to Supt. John Savel, the meeting was called to discuss the possible remodeling of Obetz Elementary School as requested by a group of village residents who met Saturday afternoon.

Savel invited the school architect Ralph Sunic to Saturday's meeting to give the townspeople the advantage of professional opinion.

Savel says Sunic indicated drastic remodeling of the building would be "throwing good money after bad," but estimated that considerable work which would make the building more habitable could be undertaken for an estimated cost of $55,000.

It was reported last week that residents of Obetz have stated they will not vote Dec. 10 for the proposed 13 mill operating levy unless assurance that the Obetz School will be rehabilitated is written into the board min

Due for occupancy in February is Phase I of the $3.5 million J. C. Penney warehouse complex under construction in Obetz. Excavation will begin soon for Phase II which involves a fleet truck service center similar to that now operated in Buena Vista, Calif., by Penneys. Phase III is an addition to the original warehouse. With three other industries already slated for the park (they will not be announced until spring) the developers are well on the way to full utilization of the 197 acre site. According to G. R. Galloway, the Park will, upon completion, represent an $18,000,000 investment. This is recognized as promising a terrific impact on the tax duplicate of both Obetz and the Hamilton Local School District. The village evaluation is now about $3.5 million and that of the school district about $20,000,000.

PHASE I OF PENNEY'S COMPLEX NEARS COMPLETION

Obetz, BCGK Spar Over Utilities

With Obetz again voting down the bonds that would have enabled construction of a sewer collection system, the village's plans for an eventual tap to the Columbus system were dashed.

But according to G. R. Galloway of the BCGK partnership which is building the J. C. Penney complex at Alum Creek Drive and Groveport Pike within Obetz' corporate limits, the election creates no serious problems for the $3.5 million project.

HE STATED this week that the voters' action will lead only to separate sewer contracts being signed with the city.

However, Galloway indicated it put a different light on the tentative agreement between the partnership and the village through which the Industrial Park taps would be twice are large as demanded by the park itself to allow them to eventually serve the entire community.

He explained that such a move is impractical from a financial view point with no assurance Obetz will ever raise the money (through passage of the proposed bond issue) which would allow it to reimburse BCGK the difference in cost.

Galloway also indicated he believes village officials are becoming increasingly unreasonable in withholding final approval of plans by which the Park will lay lines to tie in with the Obetz water system.

ACCORDING TO the builder, assurance had originally been given the partnership that plenty of water was available and that all that was to be done was "come and get it."

More careful scrutiny of the situation led to the conclusion that it would be necessary to double plant capacity to meet the needs of the park.

The improvement, including new pumps, additional purification equipment and installation of a 250,000 gallon reservoir, will cost BCGK $200,000 and will automatically become the property of the village.

GALLOWAY STATED that though his company is willing to assume this cost (plus that of lines to the point of tie-in) he is balking on two of the latest demands.

One involves the installation of either hydrants or valves for future hydrants along the line extension and the other is construction of a paved road at BCGK expense leading to the new water tower.

He added that with demands of this type being made it is possible a private water system may be built to serve the Park.

THIS, OF COURSE, would mean the loss of the $200,000 improvement for Obetz as well as the anticipated revenue from park tenants.

PART II: WHAT HAPPENS TO OPEN HOUSING ADVOCATES?

Some Evicted, Others Leave, A Few Fight Back

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

The Federal Riot Commission Report put a major share of the burden of integration on the shoulders of the white community.

But the lengthy report did not spell out what might happen to those who followed through on some of the commission findings.

WHAT HAPPENS to those in the white community who push for integrative housing where they live?

Here are three varied, probably typical, cases:

- Two apartment families who say they believe in open housing found their leases not being renewed. The management at their North Columbus apartment complex refused to comment on the situation.
- An apartment resident near Worthington discovered that his lease would not be renewed after a Negro couple visited his home. He left quietly, not making an attempt to file a complaint with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission.
- A Negro family successfully relocated to a suburban community home with help from white groups.

THESE THREE examples point to behind-the-scenes drama unfolding around the issue of renting or selling to black families in predominantly white areas.

These cases are not unusual.

At a huge apartment complex located beside Ohio 161 and Interstate 71, two families who were seeking to inform the management of their support for open housing were told their leases would not be renewed Dec. 14. One family, the Lewis Jacksons, found themselves with a three-day eviction notice. Jackson was the only one to make public statements on the situation.

Spokesmen for Miller Properties, Inc., who maintains the north complex and apartments in Lincoln Village on the far West Side of Columbus, remained silent about the present situation.

AN UNIDENTIFIED secretary in the real estate office told The Spectator "there is no one to talk to you" about the situation. Asked if anyone could comment for Miller Properties, she replied: "No, I'm afraid not."

Miller Properties, Inc., also is involved in findings of rental discrimination in Lincoln Village. The Ohio Civil Rights Commission ordered Miller Properties several months ago to make housing available to a Negro family.

The OCRC hearing examiner ruled evidence indicated the rental firm had violated the Ohio law by denying a Negro family housing. This case now is being appealed and is in the hands of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court.

Lewis Jackson, one of the residents asked to leave, said a group first formed there to discuss poverty and hunger. He said this group soon began to talk about open housing.

A CIRCULAR was compiled to be presented to the owners. It said: "We support an unqualified open occupancy policy, inviting people of all races to share in the facilities of the neighborhood."

Members of the open housing group then compiled what Jackson called a "stronger" circular. It consisted of a front page picture of a rat with this headline: "Would you want your daughter to marry a rat?"

Jackson said the management took offense at this action. A later meeting was held on the lawn.

He said three families then decided to contact Miller Properties "on a personal basis." Jackson explained they wanted to let them know "they could integrate without trouble."

Two members of the families involved said the management would not meet with them. But one of them who talked to the management on the telephone said they denied any discriminatory practices except on a credit basis.

JACKSON SAID he was involved in open housing simply "because I don't want my children to be racists."

Another resident, David Jones, put his concern this way: "I have lived in integrated housing before. We found it to be a good experience. It kind of grabs me the wrong way that people can't live where they want."

Jones also said his group had considered the possibility of asking the owners to provide a certain number of the units there for low-income families in cooperation with the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority. Another resident said he felt such a plan was feasible, since a new firm located near the apartment complex employs a number of minority group workers.

Jackson has retained a lawyer in the case and is meeting with community leaders.

MEANWHILE, the Columbus branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People through its housing committee Monday issued a strongly worded statement protesting the situation, calling it "clear-cut evidence of white racism."

An open housing advocate pointed to what he felt to be the major significance of this situation: "It's not just a Negro trying to get in. This time it's a white person trying to get integration."

• • •

At a meeting on "Affluent Suburbia and the Negro Neighbor" last week, sponsored by the Northwest Area Council for Human Relations, two other members of the Negro community revealed both their frustration and hope for the white community.

After encountering some early difficulty in securing a lot for a home, James Banner told how he moved into a Worthington area home in a "typically neighborly situation."

Banner confided, however, that no local lending institution was able to help him. "When they found out where the lot was, we couldn't have gotten a loan for a pup tent."

FINALLY AN out-of-town lending institution was found, the Banners moved in and the ice was broken. "It's been a learning experience on both sides," Banner explained. "We've moved in. Needless to say, the welcome wagon wasn't out."

Mrs. Jeanne Woodward, a Linworth housewife, related some of her experiences in locating a house in Upper Arlington or Dublin.

"The Negro is almost completely shut out in housing," she said, pointing out that it took her eight months to find a house, even though she had $5,000 in the bank. She declared that "Negroes still go to the areas of least resistance."

Mrs. Woodward said that just one sympathetic white person is "enough to aid the the cause of integration," relating how she finally went door-to-door in the area until one resident expressed sympathy with her plight.

WHILE REALTORS are often looked upon as the "enemy" by open housing advocates, there were three realtors present at the meeting who were behind open occupancy.

There was one Negro woman in the audience that night who brought along her four white neighbors. "I've just moved into an all-white neighborhood," she explained, "and to show what open housing is all about, with me tonight are four of my white neighbors."

Someone asked her how she moved into the neighborhood. She said two realtors helped her. Then she added, "but they were fired." Later it was disclosed that the two realtors had been rehired in the same area by another agency.

ANOTHER YOUNG realtor in the audience explained how at one apartment building near the university with which he was acquainted, open occupancy had been practiced with little problems.

But he spared few words in talking about the Columbus Board of Realtors. "A hard core at the board is just plain opposed to integration," he charged, "despite what you read in the papers."

Many white advocates of open housing, it appears, have a great deal to lose — not only in terms of what their neighbors may think. They can also lose their right to live where they desire.

And while they recognize that many of their white neighbors will do nothing to help them when the "chips are down," they say that what they are about is for the future of both black and white Americans.

If the burden of solving racial problems has also been shifted to the white community, there are a few white people who are laying their bodies on the line.

There probably will be more.

Workers—

tion. She sees no necessity to keep staff in an uncertain state about their jobs.

The recent massive efforts to update case records were hit as being unnecessary and were seen as token efforts to discredit the previous administration.

She said, "Our records have shown since the strike last year workers have continually updated their work and there was no need for the mass efforts. It was already being done in a planned way."

She admits that the previous administration had not solved all the problems. However, she questions the philosophy of the present administration, saying that the rule now is to "obey orders and don't ask questions."

Miss Litscher insists on the public's right to know.

"As a public agency we have a responsibility to the public to give them an accurate picture of what is being done with their tax dollar and this isn't being done. The public also has the right to expect the most competent people to be hired with their money."

Groveport Crosses Fingers On $750,000 Warehouse

Mayor Roger Higgins believes Groveport has it in the crate — a $750,000 warehouse distribution center on the north end of the village.

Working with the planning and zoning commission and local businessmen, Higgins is confident that final okay will be received this week on what promises to provide the first major improvement by industry to the local tax base in many years.

ALTHOUGH details cannot be released at this time, the proposed building, situated on three acres, will include 50,000 square feet of floor space and provide jobs for 55 people.

As part of the official effort to lure industry to Groveport, and to "sweeten up the pot," Council resolved to bear the cost of extending water lines 50 feet to service the hoped-for warehouse. (The plans include use of privately-owned sewage treatment beds until Groveport extends its collection system to hook up with Columbus).

The word from George Scott, chairman of the Development Committee, at this point is, "Keep your fingers crossed."

Groveport took another step toward providing the services that industry demands (and the village needs) when it approved the recommendation of the Board of Public Affairs that a $115,000 expansion of the water plant be undertaken.

A 200,000 gallon reservoir will be erected, two new wells dug with high horsepower pumps installed and well houses built, existing wells, pumps and houses rehabilitated and treatment facilities expanded.

The project amounts to completion of Phase III of the original water plant plans, plus the new tower.

Revenue bonds will be issued with their retirement anticipated over a 23-year period.

FUNDS WILL be provided for their retirement by an increase of 25 percent in water rates.

With the quarterly water minimum now $5.60, this will mean a hike of at least $1.40 in water bills.

However, according to Higgins, the "horse trading" about ready for finalization between him and the county engineers will result in a net drop on customers' combined water and sewer bill.

THE MAYOR explained the county has tentatively agreed to reduce Groveport sewer rates somewhere between 60 cents and $1 a month, which will more than balance the $1.40 quarterly hike in water rates.

It is also believed that the new improvement to the water plant will benefit area residents by establishing eligibility for lower insurance rates in Groveport.

Although Higgins suggested that it might be advisable to hold a public hearing before okaying the water plant expansion, it was the consensus of council that as elected officials it is their responsibility to take the steps believed essential for the welfare of the village.

OVER THE objections of William Hamler, council agreed to accept the recommendation of the planning and zoning commission that the village continue its support of the Regional Planning Commission.

Hamler based his opposition on the fact membership was boosted from 12 cents to 20 cents per capita this year.

"A sixty-six and two-thirds increase is ridiculous," he maintained.

SOLICITOR JIM Thompson reported his research shows that although streets right-of-ways beyond Tallman Street were dedicated in the fifties, it is not mandatory that the village actually construct the streets.

However, he stated that if such streets are built, they must conform to present engineering specifications.

The solicitors also reported that the case of Phillips Oil vs Groveport has been set for hearing at 9 a.m., Thursday, Dec. 26, but may be changed because of its proximity to Christmas and with interested parties possibly out of town.

ACCORDING TO Thompson, the case arising from the village's refusal to pay in full for resurfacing of Main Street hinges upon the question of why it was such an allegedly poor job and who is responsible.

Wayne Boyer and George Scott accepted the responsibility of converting the buildings now standing on the new municipal parking lot south of Main into cash.

Persons interested in either moving the houses or salvaging them are asked to contact either of the councilmen.

OTHER BUSINESS included authorization to replace the controls on the traffic light at Main and College that does not operate properly. Police Chief Al Whipple's re-

Reduction In Staff Madison's Main Out

Almost 100 residents of Madison Local School District turned out to this week's meeting of the Board of Education.

They learned the hard, cruel and incontrovertible facts of school financing.

WITH 84.90 percent of the budget allocated for salaries and retirement and other more or less fixed charges (utilities and insurance, etc.), leaving only 6.73 percent or $134,022.40 for more flexible expenditures, there is only one practical way to cut the budget materially.

That is through curtailment of staff — and even here the law of diminishing returns steps in.

Supt. Phil William explains that once the board cuts more than 28 teachers, the loss of State Foundation funds is far greatert han the apparent savings.

AFTER STUDY of all possible areas where cuts may be made if the 8.5 mill operating levy fails again Dec. 10, the board adopted a fairly concise "poverty plan."

If, on Dec. 11, it is learned voters have refused to come to the rescue of the schools the board will turn to the staff to arrive at cuts that will prolong the number of days schoo can remain open, without the self-destructive move of lowering statndards to the degree that most state minimums are not met.

Realizing that it will be impossible to operate the schools the entire 1969 calendar year without the levy, the board intends to keep the doors open as long as possible.

WILLIAMS guestimates the cloanig date as sometime next November.

Weighing savings against service, the board has thrown out the possibility of curtailing busing. This cost is largely paid by the state and the cutback would be only penny-wise, with students subjected to serious loss of service.

Areas that will be considered—if that Dec. 10 vote is negative — involve extra-curricular activities, purchases of all types, initiation of a per pupil charge for supplies, tutoring, use of substitute teachers, school health, cost of living adjustment, field trips and building, reimbursement of travel expense and curtailment of building maintenance and repair.

THE BOARD and administration fully realize that if the levy fails it will merely be a score of choices of the lesser of the evils that will be forced upon them.

Although audience reaction was apparently positive toward the levy, there was an undercurrent (common throughout America) that home owners believe they are picking up more than their share of the tab and are crying for state or federal relief.

ALTHOUGH WILLIAMS declares the present burden is unfair to those with only retirement income he tried to point out that the wage earner who owns property will be hit about the same — with or without shifting responsibility from real estate.

Especially heartening to those who are banking on passage of the levy were those who echoed the attitude voiced by Jerry Callihan, who has two children in Madison Elementary.

"I know we are in dire straits," he said, "but what is being done to promote it?" adding, "I've got a strong hand when it comes to knocking on doors."

Looking beyond the crisis that may loom after Dec. 10, the board took the necessary legal action to put a half mill, 22-year levy and a $405,000 bond issue up for vote Jan. 14.

PASSAGE OF these combined issues is necessary for the district to collect a $3,494,986 building grant now reserved for it by the state. (The law states the coveted grants shall be given only to districts willing to pay the half mill and bond itself within $5,000 of nine percent of the total tax duplicate.)

With the line in Ohio long and other districts eager to push Madison out of line, little opposition is expected.

According to Williams, its success will bring two new elementaries, additions of multi-purpose rooms and kitchens to the three schools in Blacklick Estates and conversion of the junior high to a senior high.

The local taxpayer will pay only 11 cents on the dollar.

THE BOARD also authorized a letter to be mailed to all district residents about Dec. 10 to further familiarize them with the critical choice awaiting them in the voting booth.

The expense of the mailing will be assumed by the Madison Local PTA-PTO council.

Purchase of the "Poison Antidote Kit" is a once-in-a-lifetime investment. Any contents that may be used will be immediately replaced upon presentation of the guarantee slip signed by a M.D. Among the salesmen now ringing doorbells are Vicki Hartman, left, and Sharon Lowry of the Groveport Tri-Hi-Y and John Robinette, also left, and Steve Douridas of the Marion-Franklin Hi-Y.

YMCA Has An Antidote For You

An unusual item is being sold by the high school clubs of the South Side YMCA — "A Poison Antidote Kit."

The kit, developed by one of the leading toxicologists in the nation, Dr. Eric Comstock of the Houston Institute of Clinical Toxicology, provides an immediate and effective answer to the thousands of accidental deaths resulting from poisoning.

ALTHOUGH ONLY the size of a first aid kit, the box contains an antidote for literally hundreds of poisons, especially household medicines and supplies that are too often too handy for children.

An easily read chart is included to make it possible to select the right antidote in a matter of seconds.

Although it is sold nationally at $4.95, the "Y," as a service agency, is able to offer the kit for $3.

Members of the South Hi-Y, the Groveport Hi-Y, the Groveport Tri-Hi-Y, and the Marion-Franklin Hi-Y have the responsibility of door-to-door sales and mail orders will be accepted at the "Y" office, 190 Southwood.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to provide equipment and other necessities for the South Side YMCA.

C-W Program Built On Unique Economy

As some residents protest the proposed 6.6 increase in school operating levy, the inference is made that Canal Winchester School Board spends money as if it were going out of style.

Actually, a look at school operating expenses should raise the question "How have they done so much on so little?"

THIRTEEN OF THE 17 school districts in Franklin County spend more per pupil than Canal Winchester.

Canal's $456.21 expenditure last year is almost $200 less than that of Bexley and Grandview and $75 below that of Columbus.

Yet the Canal Winchester program already includes much that Columbus promises to provide with the additional monies voted at the November polls.

SUPT. CARL Miller was asked by The Spectator this week to explain how the board has been able to provide music, art and physical education at an elementary level, speech and hearing therapy, an adequate guidance program and a full-time elementary library when Columbus couldn't while spending more than 15 per cent as much money for each child.

He cited economies ranging from the simple one of "turning off the lights" to major ones in the professional staff.

One example of the latter is that Miller not only has no assistant superintendent as has many school administrators, but acts as elementary principal. (Going price of such a principal is about $11,000).

FURTHERMORE, the clerk of the board doubles as Miller's secretary in contrast to the situation in similarly sized districts where the clerk will have an assistant of his or her own.

Other money-saving policies he mentioned include a small but efficient custodial and clerical staff and use of administrative offices costing about $300 annually to maintain at a time when other districts use facilities costing ten times that much.

He also brought attention to the attitude of the staff at C-W where teacher's aides are unheard of to do "just a little more than their share."

FOR EXAMPLE, in how many schools would the librarian contribute $400 to the purchase of carpeting for the elementary library and then personally vacuum the traffic areas four days a week?

In expressing the hope that taxpayers can see their way clear to supporting the 6.6 mill operating levy that will be resubmitted to them Dec. 10, Miller pointed out a fact that has been all but ignored.

With 1968 bond retirement and other factors entering into the picture, approval of the levy will not increase taxes by the millage as sought.

RATHER, TAXES will go up only five mills.

Miller admitted that even five mills is not painless, but feels it at least preferable to the 6.6 mills many believe will hit them.

Still Time To Register

It is not too late to register to vote on the school leviec that have been placed on the Dec. 10 ballot by Canal Winchester, Hamilton and Madison boards of education.

The deadline at the Frank[illegible] County Board of Election, [illegible]rt House Annex, Fulton [illegible] High, is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 29. The office will open at 8:30 a.m.

To register one must be at least 21 years old, a resident of Ohio for one year and a resident of the school district as of Oct. 29, 1968.

Juvenile Arrests Off In Groveport

Automobile accidents and juvenile offenses took a sharp dip during the past month in Groveport and Madison Township according to the police activity report for the period ending Nov. 24.

Chief Al Whipple reports only three juvenile arrests (one for traffic) and 12 accidents involving property damage and two personal injury cases during the period.

Adults did not fare so well with 15 criminal arrests and 36 traffic arrests made.

Reports taken included burglary, six; larceny, 14; auto theft, one; sex crimes, two; aggravated assault, two and miscellaneous, 27.

Total calls tallied 344 and the cruiser logged 5,595 miles although the speedometer was out of action for 10 days.

H-T Board Will Meet Monday

A special meeting of the Hamilton Local School Board has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2.

According to Supt. John Savel, the meeting was called to discuss the possible remodeling of Obetz Elementary School as requested by a group of village residents who met Saturday afternoon.

Savel invited the school architect Ralph Sunic to Saturday's meeting to give the townspeople the advantage of professional opinion.

Savel says Sunic indicated drastic remodeling of the building would be "throwing good money after bad," but estimated that considerable work which would make the building more habitable could be undertaken for an estimated cost of $55,000.

It was reported last week that residents of Obetz have stated they will not vote Dec. 10 for the proposed 13 mill operating levy unless assurance that the Obetz School will be rehabilitated is written into the board minutes.

Due for occupancy in February is Phase I of the $3.5 million J. C. Penney warehouse complex under construction in Obetz. Excavation will begin soon for Phase II which involves a fleet truck service center similar to that now operated in Buena Vista, Calif., by Penneys, Phase III is an addition to the original warehouse. With three other industries already slated for the park (they will not be announced until spring) the developers are well on the way to full utilization of the 197 acre site. According to G. R. Galloway, the Park will, upon completion, represent an $18,000,000 investment. This is recognized as promising a terrific impact on the tax duplicate of both Obetz and the Hamilton Local School District. The village evaluation is now about $3.5 million and that of the school district about $20,000,000.

PHASE I OF PENNEY'S COMPLEX NEARS COMPLETION

Obetz, BCGK Spar Over Utilities

With Obetz again voting down the bonds that would have enabled construction of a sewer collection system, the village's plans for an eventual tap to the Columbus system were dashed.

But according to G. R. Galloway of the BCGK partnership which is building the J. C. Penney complex at Alum Creek Drive and Groveport Pike within Obetz' corporate limits, the election creates no serious problems for the $3.5 million project.

HE STATED this week that the voters' action will lead only to separate sewer contracts being signed with the city.

However, Galloway indicated it put a different light on the tentative agreement between the partnership and the village through which the Industrial Park taps would be twice are large as demanded by the park itself to allow them to eventually serve the entire community.

He explained that such a move is impractical from a financial view point with no assurance Obetz will ever raise the money (through passage of the proposed bond issue) which would allow it to reimburse BCGK the difference in cost.

Galloway also indicated he believes village officials are becoming increasingly unreasonable in withholding final approval of plans by which the Park will lay lines to tie in with the Obetz water system.

ACCORDING TO the builder, assurance had originally been given the partnership that plenty of water was available and that all that was to be done was "come and get it."

More careful scrutiny of the situation led to the conclusion that it would be necessary to double plant capacity to meet the needs of the park.

The improvement, including new pumps, additional purification equipment and installation of a 250,000 gallon reservoir, will cost BCGK $200,000 and will automatically become the property of the village.

GALLOWAY STATED that though his company is willing to assume this cost (plus that of lines to the point of tie-in) he is balking on two of the latest demands.

One involves the installation of either hydrants or valves for future hydrants along the line extension and the other is construction of a paved road at BCGK expense leading to the new water tower.

He added that with demands of this type being made it is possible a private water system may be built to serve the Park.

THIS, OF COURSE, would mean the loss of the $200,000 improvement for Obetz as well as the anticipated revenue from park tenants.

4,000 Volunteers Ready To Walk For Kidney Foundation Drive

"Your Help Is Hope—Your Contribution a Cure" is the theme of the 12th annual Kidney Walk Sunday, Dec. 8, from 1 until 5 p.m.

More than 4,000 volunteers will call on residents of Columbus and its suburbs to solicit funds to continue service and research conducted by the local Kidney Foundation. Workers unable to canvass their territories on Sunday will call on homes Friday and Saturday, Dec. 6 and 7.

WITH SEVEN million Americans afflicted with kidney disease, three million men and women and children die with it annually.

However, through artificial kidney machines, transplants and research, many victims are saved.

The cost of such care is staggering, with individual hospital bills running to $25,000 a year.

SOUTH SIDE residents serving as Majors for the Kidney Walk are Mrs. Mary Gockenback, 957 Lockbourne Rd., and Mrs. Carl Jankowski, 5158 Fairlane Rd.

Their Captains include: Mrs. Richard Hilsheimer, 758 City Park Ave., Mrs. Yvonne May, 267 Siebert St., Mrs. John Imwalle, 1071 Columbus Ave., Mrs. David P. Barber, 932 Geers Ave., Mrs. Raymond Glenn, 32 Thurman Ave.

Mrs. Merle Kenney, 407 Siebert St., Mrs. Samuel Shannon, 681 Deshler Ave., Mrs. George Cox, 1030 Washington Ave., Mrs. Elaine Carter, 1166 Oakwood Ave., Mrs. Charles Anderson, 933 Berkeley Rd., Mrs. James Seay, 942 Bulen Ave.

Mrs. Raymond Goodell, 244 Southwood Ave., and Paul Loeffler, 1594 Oakwood Ave.

MRS. DON BEAL, 39 N. High St. is serving as Canal Winchester major with Mrs. James Seymour, 71 W. Columbus St., her captain.

In Groveport Mrs. Bobby Riffee, 552 Wirt Road is major-captain for the community and Mrs. James Raynes, 4971 Harbor Blvd., and Mrs. Harold Zarr are working in the Southeast.

Checking over final plans for the 12th Annual Kidney Walk to be held Dec. 8 are Kidney Foundation of Central Ohio members. Pictured above at a final phase meeting held at the home of Mrs. Raymond Bethel are from left, Mrs. E. L. Gerhold, 1468 Noe-Bixby Rd.; Mrs. Clifton May, 267 Siebert Ave.; Dr. Thomas F. Ferris, chief of the Renal Division, Ohio State University Hospital, and Mrs. Paul W. Renaut, 6153 Cherry Hill Rd. Campaign goal is $40,000. Monies will be used to continue service and research programs conducted by the local Kidney Foundation.

Rosary Society Christmas Party Tuesday Evening

A Christmas program with an optional $1.25 gift exchange will be held in the social hall of Corpus Christi when the Church Rosary Altar Society meets Tuesday.

The 8 p.m. program will follow the Rosary which will be held in the Church at 7:45 p.m.

The Community Affairs Commission will host the entertainment.

All women of the parish are invited.

College Board Seat Goes To C-Winchester

Canal Winchester High School has been named to the College Entrance Examination Board for a three-year term.

The Board offers to both secondary schools and colleges services and activities such as college admission programs of exams, guidance and placement, financial aid services and forums dealing with the transition from high school to college.

SECONDARY SCHOOLS which comprise one third of the membership fulfill their responsibilities by appointing a representative to participate in regional and national deliberations, interpreting the needs and interests of secondary schools in Board affairs and inform the local school community of Board programs.

With it mandatory that each state be represented by at least one school, schools are selected on basis of their geographical location, size of enrollment, type of control, student body composition, number of Scholastic aptitude Test candidates, school curriculum and urban, suburban or rural nature.

PRINCIPAL BRUCE McCann has been named Canal Winchester's representative.

Teachers Taking Math Courses At Wesleyan

Four local teachers are attending a 15-week program at an In-Service Institute in Mathematics for Secondary School Teachers at Ohio Wesleyan University.

From Columbus are Buford McGee, 1449 Hildreth Ave.; Edwin A. Starling, Jr., 5733 Tacoma Rd., Apt. A; John V. Markling, Jr., 5810 Milbank, Apt. C, and from Worthington, John C. Safford, 5622 Selby Court.

The institute enables full-time teachers to continue studies in mathematics on a part-time basis.

The weekly two and one-half hour classes in "Fundamentals of Mathematics" are taught by Dr. David H. Staley, OWU professor of mathematics and director of the institute.

The course carries three semester hours of either graduate or undergraduate credit which may be applied toward degrees at OWU or at other institutions.

"A curtain has fallen on a wonderful career." With these words, one mother of two students of Alexis Alva expressed her sorrow at his death. He is pictured above with a small pupil doing what he best loved—exulting over the progress of a very young child whom he considered especially promising.

'His Children' Mourn Death Of Alexis Alva

Memorial Mass was held at 6:30 yesterday for Alexis Alva at the St. Vincent Orphanage Chapel with Fr. Bernard J. McClory officiating.

At the chapel were many of the children to whom he had devoted his life in recent years, teaching them the beauty of ballet.

THE SON of an ambassador-at-large in the Court of Czar Nicolas, Alexis Pavlovitch Vasilchikov died Saturday in his apartment, 2428 N. High.

He had made his way to Columbus following an escape to Turkey, many years spent in Paris and a glittering career as a designer in New York to the Ziegfield Follies, the New York City Ballet and productions at the Metropolitan Opera House.

When ill-health forced him to abandon his profession, he became associated with the State Highway Department and initiated the classes at St. Stephen's Community House that brought so much to the lives of so many children that were accustomed to little.

SEVERAL YEARS ago, interviewed by The Spectator he said, "Please don't try to put any laurels in my crown. I am only doing what I enjoy."

Questioned why, in his waning years, he gave so much of his time to these children (at least 1,000 hours annually) he said only, "I had a wonderful childhood and adolescence and I think one must pay for such years."

A truly unselfish man whose pockets were bottomless whenever he saw a need, he asked that his body be used for medical research without a funeral held.

HOWEVER, the staff at St. Stephens believed that a tribute must be paid to the man who had earned the love of so many in his adopted community.

[illegible]ss Judy Statmiller, St. [illegible]en's director, stated [illegible]sday that any contributions made in his name will be used to perpetuate the school to which he was teacher, choreographer, costume designer, banker, publicist, manager, disciplinarian and father confessor.

Such donations may be sent in care of St. Stephens, 1790 Cleveland Ave.

MISS STATMILLER rued that Alva will not be here to read and reread the article to be published in the December issue of the National Magazine which tells the story of the "minor miracles" wrought by one man with hundreds of children.

Parent Applauds Results Of Driver Education

[illegible] parents eagerly await the day their teenage children foresake their bicycle days and graduate into teenage drivers.

However, Mrs. Carl S. Knight, 456 Stanley Ave., has written to South High School, thanking them for the commendable job William Manierre, driver education instructor has done with his students in general, and her two sons in particular.

SHE RELATES a recent incident in which her son skidded on a wet street when he swerved to avoid a child and struck a parked car.

"Although the damage was very slight, my son's serious attitude to this accident made realize that Mr. Manierre an excellent instructor. It is evident that he stresses to his students the great responsibility they have when they are behind the wheel of a car.

"I was proud of my son's attitude and courtesy to the investigating officer. And I am sure part of it was due to the fact that Mr. Manierre instills in his students an awareness of the seriousness of driving a car.

"AN OLDER son took this course three years ago and has an excellent driving record.

"Again, our thanks to South High for offering the course and to Mr. Manierre for doing so much for our young drivers."

William Manierre, his wife, Emily, and three children, live at 2869 Bryden Rd.

Baby Care Course Dated

The Red Cross, 995 E. Broad St., is offering a Baby Care class in December.

This free course is open to expectant mothers, fathers, and grandparents—or anyone who needs advice in handling babies.

Besides discussions and instructional advice by registered nurses on pre-natal development, delivery, bathing, feeding, diapering and baby's first year—nutrition, immunizations, emotional development—students in the Baby Care course will be able to practice their lessons with dolls, bathtubs, bottles and diapers.

THE SPECTATOR
OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Robert W. Reider, Editor and Publisher
Lawrence A. Booher, Business Manager
Robert Tenenbaum, Managing Editor and Assistant to the Publisher

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, November 28, 1968

Thanksgiving, 1968

"Thanksgiving, and again all is not well with the world.

As the day of giving thanks dawns, the world is embroiled in turmoil — in Southeast Asia, in Africa, in the Near East.

American soldiers will eat a turkey dinner in the jungles of Vietnam — and some will never eat another meal.

Millions of Americans, too poor to really celebrate, will spend Thanksgiving like any other day, scratching to make enough to feed the family for another day.

The Spectator Newspapers, mindful that we too owe thanks to many, take the opportunity to thank our readers and advertisers who have helped us through the past year.

And we take the opportunity, also, to pray that next year, Thanksgiving will find the world at peace and the fight against ignorance, bigotry, disease and poverty a step nearer to victory."

This is the third year this editorial has appeared in our Thanksgiving edition. There is no need to rewrite it—it remains valid this year.

We have survived another year. But it is for the promise — however vague it may seem — of one world where no one goes hungry or is oppressed that we should be truly thankful.

Let us pray that all men will one day have reason to be thankful.

Hats Off

What can we say that hasn't already been said about Woody Hayes and his magnificent Buckeyes?

Not a word of the praise that has been showered on this super football team has been wasted. The Bucks deserve it all.

But we would like to slip in a word of commendation to WOSU-TV for an outstanding public service in bringing the game into thousands of Central Ohio homes Saturday.

In less than a week's time, the university television station arranged for an outstanding live colorcast of the "game of the year" and thus brought an exciting happening into the homes of the unfortunates who couldn't get tickets.

There's an easy way to say "thanks" —a card or letter to WOSU-TV, Columbus, Ohio 43221 will do the trick.

Peace Party Meets In Columbus To Nominate Governor.

Negro Takes Case To Supreme Court.

Civil Rights Advocates Violate State Law.

Dayton Riot Touched Off By Police Arrest.

Newspaper Editor Claims War Immoral, Illegal.

Major Party Fears State Conservatism.

These might be the headlines you read in the morning paper. But they are not.

They all are headlines we have written for historical events which took place in Ohio during the time of the Civil War.

While some continually harp about dissent, moral decline and lack of respect for law and order present in this age, they would do well to read a history book.

For others who tell black people "just to wait a while longer," we would remind them that the same thing was being said a 100 years ago.

And for those who have given up because current history appears bleak, we would say: This, too, shall pass.

Perhaps the Old Testament writer was right when he said: "There is nothing new under the sun."

Five Years

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

The world stopped momentarily for me last Friday.

It happened about 1 in the afternoon.

It stopped because I began to think about another Friday . . . another Nov. 22 . . . five years ago.

It was about 1 o'clock on that Friday afternoon that the world stopped for everybody.

It doesn't seem like five years have passed.

The memory is burned indelibly on my mind — the memory of the first word of the horror in Dallas' Deoley Plaza.

The years haven't lessened the impact of the blow or the brightness of the memories . . .

. . . of the beautiful young widow clinging to the casket on the flight home.

. . . of the saddened vice president pleading with his nation, "Let us continue."

. . . of the pretty young daughter, kissing the flag draping her martyred father's casket.

. . . of the tiny boy saluting the honor guard as he left the cathedral.

. . . of the tousle-headed brother standing like a pillar of strength with his dead brother's family.

It doesn't seem like five years have passed.

And yet it seems like an eternity.

And that, perhaps, is the enigma of John Fitzgerald Kennedy's legacy.

It will always seem like yesterday.

And yet it will always seem that an eternity has passed.

"Ask every person if they've heard the story
And tell it strong and clear if they have not
That once there was a fleeting glimpse of glory
Called Camelot . . ."

The Day We Won

By JOHN MORGAN

A giant horde moved down High Street toward the State House.

"What the hell are these university students protesting now?" a bystander asked as he shook his head in disbelief.

"Haven't you heard?" another man responded quickly. "They've solved the urban problem."

The bystander was skeptical. "Yea, how?"

"Well," the bystander explained, "the mayor called this meeting together at Ohio Stadium Saturday. You know, over 80,000 people packed into that facility to hear what he had to say.

"Imagine, over 80,000 Columbusites that interested in urban problems."

The man again shook his head. "I didn't think there were that many people who wanted to solve the plight of our cities."

"Well, there were. Boy, was it exciting there. The marching bands and the urban cheerleaders. A television station even broadcast the meeting in color. All Columbus must have been watching."

"What happened?" the man asked.

"First the mayor gave a rousing speech about how urban problems could be solved. Then some people living in substandard housing spoke. The whole thing was topped off by a very moving speech from a welfare recipient who told how she barely survived in the system."

The man leaned forward. "And then . . .?"

"Well, the mayor called for donations. And would you believe . . . some people paid $75 just to be there. Most everyone gave at least $5. We raised over a half-million."

The man gave a low whistle.

"Now we're going to use the money to help Head Start programs, get more professionals for the welfare department —and use the rest to help open jobs in the inner city."

"Now we're really number one," the man said.

"It changed my opinion of Columbus," the bystander declared as the horde by now had reache dthe State House.

They were met there by Gov. James Rhodes, who commended them for "private intitative" and muttered a few words about jobs and the Wonderful World of Ohio.

The governor then called upon the crowd to give more of themselves. Over 40,000 people signed up to help tutor in the urban school system, 15,000 vowed to donate time to Head Start, 3,000 businessmen agreed to find jobs in the inner city, and over 100 said they would volunteer to fight for open housing.

Meanwhile, across the nation, similar developments were taking place. In New York City, Yankee Stadium could not hold the crowd which had gathered. In Chicago, Mayor Richard Daley — with tears in his eyes — was so overwhelmed by the feeling of good will that he could not speak. In San Francisco hippies and businessmen sat side by side singing "We Shall Overcome."

The stock market hit its highest point in 15 years. Policemen were seen weeping in the streets of Los Angeles.

"It was," said the London Times, "the first time we have witnessed America at its best."

In a quiet home outside Chicago, a typical housewife watched the celebration on television. "For the first time in a long while, I can say I am proud to be an American."

But the true meaning of the development was best summarized by a small wide-eyed boy in the New York ghetto: "I know we could lick these problems."

Pause For Thanks

By ROBERT W. REIDER

Thanksgiving Day sneaked up on us this year.

Maybe it was the unseasonable balmy weather in October that threw us off. Or perhaps we were too pre-occupied with the national elections to notice.

Whatever the reason, here it is Thanksgiving Day already. And Christmas is just around that proverbial corner.

Trite as it may sound, it seems especially appropriate that we pause briefly to count our blessings in this year 1968.

Individually, most of us need more than the fingers of both hands to enumerate the good things that have happened.

Nationally we have settled political differences for at least four years and the country is more unified than it has been for many months.

Internationally, the world is closer to fashioning peace between nations and understanding between peoples of conflicting political philosophies than anytime in the past decade.

There is reason for great hope on this particular Thanksgiving Day that Good will prevail in the hearts of men as well as nations in the years ahead.

That hope is fed by an increasing faith that the United States will overcome its own domestic weaknesses and provide by example the kind of leadership that will bring about human understanding and a global atmosphere of total peace.

Our blessings, indeed, are many. It is truly a time to be Thankful.

Door-To-Door Fuzz

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Mornings are a race against time.

I've got it down to the very SECOND. The clock keeps exact time and rings at precisely 7:15 a.m. Dressing, shaving, etc., do not vary more than a minute at most.

I hit the corner of Front and Long and cross immediately to the west side of Front.

At the corner of Gay and Front by the City Hall Annex side is a critical "Walk: Don't Walk" sign. If I hit the "Don't Walk" phase, the bus invariably zips by the corner of W. Broad Street and Front without me. If I hit the "Walk" phase of the sign, I catch that bus within 15 seconds.

The other morning, as usual, I approached the critical corner by the annex. "Don't Walk" flashed three feet before I hit the curb.

Being a brisk walker, I had no doubts that it was safe to continue . . . so I did.

Every downtown pedestrian knows that "Don't Walk" flashes before you hit the center of the street if you start exactly on the "Walk" signal.

Unless you are 97, on crutches with a broken right leg and severe gout in the left, leaving at "Walk" gives you more than enough time to cross the street.

But, back to the story. About three quarters of the way across Front and Gay, a car had to stop to let me progress. Not any car: a police car. And not just any police car; it was the special white safety model and it was FILLED with door-to-door fuzz.

They stopped. I gulped. They turned. I tried to ignore them. The driver-officer rolled down the window.

"Hey, you!"

Panic. Stopped.

"That sign flashed 'Don't Walk' before you left the curb."

"Yezzir."

"In the future, please obey those signs!"

"Yezzir."

Fade out fuzz buggy. Fade out me. Hit bus on time. Have about $15 worth of gratitude.

To Columbus' Finest, as Mayor "Jack" calls them. I would like to say that in this case there was no police brutality. I was treated with courtesy.

However, for $15 I would have hired Percy Foreman and F. Lee Bailey and STARTED hearings on that case in front of the U. S. Supreme Court.

To that kind officer who so sweetly reminded me of my legal obligation to a red "Don't Walk" sign, I would like to thank him for his advice and extend my felicitations, respect and praise.

Space and a spirit of charity do not permit me to list Columbus' unsolved murders since 1868.

But at this writing, there are on the police blotter three unsolved murders and 15 unsolved molestings around the university area.

I like to think that that kind patrolman is devoting some time to these other little things.

Looking Down Wall Street

General merchandise retailers have had an outstanding record of sales and growth. During the past five years, the major segment of this group—department stores, mail order chains and discount houses—has expanded 60 per cent faster than the overall economy. Earnings have increased twice as rapidly as corporate profits as a whole.

The long-term outlook for this field remains excellent. Sales will continue to grow because of the steady advance of disposable income. This spending will also be stimulated by the current high number of marriages combined with aggressive store building programs.

Department stores and mail order chains account for almost 10 per cent of all retail sales, compared to only seven per cent a decade ago. In the past five years general merchandise stores have increased their sales at an average annual pace of 11 per cent. This is almost twice the rate of expansion of total retail sales and over 50 per cent greater than that for disposable personal income.

In recent years, significant changes have occurred in the allocation of family outlays. Since 1960, the portion going into nondurable goods has continued its steady decline, while the percentage spent on durables has been rising. At the same time, the share of total expenditures used for services has made little advance.

There are three other factors behind the excellent trends of department stores and catalog chains in recent years. First, they have capitalized on the growth of the suburbs through aggressive store expansion. For example, branches provide 58 per cent of department store volume compared with 47 per cent in 1962 and only a minor amount in the early 1950's.

Secondly, the broad-line merchandisers have steadily widened their selection of goods, entering new product areas and offering additional services. Finally, they have been able to promote the use of credit much more successfully than smaller retailers, who usually lack the necessary financial resources. During the past decade, department stores and catalog chains have accounted for over four-fifth of the increase in installment debt held by all retail outlets.

For further information on the general merchandise retailing industry call or write me at Saunders, Stiver and Co.

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. Offers Thanks

To The Editor:

I wish to thank all the good people of Columbus [illegible] Franklin County for the support and vote of confi[illegible] given me in the recent election for the office of Fra[illegible] County Treasurer.

To those who worked so willingly and tirelessly [illegible] my behalf, I am very grateful. Though disappointed in the outcome, I feel fortunate indeed to have so many friends and to have had the opportunity to meet and make so many new ones.

As in the past, my interest and devotion to the cause of good government in this community and country will remain constant.

Sincerely,
Ralston Westlake

Appreciation

To The Editor:

This note is to thank you for the endorsement which The Spectator gave me in my successful effort to be re-elected to the 63rd District of the Ohio House of Representatives.

I want you to know that I have a very deep appreciation for your endorsement. It has strengthened my determination to continue my work during the 108th General Assembly for good government and a better community.

I Love You – A Recorded Message

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Herewith is another unwritten chapter from that unpublished text, "A History of the World, 1950 to 1999." Its title: "Ma Bell Saves the Day."

• • •

By the early Seventies, the old morality had crumbled. The old certitudes had vanished. Wars, riots and revolutions flourished. Neighbor mistrusted neighbor. People no longer touched each other. Conversations were icily polite.

And from the look in the eye of mankind, it was clear that the human race was on the brink.

It was the telephone company that preserved civilization.

With people retreating inward on themselves, the number of telephone calls placed daily had dropped alarmingly. To stimulate business, it was suggested that the company provide another recorded message as a public service.

"We already give our subscribers the time and the weather," said the Board Chairman irritably. "What else do people need these days?"

"Sympathy?", suggested a vice president, half jokingly.

The new service was an instant success. At first people were hesitant to dial "S-Y-M-P-A-T-H-Y." "That's silly," they'd say, shaking their heads. Then, when they were sure no one was listening, they'd pick up the phone in embarrassed secretiveness.

"Poor dear," the recording began in a gentle voice of sweet consolation. "I'm so terribly sorry for you. Oh, the pain you must be suffering! But how brave you are not to show it. How very proud of you I am. Poor dear."

After one month, studies showed each subscriber was making an average of 3.4 calls to the number daily. The company immediately announced plans for new recorded services. Next came, "I-L-O-V-E-Y-O-U":

"Oh, dearest, how deeply I love you — with my whole soul, my whole being. You are everything on earth to me — my sun, my moon, my stars . . ."

This was quickly followed by "F-R-I-E-N-D-S-H-I-P" ("Hi, there, old buddy . . ."), "C-O-N-F-I-D-E-N-C-E" ("Gosh, you're just about the greatest . . ."), and "S-E-C-U-R-I-T-Y" ("There, now, there's absolutely noth[illegible] to worry about as long as we have each other").

Special messages were added for those with sp[illegible] needs, such as "M-O-T-H-E-R." ("Oh, it's so good to hear your voice, son. Are you getting enough to eat? Are you wearing your galoshes? Are you . . .").

Surprisingly, one of the most popular was "A-U-T-H-O-R-I-T-Y." ("When you hear the signal, you will have 60 seconds to state your dilemma." After 60 seconds, a stern voice came on to thunder: "You know what's right. Now, by God, do it!"

• • •

Thus humanity came to have everything that man had always wanted from his fellow man — sympathy, love, friendship, confidence, security and authority. And yet, oddly enough, deep down people were still uneasy.

Further studies were made. And at last the telephone company came up with the solution: "U-L-T-I-M-A-T-E-N-E-E-D."

"You are a singular human being, unique among all living creatures, different from all other men. You are that God-created miracle: you are, above all else, an individual.

"This is a recording."

'Tempest' At Mershon

William Shakespeare's "The Tempest," a charming fantasy set on an enchanted isle containing spirits and "sounds and sweet airs that give delight and hurt not," will be presented in Mershon Auditorium on Dec. 4-6 at 8 p.m., by the Ohio State University Theater.

"The Tempest" has been commonly regarded as one of the half dozen greatest of Shakespeare's plays. One reason is for the magic of its atmosphere, style and construction. Another is the creative energy that moulded the characters of Prospero, Miranda, Ariel, Caliban, Gerdinand, Gonzalo, Stephono and the rest.

Tickets are now on sale at Mershon Ticket Office, 30 W. 15th Ave.

Sunday Movies

As part of a Sunday movie program, the Columbus Metropolitan Park Board is offering viewers these films Sunday, Dec. 1. At Beech-Maple Lodge, Blacklick Woods Park the films will center on Israel and British Guiana. Times are 2 p.m. and 3:30.

Around Town

Conducted By

ROLAND SUNKER

. . . . George Morgan, one of the all time greats of the Grand Ole Opry, is packing them in this week at Ohio's Grand Ole Opry Club. Morgan, who is appearing with his accompanist, Curt Gibson, has been a top star of the Ole Opry in Nashville for 21 years.

After hearing this fellow perform, you'll understand why. George Morgan has one of the smoothest sounding voices and greatest styles of anyone in show business.

You don't have to be a big country and western fan to enjoy Morgan. As one of the officials of the Grand Ole Opry told me, Morgan was hired to replace Eddie Arnold on the show. After listening to him it's easy to see why they chose him.

Possessing a wide range, along with that velvet voice, George Morgan knows how to make the best use of his talents. He is as commercial as your morning breakfast cereal and just as wholesome and refreshing. This holds true for his voice, the way he handles a song and his choice of material. Even his yodeling is pleasant and enjoyable.

Backing up Morgan is a fine house band that your host, Jimmy Joseph, has booked. The entire show will be at Ohio's Grand Ole Opry Club until Saturday, including Thanksgiving.

So don't cheat yourself, make sure you catch George Morgan this week. To be honest, this columnist was never a great C and W fan, but this man converted me.

He could do the same for you, because you'll not only enjoy him, you'll love him. He has to be the best act in town this week.

Aztec Room

Opening Monday, Dec. 2, in the beautiful Aztec Rom of the Desert Inn is the lovely Erica Trevor, a tall, statuesque singer. Erica wil be showcasing a brand new act when she makes her debut at the wel-known East Side supper club.

Recently completing a string of successful engagements, including the Playboy Clubs and the Living Room in New York, Erica has also co-starred with Helen Hayes in "The Chalk Garden" in summer stock this past season. She has also appeared in some of the daytime soap-operas on TV.

The Steve Burkey Orchestra will back Miss Trevor in her new show. Showtimes are 10 p.m. and midnight Monday through Thursday, and 9:30 p.m., 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Olentangy Inn Motel

The Olentangy Inn Motel on Olentangy Boulevard is known for its fine food, excellent entertainment and most of all, the pool-side festivities during the summer time. Now they are about to be recognized for their ice rink. Some may ask, where is the ice rink at the O.I.? The answer, of course, it's in the swimming pool. In the summer it's a pool; in the winter, a refrigerated ice rink . . . the only outdoor rink in the city.

Best of all, it is open to the public. You don't have to be a guest at the motel to take advantage of the skating facilities. This is the only ice skating rink in Columbus that is open to the public. Weekdays you may skate from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m.; Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, the rink is open from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

There is a small fee for skating on the ice. For two hour sessions, the charge is $1.50. Yearly memberships may be purchased for $25. This is a real bargain for lovers of the ice. Of course, there are special group rates if you're planning a party, and the motel guests skate free.

Here's another feature, your favorite beverages are available at pool-side . . . oops . . . rink-side. Tables and chairs have been left outside for the winter. It is this columnist's opinion that rink-side will be swinging as much this winter as pool-side swung last summer. After all, all of us who went there last summer didn't swim.

Boathouse

One of the greatest, most versatile musical groups around is appearing at Pat Zill's Boathouse. The name of the group, get ready for this, is Oz and the Wizards. Right off, this sounds like a rock and roll outfit.

But, this is far from the fact. The leader's name is Ozzie Monroe. He plays organ, sings, and gives forth with impersonations of well-known entertainers. Rounding out the trio are drummer Ronnie Raymond and guitarist Willie Thompson. Both of these fellows also do well in the vocal department and Willie also handles a few impressions.

The trio is appropriately named, because they are musical wizards. You name a tune, new, old, any type of music and they'll do an excellent job. When they do "Walk Like A Man," by the Four Seasons, songs of Johnny Cash, Brenda Lee and many others, you'll look twice because it sounds like the real McCoy.

When it comes to the pretty music in the vocal department, Ozzie's deep, rich voice shines as bright as any star. With a little of that magic dust from the Wizard of Oz, Oz and all his Wizards are bound to be on a flying carpet to stardom.

Spook Loose!

Halloween is over, but there's a spook running loose yet in the mall of the Eastland Shopping Center. This spook is wild and entertaining. Now, as you probably have guessed, the only left over spook running around and still entertaining with the jokes, wit and music has to be Spook Beckman of WRFD Radio.

Every day between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. the Spook of radio is doing a remote, live radio show from the center of the mall area at Eastland. Those of you who are fans of his, know that Spook is pretty zany when he's locked up in a studio. But turn him free with a live audience and just about everything happens.

Spook has all types of interesting and, at times, unusual guests on his program. The day I stopped by he had a group of very beautiful Hawaiian girls on his show that developed into a wild interview.

Listen to Spook on WRFD, besides his wit and the organized confusion, Spook plays pretty, pretty music. If you don't have a radio, stop by and see him in person. It's worth the trip. Afterwards, it's a sure bet you'll purchase a radio so you can listen to Spook.

Skipping Around Town

Skipping Around Town . . . Beautiful Jaci LaFon, owner of the El Diavolo called to tell me about the swinging new group she has working there this week. Jaci said the Bill McDonald Trio has really been packing them in. They are there six nights a week and the group features the well-known Betty Fountaine on piano . . . Danny Mann's Speakeasy is now open and going full blast, flapper girls and all . . . A reminder to dine some Friday in the El Black Rose of the Imperial House-North. Their sea food fare is out of this world . . . Guess what? Miss DeLois and her music men have been held over again at the Everglades. See her, she's talented and pretty, too . . . Jimmy Joseph of Ohio's Grand Ole Opry tells me that next week he has booked into his room Nat Stuckey, he's the fellow who made the song "Sweet Thing" famous.

'Subject Was Roses' Dissects Conflict

"The Subject Was Roses," current subject at the Drexel is an MGM attempt to recreate Frank D. Gilroy's Pulitzer Prize winner.

The film only succeeds through three actors, Patricia Neal, Jack Albertson and Martin Sheen. Seeing a fine and courageous comeback on the part of once-near-death Patricia Neal is worth the price of admission.

A man returns home from three years of service to his parents' home to find his middle-aged parents caught in the web of an unhappy and unfulfilling marriage.

Service has matured "Tim," Martin Sheen, much to his mother's dislike and much to his father's, Jack Albertson, liking. "Tim," celebrating his return home by tearing at the roots of his parents' discontent and hopeless marriage problems, concludes he and his mother have always sided against his father. He and his father have never said "I love you," and that their failure to love and only tolerate is not his doing.

Many scenes deal with recalling events that have led to this barren marriage, through each actor's verbal thoughts. Communication in this family of three is at a standstill.

The film fails in several areas. Pace is so poor, one has an opportunity to think of coming scenes, thus losing the dramatic reaction needed for such a powerful subject . . . a marriage that has been tolerated.

Editing, which in more action packed films would excel, fails here when dealing with emotion. In trying to capture the intensity of human failure through chopping, the film suffers. Each emotional scene builds to an immediate cut-a-way . . . done terribly slow.

Director Ulu Grosbard could have eliminated much of the above if he had delved more into overall meaning, rather than permitting the memory scenes to take place verbally. They could have been filmed rather than told, thus creating a feeling of time. Time is, after all, the subtle reasoning for this marriage which will never be rewarding for either party.

"The Subject Was Roses" is well worth sitting through . . . some should pay heed, maybe some marriages could profit.

WAS IT A GERMAN VILLAGE FIRST?

This 1914 Ford Roadster was a cleaning delivery truck weekdays and a roadster turtleback that carried the family to church on Sundays.

The box conveniently carried sweaters, suits, dresses and pants delivered in suit boxes from 258 Jackson Street cleaning establishment. Sundays, Charles E. Callander unscrewed the bolts, removed the box and made a turtleback roadster within minutes.

Today, a 2-story building containing Wayne's Pop Corn Factory is on the Callander lot.

BMW 1600

Get into a BMW and immediately you feel so much at ease when at the wheel. Made in Bavaria, Germany, the BMW is a high-performance power unit that has gained innumerable race victories and reliability events. More than 50 years of research goes into Bavarian Motor Works.

Its main frame has built-in safety. The front wheels are mounted on long coil-spring suspension struts, the rear wheels on diagonally mounted trailing arms. It is a remarkably expensive frame design, and the best there is.

Naturally, it has a remarkable degree of road-holding.

BMW was the first automobile manufacturer in Germany to fit disc brakes as standard. The BMW brake system has been developed from this vast experience. It gives you brake performance that can be used fully in any situation, thanks to the outstanding wheelgrip provided by advanced frame design.

If you want to see the 1969 BMW model, stop in at Continental Sport Cars.

This 1914 Model T was restored by Don Callander, Sr., and is occassionally seen in the Bexley area with one of the Callander's at the wheel. Don Sr., and Don Jr., and Ron Callender are all antique car enthusiasts. They have another, a Ford Touring Car.

THE GERMAN VILLAGE NEWS

DRYING HERBS

Drying herbs is usually an August work detail for they are at their best for drying when just about to bloom. Plants like sage will produce two or three cuttings in one growing season. Sage is another herb by-passed by U.S. Department of Agriculture as having food values. But roast fowl comes out better if stuffed with sage dressing. It adds tastiness to the meat, particularly leftovers.

Sage is excellent for the liver and blood, and diseases of the nerves. It spreads rapidly in the garden, and also through foods when mixed with them. It is of the mint family.

Sage is an excellent hair dye whether one applies it as a conditioner, or drinks it in sage tea. There are established cases where hair not only has returned to its original color, but continued to darken. Our mothers and grandmothers used it as a vermifuge, for sensual debility and quinsy.

Sage is the easiest to dry and to store. However, most herbs can be dried outdoors in warm weather or spread between cheesecloth, or processed indoors by laying on the floor to dry. The latter avoids the rains which beat it and it runs away.

Other herbs our grandmothers and great grandmothers used to add taste to food are basil, bay, oregano, thyme for tomato juice; savory for vegetables and sage for cream soups. Rosemary is excellent for fruit cups, but far better to soothe the nerves as a tea to quiet a child or grown up. Many of these were used to heal the sick.

From 1900 on, the use of herbs in cooking and aiding in cutting fevers and abscesses, animal bites and bee stings, has fallen almost into disuse. Today, herbs are used by Russian drug manufacturers in cross mixtures to send the mind into enforced transcendalism like a souped up automobile that kills unless used in its rightful place.

If one feels the drying of herbs is yesterday's history, one might go to Jackson County area where mid-wives are still used to deliver babies, and herbs utilized in breaking fevers. Camomile tea is used to settle the stomach, the teas made from tree barks to build red blood and tetanus treated with Capsicum mixture. Oak bark, a tree plentiful in Germany, and one that Plains Folks searched for in settlement, is made into a concoction for blood diseases and other internal disorders.

German mothers cooked wild game in vinegar to prevent any disease from being carried into the stomach. It also took away the wild taste.

Early Ohio history carries little about the mother of German extraction who carried her little herb basket to a neighbor's home when severe sickness struck.

Ohio as a whole was still a wooded land less than 50 years ago. Roads were muddy and impassable until the late 1920's in most farmlands. The housewife gathered all the grasses possible to dry, add to pickling mixtures, and the makings of salves and condiments for man and animal.

German Village area was considered in the country when the menfolks worked at the breweries there. The brewer's yeast is in the mineral group, but not Brewer's yeast product. It contains vitamin B complex.

Plant Your Herbs Indoors

MOVE YOUR GARDEN INTO YOUR PANTRY . . . enjoy better meals all the year 'round. There still is time.

If you live in an old house you probably have a pantry with a small window made with a wide sill that is the place for sunning your indoor herb garden.

Chives, comfrey and parsley are the easiest to grow indoors. One finds chives sold in cottage cheese and stores carrying health foods such as herbal teas, vitamins and minerals.

It is a native of Europe, Siberia and North America, but try to find its genii in the Yearbook of Agriculture. It is of the onion tribe and needs cultivation else it becomes a tough blade of grass.

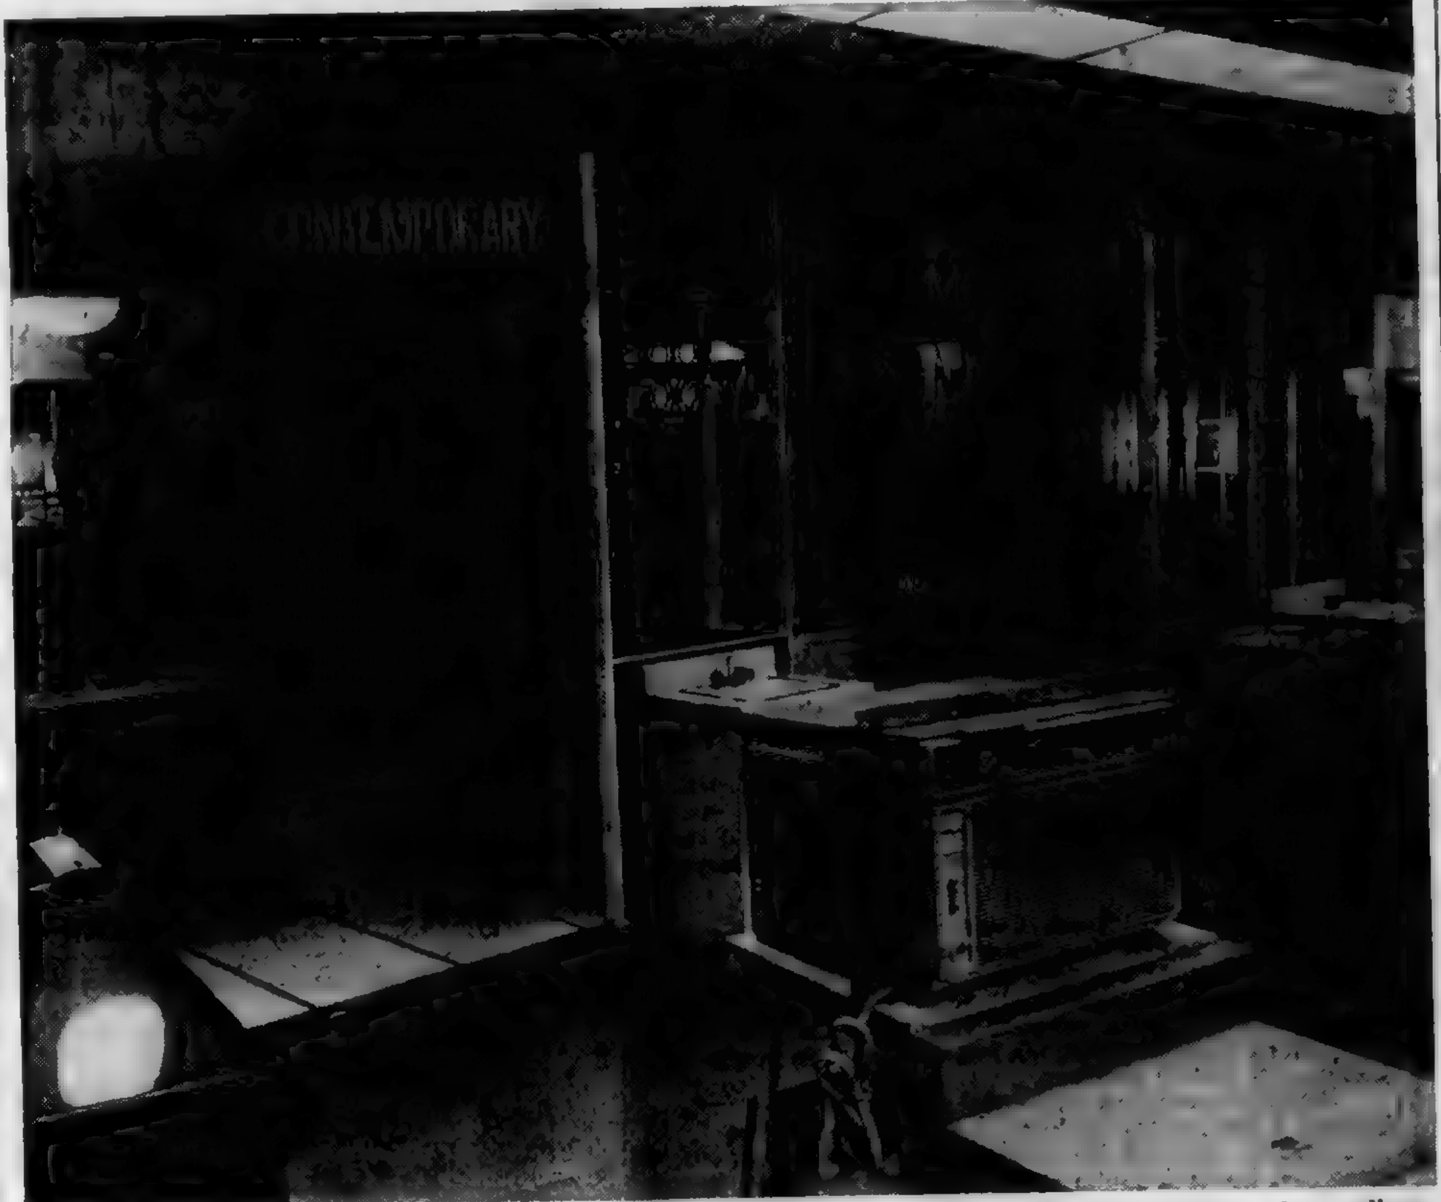
It is best in omelettes, potatoes, stews and soups. It is an excellent source of sulphur, a necessary antioxidant mineral. By the way, sulphur is not mentioned in the English Bible. Instead one finds the Hebrew word meaning "sum of."

Thus, one might call chives, or sulphur, the chemistry adjuster of acids and alkalizers mixed by eating.

Comfrey is native of Russi but grows well in Ohio. Or can chew its leaves, or mak tea of any part of it. It loo has been a remedy for spi ting of blood and dry cough. Quite a few add a leaf of con frey to their coffee. It give a biting taste.

Parsley is well known a well covered partly because is used as a garnish. How ever, it is one of the be herbs for the stomach, flatu lence and the kidneys. Parsle helps in oxygen metabolis in maintaining normal fun tions of the adrenal and th roid glands, and is helpful the eyes. Parsley contai 290 units of vitamin A in or chopped tablespoonful, seve miligrams of absorbic aci and is 84 percent water con ponency, about the same pe centage as the normal huma body.

HOUSE OF BARGAINS



The Nationaline Do-It-Yourself Center, located at 1130 City Park in German Village has revolutionized consumer home remodeling, by totally eliminating the high labor costs of installation.

The Do-It-Yourself Center provides a unique service to its customers — personalized installation instructions for every product purchased.

This means that the consumer receives a complete set of blueprints and instructions when he purchases a new arrangement of kitchen cabinets, replacement fixtures for the bathroom, or a new washer for the kitchen sink.

Installation instructions are drawn up personally for each customer—free of charge. The staff of experts preparing this personalized information are specialists in fields such as kitchen layout and design, electrical work, plumbing, heating, and cooling.

The Do-It-Yourself Center carries a complete selection of bathroom tubs, toilets, sinks, vanities, medicine cabinets, kitchen cabinets, garbage disposers, pipe, tubing, hand tools of all types, water heaters, laundry tubs, appliances, water softeners, pumps, heating and cooling systems, and hundreds of other items.

The Nationaline Do-It-Yourself Center is a franchised dealer of the nationwide Nationaline Organization which was formed in 1923. It is the largest buying group of independent businessmen in the field of plumbing, heating, air conditioning and allied areas.

Dor-O-Bel Gift Shop has a nice assortment of holiday table decorations. Many of their colorful holiday gift items are from Germany. One shopper there said, "But we can't get them in Germany, particularly in blues and bright reds. Most sold there are gold and white." The shopper bought several decorative balls to mail back to Germany as Christmas gifts.

The Jesters are still there, waiting for you to pick them up. European clowns, or jesters, in real life are outstanding in caricature. They make a nice gift for a client or for the boss.

What is wiener schnitzel? Are you one who thinks of the hot dog wiener when you read this on the menus in German Village?

Wiener Schnitzel is a very thin, pounded veal cutlet. It is made of the finest part of the loin or the eye of the round, all prime pieces of meat. At Lindenhof Restaurant, it is salted and peppered, egg washed with the pure egg, and breaded in Italian type bread crumbs. It is sauteed in a pan with good corn oil, primarily. One side is garnished with lemon and paprika, chopped parsley, while the other side has curled anchovies and Caper herb and butter in the center.

Five railroad engineers enjoy the Friday night sea food special at Mohawk Grill during lay-over here from a Charleston run. The boss of the crew said, "It is the place for good food and entertainment for men away from home." They boost the seafood platter served with turtle and frog legs as the best anywhere. That's what Frank and Dorothy Bussart like to hear about their place.

HERBS

FOR COOKING

Cooking with selected herbs is what makes German cookery different. They not only add tastiness, but they feed the organs of the body and help to preserve and build red blood.

Herbs can be used in cooking in the ground state, or tea made of roots, stems and leaves by steeping 20 minutes in an enamel pan, or made into poultices to heal sores, cuts and burns. The Old World Germans never wasted anything. "If it was created, then there is a good use for it," Old World hausfrau believed.

Herbs stepeed into tea can be drunk warm or cold, or be added to foods as liquids. Instead of throwing day-old herb tea away, it makes excellent additives for flowers and herbs moved inside for the winter. An indoor herb garden assures fresh herbs for cheeses, salads and garnishes any time.

Herbs have been used for thousands of years for flavoring foods. They contain in organic form many of the minerals and vitamins needed by the body. Mixing in a pinch of one herb or sprinkling a little of another on top, according to one's taste and inclination, is the simplest part of cooking. Yet it does more than anything else to make food tasty.

It is said that tasty and satisfying food made with herbs and spices holds husbands, keeps families together. For dining out pleasures, eat in German Village at any of the restaurants advertising on this page.

Max Behr, Chef at Lindenhof Restaurant, is European trained in cooking. He is from an area above Hamburg. His wife gave birth to a son a week ago, the third child.

Behr does not use vinegar to make Sauerbraten but Red Wine. He uses selected cuts of Prime Beef marinated in Red Wine, Herbs and Spices, and serves it with Potato Dumplings and Sweet and Sour Red Cabbage. He uses Wine to season all foods instead of vinegar.

The knack for seasoning food tastefully is what makes a chef out of a cook, a housewife once remarked. It has also been said that food without seasoning is like talk without reasoning. And spices are little items that put that extra something, that mouthwatering zest and that happy anticipation into what's cooking in the kitchen.

The best cooks know that the right spices, used skillfully in the right places, stimulate appetites, bring out the full flavor of foods, and aid digestion.

Along with a lot of other things, WW II brought a keener appreciation for the spices which disappeared one by one from the pantry shelf. Pepper got to be almost as valuable as it was during the Middle Ages, when peppercorn rents prevailed. Cinnamon, nutmeg, and mace were also practically on the "gold standard." Now, however, spices are back to the days of easy accessibility at the corner grocery store, but diluted considerably.

There's more glamour attached to spices than there is to Hollywood's highest paid female star. With a sprinkle of spice, you add to your everyday meal a bit of the romantic Orient and adventure . . . for exploration, war, and conquest are all bound up in spice history. Even a slight knowledge of spice lore stirs the imagination and spurs us to adventures in the culinary kingdom, just as the spices themselves spurred the ancients to journeys over uncharted seas and into unexplored lands.

Sesame seed was the first in world trade in the world.

Spices are flowers, fruits, buds, bark, roots, leaves, or seed of certain plants and herbs. Generically, the term spice refers to both spices and herbs. There are three divisions . . . aromatic, stimulants, and sweet herbs.

If you are going German Village, U.S.A. you must cultivate herbal seasoning in eating pleasures. You get the best in these restaurants.

NATION'S PROGRAM DIRECTOR NOMINEE

A familiar D-J to South Siders a few years ago was Cousin Roy of WHOK, who took the same type spot at WJJD, Chicago. He came back for the State game Saturday, spent the evening with Hank Newman of Gahanna, the man who pushed him into country music work several years ago. "It was a good move," Roy Stingley said.

Roy will be in Las Vegas for five days beginning Dec. 1, to vie for the honor of top program director in the country, one of five nominated.

Since leaving Central Ohio, he has been made Who's Who in Music, initiated the Shower of Stars, operated the first country music night club in the country. He recently was asked to open Chicago's oldest theater house as his next venture.

Roy moved up to program director the first of the year, but folks in Central Ohio can still tune him in between 10 a.m. and 12 noon every weekday. When on the air from 5 a.m. to noon, his fan mail was about 1,000 letters a day.

Roy is tied into the South Side in other ways. Roy's record was sponsored by a Parsons Avenue record shop, and he married Ann Oglevee, a South Sider.

The Hunt Is On

Hunters are invading camps in national forests to hunt deer, bear and wild turkey. Those with buck fever that fail to bag one take part in the shirt-tail cutting ritual.

In Ohio, hunters have also hit the shooting trail for r[illegible] bit, deer and squirrel. If y[illegible] haven't obtained your licen[illegible] as yet, stop in at either of the R and R Bait Stores on W[illegible] Whittier and W. Rich or the Village Bait on E. Whittier Street. All are open through the winter months.

THE GADABOUT

By PRISCILLA LENOX 444-1051

Every year at this time, the Gadabout indulges in a strange sort of diet, which is neither nutritional nor tasty—fingernails!

This nail-biting is generated by the project, "Gifts for Giving," which will take place this year on Thursday, Dec. 12, at the Benjamin Franklin Hospital.

Though successfully completed every year for 14 years, we still make ourselves ulcer-prone by worrying "will this be the year that fails?"

'GFG' Described

ful that new readers unaware of the "modus operandi" of GFG, here's the explanation. Readers donate gift items (or money to buy gift items) for distribution at Benjamin Franklin Tuberculosis Hospital.

These gifts are NOT for the patients, but are used by them as gifts FOR their loved ones.

And, all those distributing these items make it clear that the items have been "donated by readers of the South Side Spectator." The Gadabout is emphatic on this point.

Family Finances Suffer

Long illnesses are hard on any family's finances, so a majority of the TB families are dependent on welfare of some sort. Unfortunately, tuberculosis strikes hardest in the age group which needs to earn more, the 20 to 40-year-olds.

Modern medicine has reduced greatly the length of stay in the hospital, but in some ways this has increased our need for "Gifts for Giving" items.

When hundreds of patients were visited, we gave only one gift per patient. Now that there are fewer patients, we help them remember every person on their gift lists!

Some who have always known meager holidays have declared they had never before been able to be such a complete helper for Santa Claus!

What Is Needed?

And well you may ask . . . what is needed? Gifts for men, women, boys and girls. As per usual, it is the men who have the least variety, just as your own personal gift list has told you. All money donated is used to buy stretch socks, as our solution for the problem.

Women's items that are appreciated include toiletries, costume jewelry, hankies and the like. Children's gifts can be games, books, puzzles, etc.

So, if you would like to learn that the Gadabout has renounced her finger-nail diet, won't you be a donor for this year's "Gifts for Giving"?

The phone, as usual, is 444-1051.

Time is of the essence — Dec. 12 is coming all too fast.

Candles In The Pie

It is more than likely that some of these youngsters will find pie substituted for the traditional cake when their natal day is celebrated: Ronald May, Deborah Goodwin, Ricky Horvath, Jerry Evans, Charles Nash, Terri DeLong, Phyllis Neville, Donna Stout, Stephen Bailey, Karen Athey and Kim Hoptry.

These teens are also wished a "happy birthday" this week: Mike Johnson, Mary Beth Poeschel, Sue Hendrickson and Mary Ardner.

November giving way to December is also the birthday week for Herbert Seemueller, Norma Di Gioia, Helen Saylor, Clarence Syfers, Dorris Syfers, Helen Ikehorn, Bob Castle, Mae Dean, Millie Lowe, Jerry Edwards, Mary Evans, Keith Fillinger, Margaret Hershiser and Gladys Shaw.

Happy Anniversary

Anniversary congratulations to Helen and Frank Gusa and Carolyn and Larry Farrar.

A program of community singing will be a feature of the Friday program to be held at the Senior Citizens Center, Nov. 29, at 2:30 p.m. Evert Cheatwood will show slides. The Christmas workshop will be held Monday, Dec. 2.

Wedding congratulations will soon be appropriate for Virginia Fleshman, 1236 Lockbourne Rd., and Robert Brokamp, 939 Clarendan Ave., and Linda Swiger and Thomas Davis. Both couples have chosen Saturday, Nov. 30, as their wedding date.

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . The South Side YMCA Mothers' Club will hold a Christmas potluck Tuesday, Dec. 3, when the group meets at the South Side YMCA, 190 Southwood Ave., at 10 a.m.

The Women's Guild of St. Paul's UC of C will hold its December meeting Wednesday, Dec. 4.

Laurel Court No. 40, Order of Amaranth, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2, at the K of P Hall, 697 S. High St.

The business meeting of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club will take place Tuesday, Dec. 3, at 1 p.m. Members who have had birthdays in the past four months will also be honored.

Christmas Party Set

Pastor and Mrs. Larry Hoffsis of Trinity Lutheran Church will present the program "So Far To Bethlehem" when the Women of the Church hold a Christmas party Tuesday, Dec. 3, at 7:45 p.m. Members are requested to bring unwrapped Christmas gifts suitable for a child or teenager, to be distributed by the Lutheran Welfare Center.

The Ladies' Aid of the South Congregational Church, 16 E. Stewart Ave., will hold the annual Christmas Bazaar Wednesday, Dec. 4. Many items will be available for gift giving purposes for those who enjoy giving hand-crafted remembrances. Also featured will be the ham dinner, served from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Adult tickets are $1.50; children under 12 may eat for 50 cents.

Mary Circle, Trinity Lutheran Church, will hold a noon meeting Wednesday, Dec. 4. Mrs. A. Henkelmann will give the Bible study. Hostesses will be Mrs. William Wittman, Mrs. William Evans and Mrs. Margaret Zimpfer.

In Michigan

The Marshall family, 1413 S. Sixth St., visited relatives in Michigan the first week of the hunting season.

Sympathy is expressed to the family of Grace Schumm, who recently passed away.

The Paul Frederick Combo will play for the Mid-Week Dance to be held Dec. 4 at the YWCA, 65 S. Fourth St. The dance will begin at 8:30 p.m., continue until 11:30 p.m. Single admission is $1.10 and includes refreshments.

The Fidelis Class of the Ohio Avenue UMC will meet after church, Sunday, Dec. 1.

Paper Drive Under Way

Cub Scouts of the Thurman Avenue UMC are collecting newspapers and would appreciate donations. Don Van Langen, 717 Deshler Ave., is in charge of this project and may be reached at 443-1218.

Members of the St. John's UC of C will participate in an Advent Workshop Sunday, Dec. 1, at 3 p.m.

It's nice to have Helen and Walter Denney as Columbus residents again and of course Helen is busy as ever. The resident of 601 E. Moler St. is —get this — administrative assistant of the Adult Program Department. Wow! 'Tis she who keeps this writer supplied with all the YWCA material in this column, and it is appreciated indeed!

The Luther Leagues of Trinity and Hope Churches will hold a retreat Friday, Nov. 29, to Sunday, Dec. 1, at Mowana. The sessions for the retreat will cover the topic of "Teenagers' Problems."

Mary Steffens played hookey from her job at the South Side YMCA last week to visit the Paul Dixon Show in Cincinnati. Her little granddaughter, Kim Smith, was the only one of the party of five making the trip who got a chance to speak, so the older Columbusites are being heckled by their friends, of course.

This bit of information we learned when calling the "Y" to verify the price of the "Poison Antidote Kit" which is being offered for sale at this time. Donation price is $3. For complete information, call 444-2151.

On this Thanksgiving day, don't forget to remember the things that make life so meaningful . . . they far outnumber the minuses, really!

AND A HAPPY THANKSGIVING TO YOU

Families Can Send Tapes To Servicemen

Families with servicemen in Vietnam and elsewhere can now send taped Christmas greetings to them free, according to Mrs. Betty Agler, executive director of the Columbus USO.

The taped messages are provided through the courtesy of Radio Shack with three locations in the following areas: 4290 N. High St., Great Southern Shopping Center and Town and Country Shopping Center.

The three Radio Shack locations provide free the tape, private recording booth, mailing box and postage.

In addition, the store personnel and USO volunteers will assist in taping messages. Store hours are from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturdays.

The Christmas message program will continue through December.

Radio Shack was selected by the USO for its "Tape-a-Letter" program because of its 350 facilities in 250 cities.

CAGE PREVIEW

Wehrle, T-V 5's Hang Hopes On Experience

(This is the second of a three-part series previewing prospects for area high school basketball squads during the 1968-'69 season. This week's subjects: Wehrle and Teays Valley).

BY BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

WEHRLE

Six returning lettermen and a 5-11 senior who played well as a sophomore are back to lend experience to Wehrle's CCL entry this season.

But while veteran Bob Fowle figures on experience to be a long suite for his second varsity season at the Parsons Avenue school, he feels the absence of a big man will be the weakest point.

FOUR LETTERWINNERS —Dave Maurer (6-0, 220), Adrian Skunza (6-0, 170), Mike Sachs (6-2, 175) and Ed Bauman (6-1, 190)—are over six foot, but just barely.

The other two letterwinners are just below the 6-0 level with Tony Preidas at 5-9 and John Skunza at 5-11. The returnee to the Wolve fold is Fred Hennis, who played guard during his sophomore year.

"WE WILL be a healthy and hustling ball club, I hope," noted Fowle as his group sets out to improve on a 3-16 1967-68 campaign.

Maurer, who was all-CCL last year, scored at a 17.7 clip and Skunza managed 11.8 points per outing for the south siders.

Fowle looks for the CCL title race to be between Watterson and Ready.

TEAYS VALLEY

North's Curt Moody (28) and Wes Harris (31) offset a superlative 33-point effort by Teays Valley's Dale Lambert Friday night at North to give the Polar Bears of the City League a 76-65 cage win.

Lambert, a 6-0 junior guard, heads a list of five returning letter winners to greet first-year T-V cage coach Robert Hoover.

WALTER NEWMAN, a 6-0 forward, Mark Brinker, a 6-1 center, Robert Stone, a 6-0 forward and Dan Southers, a 6-0 junior guard round out the returning vets.

And that is the combo in action for Hoover as he seeks to build a new system for the first time in Viking school history.

RUSS GREGG, the respected and long-time Ashville coach, moved to Whitehall for the 1968-69 season and took with him his two ball-playing sons, Rex (6-2) and Van (6-2) which deplete the T-V arsenal a bit.

Hoover will be working to better a 9-10 '67-'68 campaign posted by Gregg during a rebuilding season.

(Next week: a look at cage prospects at Canal Winchester and Hamilton Township).

Spectator Columnist Paugh Sportsmen League Director

Richard L. Paugh, whose award-winning "Maverick With Muddy Shoes" outdoor column appears weekly in The Spectator Newspapers, has been named Executive Director of the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

Paugh, an outspoken critic of pollution of our country's waterways and air, will direct the operations of the 60-year-old conservation organization which shows over 125 affiliated clubs throughout the state.

THE LEAGUE was formed in 1908 to fight pollution and the waste of Ohio's natural resources.

Paugh, who resides at 2860 Minerva Lake Rd. with his wife and four children, has been honored as author of the "best weekly outdoor column in Ohio" for the past three years by the Outdoor Writers of Ohio.

Earlier this year he received a National Wildlife Federation Award as "Communication Conservationist of the Year."

IN ACCEPTING the Directorship, Paugh said:

"I am humble and at the same time proud to become Director of the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

"For 60 years, the League has fought the lonely battle against waste and pollution. Long before it became a common topic amongst political candidates, the League did everything in its power to make the public aware of the deathly threats of pollution.

"I HOPE to carry this fight for survival into every strata of our state and especially into the council chambers and legislative halls where, for too long, all attempts have been modified and what laws were passed were amended until little or no action could be taken against the public poisoners.

"Not the bomb, not the population explosion, but filth in our air and water has become the number one menace. Should pollution continue at this present rate, our planet will be void of life in two more generations."

"I do not believe that is the heritage we wish to pass on to our grandchildren.

"Rather, I believe we want to make sure the clean-up starts right now and each succeeding generation will have a cleaner and healthier life."

Grays 'Upset' Scarlets In CTFL All-Star Tilt

The "Grays" upset the "Scarlets", 16-8, Sunday at Southview Field in the second annual Holiday Bowl All-Star game of the Columbus Touch Football League.

After a scoreless first half, Gray QB John Pond found Don Mollick for an 18-yd. scoring strike to cap a 10-play, 67-yd. march.

POND HIT tackle Joe Hill for the conversion and an 8-0 Gray margin.

The "Scarlets" came roaring back early in the final period as QB Bill Johnson ended an 11-play, 58-yd. march with a 16-yd. scoring toss to Darrell Montgomery.

The same combo clicked for the conversion and the score was tied.

THE GRAYS then picked off a pass on the Scarlet 14 and got four additional plays when an interference call at the one-foot line expanded a fourth-and-one situation.

QB Pond then hit Don Yore on a short toss and added the conversion points on another strike to Rich Manning.

The Scarlets' final bid for a deadlock ended at the Gray six as time elapsed.

IN POST-GAME ceremonies, John Pond (N. Heidelberg) and Don Yore (Remo's) picked off offensive back and lineman "MVP" awards respectively while Curt Thomas (Moore's) and Jim Pierce (B and A) secured the defensive awards. The quartet gave the winning Gray Conference a sweep of the awards.

All-Star rosters included:

GRAY SQUAD

Don Yore, Don Mollick, Jim Woods and Tom Myers (Remo's), Ed Smith, Ed Dorsey and Ray Gibbs (Moore's), John Snow, Tom Mains and Mike Seymour (Creative), Roger Young, Jim Pierce and Bob Craig (B & A), Dick Williams, Mike Ross, Bob Sherwood and Larry Evening (Jacobs) and John and Tim Pond, Joe Hill and Tom McGarity (Heidelberg) plus coaches Doug Otte (Remo's, offense) and John Moore (Moore's, defense).

SCARLET SQUAD

CTFL NOTES

The final league meeting has been set for Thursday, Dec. 5 (8 p.m.) at 762 S. Pearl St. (Creative Printers).

New entries for '69 season will be Franklin Sports Center and Ted Hysell Clerks.

AS OF Nov. 22, 15 teams were signed for the '69 season with one opening remaining.

Anyone interested in filling the vacancy should attend this final post-season meeting or call secretary Ron Cornett (444-4407).

A WORD TO THE WISE

Err At Barrett Junior High And You'll End Up In Court

The classroom door opens quietly and the girl bailiff tells you to enter. After just two steps into the room, you are stopped and told to raise your right hand and you are sworn in.

You glance around the large empty third floor room and notice only nine students sitting in a "U" formation in the front. The bailiff causes you to stand in the center of the group facing the Chief Justice.

YOU WONDER, "What is going to happen to me? Will they be fair in judgment?"

This is an example of a Barrett Junior High School student's encounter with the Student Court. Barrett is believed to be the only Columbus Public School junior high to have a student court.

Last year, members of the Student Council began to feel that they should have some responsibility for maintaining the proper conduct of the student body.

THEIR ADVISOR, Mrs. Mary E. Hensley, thought their idea was sound and consulted with Kenneth Olbert, principal, about it.

After exploring the operation of South High School's student court, a proposal was submitted to the Barrett faculty and as a result, the court was started four weeks ago.

The Student Council elected nine of its members to form the court. Six were to be ninth graders; two, eighth graders, and one from the seventh grade.

EACH COURT member must maintain at least a C grade average and is subject to removal if he receives an F in any subject or breaks school rules.

The chief justice, Larry Latta, is a ninth grader and presides over the meetings, reads the decisions and makes sure the penalties are carried out.

Philip Kientz, prosecuting attorney, is also in the ninth grade. He maintains a file of charges against the student sent to the court, records the penalty if one is imposed, writes the summons and provides the clerk with a list of students summoned.

AS CLERK OF the student court, Jackie Sharp, keeps a calendar of cases to be brought up and of the dates when penalties are to be carried out. Jackie also keeps a file of the disposition of cases and notifies the faculty member who referred the case about the results of the trial.

Leg work is done by Connie Hamilton, an eighth grader, who is the bailiff. She delivers the summons, swears in the defendants, calls persons to appear before the court, issues admits to class and collects referrals and delivers them to the prosecuting attorney.

FRANK SANDERS, the only seventh grade student, Wanda Woerner, an eighth grader, and the following ninth graders make up the jury: Sammy Marcum, Chi[illegible] Buehl and Janet Webb. They vote on the innocence or guilt of the student charged.

Student court advisor, Robert G. Martin, said, "I believe in the one month of court sessions that more and more Barrett Students are more aware of the part of rule one of the Barrett Code [illegible] states: I will obey the [illegible] of my school and will [illegible] respect for myself. I will [illegible] tell other students to do the same."

Typical of the reactions was a statement made by a "convicted" student who said, "I am glad I got sent to Student Court. Now I see what I have been doing, and I will try to correct it."

SOME OF the penalties are memorizing the school Code, scraping gum from tables and chairs (if the student was caught chewing gum) and writing 250 word essays.

Faculty members seem pleased with the Court.

Mrs. Annabel Conkle, mathematics teacher, said, "In observing the students, they seem to take the Student Court very seriously and are impressed with it. Even though I personally have sent only one student to Court, they all seem to respond well to the visit." She added, "Students seem quite concerned when they receive a summons ninth period. They don't look forward to going."

Taking the role of the accused in the Student Court of Barrett Junior High is Connie Hamilton, bailiff. "The defendant" faced Prosecutor Philip Kientz, Chief Justice Larry Latta and Clerk Jackie Sharp.

WRESTLING PREVIEW:

Wolves Initiate Sport; Indians Return Five

(Eds. note — This is the second of a two-part series previewing area high school wrestling teams for the '68-'69 season. This week's subjects: Wehrle and Mohawk).

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

WEHRLE

The problems encountered with building a wrestling program and fielding a varsity squad all in the same season are being tackled this fall by Dave Erwin at Wehrle Memorial.

ERWIN, WHO competed in the sport at Hartley High several years ago before moving up to Western Reserve, is working with a 30-man squad in preparation for the Wolve grapplers opener next Wednesday at New Albany.

Although all starting spots are still open, Erwin lists these prospects who have been looking good to date: 103 — sophomore Fred Newton; 112 — senior Mike Egger; 120 — sophs Dennis Sweeney and Don Iacouvetta; 127—sophomore Tim Gibson; 133 — sophomore Frank Bennett; 138 — no leading prospect at present; 145 — senior Wally Carlisle; 154 — sophomore Hugh Barrett; 165 — seniors Craig Baumann and Chris Heigel; 175 — junior Kieran Astley and heavyweight — sophomore Fred Ballard (185) and junior Joe Casa (200).

MOHAWK

With only five returning lettermen sprinkled through his roster and three '67-'68 starters currently sidelined with grid injuries, Indian wrestling coach John Butler faces some definite problems this winter in assembling the school's second mat squad.

Heading Mohawk hopes are returning vets Bob Burnett (145, City Reserve champ last season), Cliff Miller (12?), Joe Anderson (heavyweight), Gary Miller (112) and Gerald Strother (175) — the latter pair runnerups at the City Reserve Meet last season.

John Ebron, Mohawk's other City Reserve champ last season (at 175), is one of the football casualties.

Things 'Looking Up' For District Matmen

The Central District, which opens its 1968-'69 wrestling season next week, has good cause to be optimistic about its chances at the State Wrestling Meet this winter.

A total of 66 "winning-record" grapplers return to District squads this season, including 21 who scored points in last season's District Meet.

Of those 21, 11 placed fourth or better and two — Franklin Heights' Jerry Branham and Hilliard's John Brewer — return this season as defending District champs in their respective weight classes.

Eastland Sponsors 'Wheelchair' Game

Eastland Vocational School will sponsor a "Wheelchair Basketball Game" Saturday, Dec. 7 (8 p.m.) at Whitehall-Yearling High School.

The game will feature the Chicago Sidewinders vs. the Wilmington Sternwheelers — both physically handicapped teams playing on the regulation size court in wheelchairs.

Sponsored by OWE (Occupational Work Experience) at Eastland, ticket proceeds ($1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12) will be used for educational activities and materials at the school.

Tickets are available from Eastland students and at the school (4465 S. Hamilton Rd., 836-5725).

Pvt. Gene D. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Mitchell, 840 Wagner St., is serving with the First Marine Aircraft Wing in Vietnam.

The wing has been awarded the Presidential Unit Citation for its combat achievements during the 22-month period ending September, 1967.

The air arm of the Third Marine Amphibious Force, the wing operates several hundred aircraft, including fighters, attack and reconnaissance ships, helicopters and transports.

THEY WILL SING OF YULE

The cheery sounds of the Yuletide season will be heard when 120 children of the fifth and sixth grades at Koebel Elementary perform at the Columbus PTA Council Meeting at Central High Thursday, Dec. 5, 1:30 p.m. Under the direction of Mrs. Amanda Corbell and Miss Marilyn Lindemuth, Christmas songs from around the world will be heard with interpretative dances included. The program will be narrated by Bruce Green, pictured in front. Others taking part include, from left: back row — Patricia Ann Riley, Tim Filichia, Jerry Slaughter and Paul Candill, and front — Debbie Humphrey, Linda Manley, Melanie Ann Starchet and Betty Shannon.

Recent winners of the Columbus Touch Football League's top awards for the 1968 season are pictured above receiving their due following the league's championship game. At left, North Heidelberg's Tim Pond is presented with his "Back of the Year" award by Vic Janowicz. In the center photo, Lockbourne Air Force Base Commander Col. J. W. Moore presents LAFB coach Sgt. Larry Znamenacek with the "Coach of the Year" plaque. At right, Bill Willis presents the "Lineman of the Year" trophy to Harley-Davidson's John Palmer.

Kitsmiller, East All Stars Win In 1968 Flag Football Finales

One-point victories were the narrow margins for Kitsmiller Motors (33-32 over Berwick Party House in championship game) and the East All-Stars (13-12 over West All-Stars) in the '68 grid finales for the Columbus Flag Football League last week.

Failure to convert after their first three touchdowns proved costly to Berwick in the title tilt.

THE BERWICK defenders shackled Kitsmiller's big punch — loop "MVP" Ken Ramsey — with a 9-of-27 passing performance but Ramsey made four of the completions ring up Motormen scores.

Thwarted somewhat overhead, Ramsey churned for 192 rushing yards in 21 carries and scored a TD.

Ramsey spread his six-point throws around — hitting Jay Sheets (24 yds.), Larry Gornall (42 yds.), Dave Rieker (40 yds.) and Keith Frazier (61 yds.).

RAMSEY (twice) and Gornall supplied the all-important extra points for Kitsmiller.

Tom Yinge was the workhorse for Berwick in the title game, gaining 105 yds. in 16 carries and adding 50 more yards on three pass receptions.

Clint Allen, Berwick's All-League back, rushed for 70 yds., caught two aerials for 60 yds. and returned a kickoff 70 yds.

DEFENSE was pretty much forgotten in the championship struggle — Kitsmiller amassing a total of 491 yds., Berwick close behind with 437.

The East All-Stars — sparked by Ken Ramsey's 65-yd. TD ramble and a five-yarder by Dean Eby — staved off a fourth-period rally by their West counterparts to emerge victorious.

Once again — the vital conversion (scored by Terry Robb) — proved to be the difference.

A HARD pass-rush by the East's Kaye Thompson, John Gilmore and Dave Adams was instrumental in the East victory, helping Paul Sells to pick off three enemy passes.

Ramsey paced the winners' offensive effort with 165 rushing yards and a 15-of-21 (for 210 yds.) day overhead. Robb was Ramsey's favorite receiver (seven times for 72 yds.).

For the West, Randy Walker (his 7-of-15 passes for 70 yds.), Ted Dicke (71 yds. rushing) and Larry Guglielmi (84 yds. rushing) set the offensive pace.

WALKER (one-yard squirt) and Dick McGaw (23-yd. interception return) accounted for the West scoring — all in the final period.

The "MVP" award went to the West's Randy Walker (chosen by coaches and game officials). Mr. Bill Lomis of the Southern Trophy Co. presented the award to Walker.

If that word "traditional" could be ignored in connection with many of this Saturday's final football games, it wouldn't make us feel quite like we were standing on the edge of that thin limb with the axe ready to fall.

However, traditional or otherwise, football is the game of the unexpected, and our perch on the old limb is becoming pretty familiar.

AND WHAT better example of the traditional game than the annual spectacle in Philadelphia, Army versus Navy.

On paper, the Midshipmen from Annapolis should be totally submerged by powerful West Point. Army is 6-3 on the season, Navy, 2-7. But Navy plans to show up for the ball game!

We'll live safely and go with the expected: Army should bomb the Navy by 22 points.

A SOUTHWEST Conference Thanksgiving Day tradition is Texas-Texas A and M. The Longhorns are ranked fourth in the nation and are tied with Arkansas for the lead in the conference — just ripe for upsetting.

Ignoring tradition, Texas will topple A and M by 16 points.

If it isn't a traditional game, it should be. Notre Dame and Southern California have met 39 times with the Irish having the edge in 25 games.

Notre Dame had trouble this year coming up with the big ones, so just possibly they're due. Very quietly, we're going with Notre Dame . . . Second-ranked Southern Cal will be upset by five points (Hmmm, think we'll move closed toward the tree!).

When Alabama meets Auburn — or Georgia meets Georgia Tech — or Oklahoma meets Oklahoma State, all intra-state niceties are completely cast aside.

Eleventh-ranked Auburn will spill 17th-rated Alabama by just five points. Fifth-ranked Georgia, even in this traditional game, should have no trouble with Georgia Tech . . . Georgia to win by 31.

OKLAHOMA, ranked seventh, walks right into "upsetter's haven" in Stillwater. They're favored by 21 over Oklahoma State, but "tradition" could be the Cowboys' 12th man on the field!

Another "dog - eat - dog, back-yard rivalry" matches Florida and 18th-ranked Miami. The 'Gators have had a disappointing season, and will have a tough one against the Hurricanes. Miami may add to 'Gator woes . . . they're favored by 14 points.

Ninth-ranked Houston is only a nine-point favorite over Florida State, a team that finally moved back into the top 20 . . . they're 16th. Vanderbilt is a 23-point underdog to sixth-ranked Tennessee.

AND IN the final game of the regular season on Dec. 7, third-ranked Penn State will beat Syracuse by 15 points.

Nicklaus, Palmer Join Dapper Dans Dec. 17

Two of pro golf's top names —Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer—will share the spotlight with 12 local sports immortals Tuesday, Dec. 17 at the Dapper Dan Club's second annual Central Ohio Sports Hall of Fame enshrinement program at the Sheraton.

Nicklaus will be honored as "Sportsman of the Year" ("sports figure who did the most to publicize the city of Columbus in 1968").

PALMER, WHO received a like award from Pittsburgh's Dapper Dan chapter several years ago, will present the award to his friend and links rival.

The '68 Central Ohio inductees will be: Mike Peppe (swimming), Ernie Godfrey and Howard "Hopalong" Cassady (football), Maury Rose (auto racing), Dr. Jimmy Hull, (basketball), Joe Stevens and Guy Kesler (track), Bill Bernlohr (baseball) Vic Thayer (bowling), Art Todd (golf), Carl Wirthwein (tennis) and Fritz Howell (sports reporting).

Dapper Dan qualifications are two: sportsman must have been resident of Columbus or Franklin County for at least 15 years and must now be inactive in category in which they are nominated.

IN HONOR of one of the founders of the local Dapper Dan Club, the "Jack Cannon Youth Humanitarian Award" will be given this year to four men who gave many years of unselfish service to promote sports among Central Ohio youth.

So honored will be Cap Hoover and Charles Kaiser and posthumously, Tobe Morrison and Monte Beaver.

The enshrinement program (informal and for-men-only) will begin with a cocktail hour (5:30 p.m.) followed by dinner at 6:30.

UNTIL DEC. 1, tickets are being offered to Dapper Dan members and their guests only (prices $7 and $10 respectively). After Dec. 1, some tickets will be made available to the public.

Checkers' Schedule

Fort Wayne (tomorrow), Dayton (Wednesday) and Fort Wayne (a week from tomorrow) invade the Coliseum rink for International Hockey League action against the Columbus Checkers.

JIM MURRAY

The NFL's 'Billy The Kid'

When Patrick Lewis Studstill walks into a room, your first instinct is to look down at his hips for the six-guns.

Or maybe, you think to yourself, he just got thrown off a bareback bronc or the back end of a freight train.

IF THIS isn't Billy the Kid, there wasn't one.

He has a little of the look of the Old West saddle-tramp about him.

MURRAY

There's a reckless air about him. Also restless. He's as restless as the West Texas wind.

HE LOOKS as if he's hurrying when he's just standing still.

You can imagine him riding into town and the marshal comes up and says, "When the sun hits that mountain, son, you be on the other side of the Pecos. We don't want no fights or killin' in Lonely Gap."

The body is whipcord leather. He looks coiled at all times. You figure him to be a guy who sleeps with his head on his saddle and his hand on his gun.

YOU KNOW if he got in a fight it would be a blurred — a blood-speck blur — and would be over quicker than a cockfight.

He's not big enough to play in the NFL but he's too tough not to.

He's as wild as a range pony.

HE DIDN'T get drafted in the NFL, he kicked the front door down.

His college coach warned him not to get married his senior year at Houston.

So, of course, he did.

COST him his scholarship and letter and pro draft.

He logged only 10 minutes of football his senior year. The pros don't draft guys who play less than one quarter their whole last year.

So Pat hitchhiked to the Lions' training camp in 1961.

THE LIONS are a kind of permissive team who even suit up authors.

They told him not to unpack, but Pat was wearing his wardrobe anyway.

What the Lions didn't know was that Pat used to beat the quarterhorses back to the barn back home, and was so shifty a mosquito couldn't bite him.

HE CAME from that little corner of Louisiana-Arkansas-Texas where so many of his type do — Eddie Meador, Lance Alworth, as well as Pat Studstill.

The Lions had the All-American glamour star, bonus boy and magazine idol, Hopalong Cassady, on the flank that year, and it took him a week to count up his signing money.

Two weeks after Studstill, who didn't even cost carfare, came into camp, Hopalong was third string.

THEY TRIED Stud at safetyman and, while he didn't embarrass anybody, it soon became apparent that Studstill without the ball was like a Lion with a muzzle — or a gambler throwing away aces.

Pat caught 67 passes for 1266 yards and five touchdowns in 1966 when he was an All-Pro flanker.

But what really gladdens a coach's table or organization is that Studstill is as good a punter as there is in the league.

A COACH hates to waste a whole seat on the bench on just a mere kicker.

But what makes Studstill even more useful is not the distance on his punts, it's the altitude.

The kicking team not only has time to get down under them, they have time for a rubber of bridge waiting for them to descend.

IF HE kicks them any higher, they'll have to put strings on them.

He has never had a punt blocked.

When the Rams shopped Bill Munson around the league the last couple of years, lots of teams were willing to cough up back-up quarterbacks, special unit players and draft choices.

BUT WHEN the Lions murmured "Studstill," coach George Allen said "Quick! Before they change their minds!"

Meanwhile, the Lions are keeping a lookout posted along the roads to training camp for another tough, wiry little guy with a rodeo belt buckle and his clothes in a bandana who looks, as if he just came in off a round-up—or shot up Laredo.

DEFENSIVE DRIVING: PART III

No Mere Mortal Can Control Wind, Rain And Snow But The Woman Behind The Wheel Can Cope -- And Live

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

Gas causes death.

Some people inhale it.

Some strike a match to it.

And 50,000 people will die this year when they step on it.

This was but one of the facts brought out to the 20 women who recently attended a two-hour class for four Wednesdays at the Hilltop YMCA to improve their chances of staying alive.

They were students enrolled in the Defensive Driving course presented by the Safety Council of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce with the YWCA co-sponsoring.

No one can be in full control of a car that is traveling more than 60 miles per hour.

And little is gained at higher speeds.

This was well illustrated in an experiment recently undertaken on a 1,000 mile course in Europe with more than half the distance over expressway-type routes.

One driver was told to make the best time he could, taking bends at maximum speed and passing whenever safe.

The second driver was told to take it easy, to avoid any risks and to move only as the flow of traffic permitted.

A thousand miles later the demon driver who had allowed himself to be passed only 13 times while passing 2,004 cars was only 31 minutes ahead of the relaxed driver who had passed only a third as many cars and had seen 142 cars overtake him.

In the meantime the fast driver had braked twice as many times as the slower driver and paid a penalty of 10 gallons of gas on the trip.

During the course it was repeatedly emphasized that although adverse driving conditions often exist, the real danger lies within the driver's failure to cope with the conditions with which he is faced.

One can't control a fog, but it is only idiocy to drive 60 miles an hour in it, guided only by overhead telephone wires—an explanation given by one motorist to the arresting officers.

One can't control the fact that 45 per cent of pedestrians killed are drunken, but one can give every pedestrian the right of way.

One can't always avoid being struck from behind—but one can put a higher value on his life than the Columbus resident who hit the windshield. The investigating officer was horrified to see the motorist had carefully seat-belted a case of whiskey in the passenger's seat beside him—but not himself.

Asking what they can do to stop highway slaughter in addition to developing better driving habits, the women were told, "One woman can't cure 100,000 accidents. Practice and preach what you have learned here. Share your knowledge with others."

Mrs. Richard Shaw, 1292 Gresham Rd., who expressed concern that some skepticism had been met when she attempted to share her newfound knowledge with a teenager echoed the feeling of every member of the class on graduation day.

"Wouldn't it be ideal if everyone took this course? I do not favor all kinds of restrictions, but if a course such as this were required of all licensed drivers . . . Knowing laws and the mechanics of driving isn't enough — courtesy and proper defenses are as vital."

Surveys show that persons who complete this course drive at least twice as safely as they did before.

This series of articles has hit only a few of the highlights.

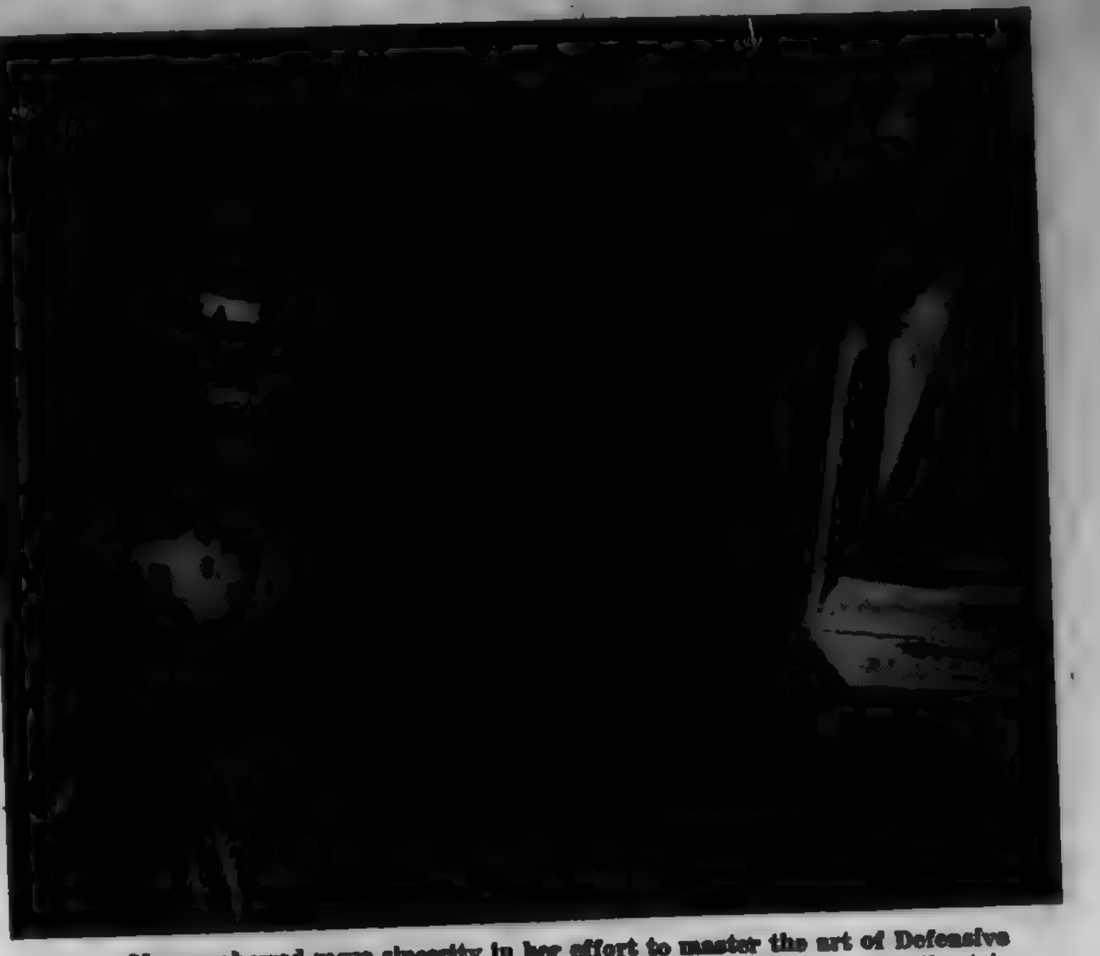
The whole course can be yours for an investment of eight hours time and $3 which provides the student workbooks and other teaching aids.

Stanley Wolfe, assistant manager of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce Safety Council hopes to set up dozens of courses for small groups.

Anyone interested in highway safety—and his own neck—can call the Safety Council at 224-1321.

Being men, the instructors decline to guarantee they can help every women with her parking problems — but so what?

There are few parking fatalities.



No one showed more sincerity in her effort to master the art of Defensive Driving than Miss Esther Burr of Delaware. For four weeks she made the trip to Columbus to attend the two-hour sessions. Here she is shown receiving her "diploma" from Stanley Wolfe of the Chamber of Commerce. She stated that she took the course not only to increase her driving efficiency but also to qualify for a discount in her automobile insurance premiums.

Central Civic Club Planning Annual Christmas Party

Christmas bells and Christmas belles are activated early in December for the Central Civic Club of Columbus, when members will meet for the annual Christmas party.

The scene is set for dinner in David's Buffet party room, Dec. 3 at 7 p.m., with special gift hostesses Mrs. Ray Bishop and Mrs. Marie Bainter assisting.

MAVERICK

By Richard L. Pough

WITH MUDDY SHOES

By noon on opening day of the small game season, 600 hunters had bagged 212 pheasants. Ten percent of these were native.

Another 40 bunnies were taken along with the birds.

THIS IS the count taken at the gate of Delaware's Hunting Preserve but it fairly well reflects the trend throughout the state.

The day started off nice and cool but soon developed into one of those gray, rainy November days that sends the hunter home to the hearth early.

The state of Ohio's use of the stock-and-shoot plan has many enemies.

THE IDEA is to pen-raise the pheasants, then place them in the fields the week before opening day.

Many say this gives the hunters a bird that will not fly when chased. Others decree this is too expensive when you remember that the hunter who downs two or more pen-raised birds has used up more than the $4.35 he paid for his permit.

Many farmers want the birds released on their land instead of public hunting lands.

THE PROBLEM there is that only select hunters are allowed on private lands and a small percent of game is harvested.

By the time the next season rolls around, the pheasant has either been killed by farm cats, poisoned by weed and bug killers or has left to find better cover.

Ninety percent of Ohio's hunting is still done on private lands while many public hunting areas stocked with game go begging on all but opening day and the first Saturday.

MANY HUNTERS who have hung up their shotgun in disgust are really too tired to look for new places to hunt.

While City of Columbus officials talk big plans about the future use of the Scioto River as a downtown recreational area, these same officials dump literally thousands of tons of calcium chloride (salt) in the river each winter.

Admittedly, the City of Columbus will use between eight and ten thousand tons of salt on city streets while the Columbus Transit Company will add about 700 tons each winter.

WHEN THE snow stops and the crews clear the streets, they haul the snow/salt combination to a specially prepared place on Civic Center Drive and dump it directly into the river.

Salt in this intensity will kill fish and all other forms of aquatic life.

Until all public employes — no matter what their title — understand the importance of clean waters, we will live in a world of our own debris.

The Firestone-Venezuelan Invitational bowling tournament (featuring top stars from the United States and Venezuela) is set for Dec. 10-16 in the South American country.

The field will consist of 10 PBA members from the United States and six top Venezuelan bowling stars. They will compete two days in Caracas (Dec. 10-11), two days in Valencia (Dec. 12-13) and then return to Caracas for the final two days of competition (Dec. 15-16).

WINNER of the event will be eligible for the $100,000 Firestone-PBA Tournament of Champions at Riviera Lanes in Akron (Apr. 1-5).

Leading the American contingent will be Harry Smith, winner of the 1965 Venezuelan Open, and Jim Stefanich, top money winner on the PBA tour this year and 1967 Firestone Tournament of Champions titlist.

Pro-am entries for the Jan. 16 Ohio stop (Hall of Fame Lanes, Canton) by the Professional Woman Bowlers Association are being sold locally, but could require sweepers depending on the amount of response.

NAT FAST is handling entries ($40) which include a new $30 ball and a chance to bowl a three-game series with one of the nation's top women.

The $4,000 pro-am division, open to both men and women, will be based on 70 per cent of 200 average.

If a sweeper is necessary, it will be held at Piketon Lanes.

HAROLD (Hop) Hagemann has taken over presidency of the Columbus Men's Traveling League, now in its fourth year of operation.

Sam Morgan is serving as vice president and Don Barry Jr., as secretary-treasurer.

Two new lanes (Swan and Olentangy) have been added to Northern Lights, Aero, Reynoldsburg, Berwick, Piketon and Amos.

CENTER SERVES AS MODEL FOR OTHER CITIES

Open Housing Not A 'Dirty Word' In Denver

"We must decide whether or not to pass on to posterity the over-increasing problems in human relations—or to be the answer to these problems."

(A real estate official)

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles on open housing. This week: a new, working approach is examined).

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

[illegible] 1966 the city of Denver, Colo., has had a housing center for fighting segregation which has served as a model for the nation.

The center won for its promoters a standing ovation at a presentation in New York City before the National Committee against Discrimination in Housing. Center officials also have met with the staff of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and with officials from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

When a director assumed office at the center there were three paid employes, a budget of about $20,000 and a workload of 35 registrant families per month.

AT THE BEGINNING of this year, there were 23 employes, a budget approaching $400,000 and a workload of 300 families per month.

During a visit to Columbus in May, the executive director of the center explained how his agency had successfully found homes for minority groups in 85 per cent of the cases handled — an astounding figure when one considers the patterns of integrated housing in cities such as Columbus.

Explaining that open housing rests on enforcement of laws, director Robinson Lapp said the center was one new approach to "breaking up the myths surrounding open housing."

The same energies which led Colorado citizens to pass a Fair Housing Act in 1965 led to the formation of the center. Earlier in 1963, religious leaders in Denver met with the mayor of that city to discuss the "immorality of discrimination."

In the fall of 1965, the center began as a private, non-profit and totally volunteer organization. Its purpose was simple: to end discrimination in housing. Later that year, a state fair housing law was amended, making it one of the strongest in the country.

IN THE EARLY days, the center was run on donations from private citizens and religious groups. Then in 1967, the mayor and city council in Denver collaborated to give the center $20,000 for operating expenses. In 1968, the center received a research grant from the state, a service grant of $18,000 from the city and county, a $5,000 service grant from the Denver school board and a demonstration grant of $172,460 from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The initial accomplishments were many. Out of 105 families seeking to find housing in integrated areas, 85 were successfully located in new homes. The large majority of these cases involved middle-income, Negro families. Center volunteers also appeared before 80 groups to present fair housing data.

What The Center Does

The guiding philosophy behind the center is that only through absolute freedom of choice can segregation in housing be eradicated.

Center officials, however, were convinced that government and laws could not by themselves end segregation. They wanted to offer a coordinating agency which would provide a needed service to those seeking integrated housing.

Two striking factors stand out to explain why the center has progressed.

First, the center has enlisted the aid of all segments of the Denver community. Its governing board consists of representatives from civic, business, education, real estate and human relations groups in Denver. Today some 30 brokers are members of the governing board.

Secondly, the center cooperates with city, area and federal agencies. Numbered in this group are: The Federal Housing Authority, Urban Renewal Division, Neighborhood Development Office, Model Cities, HUD and the department of Health, Education and Welfare.

• • •

When a family comes to the center and wants to move, trained counselors present various options. The options revolve around two goals — desegregation and moving from substandard to standard quality housing.

Once options have been uncovered, a specialist encourages the client to make the final choice for himself. Usually the client is taken around to see alternative housing situations himself.

NOT ALL THE registrants move. Some have problems with landlords, creditors or neighbors. But a housing specialist helps the client to analyze the problem and figure out solutions.

In addition to offering a list of rental facilities available, the center maintains five neighborhood action councils dispersed in Denver's five poverty target areas.

In the area of housing development, the center has spawned a metropolitan housing corporation, which utilizes the concept of rehabilitation.

Metro Denver Fair Housing Center, Inc., has moved from dream to reality during its early years. The funding of the center in 1967 gave the dream muscle.

Has the new approach to housing problems worked?

BARE STATISTICS say yes. By the summer of 1967, the center was handling a minimum of 75 registrant families per month, with successful locations occurring in 85 per cent of the cases. Today it handles 300 cases per month.

But the progress made in terms of restoring human dignity may be the center's greatest accomplishment.

These two typical cases stand as symbols of this accomplishment.

- A separated mother with eight children learned of the center at a Neighborhood Health Center. She had lived in Denver five months and needed assistance in finding a place to live within her means.

The center staff worked with her and talked to a landlord to quell any misgivings he had about renting to a large family.

She is now settled in a home of her own choice.

- A library employe accompanied by a center volunteer housing aide was refused to be shown an apartment.

Later, the center staff together with the Civil Rights Commission met with a landlord who was willing to rent to her.

She is now a welcome tenant in an apartment house.

OPEN HOUSING FEUD

Realty Firm Rep, Tenants May Meet

A representative of Miller Properties, Inc., has intimated to one of two families whose leases were not renewed at a North Side apartment complex that the management would be willing to meet with them this week.

Lewis L. Jackson, Jr. and David Barker last week charged that Miller Properties had refused to renew their leases because of their activities on behalf of open housing.

An attorney for the rental firm, Robert Albright, claimed the fact that the leases had not been renewed were due to the families' involvement in open housing. He said the decision to make public management's reasons rested with the two families.

At a Community Relations Commission meeting Friday, members suggested that the two tenants take their complaint to the Ohio Civil Rights Commission.

Jackson said such action would be taken.

The community relations unit also expressed serious concern with evidences of discrimination that "we saw again and again in the greater Columbus area," a member of the commission reported "We thought that this practice was wrong and cannot say too strongly the seriousness of this situation."

Reportedly, Miller Properties received some complaints from neighbors about what one source termed "irregular activities." The spokesman declined to spell out what "irregular activities" were involved.

But Jackson claimed the complaints from neighbors were not received until after he had appeared on a Columbus television station making his situation known. "The allegations are untrue," he added.

"He said if the management wants to make these charges public, I would be glad to sue for libel."

At the community relations commission meeting, Albright said the leases would not be renewed under any circumstances. Albright also said he was a director of the realty firm.

Farm Programs To Be Aired

Expanded bargaining and marketing programs, massive land retirement and greater promotion of international trade will be topics for the American Farm Bureau Federation Policy Development Committee which will meet Dec. 3.

Robert Sumner, Ohio Farm Bureau president, will attend the Kansas City meeting to submit proposals on these topics.

More than 100 Ohioans are planning to attend the meeting.

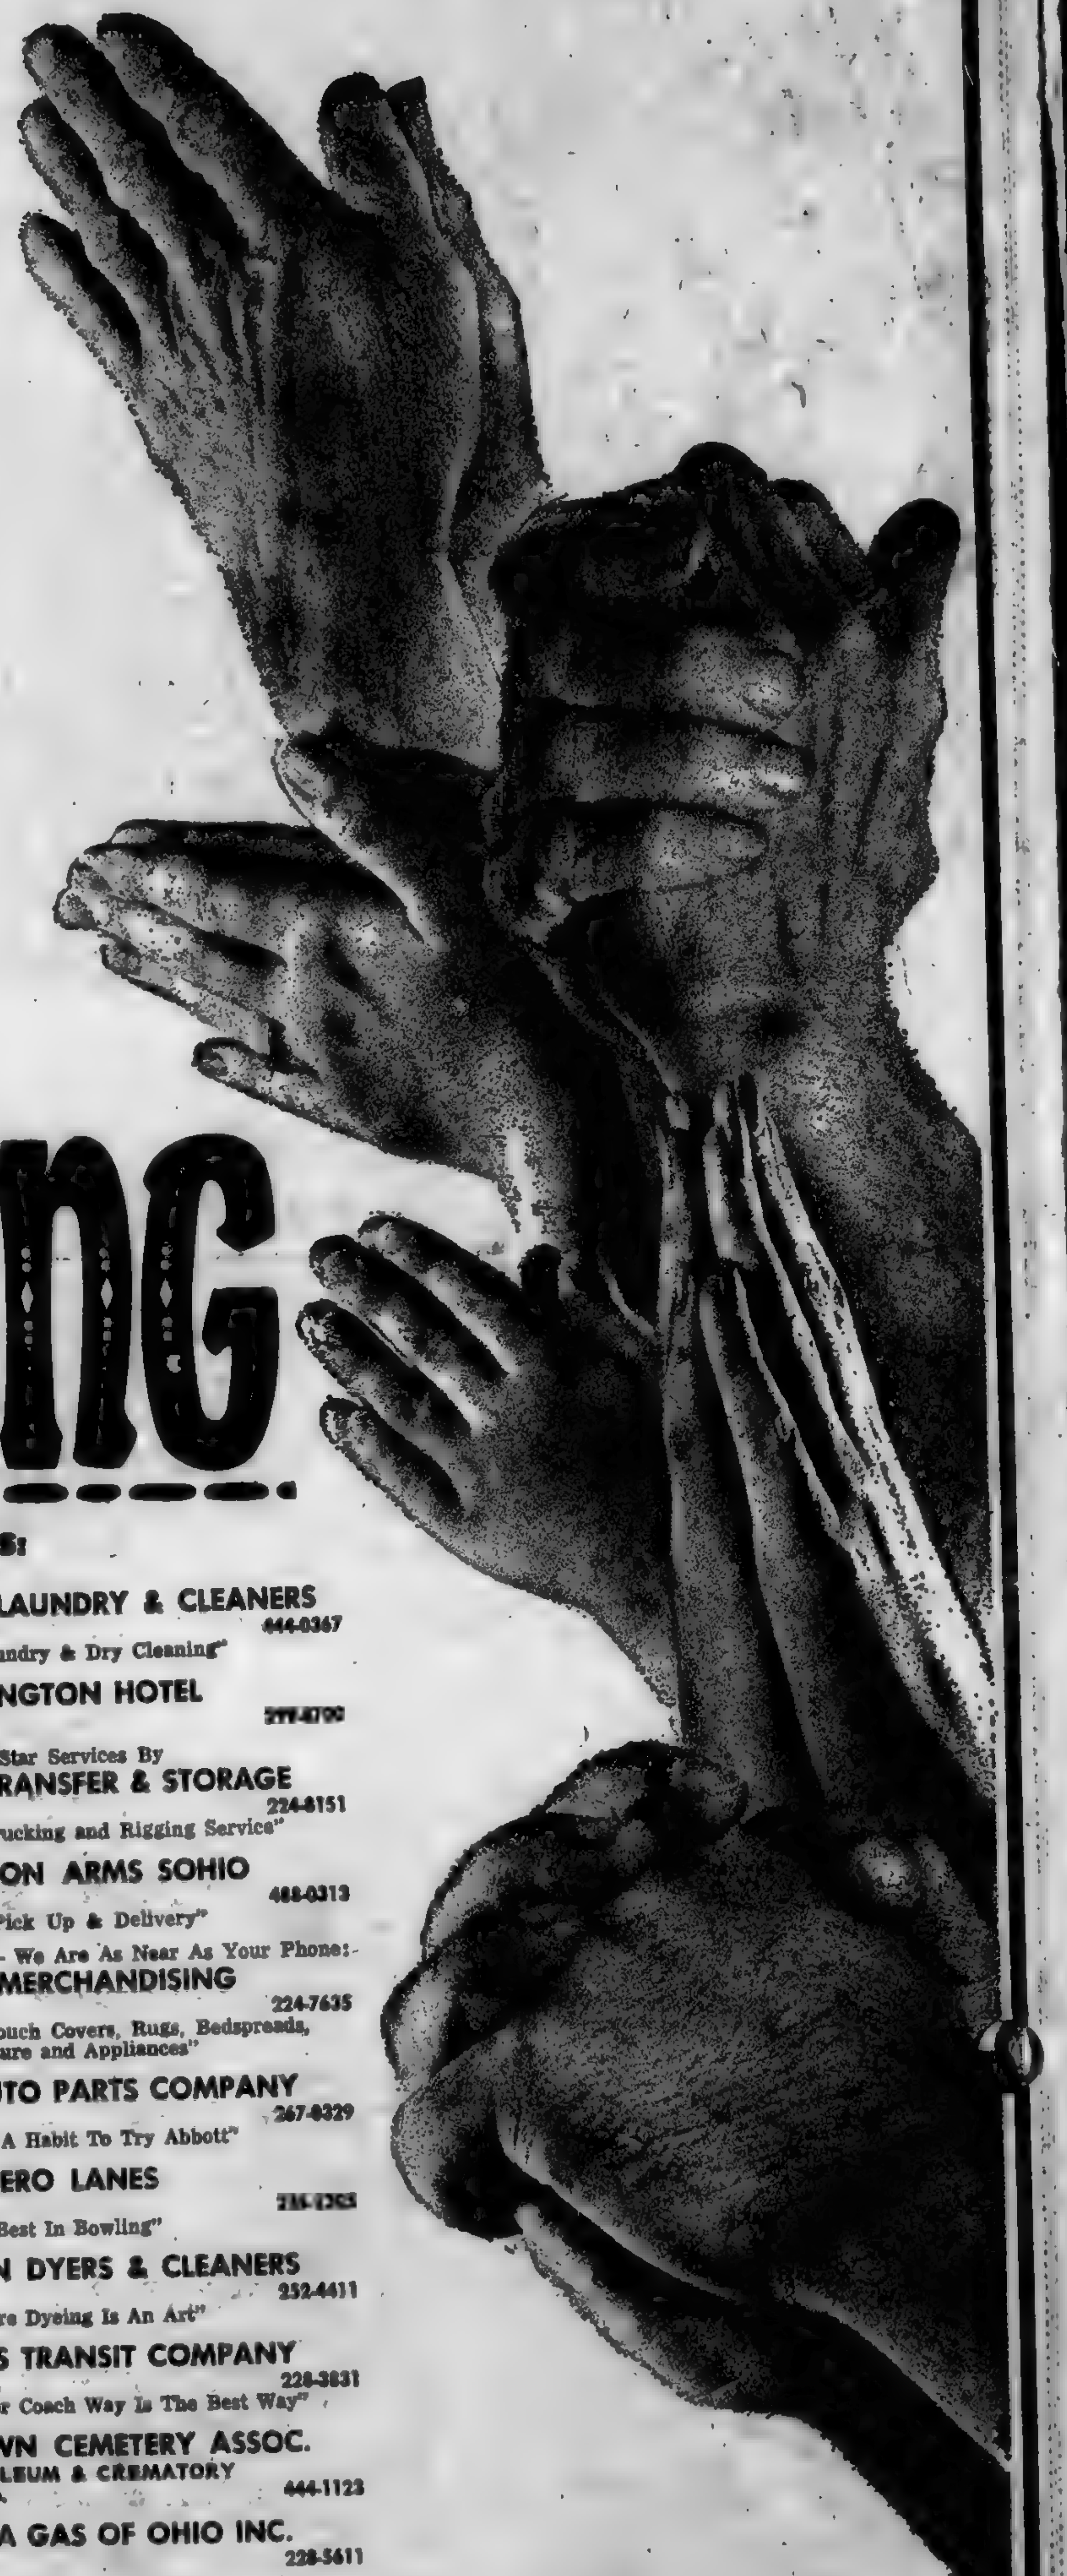
GIVE THANKS



This Thanksgiving Day let us remember, as did our Pilgrim fathers before us, to give thanks for the prosperity we enjoyed in the past year. We who share in the blessings of a good life should lift our voices in prayerful thanks for the abundance of our festive board, spiritual freedom and boundless opportunities. We have watched with pride as our friends and family blossomed . . . our community prospered in this land we can proudly call our own. Now, when we pause to take stock of our joys . . . let us not forget our is a hard-won heritage, one we have worked for, fought for. Let us pledge to reaffirm our faith in this heritage and determine to preserve and cherish it . . .

. . . this is the time for

THANKSGIVING

Lazarus Parade Features Five Miles Of Make-Believe

When the band strikes the march for the 1968 Santa Parade, 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec 1, a fairy tale fantasy will unwind from West North Broadway to North High to Rich and South High Streets, encompassing five miles of make-believe.

The '68 Santa parade lineup is all new, bigger, better and more elaborate than ever before. Each of the 10 floats will have its own theme music and several will be animated.

Forty-nine Lazarus associates will serve as float characters and 70 associates as marching clowns. Ten Columbus area bands, with an estimated 700 members, will comprise the balance of parade personnel.

The theme of this year's parade is drawn directly from fantasyland. The most beloved characters of prose and poetry, plus celebrated cartoon characters from the drawing board of Walt Disney will precede Santa's big sleighliner.

Mickey Mouse, that romping, rollicking, merry little figure, celebrating his 40th anniversary this year, will head the parade lineup. Mickey's Birthday Float, complete with 40-candle power birthday cake, Mickey himself (the same Mickey who presides at Disneyland), and eight of Mickey's friends, all in authentic Disney costumes, will share the float. You'll find The Three Little Pigs, Goofy, and the Big Bad Wolf, on board. Baloo the Bear and King Lou'e of Jungle Book fame, mere youngsters of the Disney stable, will be on hand to wish Mickey many more.

That famed feuding duo, The Gingham Dog and The Calico Cat, will peacefully coexist en route on their own float. Six Santa Belles will accompany them to insure domestic tranquility.

The Wizard of Oz float will feature Dorothy, Tin Man, the Cowardly Lion, Straw Man, and the Wicked Witch of the West. Also from fantasyland, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs: Happy, Grumpy, Sleepy, Dopey, Sneezy, Bashful and Doc, will be on hand to delight youngsters. The dwarfs also appear in authentic Disneyland costumes.

Our favorite governess, Mary Poppins, along with her two young charges and a chimney sweep will be featured on a float, as will a dazzling Cinderella in a golden coach and two Prince Charmings. Regardless of which side of High Street one views the parade from, they will be able to see Cinderella and her Prince.

Lewis Carrol's Alice in Wonderland will occupy a float with the Mad Hatter, the March Hare, The Queen of Hearts and two Playing Card Knights.

Little Boy Blue and Pinocchio, the Peck's bad boys of fairy tale land, will each have their own float.

Santa's big throne and eight reindeer will be on the 10th and final float of the parade. It, too, is of new design, Santa, however, in concept, if not reality, remains the same jolly, bewhiskered gent that has been delighting Central Ohio youngsters for the past 25 years that Lazarus has staged the Santa Parade.

Route of the parade is: corner of West North Broadway and High Street; south on High to Rich Street; west on Rich to Front Street; north on Front to parking lot at Town and Front Streets.

Santa will stop to greet children at the following times and places:

1:42 p.m.—Olentangy Village Bowling Lane (three minutes).

2:27 p.m.—OSU Ohio Union (five minutes).

2:54 p.m. — Fourth Avenue (three minutes).

3:50 p.m. — Town and Front Parking Lot (five minutes).

Gideon, Pinocchio and Foul Fellow will join other authentic Walt Disney characters in the 25th Lazarus Santa Parade down High Street on Sunday.

Imes Offers Fla. Property

A special Spectator Supplement in this week's edition portrays a full-color story of the development of Florida's Marco Island, located on the Gulf Coast of the state, some 104 miles west of Miami.

Harry Imes, head of Imes Realty, 3540 W. Sullivant Ave., is one of only 95 franchised dealers of Marco Island Real Estate throughout the world.

Imes, a life-long resident of the Hilltop, is married and has four sons, two of whom, Ron and Bob, are working with him at the local agency. His wife, Catherine, also helps keep the local offices moving efficiently.

The island, complete with a golf course, yacht club and marine facilities, was developed by the Mackle Brothers Deltona Corporation, and Imes has the only franchise in the Central Ohio area. Other franchises are located all over the world, including Europe, Latin America, Hawaii and the continental United States.

Marco Island is the northern-most island of the famous Ten Thousand Island of Collier County, steeped in heritage and famous tourist attractions.

The Mackle Brothers have two other areas under development in Florida, one at Deltona, located midway between Orlando and Daytona Beach, and the other at Spring Hill 45 miles north of Tampa and eight miles inland from the Gulf of Mexico.

The Spectator Supplement is part of a nation-wide advertising project costing nearly half a million dollars. The Mackle brothers, one of Florida's leading builders, developed such areas as Key Biscayne, Westwood Lakes and Tamiana Gardens in the Miami area.

Units available include six rental apartment buildings with a total of 78 units with some 20 units under construction and 15 different model homes, with either inland or waterfront lots.

Imes belongs to many civic organizations and fraternal clubs in Columbus. He has served as chairman of Multiple Listing Service of the Columbus Board of Realtors, is past president of the West Area Realty Association, Trustee of the Columbus Board of Realtors and several other committee and community projects.

Imes' own apartment on Marco Island will be completed in December, when he plans to begin "mixing business with pleasure."

A HAPPY THANKSGIVING to You and Yours

On This Day We Raise Our Voices In Thanks

As songs of Thanksgiving ring out across the land, let us join together in grateful thanks for the many joys which have been bestowed upon us . . . our dear family and friends, our ever blossoming community, our strong bountiful country from which a heritage of courage and development has brought us this day.

To Be Thankful

It used to be that a picture like this could only mean harvest time—big orange pumpkins, shiny red apples, colorful stalks of Indian corn. And, of course, a turkey in the pantry.

But what about today? You can buy apples almost any time. Pumpkins are available in a can twelve months of the year. And you can buy a frozen turkey as easily in July as in November.

We Americans take for granted what was a real treat in our parent's time. But in the midst of this material plenty, there is danger of spiritual famine. To keep the proper perspective, to appreciate the gifts of life to the fullest we need the Church and the story it has to tell us.

Maybe you can't be a pioneer—a Pilgrim. But you can follow your forefathers' example at Plymouth that first November. You can utter genuine thanks in the church of your choice.

SUBURBAN

When You Buy At Chevington Woods You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of. Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with having natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Whatever on earth you're looking for — you'll find it at CHEVINGTON WOODS.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

SUBURBAN

When You Buy At Chevington Woods You Buy It All!

Welcome to CHEVINGTON WOODS . . . a brand new community loaded with all the extras you've ever dreamed of. Located just over the Fairfield County Line, you'll have clean air and rural living at its very best — yet you're only 15 safe minutes from downtown Columbus . . . via I-70.

In CHEVINGTON WOODS, you'll enjoy country club living . . . from gas coach lights at each driveway . . . to a large swimming pool planned for the use of the community. A private recreation area — with acres of mature beech trees — will be just for the kids and two beautiful golf courses are just minutes away for Mom and Dad.

Although the Fairfield County real estate tax rate is unbelievably low . . . your children will have all the advantages of an excellent Pickerington school system. You'll also appreciate the low utility rates along with having natural gas and Columbus telephone service.

Whatever on earth you're looking for — you'll find it at CHEVINGTON WOODS.

Choice residential lots are still available at a price you can afford.

City Will Explain New Trash Ordinance

A door-to-door campaign to explain procedures involved in a new ordinance on city trash pick-ups will be conducted before the ruling goes into effect Dec. 16.

The City Sanitation Division switchboards were flooded with calls from residents Tuesday morning, after City Council Monday enacted legislation requiring trash for collection by the city be placed near the curb or alley line.

A spokesman at the sanitation division said many of the early calls—which numbered about 40—were the result of misunderstandings. He said the door-to-door campaign will attempt to dispel these misunderstandings.

The new ordinance provides penalties of up to $200 in fines or up to 10 days in jail, or both, for failure to comply. It also requires empty receptacles to be returned to normal storage areas within 24 hours after collection is made.

Special consideration will be given, however, to those residents who are physically unable to comply.

The new ordinance is expected to save the city about $175,000 a year. The action was seen as part of council's program to tighten up on the 1969 budget.

The new law also does not permit city employes to enter within a fence or an enclosure to pick up the trash.

WORSHIP KNOWS NO CALENDAR

Some select Sunday as a day of worship. Others prefer Friday or Saturday. But the solace of worship knows no boundaries—temporal or spatial.

Some find their God in church. Others see him in a spring sunrise, or in a fresh-mown meadow at dusk. Children oft find peace in an evening prayer.

Each seeks peace in his own way. All place their trust in a Supreme Being and worship as conscience dictates.

Why not join them? You, too, can find solace and guidance in prayer.

Youth Institutions 'Unfairly Blamed'

Prisons and correctional institutions for youthful offenders are often unfairly blamed when former inmates have problems, a noted Ohio State criminologist has declared.

To overcome this misunderstanding, Dr. Walter C. Reckless of OSU's sociology department has devised a questionnaire aimed at getting a better measure of the institution's effect on the inmate at the time of discharge.

Initial results of the survey of 443 boys over 15 years old who were released from the Training Institution of Central Ohio were not conclusive, Reckless said, but they did indicate a high percentage of parolees were expected to "make a pretty good adjustment."

"While a failure a year or more after release is often used as a rod to measure the results of institutional stay," he commented, "clearly this measurement is fraught with all kinds of variables."

He pointed out, for example, that a parolee who is returned to the institution is more dependent on the decision-making procedure of the parole officer than on anything else.

"Failure to abide by the rules, according to the aftercare worker's judgments, as well as involvement in new acts of delinquency or crime, may have little connection with the residual of impact of the institution on the person."

In general, during the survey Reckless found the evaluation by the staff members to be more optimistic than those by the boys themselves.

ZTA Alumnae Plan Santa's Secrets

Santa's Secrets will be displayed by members of the Zeta Tau Alpha Alumnae Association of Columbus and Franklin County at the organization's monthly meeting Dec. 4 at the Ohio State University Chapter House, 84 E. 15th Ave. at 8 p.m.

All members of the local chapter and alumnae of the fraternity are invited to attend. Members will display samples of homemade gifts and decorations for the holiday season and [illegible] sales of the holiday season candle display will be distributed.

This will be the final meeting of the year in preparation for formal rushing by the university chapter which begins Jan. 10. The next regular meeting will be scheduled in February.

Meeting programs, area alumnae rosters and further information may be obtained by contacting the program chairman, Suzanne Foster at 291-5132. Mrs. Lance Croxall, 1215 Gertrude Dr., Columbus, is president and Miss Foster is vice president.

Grape Boycott Aimed At Area Stores

Demonstrations supporting migrant farm workers were held this weekend under the auspices of the United Farm Workers Boycott Committee of Columbus.

Picket lines were scheduled at area stores carrying a California table grape product — which exponents claim is one reason behind "exploitation of workers."

Pickets were scheduled to appear at all A and P area stores Saturday. The stores allegedly sell the grape product.

"The average American family spends $1,500 a year on food," boycott chairman Elena Macias declared, "but the average farm worker family earns $1,378 a year."

The Ohio State University Student Assembly, meanwhile, has voted support to the grape boycott inspired by migrant California workers.

'Secret Ceremony' Makes Viewer Cry

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

After driving around at least three times in the State House parking garage, I found a space for my traveling convenience and trotted over to the RKO Palace to view the controversial film, "Secret Ceremony," which is also on view at Cinema East.

Having caught my breath and the heart had settled down, I became engrossed in what must be the most emotional film to come our way . . . there just isn't one average person to be found.

The film revolves around a motherless young woman, Mia Farrow, and a childless mother, Elizabeth Taylor. Both grieve their losses.

The two meet, become dependent upon each other's emotional state, and finally destroy each other. Only a sick human animal is capable of this type of mental substitution.

Sound pretty basic? Well it is, until a sick step-father is added to this already sickly couple. Robert Mitchum is cast in this role. As a stepfather, he has never thwarted his stepdaughter's advances. Miss Farrow is, to say the least, incensed with sex. Miss Taylor as the substitute mother is a foul-mouthed prostitute.

Add to this two conniving aunts, set in stealing the fortunes of the dead mother and you have "Secret Ceremony."

I suspect the title comes from the climactic ending which will only be secret if the viewer has not heeded the signs.

The film has been recommended for mature audiences. I will also add it is not for those of you who go to the movies just to be lightly entertained. This is drama, sickness and pity.

I enjoyed the film, became involved and cried. I have come to the conclusion though, that Elizabeth Taylor, Mia Farrow and Robert Michum are victims of typecasting. I distinctly felt I'd seen them some place before. But what they do is well done.

The film will haunt the viewer. Goodness knows there are enough reasons. Sickness, mental or emotional, sex, disclosed or undisclosed, blunt language and the unusual ending are enough to keep anyone awake.

Series Begins Friday

ABC has a special tomorrow evening, Friday, Nov. 29, at 10 p.m. over Channel 6 well worth your attention.

Far from an ordinary offering, this special, entitled "The Scientist," is the first of a three part series, "Man And His Universe."

"The Scientist" is just that, a camera's eye view of several scientists known as the "Harvard Group." One of the scientists is Dr. James D. Watson, a Nobel Prize winner, who, at the age of 23, co-discovered the master substance of heredity called DNA.

Another scientist under the scrutiny of the camera is Dr. Walter Gilbert, co-director of the biological laboratory at Harvard University.

They and their colleagues are working on a project that could affect every man and woman in the world. They are studying the molecule that controls hereditary characteristics.

The camera will take a journey through their worlds and lives. Their tensions, rivalries, successes, discussions and failures are in full view.

Along with this, the camera goes to their homes, showing the personal life a scientist has.

Out of this special comes enlightment. Scientists aren't aloof or unfeeling, but share in the same feelings we all do.

The specal is a vivid view of people, who happen to be scientists. Fascinating viewing. Maybe this the beginning of a new TV era. The next two programs will be "Cosmopolis" and "The View From Space."

This series is being sponsored by North American Rockwell which is involved in scientific research, Apollo Command and Service Modules as well as many other technical and manufacturing fields.

Teays Valley Board Plans Middle School

Representatives of three architectural firms were interviewed this week by the Teays Valley Board of Education in anticipation of a 1970 building program.

Benis Lutz, superintendent, explained the crowding is especially critical within the three elementary schools.

THE OVERALL pupil-teacher ratio is now 30.6 to one, with seventh grade enrollment as high as 41 and several third and fourth grade classrooms housing 37 or more students.

Although the board has made no commitments, Lutz believes it will eventually be concluded that a "middle school", constructed on the 60-acre Teays Valley site is the logical solution.

Such a school would be designed to house sixth, seventh and eighth grade students, free classroom area now being used for these grade levels and make it possible to keep all classes under 30 pupils.

THE PROBLEM in the high school is currently not so much one of space but of shortage of staff.

Lutz pointed out that in 1962 (when he was first associated with the district) 100 certificated personnel were employed to serve 2,000 students.

Today, the faculty still totals 100, while enrollment has risen to 2,500.

AT THE HIGH school where, during this period, enrollment has gone from 537 to 675, this has resulted in teachers being assigned exceptionally heavy schedules.

This, in turn, has made it necessary to establish large study halls in the auditorium with only one teacher supervising.

Lutz states the out-sized study halls have proved unsatisfactory.

ADDITIONAL STAFF, particularly demanded in English, math, science and social studies, can make it possible to return students to normal-sized study halls.

The first of the dual problems of space and money can be met (at least for the immediate future) by transferring a few smaller classes to the cafeteria.

However, the question of funds to back up additional payroll is something else.

LUTZ EXPLAINED that the additional operating expense okayed by voters last winter was adequate only to meet the standards imposed by the Senate Bill 350, which went into effect last year.

The problem is further aggravated by the fact Teays Valley is a non-additional state aid district. and receives only 22 to 24 per cent of its support from other than local sources. (This status evolves from the relatively high tax duplicate behind each student).

A tentative time schedule for the proposed middle-school involves placing a bond issue on the November ballot 11 months from now.

Contingent upon voter approval, this would permit construction to begin in the spring of 1970.

..AMONG THE architects interviewed were Wells and Reddig of Lima, successors to McLaughlin and Kyle which designed the Teays Valley High School.

State Losing Millions In Welfare Funds

By JOHN MORGAN
and SYLVIA BROOKS
Spectator Staff Writers

The State of Ohio may lose $7-8 million a year from the federal government's matching funds for the Aid to Dependent Children program.

This will, over the long run, result in a drastic cut in individual grants for 176,816 children receiving aid from the program.

Welfare officials do not see any way the state can make up the loss of the matching funds without cutting grants.

Robert Canary, assistant director of the State Welfare Department, said: "We would have to have more money just to stand still. I would hope that we wouldn't have a situation where the subsistence level would just keep going down."

APPROXIMATELY $500,000 will be lost the first month of the new provision - which is part of the Social Security Amendments of 1967 which go into effect July 1, 1969.

The new amendment itself —the so-called "freeze provision" — is complicated. Basically, no federal matching funds will be given for disproportionate additions to the caseload since January, 1968. If present trends continue, the state will have added 30,000 new people to the ADC caseload by July 1, 1969.

Canary questioned the fundamental theory of the freeze provision.

"The intent of Congress was to get a new employment program, the WIN program, going. However, the effect of the employment program

No club to let Santa Claus catch Canal Winchester with its lights down, local Lions turned out en masse Saturday morning to assure that festive look for the village. The tailgate foreman is Art Ferber, Canal Winchester Lion president.

Ashville Sewer Rate Reduction Falls Through

Any hope for an immediate reduction of sewer rates for Ashville customers was dashed last week.

The decision to keep the rates at 50 per cent of water bills came at a special meeting with Dick Peters of the consulting engineering firm, Burgess and Niples.

THE TREATMENT plant improvement now under way and the contemplated trunk line to the north, coupled with rising labor costs, are deemed to have made a reduction too risky at this time.

However, Peters believes that by next summer it will be well worthwhile to take another look at the situation with the hope that rates can be dropped to, perhaps, 40 per cent of the customer's water bill.

With Mayor Harold Hartley out-of-town Monday, details were not available, but council believes three persons, including two women have talked with him concerning their being considered for appointment to fill the vacancy that will occur next spring when Mrs. Ann Leatherwood

HAMILTON BOARD WARNS

Failure Of Levy Will Close Doors

If the 13-mill operating levy fails to pass Tuesday, Hamilton Local Schools will close down Dec. 20 when Christmas vacation begins and not reopen until Jan. 20.

This was determined Monday night when the Board of Education voted down Supt. John Savel's recommendation that $65,000 be borrowed Jan. 10 to allow the schools to remain open through the 1968-69 year.

(DON BEGGROW and Tim Gibbs voted to keep the schools open but were outvoted by Mrs. Frances Shipley, Bill Lanes and Joe Mace)

Savel's recommendation was incorporated in a review of the financial picture of the district requested last week by the board.

The attitude of the majority is apparently that if the voters will not support the schools through passage of the levy, this failure dictates that public money shall not be spent for interest.

Savel's proposal to keep the doors open was contingent upon the aforementioned loan, a $125,000 advance on taxes in February and a premature payment from the U. S. Office of Education which has already been assured.

IN HIS LETTER which outlined the procedures that can cut $211,000 from the 1969 budget, he grouped cutbacks that must be initiated Jan. 1 and those that will not be felt until school opens in September.

The first group involves elimination of all adult classes, summer school and support of summer recreation; elimination of purchase or replacement of all educational, custodial and maintenance equipment and new textbook adoptions with students charged for all supplies issued by the school and curtailment of all except school sponsored activities.

Organizations using the cafeteria, gym or auditorium would be charged a flat $25 plus $3.50 per hour with an additional $5 fee set per additional classrooms. Outside organizations requesting use of school buildings would be subject to a $5 per hour fee.

DESCRIBING as "drastic" the cutbacks that must go into effect in September, Savel stated that he "is not proud or happy" about the recommendations he believes necessary.

He stated 14 teacher positions will have to be eliminated in addition to the 10 already cut this year; and that 21 non-certificated positions be vacated.

Warning that the Middle School can not be staffed and equipped properly without additional income, Savel stated that its curriculum and that

Open Letter On Page Two

On page 2 of this week's Spectator appears an open letter written over the signature of the Steering Committee for the Hamilton School District.

It reviews the birth of the committee, its research and its conclusions.

The letter is printed in its entirety in the belief that it should be of value to any voter who is interested in education within the township.

Officials Ask Big Turnout

Thirty days ago, residents of Madison, Canal Winchester and Hamilton Local School Districts trooped to the polls and, as if with concerted action, voted down the operating levies their elected school boards had informed them were vital for the schools.

Now on the eve of the special elections, each of the districts have scheduled Tuesday, school officials are counting on a changed verdict.

SOME ADMINISTRATORS are more optimistic than others on the outcome and reasonably so, with the November margin of defeat varying considerably.

But all three superintendents—Phil Williams of Madison, Carl Miller of Canal Winchester and John Savel of Hamilton—agree on one matter.

That involves the urgent need for every registered voter in the district to exercise his right to have a say in the matter.

NO ONE anticipates that the voter volume will be as great as that generated by a general election.

However, with every child of the community effected by the outcome of the election, it is believed essential that the decision tallied is one made by a true majority of the residents—and not just by those who routinely vote for or against every school issue that comes along, without consideration of it on its individual merits.

Through public meetings, coffee klatches, brochures and the news media, all three districts have attempted to deal out the facts to the public.

NOW THEY SEEK only for the public to evaluate their hands, and play their cards—by voting.

The above story concerning the Hamilton Local School precludes the need for further review of the situation in that district.

A brief resume of the other two districts follows.

IN MADISON an additional 8.5 mills in operating levy is sought.

The need is triggered by a steady enrollment increase of approximately 500 students or 16 classrooms a year at a time when operating expenses and the cost of materials rose steadily.

If the levy fails, cutbacks envisioned include reduction of teaching personnel by at least 28, curtailment of all extra-curricular activities including athletics, modification of the curriculum and slashing of purchase of educational supplies.

EVEN WITH such economies, cost analyses indicate that money will run out in November of 1969 and that school will have to shut down next November until advance tax money is available in January of 1970.

In Canal Winchester, the board is again asking 6.6 mills which will result in a net

Midnight Soliloquy Of A Taxpayer

Oh, my aching back.

The schools are hurting again and because I own my home I'm supposed to ride to the rescue on a great white tax duplicate.

It's breaking me!

I've had it and so has my wallet.

It's like hanging the goose that lays the golden egg.

Let the state or federal government take over.

Just count me out.

And then came a "Small Voice in the Still Night."

SV in the SN: "Who educated you?"

My parents.

SV in the SN: "How?"

Through taxes but they were for me.

SV in the SN: "Who educated your children?"

I did.

SV in the SN: "And who else?"

My neighbors.

SV in the SN: "And who's to educate the children we see around us today?"

Their parents, the state, Uncle Sam. Anyone, but not me, not me.

SV in the SN: "But you must — you are an American."

That is right, I am. And in America we invest in people — our greatest resource.

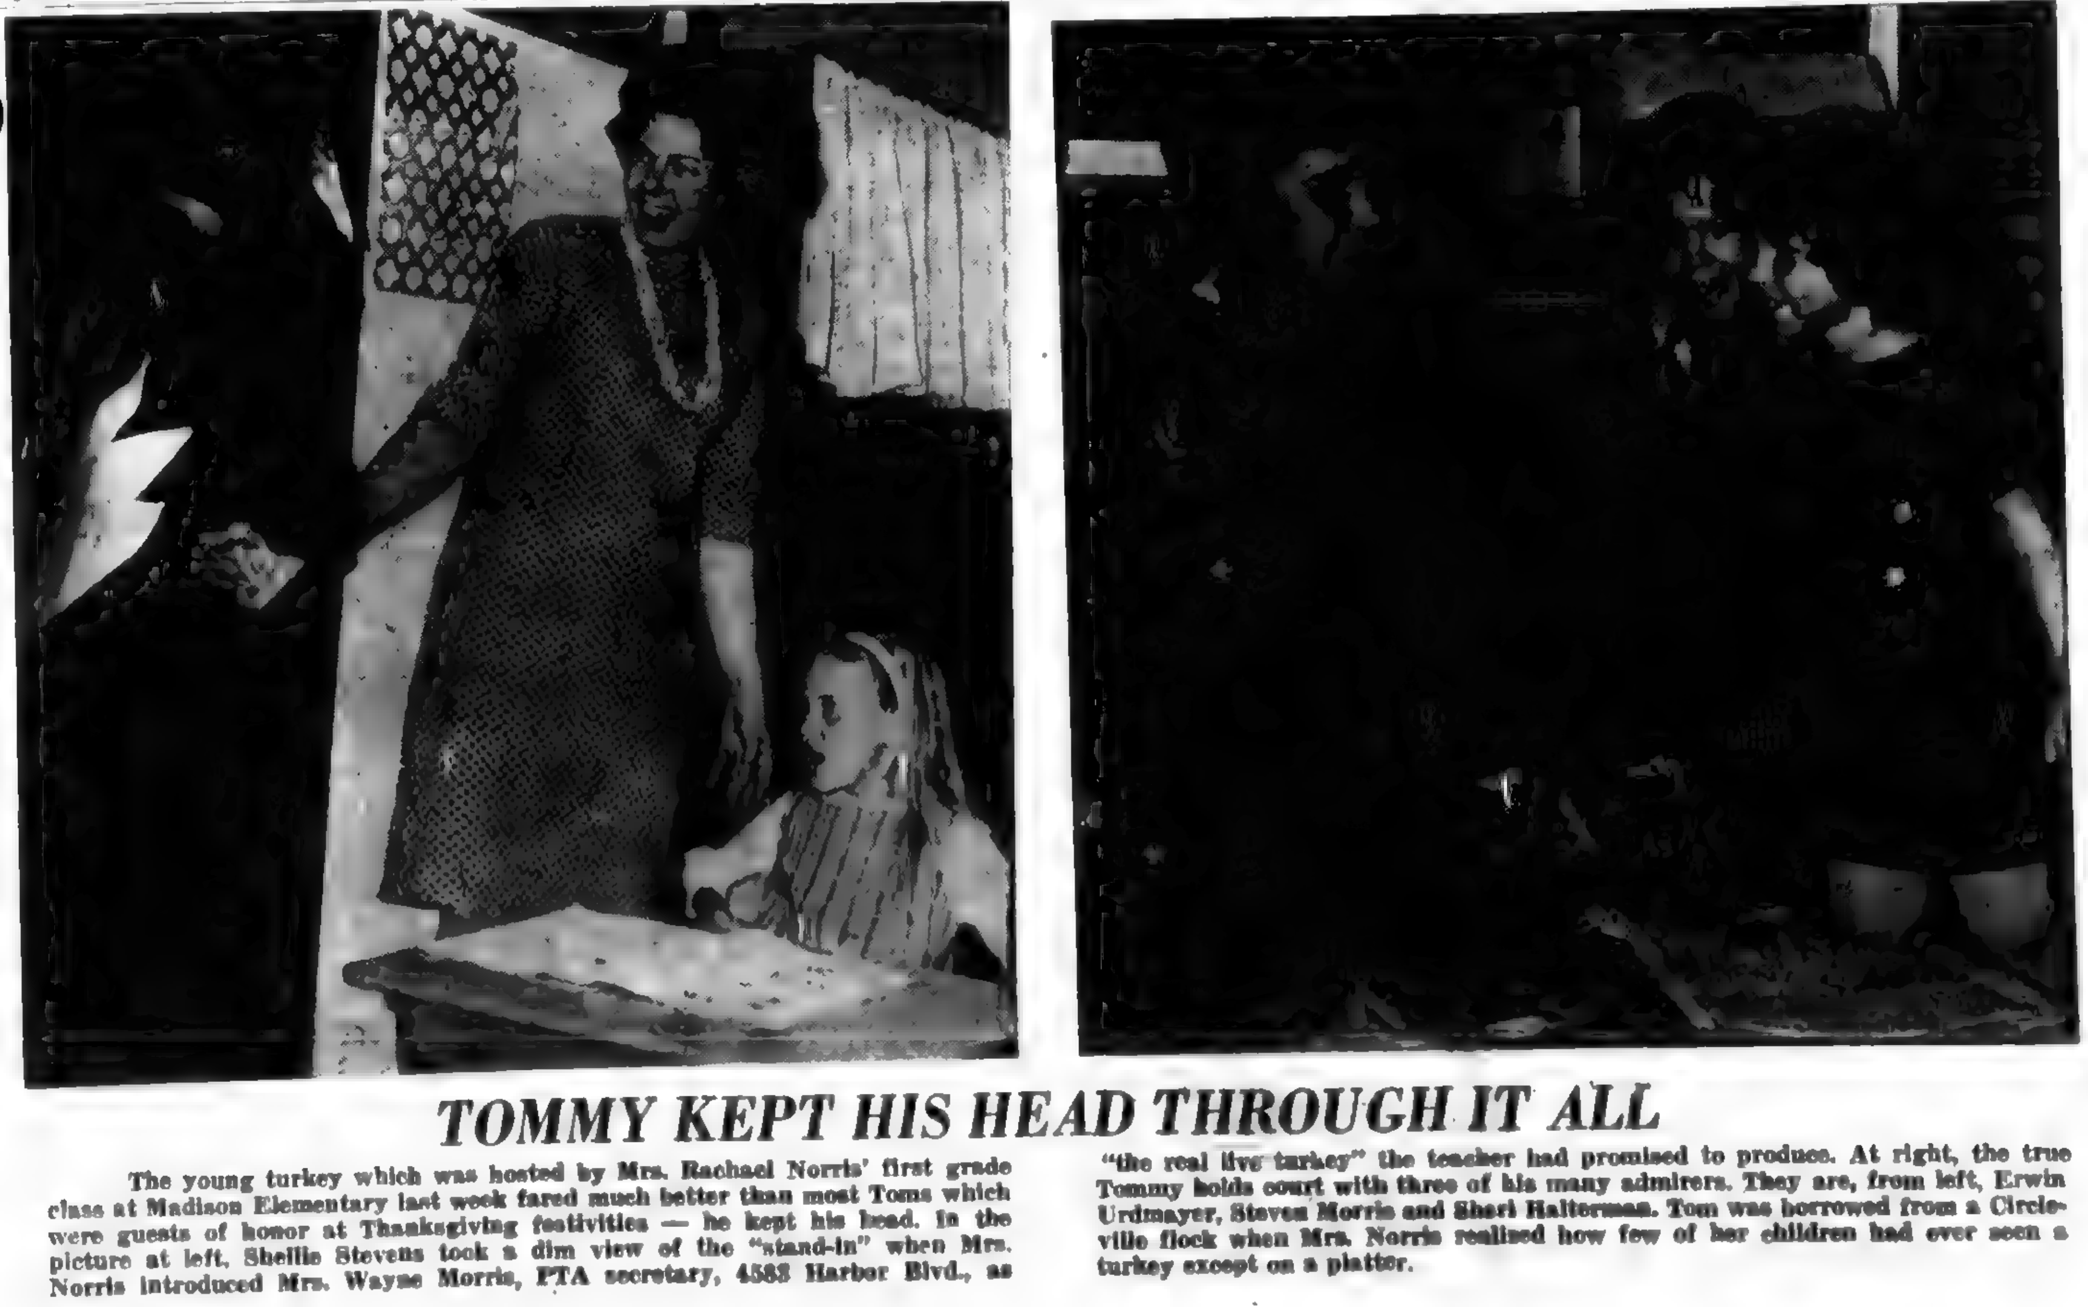
Hey what am I saying? I can't afford another dime in taxes.

SV in the SN: "Neither can you afford to vote against your schools, the youth of your community, the future of your country which rests in their hands."

Okay, Little Small Voice in the Still Night, I'll vote for the schools, and you let me sleep.

In the meantime, let's try to find some outside help.

I'm hurting.



TOMMY KEPT HIS HEAD THROUGH IT ALL

The young turkey which was hosted by Mrs. Rachael Norris' first grade class at Madison Elementary last week fared much better than most Toms which were guests of honor at Thanksgiving festivities — he kept his head. In the picture at left, Shellie Stevens took a dim view of the "stand-in" when Mrs. Norris introduced Mrs. Wayne Morris, PTA secretary, 4583 Harbor Blvd., as "the real live turkey" the teacher had promised to produce. At right, the true Tommy holds court with three of his many admirers. They are, from left, Erwin Urdmayer, Steven Morris and Sheri Halterman. Tom was borrowed from a Circleville flock when Mrs. Norris realized how few of her children had ever seen a turkey except on a platter.

resigns as clerk-treasurer.

ALTHOUGH MRS. Leatherwood is willing to stay on the job until April or May, she joins council in the belief that the transition will be smoother if the appointment is made earlier. This would allow the new clerk to be properly introduced to the dual responsibilities of the post.

Other business included the second reading of a salary ordinance for a street maintenance man and the third reading of one hiking the pay rate of the park caretaker. Both increases will be effective Jan. 1.

Bob Newman was present to review the village insurance coverage which is up for renewal.

PUT A FRUITCAKE IN YOUR FUTURE

Joe Lindsey and his cohorts in Southern Kiwanis have turned into a crew of fruitcake salesmen as the Christmas season approaches. Proudly showing their wares, which they claim the finest on the market, are president Al Braverman, sales chairman Lindsey; Layson White, vice chairman, and George George. The cakes may be obtained at George's Food Market, 1945 Lockbourne Rd., or at the Economy Savings and Loan branch managed by Lindsey at Eastland. Orders will also be taken for delivery by Braverman at the Wolfe Insurance Agency, 232-2325. The three and one and one-half pound packages (already sliced) sell for $3.50 and $2 respectively. Funds raised by the annual sale finance the Kiwanis projects undertaken in support of South Side youth.

AN OPEN LETTER

Hamilton Steering Committee Speaks Out

We, the Steering Committee for the Hamilton School District, feel the time has come to speak out.

First, let us explain just how we were formed. In the early fall the School Board had a meeting at the high school for interested parents and taxpayers. The purpose of this meeting was to explain why the 13-mill operating levy was to be put on the November ballot. After much discussion, people were asked to volunteer to help get the facts about the financial crisis facing our schools to the public—thus the Steering Committee.

FOR TWO WEEKS this committee investigated the books, held conferences with personnel, sorted out facts and figures. As a result of this investigation, it was decided that the schools could not maintain a quality education for our children with less millage and couldn't operate at all next year, without drastic cuts, with what is now available.

We taxpayers and parents of the Steering Committee did not find any misappropriations of funds. We did not find a vast waste of money in vocational training. We did not discover that our teachers are overpaid and screaming for more.

When the levy was voted down in November, nothing really changed. The additional monies were still needed for operation of a good school system. The Steering Committee has never lost sight of this truth. Their job is to get the facts to the voters so that they too will know why 13 mills is needed.

MANY EMOTIONS and personal feelings are now clouding this issue. Vendettas against people are overshadowing the facts. But the time is growing short for sorting out the false rumors, misinformation and even malicious gossip which is floating around.

The choice is obvious — if the 13 mill levy does not pass on Dec. 10 our schools will close until operating money becomes available from the state or federal government; and then there is the very strong possibility that our children will not complete a full school year.

But more important is that if the 13 mill levy does not pass this time, what happens next year? In April the school personnel's contracts come up for review. How could we expect our School Board to renew any contracts or hire new staff in April when they could not be sure that our schools would even open their doors next September?

WE MEMBERS of the Steering Committee say to you voters — we will gain no more from the passage of the 13 mill operating levy than you do. We will lose no more from the defeat of the levy than you do — ONLY A GOOD EDUCATION FOR OUR CHILDREN.

The Steering Committee
Nelson Warner,
Chairman

Publicity Chairman

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

South Side delegates to the Columbus Council of PTA's will be just a wee bit predjudiced today when the program is being presented at that group's meeting at Central High School at 1 p.m. The reason for the regional pride is that the school presenting the program is Koebel Road, one of the comparatively newer schools of the area. (Any school which wasn't in existence when this writer was attending school "umpteen" years ago, is "new"!)

Amanda Corbell and Marilyn Lindemuth are the two faculty members of the school who are in charge of the performance. The program will feature Christmas Carol singing, and the origin of the loved songs. The student narrator of "Christmas From Koebel Road School" is Bruce Green.

Tree Sale To Begin

Among the groups selling Christmas Trees this year, please remember that the South Side YMCA will once again be doing so, starting Saturday, Dec. 7. The project is sponsored by the men's clubs.

The last month of the year ranks first with this segment of the younger generation, which attains a new age within the week . . . David Botts, Clifford Hughes, Linda Neeshan, Michael Sturgell, Bruce Moore, Betty O'Donnell, Raymond Sullivan, Elayna Sherrod, Penny Workman, John Grey, Charles Gibson, Charles Tayner, Gregory Oxley, Gertrude McConahay and Timmy Montgomery.

December teens include Marsha Blackburn, Michael Dorn, Anna Marie Davidson, Bill King, Donald Gaal and Mark Peterfish.

Adults who "sandwich in" a birthday in the midst of holiday preparations include Hattie Pehrson, Peg Burns, Harold Myers, Deanna Sparks, Wade Riley, Margaret Duckworth, Jean LaRue, Evelyn Bier, Mary Leonard, Ralph Skeen, Larry Kleinlein, Celeste Kendall, Elizabeth Edwards, Leah Hursey, Mary Snider and Al Justus.

Anniversaries will be celebrated this week by Pat and Earl Miller and Josephine and "Hank" Poeschal.

Plan December Weddings

Soon to be wed are Marilyn Sue Betts, 3142 Torrington St., Hilliard, and David Geiger, 731 Siebert St., and Carolyn Sue Keeling, 243 Southwood Ave., and Gary Leuszler, London, O. Both couples have chosen Saturday, Dec. 7, as their nuptial date.

Belated congratulations to Carl Young, who earned fifth

'An Old Fashion Christmas' Garden Club Show Theme

"An Old Fashion Christmas" was chosen as the theme of the holiday show to be held by the Hamilton Township Garden Club Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Prushing, London-Groveport Road.

Chaired by Mrs. Herbert Wilson, assisted by Mrs. Benny Sawyer, the show will be judged at 4 p.m. by Mrs. Henry L. Young of the Bexley Garden Club. A gift exchange will follow, and a catered dinner served at 4 p.m.

According to Mrs. Wilson, many ideas will be utilized which were gained when members of the club and their guests attended the Nov. 19 Christmas demonstration at a Bexley greenhouse.

Those attending the demonstration included Mrs. Lester Badders, Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. Prushing, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Grant Harden, Mrs. Sawyer, Mrs. Paul Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Egbert, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Zellers, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Young, Mrs. Bill Glissner, Mrs. J. L. Hamill and Helen Miller.

of the high school must be curtailed. Proposing to eliminate all special programs borne by local expense and not required to conform with state standards, Savel did not spell out the "certain" extracurricular activities that must be discontinued but was specific about transportation.

ACCORDING TO HIS report, busing will not be provided students in grades nine through 12, and kindergarten children will be bused only one way.

The school board took no formal stand on Savel's recommendations, demanding that they be accompanied by figures pinpointing the exact dollar and cents savings in each area.

He was directed to prepare this study by Friday for release to the press.

SAVEL'S REPORT also pointed out that the Dec. 20 closing would necessitate amending the school calendar and placing baccalaureate June 15 and commencement June 19 rather than June 1 and June 5 respectively.

Although final decisions have not been made on the matter, it has also been recommended that only 12 month employes would work Jan. 6 to Jan. 20 and that full salaries of all employes be withheld from the Jan. 15 and Jan. 31 payroll with the balance due prorated through the end of their contract period.

It was further suggested that 11 and 12 month employes take their vacations during the January closing to make them available during the summer when they will be needed to help plan the "drastic cuts" of the 1969-70 school year.

ABOUT THE ONLY note of cheer at Monday's sessions was a letter of confirmation that the state is reimbursing Hamilton $4,850 for the equipment purchased for Printing II.

According to Savel, this cuts the school's total outlay for the vocational course (including instruction) to about $12,000.

Other business included acceptance of the resignation of Dick Bishop as coordinator of the Distributive Education program, effective Nov. 21, and motion to use $50,000 of the levy money—if it materializes—for remodeling of Obetz Elementary.

THIS ACTION was apparently made in deference to the threat by a group of Obetz residents recently that they would withhold their support of the 13-mill levy if such a promise were not written into the minutes.

increase in property owners' tax bill of five mills.

Canal Winchester's problems do not stem from a spiraling growth such as experienced in Madison, but rather from a relatively low tax rate based on a tax duplicate that has not kept pace with inflationery costs.

IN RECENT years, the district has made up the deficit between income and outgo by whittling away at the reserve that had been built up in the early sixties.

The present crisis results from the fact that while costs are still climbing, the reserve is exhausted.

Since the November elections, school officials have met frequently with the public in an attempt to determine, if the levy fails again, where cuts can be made without throwing the entire educational system into shambles.

THE AREAS of economy up for final decision after next Tuesday include reduction in staff, elimination of extra - curricular activities, curtailment of art, music, guidance and physical education and penny pinching in purchase of supplies, text and library books and equipment as well as in general main[illegible]

Boards of both schools have concluded that elimination of busing of children other than elementary age students living more than two miles from school is not a practical step.

With state support subsidizing transportation costs, the savings to be realized are insignificant.

Salesman John Rogers Works To Help His Fellow Handicapped

John Rogers works tirelessly through his chairmanships of the legislative committee of both the Columbus and Buckeye Area Chapter of the National Association of the Physically Handicapped to encourage employers to hire the handicapped.

But Rogers, whose handicaps are severe, isn't looking for an employer for himself.

The reason? He has been his own boss in the sales field since his graduation from South High 29 years ago.

First he sells greeting cards, gift items, magazines and, as he says, "what have you."

NEXT HE sells constructive programs for the physically handicapped.

Able to use only one finger, he has typed literally thousands of letters and articles to promote the programs through which the physically handicapped may be gainfully employed and find a warm and secure place in society.

As the Christmas season approaches, he urges that persons interested in the work of the NAPH attend a meeting of the group, held the second Saturday of each month at the Cerebral Palsy Center, 1036 E. Hudson St., at 2 p.m.

MEMBERS of the group especially invite those who are free from handicap to join them in their struggle.

OLD CAROLS

Many of our favorite Christmas carols are centuries old. "The First Noel" was originally a medieval shepherd song. "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" dates to the 16th century and "Joy To The World" was published in 1719.

ALTHOUGH MRS. Leatherwood is willing to stay on the job until April or May, she joins council in the belief that the transition will be smoother if the appointment is made earlier. This would allow the new clerk to be properly introduced to the dual responsibilities of the post.

Other business included the second reading of a salary ordinance for a street maintenance man and the third reading of one hiking the pay rate of the park caretaker. Both increases will be effective Jan. 1.

Bob Newman was present to review the village insurance coverage which is up for renewal.

In Florida

Out-of-town Thanksgivings were enjoyed by the Shoemaker trio of Shelley Drive, who spent a vacation period in Florida. The Sickberts were able to visit family members in Illinois.

Former neighbors and South Side friends of Russ Canter, long a resident of Morrill Avenue, could brighten his hospital stay by sending cheering cards to him, as he is a patient—Grant Hospital, Room 820.

Another friend who spent Thanksgiving as a hospital patient was Joan Tabor, 680 Siebert Street.

Gifts For Giving

Just one week from today, Thursday, Dec. 12, the "Gifts For Giving" will be in the process of being distributed, so time is growing short for those who might like to share in bringing Christmas Cheer to the patients of Ben Franklin tuberculosis hospital. Briefly, the South Side Spectator donors help the patients to "play Santa" to their own families.

The gifts are not for the patients themselves, but are for them to use as gifts for their loved ones. Thus, the needed articles include every age group, male and female.

Smaller items are easier to handle and distribute, naturally. There are less patients now, but we help them to remember more of their immediate family, so the need is as great as ever.

We've been lucky in past years in being able to announce "Success" after each visit . . . Wouldn't you like to be a Santa's helper, and help us spell the word again? Thanks!

And of course, the number to call is 444-1051.

Easter Seal Society Offers Service Information Leaflet

The Public Information Office of the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal Society) has announced the availability of a new catalog of publications on services provided by the National Easter Seal Society.

The Society, largest and oldest voluntary organization serving the physically and neurologically handicapped, is seeking to meet the problem of crippling through direct care and treatment, research and prevention of crippling, as well as the understanding of the handicapped through the education of parents, professional workers, employers and the public.

Copies of the new "Catalog of Publications" are available upon request in single issues and contain the most up-to-date list of materials available on subjects related to the care and treatment of handicapped individuals.

Architectural barriers, careers in rehabilitation, cerebral palsy, minimal brain dysfunction are only a few of the subjects covered by materials available. Listings on information on therapy, physical therapy, and program planning supplement the listings on recreation and camping, safety and accident prevention, special education, speech and hearing, stroke and hemiplegia. Vocational information and volunteer services are also included.

The National Society's educational program includes with the "Publications Catalog," two related periodicals: "Rehabilitation Literature," intended for professional workers in the field of rehabilitation and the "Easter Seal Bulletin," written for a broad audience of volunteers, parents, handicapped persons, and the general public.

Other publications of interest to the general public include the Society's "Annual Report" which details all activities of the nationwide network of grassroot units to provide local service, with the Report emphasis placed on service and fiscal affairs.

Smaller pamphlets such as "Facts About Easter Seals," "Easter Seals at Work," and the "Easter Seal Story" condense facts about the Society and present programs to supplement the informational films available on loan from the Society relating to careers, safety, architectural barriers and service.

All materials are available for study and selection for the work and understanding of the handicapped on a professional and volunteer level. An order invoice is included with each catalog for the publications and many others are available without cost.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the local Easter Seal Society or by writing to Public Information Director, Ohio Society for Cripple Children and Adults, 311 Kendall Place, Columbus, Ohio 43205.

A postcard will do.

HOLE IN HEAD

Greek and Roman children of early Christian times were often given puppet-dolls. These dolls were cunningly made, with jointed, movable wooden limbs and a hole in the head. A string passed through this hole, and connected to the arms and legs, turned the doll into a marionette.

NEWSIES PREPARE MATERIALS

These busy Charity Newsies are helping to prepare materials needed for the annual "Factory Solicitation" that just got under way. They are, from left, Clem Mazza, Carl Hergenell, Bill Cotter and Blake Danner. The Newsies, who clothe needy school-age children from throughout Franklin County each year, will hold the newspaper sale Saturday, Dec. 14. Last year they clothed 8,258 children with 75,479 articles of clothing.

Intermission

With Claudia Elkins

Erica Somewhat Less Than Goddess

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Erica Trevor opened at the Desert Inn Monday evening and should not have.

This opening statement is not intended to be a good lead-in, but simply, the truth.

First there is appearance. In advance promotion, Erica was billed as The Song Goddess. That, to my my way of thinking, implies soft colors, flowing gowns and beauty.

What Erica appeared in was a tight (!!!) pair of bell-bottom slacks topped with a gaudy jacket-blouse affair. Color: black.

Her make-up was harsh, that which was visible. Her long hair neither fitted her outfit nor that of a Goddess.

Secondly, a female performer is at all times a lady, especially a Goddess. What she injected in her banter with Lyle Preist (member of the Steve Burkey Orchestra) was uncalled for, in bad taste and appalling.

Another bad moment occurred during her banter concerning her cold. No use in going into detail, hopefully it is over, but not forgotten.

Now for the performance and format. The performance was an average voice with potential. She has range, but does not feel the lyrics, only delivers them. Three numbers were good . . . "Hey Jude," "All You Need Is Love" medley and her closing number, the theme from the film, "The Joker Is Wild."

As for the format, there was none. To be professional, one must have a beginning, middle and end. There was no rhyme or reason to the show.

You gotta have a message or a gimmick nowadays. Her's, The Song Goddess, needs a lot of work.

I just could not see it or hear it.

To be fair, ringsiders who saw Erica in her previous performance here said she had improved.

Take note. I saw only the first show Monday night . . . others see Goddesses differently . . . sound equipment acted up . . . she had a cold . . . this is her first attempt as a single.

But, I saw what I saw and heard what I heard and believe me, a weaker opening show, I've never seen.

LTOB Purchases Douglas Theater

Rumors, I've concluded, should be delicately treated until the facts are all in.

A year ago, the community theater grapevine had it that Little Theater Off Broadway was folding. A month, later, LTOB was considering the purchase of the Douglas Theater in Grove City.

One way or the other, this rumor had possibilities as a story. Dick Grace, guiding light at LTOB, director and playwright, attended the September board meeting of The Association Of Community Theaters - Columbus with a long box which I thought was a container for a snack to carry him through the long ACT agenda.

With pride, he and his fellow companion, Jack Meier, unveiled a scale model theater which was in fact a rumor turned fact . . . LTOB had purchased the Douglas movie house at 3651 Broadway, Grove City.

This accomplishment is a tribute to LTOB. There are only three out of 10 community theaters within a 20 mile radius that have their own facilities. That is, both a place to rehearse and produce under the same roof.

Members have been scrubbing, removing gum, painting, laing carpet, putting in emergency exits, paneling, rewiring, sawing and pounding for months. I guess it is like buying a house and molding it into a home.

Their open house was last night, but you can bet that every night will be just as exciting. Grove City residents have been stopping in to take a look and some have ended up returning in work clothes.

Several weeks ago, I stopped by to see the theater and was pleased to find that the theater offers many fine points for producing a play. Accoustics are superb. A small seating capacity (132) enables the audiences above average contact with the stage, air-conditioning for the summer months and an opportunity to enlarge the facilities.

To open their season, LTOB has selected "Generation" which is now on the boards through Sunday evening. Curtain time is 8:30 nightly, except Sunday's which is at 7:30 p.m.

Reserved - seat tickets are available by calling club president, Jane Mixer, at 875-5110.

Projected plans call for five major productions by LTOB, workshops and productons involving teenagers, hosting second-run productions of other community theater groups and producing theater on a yearly basis rather than seasonal.

Another rumor has it that a recent successful community theater musical revue may be performed at LTOB.

Not only do we have another opening, "Generation," this week, we have a new theater. In a word, EXHILERATING!

Foster and Ferrell

After a successful Gospel concert on Sunday, Nov. 24, at the Way Biblical Research Center in New Knoxville, Foster and Ferrell inform me they will be opening at the Lincoln Lodge Monday, Dec. 16. This columnist, along with several dozen friends of Foster and Ferrell, journeyed to New Knoxville to hear them in their first Gospel concert at the Way Center.

Foster and Ferrell became interested in the Way Biblical Research Center about six months ago. An international organization with teaching centers the world over, the Way maintains its headquarters at New Knoxville. The basic programs of the Center are research, study and teaching of the Bible, as well as teaching classes called "Power for Abundant Living." For the weekly Sunday evening service, Paul Wierwille, the center's president, asked Foster and Ferrell to perform.

Perform they did. The duo of Foster and Ferrell wowed and pleased their audience as they have in clubs and lounges across the country. Over 300 people were present from many cities in the Mid-West. Also, as all Sunday evening services from the Way Center, the program was broadcast live to cities in Ohio, Florida, Minnesota and parts of Canada. It was taped and re-broadcast by stations around the world.

As in every one of their shows, they gave it everything. Foster and Ferrell used the same hard-driving and fast-paced style, along with the dynamic sound and presentation that has made them so very popular and entertaining.

About half of the program was comprised of songs they wrote for this concert. Popular Gospel tunes, such as "When The Saints Go Marching In," made up the other half of their show. Many of the songs they composed are bound to be popular favorites tomorrow because they are beautiful. The lyrics are meaningful and the melodies are strong and very moving.

Foster and Ferrell, their talent and their music, are as vibrant as ever. Pick any adjective in the vocabulary, and you still will not be able to describe the Foster and Ferrell duo. Remember you can see for yourself, beginning a week from Monday.

Want to See 'Sweet Thing'?

Has anybody seen "Sweet Thing"?

If not, you can catch "Sweet Thing" the rest of this week at Ohio's Grand Ole Opry. Nat Stuckey, the fellow who wrote and recorded the tune, "Sweet Thing," which was one of the top songs on the juke boxes last summer, is finishing out a smash week at the east side country and western club.

For those of you (and this is the majority) who have heard "Sweet Thing," you will be interested to know how the song and the title came about. For many years, Stuckey's uncle had a saying about anything that was good. His favorite remark was, sweet thing. After several years of listening to his uncle's favorite remark, Stuckey decided to write a song about sweet thing. So Stuckey took the idea, associated it with a girl and wrote the song. The rest is history. It became one of the best sellers in the country.

Stuckey took the tune and recorded it for RCA. The song and the artist both became hits over night. For a person who has been in the business only three years, this is fantastic. Since his first hit record, Stuckey has written three more songs that reached the top 20 on the record charts.

Besides being a writer of top songs, Stuckey is a polished entertainer who is loaded with vocal talent. He has a nice voice that is warm, full and possesses a rich tonal quality. Stuckey is a showman who knows what to do with the talent he owns. He is able to handle the ballads as well as the "up" tunes. This is a mark of a fine singer because it shows control and ability.

Stuckey is a showman as much as he is a singer. You'll enjoy his act, songs and voice. Make sure you do. You can catch him the rest of the week at the Ohio's Grand Ole Opry.

THE WINES OF GERMANY

The wines of Plato, Omar and even Benjamin Franklin couldn't approach today's California wines for flavor, But for taste and smoothness, one must consider the Wines of Germany.

Vineyard owners of the Rhine and Moselle valleys, the most northerly wine region in Europe, have triumphed magnificiently over the tremendous odds nature has stacked against them. Poor soil, lack of sunshine, a short summer, precipitous hillsides to be terraced, to which the vines cling precariously, and natural diseases of the vines . . . all handicaps but vintner's patience and toil have given us some of the world's great wines. Most is generally purchased by private connoisseurs.

Fred Lazarus III, chairman of John Shillito Co., of Cincinnati, is one of those connoisseurs. His wine cellar is made of concrete block and poured in a hillside back of his house overlooking the Ohio River. With the help of an air conditioner, the cellar is kept at an even year, round temperature of about 60 degrees, He sometimes speculates in new French vintages, buying the wines before the grapes are even ripe.

Consumption of wine and food in harmonious combination, as distinguished from the indiscriminate swallowing of ardent spirits, sharpens a man's sensitivity without blunting his discrimination. Thus he can fully enjoy a wine.

Wine connoisseurs belong to organizations. About 1,000 American members can be found in the largest of such organizations, the Confrerie des Chevaliers du Tastevin. Lazarus III, son of the chairman of Federated Department Stores is a member of the Confrerie.

In Germany, as in France, the traditions of wine are entwined with the very roots of history. As far back as the time of Charlemagne (800 a.d.) the vineyards of the Rhine, probably planted by the Romans of Caesar's time, enjoyed great fame.

During the 18th century, most of the Rhine wine shipped to England was labeled "Hockheimer." Today, in all English speaking countries, the term Hock means Rhine wine. (But it does not include Moselle or Steinwein wines).

Let us take a walk back through Ohio history to digress a little. Ebenezer Zane (Zahn) was a German Quaker. Hockhocking River of Fairfield County made the auction boards throughout all Europe. (New) Lancaster was founded by Germans, enticed by soils perhaps of the Rhine. Perhaps they dreamed of making Rhine Wine.

Benedictne monks of St. Alban's at Mainz began wine production in 853 A.D. Vineyards of this storied hill produce the finest Rhine wines. Monks and vineyards have always gone together. Science knows the ancients assessed wine as a food and as a therapy. Priests were trained also as physicians.

The grape in its pure state is a purifier of the system, removing poisons and in so doing lift the gases created by acidosis and man begins to feel warm in and with nature or God. That is why vineyards in Europe, in the beginning, were operated by monks and priests. They were also the early alchemists.

Cultivation taught them ways of nature, soils and atmosphere. They could apply it to man, in its components and reactions. Goethe, Smithson,' philanthropist through whom America has his Institution, and Agrippa all write of wine making and its study as a means to study nature.

Germans had to study soils and nature to cultivate the grapevine. As in other fine wine regions, the soil is most forbidding, being suited to no other crop. It is extremely rocky. The vineyards are planted along the steep, terraced slopes of the hills. The terraces are very narrow and must be constantly maintained, a task which must be carried on by hand. The slopes are so steep that carts cannot be used. In the Moselle Valley there is a predominance of slate to which is attributed the "slatey" dryness of the wines.

The Riesling is the plant noble of the Rhine and Moselle vineyards. It is not an abundant producer but does make a glorious wine.

The Ostreicher or Syivaner is grown in the Rheinhesse, the Rheinpfalz and Lower Franconia. It is said the Traminer grape will disappear altogether.

It is on Germany's white wines that her vinicultural fame rests. Her wines are clearly marked. Selective picking carry "Auslese;" late picking carry "Spratlese." Over ripe grapes are marked "edelfaule." Pickers carry two baskets in picking, and cull out individual grapes during picking.

GERMAN WINE LAWS

German wine laws are said to be the best in the world, yet they are not perfect. It is lax in bottling a trade marked brand and permits blending of wines of other vintages and other districts, and even adding sugar to the "must" in poor years if they do not produce enough alcohol for keeping.

Labeling wines tell what you are buying. "Naturrein, Naturwein or Ungezuckerter Wein mean natural wine which has not been sugared, and strength is about 8 to 12 per cent.

"Wachstum, Gewachs, or Kreszenz" denotes ownership of vineyard where wine was made.

"Kellerabfullung, Kellerabzug" means cellar bottling. Thus it should be easy to translate the meaning even of the most complicated German wine label.

Uniform wine labeling laws and widespread practice of estate bottling has made known many great vinyards in various districts of Germany. Each township has one or more vineyards of reputation. Ownership is similar to that in Burgundy where several, sometimes many, individuals own parcels of a given vineyard.

In listing German wines, the name of the township within which the vineyard lies usually precedes the vineyard name.

The best shown in America are Rudesheimer Schlossberg, Rudesheimer Hauserweg, Schloss Vollrads (which for many generations has been the property of the Counts Matuschka - Greiffenklau), Schloos Reinhardshausen (property of Prince Frederich Heinrich of Prussia). Finally, the first of all German wines, Schlooss Johannisberg, original home of the Benedictine monks.

Wines of the Rheinhesse are generally softer and richer than those of the Rheingau, which is one reason why they have always been very popular in America. Wines from Rheinhesse have been imported since Repeal. Within Worms at the southern border, stands the "Liebfrauenkirche (Church of Our Beloved Lady)" surrounded by its vineyards, the Liebfrauen Stiftswein and Kirchenstuck. But the word Liebfrauenkirche vineyards will not appear on the label. After all, Our Beloved Lady must not become known as a rare wine to taste.

Rheinpfalz wines made in the Palatinate are sweeter, and quite rich. Moselle wines are light and dry, and have a tingling sharpness to their sparkle. Vintaging is most difficult in the Moselle Valley. It is rare that the wines exceed 10 per cent alcohol. Rhine wines always come in brown colored bottles, and Moselle bottles are always dark green. Another way is the towns along the Rhine end in "heim." Those of the Moselle do not. In the Moselle Bishops prescribed wine to break a fever.

THE PLACE OF GERMAN WINES ON THE MENU

White wines, light wines, fresh wines, go well with almost all foods, particularly sea foods. They are dry and sharp, without being acid, and when they are sweet they are not cloying. A well chilled bottle of Moselle wine is the luncheon or dinner wine par excellence.

Another pleasant way to drink Rhine wines is with seltzer, mixing them half and half. They also lend themselves to punches.

AD SALESMEN OF A FEW DECADES AGO

Newspaper advertising salesmen were a motley lot following the 1929 Crash.

They created Ads out of words and lines, blocks and varied print size, always with a come-on that moved people into the store. Their problem was not how big an Ad to get into the Daily, but how good it could draw folks with monev to spend and willing to spend it.

Let us look in on the better Department Stores in one Ohio City during the early 1930's.

They were owned by the newspaper because of the huge advertising bills, that had gone unpaid since 1929. Yet the newspapers didn't want them, because they had problems themselves. So they let the owners continue as operators of the Stores, but in cooperation with the Ad Salesmen to move Stock.

Those were the Big Dollar Day Sales. Paychecks were from Works Progress Administration, both state and federal. It was time for the little fellow to feel his oats. Having little to begin with, he wasn't so far into debt. One might say, this is when the folks on Poverty Row moved across the tracks. Some monied folks found it mighty hard to tighten the stomach belt, and live without spending. One particular queen of a 24-room mansion huddled her family into three rooms to keep warm. She never did manage to spread out into the Big House again. Neither did the industry that had built the Big Stone House. Those advertising accounts were complete losses.

It was different with the Department Stores. Owners were given an opportunity to regain possession and control their businesses whenever the advertising bills were paid. Both the Ad man and Department Store head worked hard to make Dollar Days till-filling days.

If a picture of a dress was shown, there had to be at least three on hand, but not more than five. There were times when only one of the article advertised was for sale when the doors opened.

Women would line up for blocks long, three and four deep. The foot race would begin at 9 a.m. sharp. Many didn't wait for the elevator, they ran for the long steep stairs that offered a broken leg if one fell unprotected.

The Bargain Table became a scramble-amble like pigs rooting for a single ear of corn. Fights would often break out, with the dress being torn to bits before the fight stopped. Yes, there was hair pulling, and nail scratching. There was shin-kicking and shoving. But women bent on a Dollar Day bargain are not the sweetie-pies that husbands moon and spoon over. They were more like she-cats starved for a week for food and water.

Store owners didn't mind. It paid enough on old bills to the manufacturer, and it paid necessary down payments to get more merchandise. It also cleared enough to pay a mite on the advertising bill. Manufacturers had a problem also, of clearing away cheap merchandise jammed into musty piles for the "working man" making $25.00 a week.

Dollar Day buyers were these same folks with higher paychecks from WPA, PWA, and CCC. Society folks often drew paychecks in the Writers Progress Administration copying word-for-word stories of older writers, or setting up research files in libraries. It was the ditch-digger on government pay that kept the wheels turning at the Department Stores through Dollar Days and clothing Seconds. Today, they are samples in many instances.

Miners got away from Company Store red-tape, and Children's Homes closed to "farm" out the kids for pay for "easy money," and lifting county debt worries with difference of the allowance and payments channeled elsewhere.

This could well have been the big changeover in manipulating funds left by philanthropists for the "poor." It certainly was the offset of those living in Povery Row to enjoy pleasures by spending money.

Gradually, Dollar Day Sales moved into the "Reduced to $4.99, and $9.95." Next regulars were marked up a few dollars as a Special. But they sold, and so encouraged more of mark-ups, with the markdowns. The 10c table was a grand scramble along with the 29c one.

Then came the day, Department Store heads could open up his own store again. Yes, one particular newspaper let all of them take back full control of their store when the bills were paid. These same stores retained the Memory, and continued to be loyal when other newspapers opened. That's how it should be . . .

Better times changed Ad men's duties and methods. They dwelt upon pretty ad makeup with pictures, and building lineage. Oldtimers still act as liaison in ad making between the store owner and the buyer that is enticed into the store.

However, there is a big difference in "behind in bills" time. Ad men move onto another going concern. Today, Shopping Centers take two percent tax on all sales plus the rent. There is no rebate. And there is always another ready to rent your space.

It is estimated that bankruptcy rates today are at an all time high. Certainly, it must be when one bank will not cash a check of another unless one has a Savings or a Checking Account balance to cover it. This puts BankAmericard into the Turnstyle Unit of Exchange.

It is said that so many major manufacturing companies throughout the United States are merging and closing their doors on the spur of the moment that banks cannot afford to cash checks readily. This creates a problem when shopping away from your neighborhood.

It is always good to spend your paycheck in your own neighborhood. You help the merchants to stay in business, and keep their prices as low as possible. You will find German Village Page advertisers courteous and helpful in your shopping needs. Prices are no higher than in the larger shopping centers.

It is nice to be greeted with a smile, one offering to help you find what you are looking for. You will find it like that at the eating places as well, friendliness with good food.

One must salute Frank Kondas for his success story in German Village area. In a few short years, he grew into a legend. He was at the door to greet you every evening, and he saw that someone waited on you immediately. He built his business on personal service, plus a good product.

One is always greeted with a glass of water in all the restaurants in German Village. It is almost Passe' in most Ohio restaurants.

Dor-o-bel offers wrapping service with gifts, for only 50 cents.

Nationaline is well equipped to offer you counseling on what to buy the Man of the House that likes to add-a-family room, or put new plumbing, heating and air conditioning in your present home. Poverty's Children

Over 176,000 Ohio children will not have enough to eat after July 1, 1969. They do not have enough now.

Apparently the State of Ohio doesn't stand ready to do anything about it.

As a result of the withdrawal by the federal government of approximately $7-$8 million from the Aid to Dependent Children program, grants will have to be cut — in this age of mushrooming costs of living — to what amounts to a drastic level.

Can you imagine supporting your family with 83 per cent of what they actually need? Now children on the ADC program may receive only 79 per cent of their needs.

Things could get worse. The percentage of need could go lower than this figure in coming years unless the "freeze provision" in the Social Security Act is repealed.

Some persist in believing jobs are the only answer to poverty. The reality of the situation is that, although the employment rate is rising, so are the welfare rolls.

The situation is untenable. The Wonderful World of Ohio is wonderful indeed for those who do not have to depend on public welfare — but even this "wonderful world" cannot provide jobs for everyone.

We don't believe that 100 per cent employment is possible. It is this blindness that spells disaster for millions in our society.

It is a question of fiscal priorities.

The welfare rolls are never going to be eliminated. We cannot expect them to be eliminated. We will have to assume our responsibilities to see that those who have no other hope than public assistance at least have enough to eat.

The Spectator has no hope that the state will make up the money lost from the Federal government — or that it will ever make an effort to raise grants to 100 per cent of need. The only immediate answer appears to be a repeal of the "freeze provision." And even this action won't completely solve the problems.

It all adds up to hunger.

Stray Solutions?

The best conceived plans of mice and men sometimes go astray.

Gov. James A. Rhodes' "Solutions for the Seventies" appear as vital guidelines for the future development of Ohio.

In a Thanksgiving Eve address delivered to the Cleveland Growth Board, the governor outlined new proposals for education, housing and highways in the state.

He stressed the need for increased educational programs, housing for low-income families and expenditures to help break major traffic bottlenecks.

We cannot argue with his proposals. We've been arguing for these proposals for many years.

But Gov. Rhodes often has been long on promises and short on performance.

Never has anyone promised so much to so many at so little cost.

Now the Great Kingfisher must deliver on his promises.

"With these 'rights' will come responsibility," the governor concluded.

We hope so, too, Gov. Rhodes.

It's Not Funny

By JOHN MORGAN

(Note: I am writing this column, depositing it for safekeeping thirty feet below the ground and hoping that in generations to come some exploring anthropologist will use it as a true apology for our century.)

Dear Future Generations:

I hope there will be some of you left to read this. I have my doubts.

But if by chance you have avoided wars, hydrogen fallouts, the slings and arrows of outrageous politicians or your own stupidity, I want to caution you not to judge us too harshly.

AFTER ALL, we were only men like yourselves. And if we are guilty of anything it is simply being human.

Let me try to explain to you where we went wrong. I know you understand something about our outside problems . . . you know, our racial crisis, the war, political alienation, the generation gap and "creeping socialism." I trust you must have information on immorality, mini-skirts, hippies, drop-outs, wife-swapping, suburban backwardness, frustrated liberals, pinko journalists, rednecked anarchists, pseudo-intellectuals, do-nothing conservatives, war-crazy generals and bearded beatniks.

With all this information you may think you can understand this brief period of the world's history.

BUT I DOUBT it, people of the future.

You have as much information as we think we need to understand this age. But you've got nothing.

Let me tell you where we went wrong.

• • •

We went wrong, people of the future, when we:

•Began to install wall-to-wall television in our living rooms.

•Started to crack down on the affluent chiselers who cheat on income tax forms and insurance claims.

•Required politicians to tell the truth.

•Demanded every nation receiving foreign aid to sign a loyalty oath.

•Signed a test ban treaty on international compassion.

•Cut off the final minutes of a nationally televised football game for a beautiful children's play.

•Sent a man to the moon and he decided to stay there.

BUT MOST of all, we went wrong when we decided not to laugh at ourselves any longer.

So defensive were we that no one could laugh—which is to say, put things in their proper perspective.

No one dared chuckle at excess patriotism, bungled public announcements or just plain stupidity.

Big Brother got too big.

And we died of an overdose of seriousness.

That, my friends of the future, is what truly happened.

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG

The end of 1968 is close at hand. All investors, if they have not already done so, should start thinking about their tax situation. Except for a 7½ per cent surcharge on taxpayers' 1968 total tax liability, the treatment of capital gains and losses by individuals remains essentially the same.

Capital gains and losses are of two classes: short-term gains and losses—those resulting from the sale or exchange of capital assets held 6 months or less; and long-term gains and losses—those resulting from the sale or exchange of capital assets held more than 6 months.

All short-term gains and losses are taken into account at 100 per cent and combined to determine the net short-term gain or loss. All long-term gains and losses are taken into account at 100 per cent and combined to determine the net long-term gain or loss.

The net short-term gains (short term gains minus short term losses) are taxed in full as ordinary income.

The net long term gains (long term gains minus long term losses and net short term losses) are taxed at a maximum rate of 26⅞ per cent (25% + 7½% tax surcharge) but may be taxed at a lower rate depending on the individual's normal tax bracket and options available in computing the tax.

Net capital losses (the excess of capital losses over capital gains whether short or long term) are fully deductible from current income, with the condition that only $1,000 may be applied in any one year. Any remaining losses may be carried forward indefinitely.

Many investors who take losses for tax reasons wish to reinstate their positions as soon as possible. There are three generally accepted methods of accomplishing this: Sell the stock to establish the loss and then repurchase it after a 30 day waiting period, purchase enough shares to double your position in the stock and after a 30 day waiting period sell your original investment, or sell your stock and purchase another one of similar investment stature and outlook immediately.

Listening Time

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

It is a good time for listening.

Columbus voters voiced a strong rejection of the one-half cent income tax hike. City officials remain attentive to post election comments and study the impersonal statistics of Nov. 5 in an attempt to interpret what the voters have said.

And one who listens carefully might be impressed by what he is NOT hearing.

There is no wild rush of desperation back to the ballot. The depth of the crisis facing Columbus dictates cautious, deliberate steps.

There are few recriminations to be heard. There is a general realization that the problem now is not to avoid a crisis, but to cure one.

While city officials continue to listen, they also are responding to the election result by bringing closer to reality the hard alternatives discussed during the campaign to pass the requested tax increase.

Budget trimming and the even more difficult search for new revenue sources is the "order of the day."

If there has been a credibility gap between Columbus city government and the people, it seems destined to be narrowed in the immediate months ahead. Crisis has its natural way of separating truth from fiction.

Mayor Sensenbrenner has pledged that other areas will suffer whatever cuts are necessary to maintain present police, fire and sanitation services at present staff and performance levels. But even the mayor admits that this still will leave much to be desired in these areas.

And while a new dialogue is developing between city officials and Columbus citizens, we can't help wondering out loud on these questions:

• Did Columbus citizens miss the important point that failure of the income tax measure would necessarily dictate the imposition of less effective, patchwork types of taxation and service fees?

• Did the majority of voters fail to realize that they were saying no to a 20 per cent tax contribution from citizens who live outside the city, but work in Columbus?

• With more forceful presentation of these facts — and the reality of the crisis — will Columbus citizens reconsider their Nov. 5 decision?

For the sake of the future of Greater Columbus, we would hope the answer to all three questions would be a resounding "yes"!

Popular Government

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Is it possible for "the people" to get too close to government?

Our federal, state and local laws are filled with safeguards to keep the operation of government sensitive to the will of the people.

But, just as government sometimes gets too aloof for its own good, isn't it possible that the people can abuse their own rights?

The controversy over the so-called 18-year-old entertainers ordinance is the classic example.

Opponents of the measure — sincere in their belief that it is morally wrong for teen-agers to entertain in liquor spots — have resorted to their right to bring the issue to a public vote.

It is not the first time in recent years we have seen a referendum on the ballot. The Morse Road extension is an equally good example. The experts set the route and "the people," who certainly are no experts on highway construction, voted it down.

This is not to suggest that the right of referendum, recall and initiative be taken from the people. It is, however, to suggest that the people stop and consider the consequences before they circulate those too-easy-to-get-signed petitions.

The consequences with the teen entertainers law so far are an impending ballot fight that is certain to cost money and a City Council candidacy based solely on this issue in a year when too many other issues are at stake.

This is particularly significant in light of the fact that less than a year ago, Columbus voters turned down the expansion and reorganization of Council —a move desiged specifically to bring the people closer to their government.

Sometimes, it seems, the voters can't see the trees for the forest.

The Professor

By TED BEARDSHEAR

My first year of college, which was spent at Denison University in Granville, O., I was privileged to work with Dr. Tristram Coffin.

Dr. Coffin taught freshman English. He was an amazing man and, even though the class was at 8 a.m., I managed to get there most of the time.

His assignments were simple: one short story or one essay. They took 15 or 20 minutes to read. Thus prepared, one would go gaily on to class.

Dr. Coffin started by asking someone for a synopsis of the essay or story. This was usually handled very quickly.

Then he'd pick random sentences and quote them, asking what they meant in terms of the story. This too would be dispensed with rather quickly.

That ended class participation. Dr. Coffin would then open his notes, stare at some distant point in the back of the room and begin talking.

He reviewed the synopsis and the quotes. He graduated to developing the underlying "meaning" of these things. He next went on to relate that "meaning" to the body of the author's work as a whole.

Taking the total work of the author, he would go on to relate the author's position of influence and importance in the field of American or British literature or philosophy.

Then he would take this extension and relate it to the movement of literature or philosophy at the time it was written.

He would then discourse on the entire movement extant and relate it to religious, social, economic, literary, philosophical and historical sequences of that period.

As a grand finale, he would relate the entire intellectual pyramid he had built to the history of Western Civilization.

One never interrupted or questioned. One sat in awe, taking voluminous notes . . . all the while feeling inferior that when YOU read the darn thing, it was just a simple little essay or story.

It was a humbling experience.

Dr. Coffin was sort of an ivory tower Eric Severeid of Cronkite's nightly CBS Newscast.

Oh yes, his final exam question for the semester was a dilly. It consisted of four words. It asked.

"What have you learned?"

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Likes Bus Story

To The Editor:

Mr. Beardshear's column in The Spectator about buses was very true — every bit of it.

I think you forgot to mention that some of drivers are afraid to use their voices to call the stree

I do believe a stranger would have a time findi his way here, when riding a bus, by not hearing the street call.

I've seen some folks get off past their stop for that reason.

Yes, everything you wrote is true. I've often wondered why someone hasn't done a story on it long ago—keep up the good work.

Club Responds

To The Editor:

We have received many favorable comments about the article Sylvia Brooks wrote concerning the Suburban Community Club. We are proud that your newspaper considered our organization newsworthy enough for a front page article.

We feel that the article was a tribute to a way of life that everyone wants to be a part of. We hope that the things that were written gave food for thought to those who have lost faith in our society. The Suburban Community Club will continue to strive for better homes, neighborhoods, schools and understanding among all people in the city of Whitehall.

Thank you for the service you have rendered the city of Whitehall and the Suburban Community Club.

Money Solves Monetary Crisis

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Herewith is another unwritten chapter from that unpublished text, "A History of the World, 1950 to 1999." Its title: "The Invention of Money."

• • •

THE WORLD was staggered by an acute monetary crisis in the fall of 1968—the 14th in as many months.

This time, the experts explained, Germany had been doing much too well economically. Consequently, a strong mark was threatening a weak pound, a sick dollar and a wobbling franc.

Many solutions were proposed, such as supporting the wobbling franc with sturdy Iranian quumquats, and resuming daylight bombing raids over Germany. But each had flaws.

It was then that a financial genius named Mellon de Casaba unveiled the plan that was to solve monetary crises forever.

"The only reason for national currencies," he said, "is to circulate pictures of a national leader in people's pants pockets.

"But for hundreds of years, this multiplicity of currencies has caused wars, revolutions, depressions, confusion to tourists and headaches for financial page readers. The solution can be summed up in two words:

"Real Money."

Thus de Casaba and a group of Swiss bankers set up a secret printing plant and began making Real Money.

"I suppose your Real Money is backed up by gold reserves you've buried somewhere?" asked a reporter suspiciously.

"No, pistachio ice cream," said de Casaba. "Our studies show people prefer pistachio ice cream to gold 3-1. Moreover, should the world ever fall off the Pistachio Ice Cream Standard — heaven forbid! — we can eat it."

In three short years, every nation had converted from aardvarks or zlotys or whatever to Real Money. General De Gaulle, of course, was the last hold-out. But the pressures on him proved irresistible.

"I just can't bear to hear Frenchmen shout, 'Exchange our francs for Real Money,'" he said and for a walk on the Seine.

• • •

WITH REAL MONEY the only currency, everyone was happy. Workers were happy to be working for Real Money. The egos of national leaders were soothed by sewing their pictures on all trouser labels. Tourists threw away their pocket calculators. And countries catering to tourists were delighted never to hear again those insulting words:

"How much is this worth in real money?"

But what preserved the sanity of mankind was that international monetary crises were a thing of the past. For the true genius of the de Casaba Plan lay in Real Money's being the world's first absolutely stable currency.

It never fluctuated. It could neither be devalued, revalued, depressed, inflated nor made sick, weak or wobbly. This became apparent the first time a worried international banker asked de Casaba how much Real Money would be worth next week.

"Compared," said de Casaba triumphantly, "to what?"

Columbus Leaders Express Feelings

(Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of articles on new approaches being tried in open housing problems. This week: Columbus' leaders react to the idea of a fair housing center here).

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Columbus' business and civil rights leaders have expressed mixed feelings about the possibility of a fair housing center for the metropolitan area.

While many lauded the efforts of a working open housing center in Denver, Colo., they questioned whether Columbus' business and political leaders would provide the support needed to launch such a program locally.

Last week, The Spectator explored in depth the workings of the Denver center, which has been in operation since 1966.

Starting with a small budget, the center now has working funds totaling over $400,000 and a workload of 300 families per month.

THE DENVER center — which serves as a clearing house for providing integrated housing — has won recognition nationally and in the city of Denver, both from business leaders and such political officials as the mayor of the city and Gov. John Love.

Could such a working center be put in operation here?

The answer to this question, it appears, rests with the commitment and the financial capability of Columbus.

Some expressed doubt over the commitment to open housing in this city.

"I would oppose a fair housing center along the lines now proposed, if we don't have the money or community support," said Mrs. Jean Puckstein, chairman of the NAACP's housing committee.

"A FAIR housing center like Denver's is the answer," she continued, "but they have $400,000 to work with and can hire field workers in the ghetto."

Mrs. Puckstein said a "Band-Aid" approach would not be adequate. "It's going to take a lot of money and commitment in Columbus. I'm not sure we even have the commitment yet."

Other civil rights leaders felt the center was vital to fair housing in the city.

Dr. Will Fernald, one of the trustees of the Bexley Human Relations Council, said "There is a crying need for a clearing house for people looking for homes as well as for those who are uncertain what reception others would give to open housing."

A MEMBER OF the Northwest Area Human Relations Council, Paul C. VanNatta, stressed positive needs such a center could meet. He said a coordinating agency "would make a difficult situation a lot less difficult for people seeking homes—which, after all, should be our prime concern."

The head of the Ohio Civil Rights Commission, Elli Ross, also expressed interest in the center concept.

"We encourage smaller groups such as the Denver center for two reasons: they obtain more listings of people who are willing to sell or rent on an open basis than a larger agency can, and they maintain a good community contact with people while operating on a local level — perhaps better than a state or federal agency," Ross declared.

The Denver center has been successful essentially for two reasons — it has involved both business and religious organizations in its programs.

WHAT CHANCE exists for this kind of involvement in Columbus?

Mrs. Ralph Kehr, one of the original motivators behind the center concept, is not at all optimistic.

"Some of us have talked to the leading business leaders and drawn a blank," she said. "We thought business should spearhead an open housing drive, since this is the only place to begin getting funds."

But, Mrs. Kehr continued, "we have had conversations with business leaders who agree in principle with open housing, with little resulting action."

Mrs. Kehr said on a trip to Cleveland this week she discovered businessmen deeply involved in open housing drives. "They're going all out —and getting money."

Seth Washburn, who heads the Columbus Chamber's housing committee, stated he felt the Denver center has been successful because of broad support. "I can envision," he added, "a center working in Columbus if it had the support given the one in Denver." But he questioned whether Columbus' "prevailing climate" would provide this support.

The area chamber has openly supported open housing.

WHILE THE Denver center is openly supported by realty officials, the reaction here was uncertain.

"We've never discussed the possibility — we've had no reason to," said Larry Chambers of the Columbus Real Estate Board. "The realtors' position on such a center would have to be determined by our trustees."

Another spokesman for business, who asked not to be quoted by name, said he was afraid a center might further polarize attitudes.

"More can be done behind the scenes than out in the open," he concluded.

Nathan VanderWerf, head of the Metropolitan Area Church Board, said he would support a center "if it had the necessary funding and a push from the community. But when it comes to money, everyone disappears."

THE REAL question for Columbus, most leaders agreed, was whether business and political officials are willing to back up public statements they have made in support of open housing.

CROSS TOWN

The sounds and sights of Christmas are filling our town this week. On the don't miss list — Lazarus' exciting animated window for the youngsters and the usual brilliant display of lights on the State Auto Mutual building on East Broad Street.

Another don't miss item — the newspaper sales of various Columbus civic groups. These holiday editions raise money for the many worthwhile causes these groups sponsor. Particularly notable in this area are Columbus Kiwanis clubs.

* * *

From brides to homes — a logical step for Mrs. Charles Gerhold, 2353 Brookwood Rd. Mrs. Gerhold is a former bridal consultant for Lazarus. Now she's a home consultant for Ernest G. Fritsche and Co., handling new and used home sales in Fritsche's Yorkshire community out east.

That's it for this week. Say "hi" to Santa and we'll see you next week, Cross Town.

Stereotypes, Fear Seen As Open Housing Barrier

By SYLVIA BROOKS
Spectator Staff Writer

Whites as well as blacks have a long way to go before they will be "free" according to Rev. Robert Newbold, one of the panelists at a discussion of freedom of choice in housing in Bexley Tuesday night. The meeting was sponsored by the Bexley Good Neighbors.

Newbold was one of four panelists discussing open housing from the legal, practical and moral standpoints.

Other panelists were Brad Salt and James Henley, realtors; and Stanley Robinson, attorney. The panel was moderated by Dr. Ralph W. Doermann of the Lutheran Theological Seminary.

NEWBOLD SAID whites should be free from the restrictions of stereotypes of the Negro — the old ideas that Negroes are "lazy, shiftless, immoral morons." He further indicated that whites should be free from fear — the fear that "if they (Negroes) move next door they might want to marry my daughter," or free from the fear that property values will go down with the coming of a Negro neighbor.

He outlined the duality of the concept of freedom: "One cannot be judged free because he acts like a free man; he is not free until chains are struck from his mind."

He charged that White, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant Americans had succeeded in reserving for themselves the right to fulfill basic needs, such as buying a shelter where financial status permits. The particular frustration of the Negro, he indicated, is that he may make as much money as a white person, and be able to purchase an expensive home, but is denied this right.

He pointed to the fact that our society is becoming more mobile, however, "Some want to relocate but they are not free to do so. They are immobilized in confined areas not fit for human habitation."

"THERE ARE those who experience limited mobility, and they move out of the inner city, but as they move to the suburbs others move away," he continued.

He deplored the connotation the language has for the word "black," and charged that "black" has become synonomous with evil. He cited words such as "blackmail," the superstition attached to "black cats," and pointed to television commercials which, in his opinion, reinforce the idea that white is good. He cited as an example the "White Knight" and the white dove.

He answered the often-heard accusation that Negroes "don't know how to act" and "don't know how to keep their property up" with the statement, "If a person has $30-40,000 to buy a house he knows how to live in that house."

He outlined four steps which must be taken before the problem of open housing can be alleviated: objective study of the problem, observation of the problem, dialogue between whites and blacks, and action on the problem.

BRAD SALT, realtor and member of Bexley City Council, stated he felt a much larger problem had been created than actually exists.

Salt said he believed the black man had the right to live where he wanted, but added that though we were supposedly created equal, "unfortunately we are not equal, socially, economically, religiously."

Salt indicated that if Bexley were completely integrated he did not anticipate any change in the community "regardless of who moves in." He pointed to the community of Berwyn where, he said, "The homes in that area that have been purchased by black people have been better kept than the homes of the white people. More white people have purchased homes in the area since it has been integrated."

HE CRITICIZED those who "waste the realtor's time" by calling merely to test on open housing, and indicated that an attempt to "qualify" the prospective buyer was made "so our time won't be wasted."

A resident present for the meeting questioned the methods of "qualifying" a person, and Salt responded that such basic questions as current residence, number of members in family are asked. He also indicated that it was worth the realtor's time to check the credit rating of the prospective buyer.

JAMES HENLEY, also a realtor, told the Bexley Good Neighbors that he usually refuses to talk about color. He said he preferred to take each individual for what he is.

He pointed out that "Some people tell me they will take the house off the market and stay there if you show it to a minority group."

Henley said, "I have done business with black people, eaten sandwiches at their tables, sat down to coffee with them, and things don't taste any different. We have had many black people in Bexley, people living in our homes, taking care of them and our children, so this is nothing new to us."

STANLEY ROBINSON, Jr., local attorney and hearing officer for the Civil Rights Commission, has been involved in housing matters since 1954. Although he said with the advent of the Jones Case (in which the Court upheld a law of the reconstruction era stating that all racial discrimination is barred in the sale and rental of property) the situation has improved, as far as the Ohio Fair Housing Act is concerned the law on the sale of houses "is no good."

Robinson indicated that in his use of the Jones case he is careful to see that the buyer is "super qualified" so there will not be any question about the matter. He said his idea of a "qualified" person was one who could raise the money.

A Bexley resident asked Salt what would happen if a seller asked the realtor not to sell to a black man. Salt replied that 'if the seller makes this request we will attempt to sell that house to someone other than colored. Our instructions to our staff are that we will refrain from showing to people who are not qualified."

He was then asked what he would do if a Negro were qualified.

Salt responded, "We explain to the seller that we will show the house to a qualified person."

Some 200 residents and interested persons attended the meeting.

Dr. Willard Fernald, president of Bexley Good Neighbors, told The Spectator at the conclusion of the meeting:

"I was delighted with the turnout. The encouraging thing to me was that we had two members of the Board of Realtors come talk to us."

Lunch Offered At Pickerington Church Bazaar

A lunch stand will be open during the Bazaar planned by the Pickerington United Methodist Church tomorrow from 10 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Held in the church basement, the Bazaar will offer aprons, baked goods, mincemeat, pecans, Christmas decorations, used clothing, gift boxes, a secret gift shop, novelties, toys (and other children's articles) and white elephants.

Postmaster Bodish Gives Christmas Mailing Data

Postmaster Victor J. Bodish predicts a record breaking volume of holiday mail. He said, "We estimate Columbus mailers alone will mail more than 35 million pieces of mail during the month of December."

This year, Christmas greeting cards will require 6-cents postage whether sealed or unsealed. However, Postmaster Bodish advices that all envelopes should be sealed to prevent jam-ups in mechanical sorting equipment. Also sealed cards bearing 6-cents postage will be forwarded to a new address or, if undeliverable, returned to the sender providing his address appears on the front of the envelope.

Postmaster Bodish emphasized the need for addressing cards with a complete legible address, including the ZIP Code number. He said, "The ZIP Code numbers will enable part-time employes to sort mail efficiently."

A ZIP Code guide for the Greater Columbus Ohio Delivery Area appears in the Blue Section of the current telephone directory.

It is very important that Christmas cards be separated into "'local" and "out-of-town" bundles. Each bundle should be securely tied and identified with one of the red or white mailing labels that will be left at each household.

Christmas cards for delivery to out-of-town addresses should be mailed by Dec. 11. Cards for delivery in Columbus and neighboring communities deposited no later than Dec. 16.

Bodish recommends the purchase of Christmas postage now to avoid lines at stamp windows as Christmas draws near. He said, "The best time to purchase stamps is during the morning hours."

It is suggested that Christmas cards be mailed at postal stations or in mailboxes on main thoroughfares which are collected frequently. Deposits should be made during morning hours on the way to work, shop or school so the cards can reach the Main Post Office and be sorted prior to the 5 p.m. rush of business mail.

Parcels for servicemen overseas must be packed in wood or solid fiberboard boxes and bear the appropriate ZIP Code numbers. Dec. 11 is the last date to insure pre-Christmas delivery of parcels paid at the airmail rate of postage.

Parcels for delivery must be mailed no later than Dec. 14 for local or nearby destinations.

A slip bearing both the sender's and addressee's name and address should be enclosed inside all parcels.
